Saying America is disrespectful to the entire Continent and the entire Continental American People. North Korea doesn't state that they are the Asians, and call others indians to confuse while arriving etc. Hi, we Asian, you indian. Ok! You indigenous you! Well, india named india because it is by the indus river, word indigenous roots from word indian, there is no indus river in America. Maybe Captain America is Legend at some point, The Real unique antiquity American Captain America. America is not a America <sup>TM</sup> a trademark Americans are the entire continentals, natives Americans are all the citizens in the Continent of America. The American Continentals.Even without the European migration, this continent would have Americans, yes. Just like Europe has Europeans. ..Just like Euros europeans in the European Union, and Asians, why the image of American is perceived as non native continental new colonialism is americans??? I am American... The entire Continents has Americans, different tribes since thousands of years. Many continental tribes, this is America, they are American. There is Africa, full of people, there is Europe, also full of their people. There is the Asian continent also with their Asian continentals. This continent is so easily manipulated and controled by power and superior amendments. Where is the indus River? Who are Americans? Who are Europeans? America the land of pilgrim opportunities and the Captain America. The pilgrim descendants surely do not want to rwtturn to their native continents, neither do the people who came along, but in Europe they visit and respect the all the Europeans, they visit Asia and Respect the Asians What happens when one continent gets full? They sail to America and stay in America, they expand superiority inferiority, inequality. In Asia, asians are respected. In Europe, Europeans are Respected. If whites are so bad then why do so many immigrants from different nationalities without European background want to come here? What do you say to every non European immigrant that wants to come here? The struggle against diseases like diabetes, cancers, viruses, and addictions are more destructive to the native nations and they're not alone in that struggle (the human race) I don't like cliques or race baiting or that's it those group of people can get along with this group anymore because of events of the past. New generations should be able to have the chance to progress human interactions or humanity. If not natives should at least see languages spoken by different tribes are being recorded and have alphabets to transcribe them. Poor brainwashed young people with their Identity politics , their racial grievance ideology. Every problem is always the fault of the mean white Europeans. And the myth that all native Americans were living in peace and harmony until the white man arrived is not factual. Nothing could be further from the truth. Native peoples fought each other engaging in constant tribal warfare and ritual torture for a thousand years before the arrival of the white European. They drove enemy tribes off their land, captured their women and children, tortured their enemies. These are facts.	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/94	1.064
lol the White girl claiming native heritage because of 'connection to a homeland' made me laugh. Girl, you already have a connection to a homeland. It just isn't this one, and you claim Native because it's impolitic and transgressive to claim a White homeland. White people who claim Native ancestry probably do so with scant evidence based on tenuous haplogroup associations. But it is revealing that she would cite love of a homeland as her reasoning. This only happens because she'd be called a nazi for claiming her real homeland. This simply reveals that Whites are denied the right to claim an identity, and that identity is as central to them as it is for Native people. One of the things I do not like about my white culture involves harming these people and a lot of other racism problems too. I think white culture is even getting more and more divided among it's own majorities because of how incredible judgmental they can be. I think native culture is far different from the settles culture to the point where the two people were not even thinking about routine things like living and religion in the same way. In fact, not even one bit based on texts written from the cultures shown. Christianity is not even a native European religion but borrowed. Hunting and gathering societies are also very complex and have many rules, taboos, and traditions around communication and rank to equally distributed resources among members. Western cultures is totally the opposite and there is a lot of greed and selfishness calming things as being there or feeling entitled to land and worldly things in general to the point where the tradition and religions is not even uniquely made but borrowed from another aboriginal culture from the middle east thousands of years ago during the stone age . Another problem is adapting to obvious language barriers with the settlers and natives.	Age, Racism	Age - General, Ethnicity - General	2/203	0.985

I see the New York times removed my previous comment, yet again (this is the second time) , which comforts me in the conviction that i did the right thing by posting it. I won't post it again with all the data and links because it took me 4 hours to write and add all the links. But i will post again what summarize it . White people are responsible for the genocide of the Native people (I am Inuit) , but this is the Sionist government that is responsible for the notion of blood quantum . In other world this is HQ in Israel who makes sure that Natives are divided and that white take the blame . Same with African american, Sionist who own the government (make no mistake they do), are the one passing law to keep the status quo as such. Divide to conquer while remaining hidden and putting the blame on others and turning everybody against each other, is the oldest trick in the book. But we are not all stupid and not all ignorant or oblivious of what is going and what has been going on for a very long time now. Keep on deleting my comments NYT and i'll keep on re-posting them because you deleting them is the best validation i get.I work for the UN , the biggest sionist and most atrocious org on the planet, and i hear A LOT of things in the corridors, but that's also why i live in Switzerland, one of the rare countries along with Iceland, China, Russia, and some countries of the Middle East to not swallow anything that is being shoved down their throat by mass culture . And of course all these countries are called dangerous . Coincidence ? Conveniently enough the US and Israel are not called dangerous places , in spite of what is going on there . Ask the Palestinians and check out the Israeli army. I am not antisemitic i have many non sionists Jewish friends who wouldn't be caught dead in Israel or the US because they have integrity and refuse to be part of the biggest threat our planet and us face today.So to my Native Nations Brothers and Sisters and to many other oppressed people out there, ... to quote Sinead , "Fight the real enemy" . I give you three weeks NYT for this comment to magically disappear too. Unless now you understand that it is in your best interest to leave it here, because it is starting to get suspicious .But then again, why am i not surprised , after all, who owns the New York Times and Many other major publications, the VERY anonymous, Ochs-Sulzberger family. Net worth of the very Ellusive arthur ochs-sulzberger, 50 billion dollars. Information is power and whomever controils it controls the world, something the Sionists, not the whites invented. I am not from the Americas, so it is maybe a bit hard to understand why you feel so much connected with only such a small part of your ancestry. A human skull that is prominently displayed at the National Museum here has been attracting crowds and controversy in equal measure since it was first unveiled early this month. After two decades in storage, the fossilized cranium has now been identified by Brazilian scientists as the oldest human remains ever recovered in the Western Hemisphere.The skull is that of a young woman , nicknamed Luzia, who is believed to have roamed the savannah of south-central Brazil some 11,500 years ago. Even more startling, a reconstruction of her cranium undertaken in Britain this year indicates that her features appear to be Negroid rather than Mongoloid , suggesting that the Western Hemisphere may have initially been settled not only earlier than thought, but by a people distinct from the ancestors of today's North and South American Indians. Davinci sullivan The first 'Americans' were the European settlers who founded 'America', they're also the 'native Americans'. 'America' is a European construct, before 1776 this landmass was never called that. Just like every other indigenous population we go by our tribal names not titles and colors. We were only granted 'American' citizenship 95 years ago. And you AFRICAN Americans are more closely related to Africans than we are to Siberian's. We're talking a 500 year difference between you and your African relatives and THOUSANDS of years difference between us and Siberian's. Siberian's are also neo mongoloids and we're paleo mongoloids, we're much older. The link I provided is up to date with people who know what they're talking about not YouTube scholars. Davinci sullivan Siberian's are east asians/neo mongoloids who only fully developed roughly 9kya, my ancestors the amerindians were in the America's long before that. Learn the difference between a neo and paleo mongoloid , we can't be Siberian's when we're way older. Only Inuits are East Asians neo mongoloids they came during the last wave, you can find them on both sides of the Bering strait and they have a raw diet like other East Asians. Their skulls are different from us 'modern' natives because of natural selection, but they still share genetics with us not no negroid. Davinci sullivan Of course you don't believe in adapting to the land through natural selection, otherwise it would go against everything you think you know. Because all indigenous people have their own unique genetic markers because they adapted to the land through natural selection. You Afro Americans share genetics with sub Saharan Africans which prove you're not indigenous but new arrivals otherwise you would've adapted to the land through natural selection. And Mayans are and always have been of paleo mongoloid stock not negroid. And they still look like their ancestors prior to Columbus. Rashad Bradford The oldest complete skeleton of its kind ever found, dating to more than 12,000 years ago, is helping solve a mystery about the differences in body types between the first humans to arrive in the Americas and later Native Americans, scientists announced Thursday.Anthropologists have long puzzled over why Native Americans don't look more like their ancient ancestors, who migrated into the Americas during the Pleistocene, the epoch that encompassed the last ice age and that ended about 12,000 years ago.The ancient skulls are larger, their faces are narrower and more forward-projecting, and they more closely resemble native peoples of Africa, Australia, and the southern Pacific Rim than they do their supposed American descendants!!!!!! That's what you don't get Read it again because you're still not getting it OR..... ORRRR!!! You just don't wanna be wrong it appears some previously unknown group split away from northern native Americans at some point and then moved into South America around 8000 years ago, long after the initial migration.But the study also adds to a big mystery: some groups in the Amazon are somewhat more closely related to the Australasians of Australia and Papua New Guinea than other native Americans are. The genomes show this 'Australasian signal' is more than 10,000 years old . So where did it come from?archaeological excavationWorking on an ancient site in PeruMark AldenderferIf another group of people more closely related to Australasians crossed the Beringian land bridge at some point and moved down to the Amazon, why is there no trace of them in North America? And in the exceedingly unlikely event they somehow managed to cross the vast Pacific long before the Polynesians, how did they end up in the Amazon, on the other side of the Andes?"The more we look at it, the more puzzled we are,' says Moreno-Mayar.Based on shape of their skulls, it has also been claimed that many ancient humans found in the Americas cannot be the ancestors of present-day native Americans and instead belonged to a distinct group dubbed the 'Paleoamericans	Guinea, Old	Age - Over 65s, Nationality - Italian	2/260	0.769
Rashad Bradford we compare the largest sample of early American skulls ever studied (81 skulls of the Lagoa Santa region) with worldwide data sets representing global morphological variation in humans, through three different multivariate analyses. The results obtained from all multivariate analyses confirm a close morphological affinity between SouthAmerican Paleoindians and extant Australo-Melanesians groups, supporting the hypothesis that two distinct biological populations could have colonized the New World in the Pleistocene/Holocene transition . white folks messed up the world with categorization and classifications.here in Africa, they left a lot of division with tribalism and ethnicity , divided people everywhere e.g, prior to the Belgium arrival, Tutsi tribe and Hutus in Rwanda used to coexist peacefully.once the whites came,they started diving them on physical features like skin tone and facial features and preferred Tutsi since they were lighter and narrow nosed.this grew lots of resentment and hate towards Tutsi from the Hutus. and guess what when Belgium left, a bloody genocide.this is the scar of what whites created around the world,the obsession of looks,color,tribe,races..it is pure nonsense,we are all humans,we are all born and die,we all feel pain,hunger, joy and bleed.what is the all the obsession about categorization of people,it only breeds hate towards each other. Most tribes owned African slaves. Cherokee owned over 8,000. Also, blacks owned slaves. Therefore whites, natives and blacks were the owners. Race doesnt exist. Not apparent that anyone here understands this.Indians, natives, etc were warriors. They attacked and killed everyone. Even other tribes. They sugarcoat their own history. The white men sailed over from another country and landed in a strange land and called it America . They stole this land from the natives and tried to get the natives to work as slaves. But because the natives knew the land too well the white decided that they will drive the natives out. And sense they couldn't force the natives to work as slaves they decided to kidnap people from Africa and ship them to America. Sense Africans didn't know the strange new land they were in they were forced to work as slaves and treated as property like animals. To them Africans and the Native were not human. At the same time they were killing Black men and raping black women they were killing and scalping the natives of this land. The civil war freed the slaves and the natives got patches of land they were not allowed to leave. Years go by and a new rising starts. This time it's the rise of the kkk they lenched the people of color used them as alligator bait. Burned crosses in neighborhoods to intimidate and terrify those who were not white. Less then 100 years later we end with a President who wants to take us back to the time of lenching, slavery, raping, and killing anyone who is not white. PLEASE PEOPLE LET'S NOT ALLOW THAT TO HAPPEN. WE DROVE THE WHITE RACIST MEN AWAY ONE TIME AND WE CAN DRIVE THEM AWAY AGAIN.this is our country not the kkk neo-nazis or white supremacists. This hits hard for me for so many reasons. The overlapping experiences of Native and Black people. How we are/were both used as objects. Treated as animals. How we were both stolen from land and land stolen from us. How our culture gets cherry picked. From the derogatory names used to describe us. The social caste systems designed to keep us at the bottom. The cruel methods that the government used to separate us from our original names, traditions, religions, hairstyles,etc. How difficult it is to trace/prove your ancestry because of flawed record keeping or no other vital records like Birth certificates, death certificates, or marriages. I'm so happy that this documentary tackled the tricky topic of how "pure" someone is and how that is used to further isolate native people's from each other. The iimportant thing is that you know who you are...We cant just blame the US government for everything. We have to hold our own Tribal governments accountable as well. Our traditions are our values, yey we mismanage funds just as good as our white brothers in Washington DC. GREED was not our culture. What is wtong with being called American Indian ? We are Americans. We are the first americans. America is not perfect, but it is the best we got. Our brethren, the Iroquoi nation helped draft our US Constitution. As a European I just can not understand,why the US give so much importance to a genetic concept of race , when the scientific community has come to the conclusion,that there is no such thing. Should it not be defined by culture? If I adopt a child from China immediately after birth, raise her in Greece, speak Greek to her, teach her Greek history, music,dances,art and cooking and she is legally and socially my daughter, would she be Chinese??? The blood quantum in Aboriginal peoples is monitored in Canada and USA for the following reasons: As people in this very video have stated—they are NOT Americans or Canadians and don't want to be. It's you people who want your blood quantum to be monitored. Aboriginal people don't want to be counted among us. In order to differentiate them from us, we quantify the amount of blood or ancestry is actually Aboriginal. I've seen people who were blonde haired and blue eyed and look more Caucasian than I do, but they maintain that they are a member of an Aboriginal nation and as such are entitled to the rights guaranteed by treaty. In Canada, that means they get free medical, free dental, free social services, and free education through university. They also get first dibs on natural resources like wild game and fish. They can veto a mining exploration claim, and they can stop production of pretty much any operation in the entire resource sector. You want to be distinct and different, this is how you want it done—by ancestry. Secondly, land claims are based on the idea that Aboriginal people were in North America first—first come, first served. Please note that this policy is not being applied in Europe with the native Europeans vs the immigrants. It's widely known and accepted that aboriginal peoples entered the Americas after the last ice age over the land bridge between Russia and Alaska. Aboriginal peoples don't like this because it puts them on a timeline of migration to the continent and arrival here becomes relative. Many Caucasians have lost their connection to the Earth after the Industrial Revolution. But many of us still have it. And as far as Indigenous goes, all humans are indigenous to the Earth. Aboriginal people don't have the moral high ground. If they could have done to us what we did to them, they would have. The Vikings tried to colonize Eastern Canada but the Aboriginal people kept attacking them, so they had to leave. Our people were constantly under attack for over a thousand years by Mongols from the east and Muslims from the south. In fact, the Muslims controlled the Mediterranean, Italy, Spain, Portugal, and Greece. They constantly were attacking Europe in all those places as well as what is now Romania. The words slave and Slav are related because so many Eastern Europeans (Slavs) were enslaved by Muslims the words became synonymous. Finally in the 1500s, the Europeans rose up and drove the invaders out of our lands and began a campaign of conquest never before visited on the Earth. We'd never be victims again. The Americas were conquered as well as much of Africa, Asia, and the Pacific. You want tribalism. That's tribalism.

Sure echos what's going on in Europe now where the original people of that area are being replaced with non Europeans through migration. If your a racist and uneducated in history you'll only think of the English, French and Spanish. There there are vastly more European countries that never took part in colonization of other countries yet seem to get grouped together with the aforementioned only because of their skin colour. All cultures in the world have experienced this at one point or the other. Just imagine living in England when the Viking came and ravaged them for a few hundred years. Or living in the Middle East when the Mongols came. During the Mongolian era only those who submitted to them were spared all others were killed. I know they committed genocide where my blood is from. But now I study their history in awe... cause it was hundreds of year in the past and I would be a moron to hate them. If after enough marrying other races for long enough, a child may be basically a genetic European with little DNA from native ancestors. Can he claim to be Indian then or will it be a matter of identity regardless of race ? This is a messy issue that will take much wisdom to sort out. I don't mind you preserving and enjoying your own culture, but it disgusts me that you bash mainstream American culture. I don't like being called white. I have a rich Scottish, Irish , and German heritage that I am proud of. My Irish American ancestors were just as much oppressed as the native Americans back in the day. Ultimately, I like think of my self as just American because your race has nothing to do with how you live you life. The culture you were brought up in will, but not your race . If I was raised on a reservation and treated as a native, I would culturally be just as native Americans as the pure blood. Also, inbreeding is really bad, that's why it's illegal in so many countries. Berth defects, mental illness, genetic disorders. No offense but Native Americans never died off or were in the verge of dying off . In the America's (north and South) there are more Native American DNA than any other race . So Mexicans have more Native DNA than a Native American from USA territory. There are 170 million Mexicans in North American and 75 of Mexicans have at least 55 Native American blood . There is a Native American tribe between the US- Mexican border, so yes were the same , US native and Mexican native. Europeans lines is what made us different by definition. I am a Hindu . . . well all the way from India. There was competition between Spain and Portuguese in 14-15th century to find a sea route to India. Well as you know by now to loot all the resources of India (both tangible and intangible ). Columbus (from Spain) took westward (as you mentioned because of his poor geographical knowledge) and ended up discovering new world eventually led to modern day America. He saw native Americans and started saying RED Indians (due to red complexion) thinking that he has indeed stepped India. That wrong understanding still remains. Vasco da Gama, took eastward and ended up in India. Both the discovery of the sea route led to huge genocide, centuries of atrocities. Unfortunately India suffered 5 centuries of Muslim terror before this. After Europeans came both Christians and Muslims joined hands terrorize Hindus . . . I can understand your pain. Some tribes got smart and decided not to go by blood quantum to decide if you were a member of the tribeThe obvious reason is eventually you would breed yourself out of existence and then the United States would no longer have any Wards to take care of.My grandmother was an original allottee. SheWas one of 2200 Osage left when the rolls were closed. The Osage reservation is under Osage County Oklahoma. That’s all we have left as a tribe. In 1917 at the start of the first world war we opened up or mineral reserve to the united states to fight that war. When World War II came along we did the same thing. Even though we weren’t legal US citizens we volunteered for both wars and there were more of us fighting in those wars per capita then any other ethnic group. Now by law we are US citizens and citizens of our own country. If you’d like to learn more about my tribe I suggest that you read The history of the Osage people by Louis F Burns. Calling Native Americans Indians is because of the Columbus error about landing in India and stuck because it was a good way to distract the world from the fact that this is exactly what they are Native to America and not migrants from across the seas. Calling us Indians was a distraction from calling us, Natives. It looked less like an invasion. And the deception was spread across the planet that Native Americans are American Indians. Not good. A thief or bully is just that no matter the social status or position in society. We shame the lies and thefts of our home yet we share what they now claim to own because of their papers and monies. Never refer to yourself as an Indian or even American Indian . They gave America a name so they could have a name to what they own. Even though it is not theirs. But we hold to a sharing spirit as the Earth shares with us. But they do not or refuse to understand this.	Indian	Ethnicity - Native-American	2/172	1.163

I look at most of the people being interviewed like have yall not heard of the $5 indians? The original aborigines of the americas are 'black' but yes the one tht look like mexicans are still our people too they just got white washed. Stop letting america lie to you most aborigines went into slavery along with the 'africans' because they couldn't tell the difference between the two also so tht the white man could infiltrate and take the reparations for themselves which they did. Let me play devils advocate for a second and this is not meant to offend... In some way, doesn't blood quantum (towards Natives) in a way, stop racism over time? What I mean is people have always been so focused on race and rights to a particular "group" but when does it end? Shouldn't the goal of mankind be to eliminate " race " and live in a society where how we celebrate at home determines our heritage, but in society we are just citizens? Perhaps, the government inevitably, and maybe not intentionally, is making all, fully equal without any identity politics left to determine how we live? Social benefits for any group has caused more suffering than most forms of racism . Welfare and social benefits keep people oppressed. I understand that reparations for past mistakes are needed and that there are still remnants of that suffering in current generations, but our society in 2019 is so beautiful (not perfect) compared to any civilization in the past centuries. Equal opportunities are available for everyone by and large, so, by telling someone that they are Native and them living off of government assistance innately makes you feel as the "other" and is only another form of disunity from general society. Furthermore, it might even create anxiety within those "groups" because they feel perceived or real resentment from those that do not receive said benefits. I just think in a modern age we need to dispel with historic oppression and move forward with responsibility regarding our own lives and successes. If you do that, love and acceptance will find you. Racists are running out of places to hide nowadays and most could argue that any openly racist person is rejected by greater society as a whole these days. We need to teach our youth history, but not categorize them anymore. People know who they are and where they belong because of family. It shouldn't matter in any greater context... I really don't see why such an emphasis is put on "blood quantum". Every race will be diluted and mixed in a hundred years (complete exaggeration itll prob take more like 5k yrs.). There is no way anybody can stop it. There will be no whites, no natives, no blacks etc. eventually there will be no race except human. The only way to preserve a certain race is to completely segregate a population but even then over time you run into family having babies with family. The only way to avoid the mistake of having relations with relatives is to go have relations with another group. Either we keep with the selfish, "i wont propagate with any other race cuz itll mean the end of my race ." thats not true. youre tribe, your reservations, your family dont define who you are. you can hold on to your traditions and your language. Id rather have one race , human, then bickering about what tribe or what blood quantum everybody is. NOBODY CAN STOP THE MELDING OF THE RACES OF THE WORLD. btw i am native and was raised native and know the ceremonies and some of the language and songs etc. and im very very traditional but even I know that the melding of races can't be stopped. its all part of evolution. First off, I believe to put a lot of faith in those ancestry tests are crazy . The police can't get field drug tests accurate but science can trace your lineage accurately? Ok. And second, I think the black native discussion started in the Southern states and the West Coast and was adopted am taken to other parts of the country. Of you're not from the South or don't come, it probably is far-fetched to you. But if you actually come see the people, and ACTUALLY have knowledge of Africans, you will be able to see the dilemma. Furthermore, this is a thing that actually isn't denied as much as you would think in the south. It's an accepted thing by blacks, whites, and "Native Americans". The truth is still hidden and told in the South. May never be published but they're handed down and shared within cultures. And to those asking why do blacks wanna be native Americans; we don't. We jus wanna be who we are. Americans just chose what historical documents hold relevance and which ones do not. Such as the reason a lot of blacks and native Americans have Euro in their blood is because some of our ancestors were shipped there and then bought and shipped back. America is the least racist country on planet Earth. We have not always been so, but we have learned. Everywhere else is centered around ethnic and cultural identity, but here, we are a melting pot. We have difficulty accepting that others don't wish to assimilate when they immigrate. But we now see that the First Peoples should not be required to become any other than they are. If they need to adapt, let them do it in their own way. We must see to it that they have the opportunities to reach for their dreams, the same as anyone else.America is a melting pot. If you don't want to be an American, and accept the Constitution and the culture we have built, then don't come here. That applies to everyone, except the Native Peoples who were here first. We learned a lot from them, but not enough to let them be themselves. Now we are finally learning that too. If you are of "mixed blood" - regardless of quantum - you are still Native. You have a history, a culture, an identity, a home, and no matter whether the government recognizes your claim, you can claim it nevertheless. If you learn about and cultivate your heritage, you will always have a place. It doesn't matter if you don't live on the reservation. If you know that you are of the First Peoples, then they can't take it away from you. It is who you are. Of course, the mainstream would be glad to assimilate you, but no matter the lifestyle you choose, you still have your identity.But if you are new here, get with the program!! If you are part native, you should value your heritage. Keeping your heritage is how you value your own identity. But if you come here to escape your homeland and the oppression there, don't bring it with you. We don't want it any more than you did.	Ethnic, Racist	Ethnicity - General	2/325	0.615

Native Americans are less than 3 of the North American population. Intermarriage is huge, like over 50. They can either stay conservative about what native are supposed to look like and watch their demography and culture erode to nothing , or take a more inclusive view of "culture". Either way, a century or two from now there will be very few of the classically "native" looking people around. In that sense, intermarriage has guaranteed their final annihilation. For Mexicans of the generation that fought the Mexican–American War, and generations to come, the San Patricios were heroes who came to their aid in an hour of need. For Americans of that generation, the San Patricios were considered traitors.[5] Successive Mexican presidents have praised the San Patricios; Vicente Fox Quesada stated that "The affinities between Ireland and Mexico go back to the first years of our nation, when our country fought to preserve its national sovereignty ... Then, a brave group of Irish soldiers ... in a heroic gesture, decided to fight against the foreign ground invasion",[6] and Mexican president Ernesto Zedillo stated "Members of the St. Patrick's Battalion were executed for following their consciences. They were martyred for adhering to the highest ideals ... we honor their memory. In the name of the people of Mexico, I salute today the people of Ireland and express my eternal gratitude".[7]The great majority of these men were recent immigrants who had arrived at northeastern U.S. ports, part of the Irish diaspora then escaping the Great Irish Famine and extremely poor economic conditions in Ireland, part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland at the time. The U.S. Army often recruited Irishmen and other immigrants into military service shortly or sometimes immediately after arrival in America in coffin ships, with promises of salaries and land after the war.Numerous theories have been proposed as to their motives for desertion, including cultural alienation,[8][9] mistreatment of immigrant soldiers by nativist soldiers and senior officers,[10][9] brutal military discipline and dislike of service in the U.S. military,[9] being forced to attend Protestant church services and being unable to practice their Catholic religion freely[11] as well as religious ideological convictions,[9] the incentive of higher wages and land grants starting at 320 acres (1.3 km2) offered by Mexico,[12][9] and viewing the U.S. invasion of Mexico as unjust.[11][13]It is believed primary motivations were shared religion with the Mexicans and sympathy for the Mexican cause based on similarities between the situations in Mexico and Ireland. This hypothesis is based on evidence of the number of Irish Catholics in the battalion, the letters of John Riley, and the field entries of senior officers.[14][15] Another hypothesis is that the members of the Saint Patrick's Battalion had been unhappy with their treatment in the U.S. Army; this was the conviction of George Ballentine, an Englishman who served in the American army. Ballentine stated that while "there was a portion of truth" in the view—commonly assigned by officers—that the deserters joined the Mexican army due to their Catholicism, "I have good reason to believe, in fact in some cases I know, that harsh and unjust treatment by their officers operated far more strongly than any other consideration to produce the deplorable result [desertion]," describing how he found the punishments used for "trivial offenses" to be "revolting and disgusting".[16] Another theory some historians hold is that the soldiers were attracted by the incentives offered by the Mexican government: safe passage throughout Mexico for deserters, generous land grants, and the offer of potential military commissions.[17] For poor people coming from famine conditions, economics was often an important incentive.[18]Mexican author	Immigrant, Nation, Senior	Age - Over 65s, Nationality - General	4/634	0.631

Ugh, I feel like this is a DNC 'evil white man' video. 'In 1934, the Indian Reorganization Act ( Indian New Deal) provided a means for federally recognized tribes to form constitutions and statutes to define their own membership criteria. As a result, the majority of federally recognized tribes began using set blood quantum requirements, lineal descendancy, or roll descendancy as criteria for tribal membership. Many non-federally recognized bands and tribes adopted blood quantum requirements to determine their tribal membership as well.' Did you catch that? So Native American is open to interpretation, however you see it, sort of like revisionist history. Why not just say your part Indian, part native—which is what most of these young adults are. Most people are mixed this or that, thousands of years of migration patterns and settlements. In America starting with the Indian who settled here from Asia, followed by the European. Historical events make us what we are today, like it or not. I'm part Indian like many Americans whose European ancestors came to the New World early on, Spanish French, English, Dutch. My culture is not Indian-linguistically, religiously, or do I live on federal lands or claim anything Indian except for blood like many Europeans here since the 1600's. Indians regardless of blood percentage are more European in culture than their nativeness. On this video. they are speaking a European language and wearing European clothing, taking advantage of todays technology and education, for beginners followed by a whole slew of Europeans practices more part of their daily life than their Indian roots. We are all united in the U.S. together regardless of the wrongs of the past, Indian or European. We do not have the mentality of the sixteenth century, thank God, we have grown up to develop human rights in an imperfect world. Our ancestors were violent we would not want to go there. Lets be grateful for this great country which people not so fortunate are entering by whatever means they can, legally or illegally to get a taste of what most of us take for granted. Be proud of your indigenous roots but appreciate how the European has contributed to your well being. Perhaps not in the most humane manner, but the U.S. government has provided for your faring better than natives anywhere in the Americas. I'm wondering how they feel when natives are portrayed in movies like Twilight. Wondering also how we should call them... Just natives? Or like in Canada "First Nations"? I guess the best would be by their real tribal names but most of us are ignorant of these names... And I think most of ppl commenting didn't got what shocked the girl about the blood percentage. Her full blood sister has another percentage - that may be ok since siblings don't have the same ADN but it's just so weird , especially when the tribe has his own rule for that!!! Identity is not necessary when you are only one on earth but it is for communities... So what the community says about identity should be the only rule... You stole My land Let's get real, the lands were not stolen. These states were conquered fair and square. Along with a treaty and United States paid Mexico approx $18,000,000 for lands historically belonging to Spain. These states were not populated by Mexicans, Mexicans were not even in these states/territories, except for the Mexican army who had no Mexicans in sight to help backin-up the Mexican Army during the Mexican American War. Mexicans were hundreds of miles to the south, a world away, consistent with what Indian was indigenous where in the Americas. Each had their own particular native area and tribe for centuries. Mexicans are not indigenous to any parts of the United States. These states were too far from Mexico and sparsely populated. The populations were Indians and Spanish, not Mexicans. Mexicans came to the border areas after the War late in the 1800's. Later most Mexicans came into the U.S. during the Mexican Revolution. Mexican Indians are from Mexico, U.S. Indians are from the United States. There is a difference.	Indian	Ethnicity - Native-American	1/173	0.578

Actually Spain possessed and governed the territories known as New Spain for 300 years until 1821 becoming the young Republic of Mexico. Also getting its name Mexico, thus Mexicans from this point forward – nationally. After Mexican Independence from Spain, Mexico claimed the lands. , Piggy backing on Spain's accomplishments, The Mexican Constitution of the young republic defines Mexico's 30 states and federal boundaries but makes no mention of California, Arizona, New Mexico or Texas. Geographicy they were too distant and the young republic did not bother with the territories except to tax the citizens for 26 years, losing them by United States conquest. They were not stolen, they were conquered and the U.S. paid about 18 million dollars to Mexico. Read up on the History of Mexico. The Southwest along with the rest of the United States has its own indigenous Indians as any historian on Spanish borderlands (Louisiana, Georgia, Arkansas, Florida, Carolinas, Mississippi areas, Pacific coast as well as the SW) can account for. Many U. S. Indians are not welcoming to immigrant Indians in their centuries homelands.	Immigrant	Nationality - General	1/180	0.556

Juan Garcia indigenous peoples were not one nation from Alaska to Argentina. Montezuma only ruled what is today the Mexico City area also known as the valley of Mexico or Mexica Aztec tribes. Montezumas rule did not even reach further north or south of the Aztec valley. America was inclusive of vast lands and many of these lands were not claimed by any tribes. No knowledge of maps or geography. Indians were territorial and attacked other Indians. Many were nomadic claiming no lands. Indians were inherent to their particular tribe or territory. Indians were not and are still not inherent to all of America. Indians do not have a birthright to lands that belonged to other tribes. When the European settled, the known lands were territories. The European developed American to what it is today and the European made the Americas into nations in the 1700 and 1800's.	Nation	Nationality - General	1/148	0.676

Juan Garcia Mexico’s borders/were defined by modern history. Just like all countries in the Americas. When the Spanish conquered Tenochtitlan, and renamed it Mexico City, there was no Mexico to speak of, the Spanish named the new found territories New Spain. Part of New Spain was renamed the Republic of Mexico approx 1824. In other words when Cortez arrived in what the Spanish named Vera Cruz, 1520, they did not recognize it as Mexico and neither did the Indians. Things developed over 300 years in what today we know as Mexico, as any historian knows. Even New Mexico got it’s name in 1560, over 250 years before Mexico got it’s name. New Mexico named for ”new” treasures the Spanish hoped to discover as with the Mexica Aztez gold in Mexico City, thus ” new” Mexico—later to discover there was no gold, only Indians living in dust; New Mexico errorously named causing assumptions and confusion in history. The Spanish considered the Aztecs rich, but found only Indians living in poverty in New Mexico. Look in any pre 1821 map of Spanish America which is inclusive of the southwest, California, Texas, Louisiana, Georgia, Florida, Carolinas, Pacific Coast to Canada. Europeans; Spanish, English and French, studied the territories, the indigenous natives, tributaries, latitudes, mountains, rivers, etc. Collectively they knew more about what is today the U.S. then the Indian and documented their findings. The Spanish had conquered the Zacatecas Indians and opened the way north from Compostela, Coronados journey all the way to Kansas appox 1550. With better technology such as the gun; and the with the horse the Spanish was able to accomplish travel in inhospitable lands, untame, waterless/dehydration and uninhabitable cactus and throne filled environments, impassable moutain ranges. And it was the Spanish who conquered wild, warring Indians, known to other Indians further south as strange lands of the dogs towards the north with fierce Yaki warriors. In other words the Aztec and other Indians in those territories had no need for lands or Indians to the north or were they anywhere n close proximity. Perhaps you have flown over parts of the southwest and Mexico getting a grip on the enormous lands much of it unknown to any human of those days. . DNA northern New Mexico is New Mexico Indian DNa for the Spanish here settled since 1598, 450 years, the Sangre De Cristo genetic community. For the southern border New Mexico Mexican who arrived in New Mexico about 1880 , the DNA is Indian from Sonora Mexico genetic DNA.	Indian	Ethnicity - Native-American	3/421	0.713

Blood line goes beyond this perspective. Most these "natives" are using the patriarchal system to claim blood line. The blood lines go back to human history. To being a "real human". We have stories of humanoid beings some call Angel's some say sky people etc. The woman is the carrier of the blood line period. Our traditional right to claim and EXCLUDE from the blood is part of humanity's history. We claimed this for ourselves in the beginning to know who is a "real human" and "our side" etc. Different tribes have a different way of saying the same thing. We put this in our laws Prior to any colonization! Only those who don't understand and feel they should be included if their father is native or if they have a different race mother or don't have the criteria to claim blood line have negative things to say about the traditional beliefs on how and why this was established. I prefer to use the term native because it makes me feel connected to them in a way. I do not see my self as an " Indian " because of the obvious my family is not from INDIA and I see myself much like the man in the video. I am divorced from a country that oppresses my people as they wait for us to die out. I am aware of the fact that I sound "unpatriotic" but unless you know where I am coming from then you don't have the right to say what I call myself. Tree Rat69 Their wars were on the basis of racism , manifest destiny, Christian superiority. Not resources. The colonists didn't NEED all the land that is now the USA. They could have stopped at the colonies and been a small minority group like the Afrikana of South Africa or the Portuguese descendants of Goa, India. Instead they decided to bulldoze the territory and compete with the French and Spanish governments for the title of superior culture. It was a culture war. Not a resources war. And yes, natives fought these wars too, but no one tried to own the whole land mass. Then again, industrialism and mass weapons production made conquering possible as it never had been possible before. Maybe natives would have done the same in reverse. Maybe not. Mike Barooshian Native Americans are far from the only conquered people's in the world. Science has PROVEN that ALL life started in Africa. Our ancient ancestors ALL migrated from the same place. Native Americans and East Asians share some of the same genes. Because they were once one people who migrated. The greatest, most ruthless and vicious conqueror was from China. China had empires of conquered people. Long before the Romans or the English set forth to conquer the world. And all races have held slaves. Middle eaternerner had more African slaves than America. South America had far more slaves than the US did. And we had white slaves for 100 years before they brought the first African slave. Middle Easterners preferred white slaves and stole them off the coast of the UK countries. And they held slaves in the Middle East for and 20 years after slavery ended in the US. So many things that Americans don't think about. Or maybe just don't know. It's not like America invented all the bad things that has happened in the past. Americans are just the only country where people are obsessed with it. And no matter how obsessed they are, they are blind to the fact that it's happening again. A past unknown will repeat itself. Instead of worrying about the past, 100s of years ago, worry about the future. I'm not saying to forget or not to care. By all means, never forget. But y'all need to open your eyes to what is happening now. Look at the parallels between Trump and Hitler and Kim Jong Un. Just call me ORANGE! I agree but I don't think we're gonna get a good president in our era. We're really addicted to popularity and fame, and we secretly want our president to be a celebrity or a joke. I'm looking at Amy recently and think she'd be good because she's not at all a celebrity and is concerned with the job, but all the rest want to be superheroes and I don't think we need that. So in the end, I'm for a native president. Why not. There's little to no value and seriousness in the presidency anyhow. My opinion. I believe that we were closer to it being real back in the 80s and 90s. Before identity politics and the internet come along. Before we had presidents who divided us not only by social status, but race as well. The sooner that people start to realize that the privilege is among the classes and not the races, the sooner that maybe we can put our differences aside for a common goal. Equality for all. The media and the government have been working for years to divide us. Divide and conquer. Because they know that if the other 80 come together, United, we'd be unstoppable. It doesn't help any that we have foreign interference either. It's not just our own that is keeping us divided, but what's left of the KGB as well. Russia is attacking us through disinformation. Hello my relatives. In my former life I was a native. From the land next of Planes and towards mountains, where rivers and lakes are. Of one of the tribes of .Siksikaitsitap.. The next sentence is not a insult, but I do not know anymore the clans of my mother and my father. So forgive me for this. After 50 years in this life I am looking for that part. I still am proud of that life. I have flashbacks, vague memories and by hypnoses, some bad, mostly beautiful. In my present life I am from Amsterdam, a town in a and below sealevel in Europe. My mother comes from the village Epe and my father from the city The Hague. And I am white and not proud of being white. In this life I saw what white people did to natives and I see what they do today to all other people. . I am ashamed and I cry for all. In my own behavior I try to be an example how people should interact and respect mother Earth and each other. With that I get help of my present wife, a Chinese and in her former life my wife as well. What kind of mix in Race (ugly word) or how pure one's blood is is not a measurement of "status". Leeber Gruber Using that argument is dumb . Yes Natives ancestors were from Asia but that was around 10,000 years ago. That leaves much room for many new mutations. Yes Natives have something's in common with Asians but that doesn't mean they are. They are now very different from Asians from thousands of years in isolation. See You Tonight We have no common racial lineage with any asian. Ongoing scientific research and government studies (by our governments) always find us as uniquely Americans only. No mutation or some kind of magical hybrid. See, what you don't see, is that it's always a species that evolves, not a race. There's never been scientific evidence of a mutated race. After the big evolution or birthing (we came out of another great ape says decades of expert research), we basically just cared about our health and exercised or ate healthily and our bodies changed because of this, so we could get around and move in a timely manner. You'd know so much better if you were an Americans. Our Americans parents remembered our family history. Many of them are heavily qualified scientists and knew much at the time. That's our government statistics and our friend's family lives to us. Also, not uniquely at all, my other parent (who was black) knew my father's family history because of being a friend of his family and knowing each other since they were one years old. So I had two parents talk about this. People give the impression that we knew we evolved in Africa and that's all we knew. But the real answer is that people were kind of not smart and the world was between a lot of studies and so it tells them something to fit their ongoing interest in science. My father was one and learned in school we came out of a unique species, a unique species line of great ape, in Africa.	Ape, Black, Common, Old, Race	Age - Over 65s, Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General, Social Class - Working class	7/265	2.642
CocaineDragon I didn't even have to read your whole comment to know you're completely wrong. Native Americans came from Asians thousands of years by a land bridge. So yes, Natives and Asian are genetically similar. A race of humans don't just pop up on a continent where no other humans have never been before, they had to come to from somewhere. Also, a whole species don't evolve at the same time. Example: dogs come from a wolf like species and slowly became dogs. Those dogs also evolved into different breeds of dogs to survive in whatever environment they're in. How do you think we have so many races, we aren't all different species that are genetically similar. Actually scientific studies show that the races of humans are the same species but slightly evolved for their certain environment. Also, I would like to have a link of the study (by our government) you're talking about	Race	Ethnicity - General	1/155	0.645

Leeber Gruber I think you misunderstood me. The problems our peoples had wasn't all oppression and motivated by the governnets of the world. Only liberals think what you're proposing. It feels like being shaped like a native Americas and living on an Americas, right now. I feel like I'm debating a 3 year old now. All those people are brown, the English are white. But it's not all the English and we usually just called our enemies or individuals affecting the economy... brown people. Because there aren't enough English for that (not to mention white people)...But while classing the world as white, it shows your exuberance to be part of the great white erasure of other races, or hope that the great English white man will save you, abusively, or not (you think it's correct to be abused and like when people, especially the English abuse you). I don't disagree with anything said in the video, but our insecurities allows us to put too much value on what white men says about the colored races. Otherwise, this video wouldn't have been made. When the black lady talked about the "one-drop" rule, I understood her point; but even Native Americans were guilty on flip-flopping their race . In North Carolina, some people who were part white and part Native American would claim Native American if it benefited them (ie: bragging rights to say this is their land, or obtaining federal benefits); or they would claim to be white in order to fit in with the majority of the school kids (ie: to avoid the racial comments from whites when they belittle others who aren't white). Hardly any Native Americans are full blooded anymore. Hardly anyone of any race is full blooded anymore (unless they are first or second generation American). So, what's the point of crying about race ? There really isn't a point. This is just a meaningless gripe session. Andy No one said Natives are tree hugging people? Going to war with other tribes and having raids hundreds of years before the white man stepped foot in 'America' was just a part of indigenous life. Also Columbus never set foot in North America, he landed in what is today the Caribbean Islands where he established the Columbia Exchange. The reservations and boarding schools. The genocides and cultural erasure. Forced marriages and Interracial marriages. Transracial adoptions. Forced assimilations. Forced religious conversions. Runaway black slaves sought refuge into Indigenous tribes such as the Seminole tribe in Florida, and they eventually became adopted members of the tribes. The very reason why they're black AND native is because of all these factors. There are 567 federally recognized Indigenous nations in USA alone, while hundreds more are denied recognition at all. Some nations are more isolated while others were forced to assimilate and nearly had their cultures wiped out. The painful truth: It was the destiny for the Native American to be removed of their theoretical "ownership" of this land. Why? Because all the various "tribes" were simply too busy fighting each other to defend themselves and make this land prosperous. They paid the ultimate price of tribal warfare, Africa starves, Natives lost their land, such is the cost of pride, a core focus of tribalism. Had the "white man" not come to this land of abundant resources, a multitude of Asian countries or Russia would have. Natives would never have advanced to defend themselves on the land of great resources because of tribalism.Luckily, it was the "white guy" affording you the opportunity to speak out in the first place. If China came first, there would be no Native Americas left and you'd be oppressed to silence. You can't propel a country forward by being stuck in the past, this statement is evident on virtually all reservations you drive through. A people given so much opportunity without having to work for it, yet squander it for a past that for none of us exist today. So why do people feel the whole idea of reservations should disappear? Simple really, they are nothing more than a wasteland of rotting trailers, a place where despite all the given opportunities accomplishes nothing, and is a tax burden for a past that is not part of our future for all of us as a whole. Stop being "proud" and start accomplishing something for the world. It's not the people I don't like, it's the situation. I am being asked to pay for something that I was neither part of nor could have influenced. My hours are an investment that work in one direction. When tax dollars are squandered, that is the same as taking hours, days and year from my life. I still have to work for those earnings, that is the situation I deal with now in this present day. As for African Americans, they were sold to Americans from black African generals, they were slaves in Africa too. Luckily their ancestors got a ticket to the free land for a price, as did mine and many others. The price was always some form of suffering. Now you all live here and can speak freely about what you don't like. If China took over, you could be put to death for that. If it were not for the "white guy" Native Americans really only had about 50 years left before being wiped out entirely. Did you know a huge number of light and dark colored people occupied this land before the Native American. There is a history of that most avoid because it's a dark truth. They've been digging up the mass graves in the midwest of bodies that existed long before any of the wars we read about in our regular history books or in native carvings. The Native Americans we know are only a small remnant of was here before them. There is one existing record and everyone has access to it. So no, Native Americans are not indigenous either, just a remnant that proliferated after another culture before them.So no, I would not ask to be even 1/256th native, I am a future minded person. I believe in the people of this land functioning as a whole. I know that if we keep squeezing ourselves to smaller and smaller tribes, internal warfare is inevitable and all you fight for now is rendered moot for this land will yet again be lost for the third time. Tribal warfare only leads to death and suffering, make no mistake, the history of all the world will confirm that is true. Blacka Døn no, we were slaves. There is many documentation from villages around Waterford that show, the English came, stole thousands of children and bred them with black children and adults to create a better slave force. Irish worked harder but our skin burnt easy, so they mixed us to make more money. We were slaves, don't let history lie to you. We were slaves a lot longer then the "American" slaves. Many, MANY hundreds of years more. We have the great famine here, there was no famine. England was forcing us to work the land, no pay, just potato to eat. They stole all the food being grown here, then potato blight hit and they still stole the food that could save us and still forced us to work the land, millions of us died while England ate our produce. We were slaves, just because you don't know the whole truth, doesn't mean, I mean servitude. Thanks though x	Black	Ethnicity - Black	1/160	0.625

D'lish Donut melanated people are everywhere on this planet!!! They don't just come from Africa! We were already here!!!! And the Caucasian man knows this, that's why we're labeled as black . It has nothing to do with skin color, because some Indians from India are darker than us and some are actually almost black , but yet, they're still labeled as Indians when they come to America. I guess it's all about hair texture then. If you're hair is kinky, you have African ancestry, so you're black ? But Australian Aborigines are also called Black and they have fine, silky, curly hair! Could it be that Black is a status, just like White is a status and the Aborigines are being called Black in their land to diminish their status and rights to their land just like us?! TheButtermilkgirl The red Indians are the only indigenous people in america. As far as the term black goes, you're right that that word is relative to the culture using it. For example, Russians call Muslim Caucasians " black " even though their skin is white. In India there is also a social class difference between dark/ black /Tamil Indians and northern light skinned Indians.The Mexicans are actually a mix of Spaniard and Red Indian . But actual Red Indians aren't a mix of anything, they are their own race indigenous to America.If you are still confused, take a DNA test.If you want to go by hair texture and not skin color, then kinky hair is typically from Africa.Aboriginal Red Indians have straight black hair, similar to Asians. A new long comment. What so special for people having the title "Native american". My history, people, and my land is gone. What do you think it native cause I don't know it, probably the history was oral or write but burn away by the old world, the people probably recognizable from each points of the land to chile to canada even greenland. The culture was rich amazing and unique. Food was probably the best. Great religious from the people, teach their children to be in a culture of obedient, acquiescent, and amenable. Probably had history of war and peace. The land was theirs and my. Native americans is just what you call it now but the people called them self something else But it change when the old world came, africans and euro mixing with the people bring us down to your view of vision a primitive people angry in off to cuts trout and laugh about it like some animal, destroyed the history and culture, and take my land and use it against my people, others and me. This wouldn't be how the Cuban government or Cubans perceive their racial history. All of Cuba and south America are native Americans and have identified as such throughout history as communicated and recorded through out history by Cuba government, Cuban tribes, the news and families. And there are very many of us. Most Cubans are Cuban, some a little tiny bit of other ancestry. It's a myth we're mostly somehow "white" or black. I'm half black and this is how Africa explains the history of Cuba and south America, very much usually (from the start of our trade and exploration and travel of Cuba and south America). We're shaped like native South Americans, since our history began and black people only came later (they were busy establishing their own structures in Africa). Cuba is also shaped like south Americas. We're south American shade of brown... like all south Americans. You see white like you see ghosts... only the English are white. This is how science documents all of this. It's a myth and a colonialism myth that only few Americas regions are native American. It's a myth we were immigrated to by non-south Americans. We can especially be a myth Spain likes, to keep our identities and our people down. Just because we're all treated and singled out and perceived like this, does not make it fact. Your view is like the "there was only a few guys there" with black and somehow "white" people injected in to hide from the colonial reality. It's really not that bad. Catholicism was actually one of the greatest things to ever happen to the Western world. One reason is because the concept of consensual marriage which was a huge win for women's rights was introduced by the Catholics. Marriage was not an official sacrament of the church until sometime in the 12th century and that was thanks to Catholicism. Another thing we owe to Catholicism is mandatory education. Granted it's a somewhat Anti Religion now, it began as a Christian Endeavor. The Old Deluder Satan act of 1647 is what finally made education mandatory. Take this into consideration as well, out of the 123 original colleges, 122 were actually Catholic. So you didn't just survive Catholicism, you thrived actually	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/123	0.813

Sorry but how are the practicing the culture, one they do not even know especially if they did not grow up in an actual Indian community. So if you phenotypically look white, and are treated as white and receive all of the benefits, have over 80 European and non-native blood as genocide and genetically breeding out were the norms, you face the same discrimination and ordeal of being actually Native American? No sorry. This is like telling a darker skinned black person in America, that the person who is 1/16th black and can pass as white as the same life experience as them, because they may share a similar culture. In Amerikkka the falsity of " race " seems to become "culture"....	Black, Indian, Race	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General, Ethnicity - Native-American	4/120	3.333

Nation, Race	Ethnicity - General, Nationality - General	2/38	5.263

+Baki Hanma Thats because Mexicans aren't a different race . The nation is Mexico, the race is Hispanic. Hispanic meaning = have been mixed with European blood from Spain and Native blood. Most mexicans share full ancestry with Native Americans up to 80 of their DNA. Aztec was a Tribe Native to America before spain and england decided to form a line between what we now know as Mexico and the United States. The reason you look so "Mexican" is because all native people looked like that before white men showed up to change your genetic outline. Natives within tribes still have this idea that they should be pale skinned like white men instead of copper toned and brown like their ancestors before white men showed up. You get picked on out of sheer stupidity.	Nation, Race	Ethnicity - General, Nationality - General	3/134	2.239
terminalcommand There are white passing natives, there are natives that pass for other races. The point you're trying to get at only applies if these people with native blood that pass as other races don't practice native culture. A cultural native who passes as another race likely acknowledges and understands how he/she gets treated differently than her/his more native looking counterparts. Just because they dont face the same amount of discrimination doesnt mean that they are not native enough or as native. The whole system for federally recognized natives as it is is bound to eventually breed natives out. With your words, it's like you approve of this method.	Race	Ethnicity - General	1/109	0.917
terminalcommand I never mentioned anything saying that all natives face the same amount of discrimination. No matter what race you are, if you are more white passing or more majority passing, you won't feel the discrimination as harshly, which is something completely different than my point. Wiisini iiyaas You know what's really hilarious? Over 800,000 Jews left Europe during the so-called "Holocaust" to Mexico. Look at any Mexican today they look little to nothing like the Native Americans you seen before they were "colonized by white people". They were literally orientals with dark skin. Almost all of Mexicans today look Middle Eastern. There was a Mexican educator who tested his genealogy and found he was Jewish. He did this for some 60 other people and found they were all Jewish even though they claimed "pure" Native American heritage. So yes, if Mexico was "conquered by the evil whites" as our "History texts" so claim wouldn't all Mexicans today be blonde haired with blue eyes like the Norwegians are? I just love how today's generation of "Mexicans with Native heritage" attack white people for the Native massacre yet have zero connection to these people. Because they're ALL Jewish and stole Native identity! And let's not forget Jews owned ALL the slave ships during the African Slave Trade, and were the PRIMARY owners of slaves. Yet who were blamed for this mess? Obviously white people - they're just the easiest group to target of course.	African, Nothing, Zero	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - Black	3/197	1.523
I think some of the uproar is the fact that American history speaks of $5 Indians. A term used to allow European Americans the chance to pay $5 a piece for falsified documents declaring them Native Americans. All to continue to claim land, not theirs. Then - generations later... you have their offsprings claiming they are apart of tribes that their ancestors actually helped terrorized, and chase out. And let's not forget the fact that African Americans were more accepted, recognized and welcomed into thousands of tribes and were allowed to live with and marry within these tribes ... but if you hear their offsprings speak proudly of their lineage today... it is often laughed at, mocked and/or watered down to the basic term 'black'. My people, the Caribs, were brown skin people. Many indigenous Americans were described as brown/bronzed skin. And many of the lighter skin natives are the result of (like many African /Caribbean Americans) colonization. Being Native American is much more than your color. But let's not pretend they're not imposters still claiming to be something that they are not - to victimized themselves instead of taking accountability for being apart of the oppression. Baki Hanma you should know that mexicans are native american... only real difference between them and one in canada and usa is how they were colonized. to be more specific. " mexican" is a nationality but a majority of mexicans are mestizos (meaning part native american part european) and based on dna tests done on mestizos across mexico, the average mexican is about 60 native. which is high for an average. so people thinking you look more " mexican" are people who arent really educated on what that even means , but they are mosy likely noticing your native features and they are just use to associating that with " mexican" there are over 100 different native groups in mexico that have influenced the culture, and of course people and their genetics. a lot of people mix up navajos with mexicans btw and they often are genetically similar too.. because they have a dimilar history just different colonizers.for example, a navajo indian from usa got a dna test and came out having a high native percentage ( i bet if people saw her they would assume she was mexican or not very native) but it grouped her native to being from mexico. dhe was bery confused and thought her parents lied and she eas really mexican. i found that funny but also sad because people just are not educated on native american history.including some natives themselves. Another topic little discussed is how many tribes, especially Casino Tribes like mine, have been forced by Fed rules to incorporate and operate like little mini-me's of Washington DC's governing style, where those at the top get richer while those no-names at the bottom stay poor and are blocked from breaking free of the system that traps them. The huge question NOT being talked about is, if Tribes really are sovereign nations, why must they operate the way BIG BROTHER forces them to? Why cant they choose who belongs to their own nation by their own rules and operate the way their people see fit? Ohhhh...thats right. Because then all the kick-backs from all the Federal grants they give Tribes would stop flowing back up the Hill to the corrupt politicians and entities in DC that profit off the federal recognition bureaucracy...thats why! It's much more complicated than blood. Blacks resided on the same lands as natives. Hence the two that pointed out their Afro background mixture. And this goes back centuries. Pat Evans, an Afro/Native model, was born and raised on the reservations before she got into modeling. For natives that have an issue with this. Steven Duran Exactly. Some New England native Americans when they captured English/Dutch/French war captives they adopted them and they became full members of the tribe. And even individual colonists who left their settlements to "go native" were integrated into the culture. Not only that, but as many tribes were matrilineal this meant that many "half-breeds" who would like very European were automatically full members of the tribe if their mother was a member no matter how they looked, totally different than in the European settlements were all mixes, if not totally excluded from citizenship, they were relegated to a lower class "mestizo" group neither " Indian " nor "white". PhaseSkater And you speak for Native Americans on what they all believe? Actually no. How do you explain when some of the east coast tribes captured war captives they adopted individuals of the enemy, taught them in the culture and traditions and they became full members of the tribe?Japan has adopted much of the racist discourse of the global colonizers when they had their own little local colonization schemes. But even in Japan you can become Japanese by citizenship and you would legally be accepted. Also, if a Japanese man marries a foreign woman their sons would be Japanese. They wouldn't have their citizenship and identity revoked for being "mixed". And if these sons too married foreign women their sons would be Japanese too, and they would have the descent to prove it.This had been true for many ethnic groups throughout history. Respected foreign individuals could become members. They would not be derided for just looking different.	Ethnic, Racist, Woman	Ethnicity - General, Gender - General	3/159	1.887

eric5335 I get that it isn't the best to worry about blood quantum because it divides natives even more as a people but the thing is, I find it wrong for people to claim something they are not, especially being Native American. Yeah I have no idea what that woman is, only a DNA test could prove that. I've seen so many people try claiming that they are half native and have the "indian card" to "prove it" yet DNA tests show hardly any Native American DNA and they're so surprised, though I'm not. But as you said, one could be adopted into a culture, they could be surrounded in it, speak the language, and be fully accepted as full native when they are not native at all, but the thing is, that doesn't make you native. Our blood is what makes us who we are.	Indian, Woman	Ethnicity - Native-American, Gender - General	2/146	1.37
Kristi Germain DNA, blood quantum, government certificates...no Native American ethnic groups used any of that before America became the US. So, I guess that means they had no ethnic identities before the 1800's because they had no "true" (read western) way to prove their identities.The reality is, most east coast Native American "tribes" (actually ethnic groups) used matrilineal descent (meaning there were no such things as "half-breeds" since you either have a native mother or you don't...OR they had cultural ways of deciding membership in their people). Matrilineal descent is of course partly genetic, but it means there is no such things as being "half" or "quarter" this and that, nor does such descent always agree with how a person looks. Matrilineal descent can be tested with DNA (mitochondrial), but it falls short if sometimes an individual was adopted into another line or other unfortunate things happened to the tribe. There were many many many cases of individuals with a native mother who identified 100 with her "tribe" but had a French father. There were also many cases of individuals being adopted into tribes, even some Africans.All these mestizo, métis, half-breed categories were invented by colonial Spanish, French and English administrations not actual native peoples.	Ethnic	Ethnicity - General	3/207	1.449
It took over 100 years after Europeans started colonizing for Native American peoples to have movements that refer to all natives as one group and call themselves all Red when in opposition to white settlers and colonists. Tribes and regions definitely differ, so maybe that's why you haven't seen it, but it's a serious issue. In my area, the reservations have little or no drinking water, electricity is patchy, and the majority of the population deals with some form of mental illness and addiction. It doesn't matter what race it is, if people grow up in those conditions, they tend to carry around a lot of that kind of thinking. You come across it a lot in cardboard cities and shanty towns in the third world. It is very taxing. You can see the strain. It affects every aspect of their lives. It's voiced constantly, and people act out on it on a regular basis, in a manner very similar to what you'd hear about in the fifties and sixties in the south. But there's a level of justification behind it. You'll hear that it's OK because of genocide or the trail of tears. They go over timelines, saying that we did this and that, and they do teach their children to hate. It's well known. We can't even go on the reservations here without getting stopped by police or chased off. They include it in their belief systems as well. One tribe regularly reenacts massacres they faced at the hands of whites in their rituals by dressing up like white people, just like we used to do with blacks when we painted our faces dark in the early 20th century. They teach that western science is wrong, that there's a conspiracy against them. I mean, honestly, it's bad. There are studies as well. You can actually look over sociological surveys about native american views on racism,. They regularly poll as of the most racist demographics in the world. It's not just here, either. You can actually go through the different regions of the world and hear indigenous people in asia, australia, africa, the pacific, and south america voicing similar concerns. In australia, in patricular, you'll find a lot of this because of how the aboriginals are treated,. In canada, the natives are treated like trash, and they say the exact same stuff you hear in the US. I can't imagine for one second that you haven't seen this firsthand. But I've also been up to the reservations in oregon and washington, and they were very different from what I've seen.	Mental, Race, Racism, Racist	Ethnicity - General, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	4/394	1.015

There is a lot that you are feeling and I'm happy you shared it with me. I honestly had no idea about most of this stuff. It's sad because our culture is dying and if we can share it, then maybe we can preserve it. I know about the living conditions on the reservation but I only visit for family from time to time. I never knew about the social conditions. Could you please tell me what tribes you're referring to when talking about the reenactment thing and a link for the polls. I am genuinely curious and would find it ridiculous if some tribes are doing this. I hope not. I'm from Lac Courte Oreilles which is in Wisconsin, and we would never do something like that. We welcome white people and all people to come and visit us to learn more. My views are probably different because I was raised in a big city. I come from a place that has all races, and my family is mixed from black to white to Mexican. I have no tolerance for racism and I wish that many Natives along with other races can accept all people. Yes, you can still be racist to whites(just for those who happen to see this lol). We live such short lives and it's a waste to be hung up on the past. It's important to recognize it, and use it as a lesson to heal from. I know my people are still suffering from this and really need help because so many of them are lost. Right now we should be working towards a better society and that won't work if all we do is hate each other. We really should be helping each other. I'm happy that you are trying to learn about Native culture honestly. Which tribe are you near/familiar with? This is all so interesting. I can't find the poll. It's something I've seen a couple of times. My friend attended the reenactment. I live near the Yaqui, Apache and Tohono O'odham reservations, among others. I think she said Yaqui. I've been to their sweats, and their shamans sometimes give people peyote and perform cleansings. They do things that you see modern pagans doing, like creating sacred space, raising energy, using sweet grass to spread positive energy or blessing, and they seem to have spirits that they call to from the four directions--north, south, east, west etc. Your tribe instantly came to mind, or at least I think it was yours, because of a movie I like, Smoke Signals. I learned a lot about all of this working at a facility for youth who have mental health and drug abuse issues. They flood the system and make up a good portion of the patients in facilities like that in my area. I've seen birth defects, side effects of toxicity--probably pollution, illegal dumping idk. The qualities are definitely third world in a lot of places, and it's sad. I feel like the people are wallowing, so they're stagnating. They're not moving forward. I highly agree with you on everything you said about racism. That's exactly how I see it. I also agree that they shouldn't be hiding their traditions. I've been telling people for years that if they would just share them they wouldn't die. Tribes address this in different ways, but I've heard the consensus is that they'd rather let their traditions die. It's not so bad, because it's documented, especially the bigger tribes, but the belief systems branch off. Shamans name successors,. They'll have no sons or they'll decide for some reason that they can't name anyone, and their wisdom is lost.	Mental, Racism	Ethnicity - General, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	2/298	0.671

Yeah, that's a really sad way to put it. But it's pretty much true. Only so many youth can speak the language, but they end up mostly becoming gangbangers and drug addicts where I'm from. Many of them do have mental illnesses as well. It's a sad reality and my neighborhood has been getting really bad recently. There's a heroin epidemic against the Natives in my city and the homeless population had suddenly increased. There is a tent city blocks away from where I live. That's the first time I've seen it get so bad and you're right. My people are stagnant. Many of them hold negative feelings towards the world and have lost their way. If only they could carry on our traditions and heal themselves. Our elders are dying everyday and soon there won't be anything left. If only... That's why there are still some Natives who are trying to fight back against the negativity. Even though we're poor, we are still doing our best to make a difference. At least for the next generation. I'm only 18, but I'm trying to do my best in my community by also doing some youth work. We try to hold language classes at the community center or teach children how to bead etc... Even ceremonies and whatnot. That's also very interesting how you talk about how similar our traditions are with the Pagan ceremonies. I actually really like learning about Paganism and all that and it feels nice to know that we share similar traditions with another group of people. :) This whole thing is bittersweet. I'm an optimist so by default, I have hope in my people. Thanks for sharing.	Mental	Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	1/281	0.356

Misleading video. The reason you have to prove at least 1/4 Indian blood is because there are a lot of government benefits to being a native american. At first they didn't have this rule but most Americans can claim 1 Indian blood or something so everybody was just coming out claiming the benefits. I'd love to be able to claim free government money based on ancestry, not sure why anyone would cry about that. Also the obsession with the past doesn't make any sense. "the white man took our land" you are born in America with all the opportunities as anyone else. I never inherited any land or money. What do you expect- 100 acres given to you for being Indian ? Really its more like the land changed governments. As a person living on it I don't see how you are owed anything based on your race or ancestry. This all amounts to saying "I'm a victim because of my race " and "white people owe me something" all this victim propaganda is just disguised racism against white people. Still, I think people are blowing it up way more than necessary.My Dad, a conservative, told me she got free college by pretending to be native, and used that to get hired and advertised it a lot. I looked into it, and they've talked to her employers, school, and lots of colleagues. Most were completely unaware she had an Native blood, and all categorically deny she was ever considered anything other than a white woman by anyone that they knew of. So somebody heard about her family story, and ran with it. Maybe she even claimed to be Native when she submitted to a cooking catalog, idk. Everything I've read seems to say she did not "change her race " or whatever at any time. To me, it just seems like their picking into her history, and getting mad that she thought she was part Cherokee, or more than she was, even though she never used it to her advantage.I am a lot more upset about the plagiarized recipe. Some tribes have opened it up to lineage, so if you have any decendent that is part of that tribe, and one tribe in Canada even allows anyone to join, regardless of their ancestry!This is not Nazi Germany. The government does not track down Natives and force them to carry a card. It made me feel so angry, not only at him but at myself for not looking more like my Cree father, and mad at my parents for not registering me as a Status Indian when I was born. The most confusing thing is when you have to prove just how Native you are with a document given by the government that says you are of a race that you were born into but denied till you prove it. It's a huge issue that divides us and causes confusion for the mixed kids on whether they are native or the other race , or if they are native enough to call themselves Natives. Ethnicity is not really about DNA. Instead it is about culture, which can be a mixture of language, place(s) of living, ways of subsistence, continuum of traditions, familial relations and so forth. One could be originally from another race (whatever " race " means) and be adopted to a traditional native family as a baby, growing up speaking the native language and so on. In my mind this would make him/her native.Usually indigenous ways of looking at identity has nothing to do with "blood quota", so in a healthy societal environment folks can be claimed by their indigenous group or tribe or nation based on familial relations and keeping with traditions etc., regardless of genetics.What I´m trying to say is that looking at ethnicity percentages (that are somewhat vague to begin with, and are based on various algorithms and threshold values that differ with each DNA company) can be fun and informative, but should not be bases for "nativeness". Looks are perhaps the worst possible grounds for estimating someone´s identity.Just my thoughts. Jess Watson Black people just can't understand. We're the only people who have to prove that we are native, because of land. Blacks were imported to America & Whites are immigrants, so Black & White people don't have to prove who they are. Native tribes are nations, within a nation , and blacks just can't understand that. Read about Blood Quantum and get a better understanding of why Natives have to prove they are Natives. Jess Watson the reason why we carry the cards is to establish who we are. There are too many Black people claiming to be Cherokee with a great grandmother who had long hair but can never prove which Cherokee hand they belong too. It isn't call racism to carry a card showing blood quantum. It is called JEALOUSY by other people. I have never had anybody complain that a custom we do is called racism . We are trying to preserve our race . We are trying to preserve our customs, and culture. You got a ton of Black people, a ton of White people, and ton of Latin people in the United States. You can tell who is White, who is Latin, and who is Black . There is no need to show a card. There are not a lot of 50 to 100 Native Americans. My tribe requires the minimum of 50 Native blood, and I don't blame them. We want to keep our tribe alive. My tribe also requires we know our history, and clan. I take pride in my Native American heritage. Do your history, there were a ton of tribes wiped out by the United States and people took over their lands. We are trying to hold on to what we have left. We also carry a card for government purposes. The government does require us to register, and carry a Certificate of Tribal Blood for statistical purposes along when we go for government provided services and education. So, hope that clears up for you. I am not about to go into Black History. I am 50 Black myself. My mom was 100 Native, and she raised us with pride for our people. I am glad you are speaking up because growing up and going to school in America, we all were taught that Christopher Columbus discovered America and I always had issues with that because I knew Native people have been residing on this whole Continent of America, from the many Caribbean islands to South America to North America all the way to Alaska for more than 14,000 years. I also don't like the term "Indians or American Indians", Native people are not Indians, to me that is more of a slur than anything else. I am Asian American and they have labeled us Asians " Oriental " and " Yellow " even though we are more white than the white people. It is another way for the racist white people to put down another race by giving them a cut down or look down label. It is so sad you know what they say, if you are called something long enough it will stick with you. I am glad it didn't stick with some Native people and it will never stick with me. Many white Americans today are not of the same racist white Americans of yesterday and are more acceptance and respectful of other people from different races, and for that very reason, I am proud to be Asian American today. Racist	Ethnicity - General	1/76	1.316

I prefer the version where we accept all the mixtures that have resulted from history, because history cannot now be changed, at it was a time of considerable ignorance and confusion. but within these mixtures, everyone can have some concept of their history, and "lands". Not so possessive to a 100 and so not so much as to tell others to "get out", that's too strong, that's xenophobic. But simply to value it. What history there is, what is known, for however many 1000s years. This is true for europeans and indians in india too of course. Or at least, it probably should be. There's a lot of meanings wrapped up, even in the languages we talk, they refer to it, they contain the history of the places too. It's all subtly written into the communications, the humour, well everything really, and severing those links with some ideology, just seems like a route to nihilism to me. A world of nothing but material things. No place in time. No past, means, no future ; no appreciation of ancestors, means, no one will remember you in the future either. So yeah . Land matters. But everyone is entitled to a feeling in relation to that idea. Not just native americans. It also cannot be purely "we were here first", because so many tribes moved about so much every which way through the 1000s years of the past. So must accept the modern mix like it is. I found some of this video is exaggerating things too. the "blood quantum" it is for special BENEFITS not restrictions. Which were supposed to allow Native Americans to enact different land laws. Many native tribes, i just read, actually use these blood quanta to decide who is in their tribes. And they remove people if they do not have enough. She makes it sound as if it's something nasty the government is doing. The tribes themselves make up the rules these days, and even made the memberships stricter. Just the New York Times selling the same old story of pity like we get all the time out of identity politics. It turns out it's really easy to sucker people with these kinds of claims. Varoon You know what's really hilarious? Over 800,000 Jews left Europe during the so-called "Holocaust" to Mexico. Look at any Mexican today they look little to nothing like the Native Americans you seen before they were "colonized by white people". They were literally orientals with dark skin. Almost all of Mexicans today look Middle Eastern. There was a Mexican educator who tested his genealogy and found he was Jewish. He did this for some 60 other people and found they were all Jewish even though they claimed "pure" Native American heritage. So yes, if Mexico was "conquered by the evil whites" as our "History texts" so claim wouldn't all Mexicans today be blonde haired with blue eyes like the Norwegians are? I just love how today's generation of "Mexicans with Native heritage" attack white people for the Native massacre yet have zero connection to these people. Because they're ALL Jewish and stole Native identity! And let's not forget Jews owned ALL the slave ships during the African Slave Trade, and were the PRIMARY owners of slaves. Wow, this is hard to believe in this day and age , especially in the most advanced nation on Earth. What happened in past was horrible because colonisers were not civilised and did not have compassion. They were purely driven by greed. But to have such experiences and oppression in this day is not on at all!! The colonisers are more than enough in numbers globally, why then more greed and need for growth and expansion of their peoples. It seems that given the opportunity they will happily expand and fill the Earth. The change will only come about when current and future generations realise the wrongs of the past and slowly but surely move towards change, i.e. more native representation in politics and strategic positions, reverse ownership of lands, etc. By making way for indigenous peoples to take control of country's affairs the place can only improve and prosper. The only two countries that are really "native dominated" are Peru and Bolivia (maybe also Ecuador) and in both countries most of the politics/aristocrats are white or more white looking than the rest (that is related with the fact that in both countries and in most of Latin America being native looking has negative connotations while being European looking has positive connotations, similar to blacks and whites in America). Hey brainwashed leftist fools read up !One group has conquered another for at least 100,000 years. Name for me any one that took most of their land and then set aside land just for them, allowed them to keep at least most of their language and culture and gave them resources/$$ for the rest of their lives and also to all their descendants. I will save you time. Zero . Before this time the conquered people were either all slaughtered who didn't flee out of the reach of the invaders or were forced to become in every way to be like the conquerors or some were not slaughtered and were slaves that served and usually until death. Any children were also slaves, etc. There was not "native peoples" when Europeans came. There were over 500 different and distinct native peoples/tribes. All with different cultures and languages. Some were warrior types that slaughtered other tribes like the Apache and some of those enslaved the conquered tribes. Some were more sedentary and stayed in an certain area and some were more nomadic. To believe the brainwashing we get in schools that they were just minding their business and in harmony and peace is to be an ignorant fool who knows nothing about humans and our shared history. What killed most of the Natives ? Diseases they had no immunities to. Did the Europeans infect them on purpose ? One letter from one soldier in the West is the only evidence of this with one of the 500 tribes. So for the most part NO! So to the victors go the spoils and the natives alive today are luckier than most if not all conquered peoples going back many thousands of years.Did we steal their land ? No, we conquered it and that is not something at all new to the Americas. Why is land conquered by one tribe from another their land but if a European tribe does it then somehow that is horrible ? Because you are an ignorant racist ?Why was the Democrat party formed 190 years ago ? To get rid of the 'problem' of the natives. If you don't think the Democrats have always been lead by racists then you need to start studying. From day one to today they are the racist Party of America. The Native American Indians inhabited the whole American continent, not only the United States. It is like black people are from Africa, white people are from Europe, and so on. The copper skin, Native American Indians are from the continent of America. In the United States, many people who are really, white, or black , claimed to be Native American Indian , perhaps, because they might have a tiny fraction of that ancestry, while someone from Guatemala, or Mexico, with clear Native American Indian features are called, Latinos, or Hispanics, which they are really not. The white Europeans from Spain, came to the American continent, and taught the Native people the Spanish language, and baptized them in the name of the Catholic church with Spanish names, but the race of the Native people did not change, it is in the genes, not in the language someone speaks, or in the name someone has. These young adults are in full contact with foreigners be either Latin-Anglo-Saxons or black Africans or Semites ( Jewish and Arabs ) or Asians.One of the young male adults here was saying something about Latin Anglo Saxons now known as "Americans" who are working very hard to incite, to divide and to separate First Nations People from Mexico to Alaska from each other.There's NO such a thing as " American Indian" or "Native American ". Very simple...First Nations People's NEVER came along with Christopher Columbus and the rest of the illegal Latin Anglo Saxon Europeans.And we are NOT " Indians" because we do NOT come from India.You Latin Anglo Saxon in what is now known as the U S, Mexico and Canada, you may address us as " Natives" or " aborigines " or as First Nations but, NEVER as " Indians " and lesser as " latinos ".As it happens, you whites of European background ARE the REAL latinos, it doesn't matter when you are of Anglo or Saxon or Scandinavian or Slavic or gypsies...all of you white European DO HAVE Latin blood line, Latino background. Simply because the Roman Latin empire covered ninety percent of continental Europe and half of the Middle East , all of North Africa.See?? Even the Semite people ( Jews and Arabs ) are far more Latino than the ones in Mexico you are trying to label as Latino.Even the North Africans are far more Latino.So, you white people in the United States, Canada and Mexico, you can start saying the truth and label yourselves as LATIN ANGLO SAXONS For as much as you Latin Anglo Saxon people hate to admit that there're First Nations people who are FULL BLOODED, we may be half Lakota half Aztec or half Tarahumaras half Cree or half Inuit half Maya...we still ARE FULL BLOODED First Nations.These poor young adults in this video look and ARE very confused and out of orbit.And I really don't know what those black Africans are included beer for??.I know that black African genes are very strong in human DNA but, those black people you included here certainly do NOT have not even a quarter of Native DNA.	African, Black, Indian	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - Native-American	6/410	1.463

Saw a native in here that looked more white than a white person in the NYT 'conversation with white people'. Has the thought not occurred that the monitoring of Indian blood is so that one can prove they are indeed Indian instead of saying they are and being able to claim the rights that certain tribes have within their allocated land?Then again according to the far radical leftists (not all on the left) would be fine with self identifying as any race or gender u want. What people do not understand is that is that the US government was still threatening Natives up until the 1950s to take their land. Especially here in California, they would imply harm to a native family if they didn't sell their land for pennies on the dollar. Many of the treaties between the government and the native tribes haven't even been ratified, the natives still basically own majority of the US.I also would like for the Bureau Of Indian Affairs to remove the term 'savage tribe' from their official documents, but I don't believe that will ever happen...and before the never Trumpers post, my mother received a document from the BIA that had that term during the Obama Admin. The Great Fat Buddha Given the time period, I'd assume that was the era where early Oil Tycoons, Miners & whatnot were still discovering that reservation lands had things they wanted and were still trying to steal from those tribes by claiming tribal ancestry, so they could infiltrate & trick the nations into letting go of such things. But, that is an odd circumstance of how the U.S. evolved. There are people in tribes who barely appear to be native at all, yet consider themselves so because that was the culture they grew up in (and, being a part of a tribe, they would have to have, at least, some by now), and there are people whose families had never been associated with a tribe who look almost full-blooded who are scared that claiming to be indian is, somehow, wrong for them to do and consider themselves white, even while being aware of and or proud of that heritage. Sad thing is that no one questions the "Europeanhood" of an Irish man in Scotland or a French man in Spain, or a Dutch person in Italy, but the moment an Indigenous Native North American crosses our southern border legally or illegally and enters the USA, that native person is framed as an " Immigrant ," "foreigner," " alien " or "illegal," "illegal alien " or "Hispanic." Therefore, the "Americanhood," or "Americaness" of these Natives is simply ignored downplayed, and or annihilated. So whether it is natives from the 48 states, or those from South of the border, there are societal forces that continue to work towards annihilating the native identity of the indigenous people of North America. It is no wonder, that many Natives purposely seek to marry outside of their ethnicity considering the self hated that is in part a product of the societal forces that have been working to annihilate native identity for 500 years. If you research the history of they Roman Empire, they have always been a divide and conquer type. They divide like peoples by complexion in an ongoing effort to white out the world. Honestly, I recommend ALL peoples of America invest in Law dictionaries, and unabridged college dictionaries and really study the etymology of our version of common English. It's much different than what we have come to know words to mean. Example: when you go to court, the judge sits on the bench. Bench means Bank in old Latin, and every "crime" is a violation of a code or statue, which are legal infractions created under color of law, yet are not Law. Attorney: attorn means "to turn over" or "to give up". The y/ey at the end merely means "one who turns over" which is what they do everyday. They turn people over to the Bank for deposit in the corporate warehousing system so that they can access the funds or credit on your birth certificate. It's really sad. If one of his ancestors was half during colonial times, and married a full-blooded woman , their children would probably have been called Indians. Likewise with whites; I could be descended from an Indigian who married a Colonial in 1680, or whenever. If that was the extent of it, I would have Native blood. I wouldn't claim to BE AN INDIAN based on that, but the fact of my lineage would remain. Char Char Binks Being quarter native doesnt make u native. Lots of black people are quarter white and u dont see them running around claiming they're white. Thats not how it works. U cant claim a whole race just because u have a small percentage of it in u. U are what the majority of ur DNA says, unless ur biracial. But even biracial people identify as the side they resemble the most.	Black, Race	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	2/73	2.74
Your Ma I get that, but just because you're mixed with something doesnt mean u get to identify as that race as a whole. Most black americans have white in them but that doesnt mean they go around claiming to be white. Having a percentage of a race in you doesnt make you that race . Its different when you're biracial though because you can look like either one of the races you're mixed with or you can look like a combination. If you're biracial and look white, then u identify as white because that's what people see you as. But if ur biracial and u clearly look like a combination of 2 races, those people usually identify as biracial or mixed. Not one or the other. Mystique Saying that people can tell you what to identify yourself as is like Columbus calling us Indians. If people look at my siblings and said 'oh yeah they're not Native American at all. Your Ma When did i say people can tell u what to identify as? Im saying if u have a PERCENTAGE of another race in u doesnt mean u are that race, u cant claim to be native just because a few of your ancestors were natives which makes u like 10 - 30 native. Just like how most black people in america have white in them because of slavery, but they dont go around saying they're white because most of their dna is black and physically they LOOK black. Now if they want to identify as 20 white and 80 black(which alot of people are) thats a personal decision, no one is stopping anyone from doing that. But to the outside world you are what you look like and you will be treated the way you look. If one of those same black people ticked "white" on an application people would look at them funny.Biracial people are different because they're 50/50, which means they can identify as either race, or sometimes they look like one side more than the other and they identify as that side(usually when one side is black).	Black, Race	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	9/193	4.663

That's extremely sad .I couldn't be part of that joke of a country because i am not indigenous of the US so although i was born in the US , when i was 15 i gave up my citizenship and moved to the land of my ancestors. Iceland in my case . I am now Icelandic with an Inuit grand mother and Inuit blood i am so extremely proud of . And nothing would make me be american again . This video is heartbreaking. The Lady in blue is painfully honest and the gentleman in green is intelligence personified . But all of them are poignant with their experiences and are a good reminder that i did the right thing when i left a land (not a country) i loved , because the idea of living on a stolen land had become unbearable to me . My parents raised me right and told me that when you steal something it never truly belongs to you and to always give it back and apologize . I can neither give it back and i can't even begin to find the words to apologize for the biggest genocide in recorded modern history . All i could do was leave . How can americans see what is being done to innocent civilians in Palestine on a land that rightfully belong to them by the Israeli state and not make the connection . This is history repeating all over again and nobody seems to care . I wish the best to the indigenous population of this country Just like i wish the best to the Palestinians , to the Indigenous populations all over the world for the people of the Brazilian rain forest, to the Aboriginals of Australia to the Ainu of Japan and so many others. spazmaz The assumptions other people make about natives are wrong most part of the time . It's 2018 they don't be out in the sun collecting fruits in the forest anymore. They are not restrict to live in a tribe and meet /date or marry only other natives. Most natives are mixed nowadays and that doesn't mean they are not natives. Nobody is full blood unless you are part of an isolated tribe like in brazil they still have some tribes who choose isolation . Saying a native is not native because he/she looks mixed is the same as saying to a black person that looks mixed that she/he is not black. This is a very confused topic for mixed people but is important to be proud of your culture.Also native Americans are very different from other natives , so not everybody will have the same skin color or features , Brazilians natives for example could have a darker skin complexion because they live in a tropical country but the ones that moved to the city , married other people from different races will have kids with different skin colors and they will still be natives descendants.	Black, Nobody	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - Black	3/198	1.515

Anastacia18 "Saying a native is not native because he/she looks mixed is the same as saying to a black person that looks mixed that she/he is not black" I wouldn't consider someone that is 10 black as "black", no one considers someone that is half-black and half-white as white. A person that is predominantly European with a small amount of native american admixture will be seen as an average white person by society, and they will likely see themselves as that too, same goes for someone that is predominantly African with a small amount of native, this is just natural: [LINK] "Yet the same survey shows that many of these multiracial American Indian adults have few connections with Native Americans. For example, among biracial adults who are white and American Indian, only 22 say they have a lot in common with American Indians; 61 say they have a lot in common with whites. And only 19 say they have had a lot of contact with their relatives who are American Indian." Racemixing is slowly erasing them, considering how low the native american population is in the US and considering that many US "native americans" are less than 50 native american genetically. If all native americans mixed, all native american cultures would be assimilated by the much more dominant western culture present in the Americas today (not to mention that their unique physical appearance would be lost forever too). There's a reason why most of their languages are dying today, also, did you know that native american DNA could literally disappear forever after generations of race mixing? [LINK] "According to 23andMe, Native American DNA has been known to "wash out" in a few short generations (about 5), especially if none of your other progenitors introduced it along the way. Wash-outs usually occur during Random Genetic Recombination, when DNA gets randomly remixed as it passes from parent to child — some of it (ethnic components/DNA sequences from our direct fore-parents) eventually gets lost over time." Apparently the US government still wants native americans to be assimilated and eventually erased by racemixing, it was used as a method of genocide before: "It seems to me one of the ways of getting rid of the Indian question is just this of intermarriage, and the gradual fading out of the Indian blood; the whole quality and character of the aborigine disappears, they lose all of the traditions of the race; there is no longer any occasion to maintain the tribal relations, and there is then every reason why they shall go and take their place as white people do everywhere" - Anthony Higgins	African, Black, Common, Ethnic, Indian, Race	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General, Ethnicity - Native-American, Social Class - Working class	14/438	3.196

It's interesting that this selected group can pontificate at will about those feelings they believe I hold, yet were I to do likewise to them, I would instantly be denounced as the worst sort of racist ...hmmm..."How does that work?" "What does that even mean?" I love to watch leftists make these sorts of comments, along with the bizarre facial expressions which invariably accompany them, to indicate that there is no logical basis for something they don't like.When English settlers first arrived in North America, they made every effort to befriend the natives. In return, they were slaughtered to the last man. This set the tone for all major interactions after that, yet natives always maintain that they were violently oppressed. How does that work? What does that even mean? You'll have to imagine the accompanying expressions...	Racist	Ethnicity - General	1/138	0.725

Where I'm from the natives are mixing themselves out, especially the young native women. They mix with blacks and Hispanic people. I am very proud of my native heritage, but other natives need to hold themselves responsible for why there are less and less natives. Nobody is making these young native women mix with these other races. I've encouraged my daughter's to find native men. I tell them that as long as they choose a good man that treats them right, I would probably be ok no matter the race of the person. Well it seems that the US government is still to this day actively committing a "silent" genocide against native americans, allow me to explain, and this will be a long comment: Native americans are the most marginalized race in the US, they're the poorest, they have the highest chance of being unjustly killed by the police, they suffer a suicide and alcoholism epidemic, reservations generally don't have even the most basic needs covered like water or electricity and the list goes on. Yet, how many times do you hear about these problems in the media? The fact that they're not the utmost priority in the US is completely beyond me, and I can only assume that this is deliberately done, they're purposefully ignored by the government.

The whole reservation system is designed so that native americans leave their reservations and marry outside their race in order to ascend in the social ladder, diluting their bloodlines and thus making true native americans disappear over time, people need to realize that this is forced assimilation and this method of genocide has been done before in history as a deliberate attempt to wipe out groups of people, as is the case of the "stolen generations" with the Australian aborigenes. This is one of the few videos interviewing supposed "native americans" and what do we get? A demonization of the blood quantum system, the whole video is designed so as to give the average viewer the impression that this is how all native americans think, we didn't get a diversity of opinions on the subject, nope, just a uniform, generally negative opinion about blood quantum despite the fact that this system keeps people that don't have even one native american ancestor from enrolling in a tribe and getting benefits that should be destined to real native americans. Matter of fact, not a single full blooded looking person was interviewed in this video, who would most likely have different views on the matter.

This phenomenon is sadly present in ALL the American continent, native americans everywhere are basically stuck between two options: Being culturally and racially assimilated by the non-native majority and ascend the social ladder, or live in poverty all their lives but keep existing in a system purposefully designed to erase them, masqueraded as government assistance. Native americans have also suffered numerous massacres and sterilizations in Latin America just in the 80s and 90s, yet this is rarely heard in mainstream media. Again, all we get is an emotionally manipulative video with a bunch of people that don't even look like they're half native american (that just by their appearance they will have a MUCH different life experience) claiming that blood quantum is somehow racist and giving the indirect message that full blooded native americans are racist for wanting to keep existing, not a single mention of the actual much more serious problems native americans face. The people behind this video don't actually care about them, they're just using their label to push an agenda. If the US government (and all the governments from all the countries from this continent) really cared about native americans, they would give them true independence, but obviously no government would willingly give up land of their country just to create a new one for such a powerless and irrelevant minority like native americans...	Racist	Ethnicity - General	2/228	0.877

”My existence is resistance” Amen to that! .... A lot of people don’t understand that countries like America and New Zealand were not seen as one nation by the original inhabitants, the different tribes were different NATIONS with different forms of culture and so, when dealing with issues of land rights, resources and compensation for historical (and contemporary) wrongs we should be thinking of solutions according to the different needs of different nations. This is why different iwi in NZ have different claims and why one iwi’s claim might anger another iwi (such as the protests by Tauranga iwi over the claims sought by the Hauraki collective), Maori may share race but they are still made up of separate nations and that should be recognized. Also, I think it is time that pakeha, specifically pakeha from a colonial background which I guess is most of us, abandon the social project of assimilation. It did not and does not work, we are not one people, we are many people with different ideas, cultures and ways of perceiving this world, instead of constantly trying to force others into our norms and isolating those who don’t fit (or isolating ourselves from those who don’t fit) we should accept each other as we are no expectations,casting all judgement aside and work in unity despite our differences.	Nation, Race	Ethnicity - General, Nationality - General	2/222	0.901

Juan Gallardo You know what's really hilarious? Over 800,000 Jews left Europe during the so-called "Holocaust" to Mexico. Look at any Mexican today they look little to nothing like the Native Americans you seen before they were "colonized by white people". They were literally orientals with dark skin. Almost all of Mexicans today look Middle Eastern. There was a Mexican educator who tested his genealogy and found he was Jewish. He did this for some 60 other people and found they were all Jewish even though they claimed "pure" Native American heritage. So yes, if Mexico was "conquered by the evil whites" as our "History texts" so claim wouldn't all Mexicans today be blonde haired with blue eyes like the Norwegians are? I just love how today's generation of "Mexicans with Native heritage" attack white people for the Native massacre yet have zero connection to these people. Because they're ALL Jewish and stole Native identity! And let's not forget Jews owned ALL the slave ships during the African Slave Trade, and were the PRIMARY owners of slaves. Yet who were blamed for this mess? Obviously white people - they're just the easiest group to target of course.	African, Nothing, Zero	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - Black	3/197	1.523

My grandfathers mom was a Wyandot Indian . Nobody ever talked about or told us about her. I found a family tree and a picture of her from the late 1800's after my mom passed away. I was shocked to learn that my own mother was named after her. Well, the english name they gave her on her wedding day not her real name, thats lost forever. I couldnt believe my own eyes when I found that picture. When I asked my youngest daughter if she looks familiar she replied "yea thats my sister but why is she wearing that funny hat?" They could have been twins. It makes me so embarrassed to know that my family hid the fact that we are actually Native in part? Why? I used to look at a really old picture of an Indian girl in traditional clothing my grandmother had on her wall when I was a kid. I thought she was so pretty. They did the same thing in Mexico, the elites who are mostly foreigners or Mexican only by nationality , have carried out massive campaigns to eradicate all references to Native heritage. The media presents Mexico as a European country almost like a Third class version of Spain or Italy. Media has almost no references to Native culture. You are right it is a bleak picture. Yet in Mexico we still have a chance of taking back the nation , because physically Native Americans are still present, majority of Mexicans have Native blood. The mind can be changed. Jews and Spaniards who run the media in Mexico have brain washed millions into becoming drones. The work is to liberate the Mexican mind from these poisons, and return to a knowledge of Native heritage. US tribes are at risk of being bred out of existence, unless millions of Natives from Mexico, Bolivia, and Peru move to the US, Natives in the US may face complete extinction. pazzodi3 Mexico is an Aztec Indian from the Mexico City area. There were no borders but there were many enemy tribes before the European arrived. Fierce enemies prevented enemy tribes from entering or passing through claimed territories. Montezuma empire was only in Tenochtitlan, he was surrounded by enemy tribes. Tribes did not go very far from their indigenous lands, if so death was just around the corner. America is huge, much of the lands inhospitable and impassable. Indians in ancient days did not claim the the entire continent. How could they claim American, the did not even know of it's existence other than their indigenenized local area. Indians know about America today because of travel to other parts of America because of modern times—commuication and transportation, unavailable in ancient times. Let's get real now... As an American, an African American (a legitimate ethnic identity imo), I agree! We Americans constantly conveniently make everything racial, then we wonder why we have racial issues. How can we be a "post-racial" society if racial concepts are constantly reinforced? Clearly some of these people have admixture, but rigid racial values are not the standard for all human identities. As an African American, our population history is also one of admixture, we have old European admixture from centuries ago passed from generation to generation. It doesn't shake up my sense of African American identity, it's just a part of our story as a US ethnic group. For others, that is a baffling contradiction. Modern day liberals are seriously stricken with the most debilitating mental disorder. I call it Libtardism. This is a prime example. It would be easier and kinder for all to agree on willfully segregating society or send everyone including white races back to our original place of origin. We all just return to where God intended for us to evolve unhindered in the first place. As a Caucasian I can honestly say I do not hate any of the brown races of the world. But when I see them holding back and endangering white culture and Euro societies , it both saddens and angers me terribly. This is what feeds the hate in hateful people. I refuse to hate. I simply love and want to protect my own endangered cultures. We all do better and prosper among our own. Show me how diversity is our strength? Its a brainwashing slogan. Nothing more. If you wish to help another race get ahead, by all means go ahead. I am talking to lunatic far leftist white liberals. But dont try to drag the rest of your Western society into your disillusion conceived unnatural ideologies of multiculturalism and diversity. Go help them on your dime in their own countries. Diversity is proven time and again to be a failed social experiment. Face it already and lets return to nature based laws of common sense. Some different cultures, races, and religions do manage to coincide harmoniously together such as Indonesian, Europeans, Chinese, and Japanese. ————— In the state of Tennessee, with those of us that are Cherokee, such as myself, we are registered on a registry, which began dating back to the Trail of Tears, and from that point, the family genealogy was kept up with by the state. I assume this is what the speaker means by the state knowing our "quantum," though those terms are not used in Tennessee. My family's history is on the data base, and the state has records of my whole genealogy. I believe that this was done with racist motives back when the record keeping began, as those that were Native Americans were not only brought in through the back door in Tennessee, but they were either forced to leave, or had to prove that they were disabled and could not go on the infamous Trail Of Tears. Why so many registered Native Americans did not go to Oklahoma, was that the civil war was on during the taking of the lands, and if the children were off fighting the war, the elderly family members were allowed to stay on their land. Later came the land grab via marriage laws, where if a woman was a Native American, the state would give a white man 500 acres of Native American, Cherokee lands, to any man that would marry the woman. The state began breeding us out, and using our own land in payment to any white man that would take a Native American bride, in order to carry out this movement. This ended in Cleveland, TN area, the Aimohee District of the original Cherokee Nation, left with many mixed families, and almost no family in the area without being partially Cherokee. My own family is on the Lee Registry, and our family has been kept on logs and files since the civil war era, which today is still done under the guise of getting state money, land in a 'rez,' or reservation, and other benefits that were the 'trade,' for our lands. These are not "entitlements," as the state took land in trade for this, so note that this is not welfare. I always feel the need to point this out, as Native Americans are now hated due to getting state funds, though this was the trade off from the state, initiated by the US government, and not by the Native Americans. I personally have had people accuse me of getting my college tuition paid for due to being Cherokee, as recently as last week, and I find this as a typical insult degrading my own triumph of hard work putting my own self through college. I was the brunt of hearing insults about Cherokee's now having casinos on their land, this came from my now x in-laws, and many others. In the state of Tennessee, with those of us that are Cherokee, such as myself, we are registered on a registry, which began dating back to the Trail of Tears, and from that point, the family genealogy was kept up with by the state. I assume this is what the speaker means by the state knowing our "quantum," though those terms are not used in Tennessee. My family's history is on the data base, and the state has records of my whole genealogy. I believe that this was done with racist motives back when the record keeping began, as those that were Native Americans were not only brought in through the back door in Tennessee, but they were either forced to leave, or had to prove that they were disabled and could not go on the infamous Trail Of Tears. Why so many registered Native Americans did not go to Oklahoma, was that the civil war was on during the taking of the lands, and if the children were off fighting the war, the elderly family members were allowed to stay on their land. Later came the land grab via marriage laws, where if a woman was a Native American, the state would give a white man 500 acres of Native American, Cherokee lands, to any man that would marry the woman. The state began breeding us out, and using our own land in payment to any white man that would take a Native American bride, in order to carry out this movement. This ended in Cleveland, TN area, the Aimohee District of the original Cherokee Nation, left with many mixed families, and almost no family in the area without being partially Cherokee. My own family is on the Lee Registry, and our family has been kept on logs and files since the civil war era, which today is still done under the guise of getting state money, land in a 'rez,' or reservation, and other benefits that were the 'trade,' for our lands. These are not "entitlements," as the state took land in trade for this, so note that this is not welfare. I always feel the need to point this out, as Native Americans are now hated due to getting state funds, though this was the trade off from the state, initiated by the US government, and not by the Native Americans. I personally have had people accuse me of getting my college tuition paid for due to being Cherokee, as recently as last week, and I find this as a typical insult degrading my own triumph of hard work putting my own self through college. I was the brunt of hearing insults about Cherokee's now having casinos on their land, this came from my now x in-laws, and many others. There are many insults hurled at Native Americans, and the media never tackles these racial issues, because as the young boy in this video stated, people feel as though all the Native Americans are now dead. In the end, I colored my hair back dark, because I realized that I did not represent my own heritage, my own family, and that I was conforming to what I felt that I needed to do to be in the media. I heard a woman say " I changed my mind on getting a nose job, because I realized that I had my dad's nose, and changing was losing my own family history." I took this to heart, as being Cherokee, I have the large nose, and my hair was always the darkest black, and to change this, is separating myself from my family line, from my heritage, and from who we are. When given a choice now, I too would refuse the nose jobs, or changing my hair color to make me appear more white, to 'fit in.' I find this topic very interesting, the concept of what it means to be indigenous, the social implications and how that changes within the Americas. The USA has a very particular way of dealing with race (one drop rule, the legality of interracial marriages etc.) and consequently the social and legal norms for deciding who is considered to be a part of the indigenous group. I read about people that have been caught lying about their native heritage, "Five Civilized Tribes" etc. In Latin America interracial mixing was encouraged (for better or worse) and so you have a situation e.g. in Brazil where even the white population generally speaking have native ancestry and the mestizo population have a high degree of visible native ancestry. Coupled with the fact that there are still native populations in the Amazon that haven't even had any contact with the "modern world" , the social and legal norms are totally different when it comes to who is considered indigenous. For instance the concept of white-passing indigenous is totally foreign, it just isn't a cultural and legal matter that was ever relevant in the Brazilian context. The take on who is indigenous are just miles apart even though the populations were both heavily affected by colonization. However I do not place any judgement on who is what, I simply find the history behind it and the different expressions of "nativeness" in the Americas to be fascinating. I think it's interesting that indigenous people are the only ones that have to prove bloodline. I firmly believe that indigenous folks should be deciding for themselves who is a part of the nation . I also think its interesting that the more non native blood you introduce, the less native one becomes, regardless of by whom or how you were raised. I also think its interesting that if you have one drop of non white blood, you are no longer 'white'. I think its even more interesting that if you have even one drop of ' black ' blood you are ALL black . I feel that these sorts of policies are extremely divisive. During my travels throughout the U.S., I sometime encountered people that would lay claim to being "Native American", and without knowing more about them, one has to assume they probably do have some indigenous DNA in their biological makeup. I never questioned their statement; still, part of me always thinks they are only saying this because in their heart of hearts, they know they are the descendants of foreign-born immigrants. With that said, here is how you know if you are Native American. Each time you fill out a census form, college admission application, or a job application, if you identify yourself as such in the demographic discovery portion of the application, and you are honest, then you are probably a native. If you identify as white, well then, there you are. fastede III52, I don't think anyone here is purposefully trying to be insensitive toward you, and no one is questioning whether you have a Native American grandparent. Nevertheless, as long as we are talking about being insensitive. We just watched a video wherein a young woman is exclaiming aloud how her peoples BLOOD is being quantified. I wonder if people watching this video truly understand this. We have to wrap our heads around the significance of what is being explained here. First nation peoples are being checked for their genetic markers in order to weed out anyone that can be identified as not possessing sufficient ancestral DNA. WHY?! This is also explained in the video, and it is done so that once there are no more Native Americans left, the treaty with their people becomes void, and the land can be claimed. We watched as a young woman, with tears in her eyes, explained why her grandfather feels he has to hide away, not in shame, but so that his children, and his children's children, will not lose their tribal rights. So when Joao Santos or anyone else points out that MAYBE. You should not call yourself this, before you take it personal, maybe first stop a moment. Just stop a moment, to ask yourself, am I being quantified genetically in any way, in an attempt to marginalize my person or my immediate relatives and deprive me of my rights or my ancestral heritage? Ask yourself these questions, and if the answer is no, and you have otherwise lived unfettered in these United States of America, then go your way in peace friend. You are a U.S. citizen and no one is blaming you for the atrocities committed against these peoples; but please be sensitive to their plight. By these people’s ridiculous standards on who gets to be considered native or not, Russell Means was white, Leonard Peltier is white, the Bellecourts are white, the actor August Schellenberg (who had blue eyes) was white. I could go on and on. This division and outright hate based on blood quantum is just plain racism . There is no other word for it. And it is exactly what the colonialist Governments wanted to create. They invaded the lands, created ”mutts” like us, branded us by our blood quantum as if it is our fault for being born with it, instructed us how to identify ourselves and others within our communities, all in the ultimate goal of causing the complete destruction of an entire ethnic group. Why are you hating on him, he's a young boy? If he is 25 Native American and a proud supporter, than why not embrace that? Granted, I don't agree with his terminology, and perhaps education could assist, as he is a very young person. As far as his appearance, he can't help what his genetics have determined. Genetic dominant and recessive mix is not straight forward, and certainly not cut and dry. I am 75 Portuguese with red hair and blue eyes. Only one in my family. But, according to some of you, I am not because I don't appear as most people who are Portuguese. I am not comparing race or cultures by any means, but using an example to discuss genetics. But pushing someone away from culture because of appearance is so ignorant, I cannot wrap my head around it. A simple read up on genetics could shed a little light for you. Races are different because they have developed, throughout time, different cultures and different worldviews. To be Native means that you belong to the land, you are not on it, like the white man and others, you are of it. Consequently you strive to live in balance and harmony with the natural creation, unlike the white man whose senses of separation, entitlement (dominion) and superiority cause him to attempt to dominate, control and exploit his environment regardless of consequences to other creatures, life forms and even other economic classes and nations. The white man acts as an alien upon the earth, even in Europe, his homeland...while Natives act as a people who understand that they belong here and belong to the earth!THAT is the difference, and it has much to do with skin color, DNA and ancestral memories, like it or not. I am the white guy who actually has a Cherokee great grandmother. In our photographs of her you can definitely see she is not European. As mentioned in this video, she is the only relative I am asked to prove she is a Native American. My grandfather, her son, told me "You cannot do anything about who your relatives are, so you might as well know who they are." We know who we are and we are quite proud of all our relatives. My personal goal is to change the Thanksgiving Holiday from a day recognizing the survival of the Pilgrims but, to recognize the survival of the Native Americans. The reason is because many Americans, white or black , always claim Cherokee ancestry to the point that one of the Cherokee tribes even closed enrollment for some time because of constant calls and they find it offensive. The Cherokee rolls, all of them, are legal documents. Everyone on those rolls are legally Cherokee regardless if they are 100 or 1/32 Cherokee by ethnicity . If you read the rejected applications for inclusion on the Eastern Band of Cherokee rolls, you will find Native people who were rejected because they could not prove their relatives had lived in North Carolina at the time the treaty was agreed to. How many ethnic Cherokees or other tribes are out there but anonymous because they are not on a tribal roll?As for myself, when I was in second grade I visited my cousin in Radford, Virginia. Virginia was still a segregated state at the time. Anyway, my cousin and I were out walking on a trail along a creek in the woods when we came across his neighbor who was our age . His neighbor had a homemade tomahawk his dad had made him. My cousin told his neighbor I was part Indian . His neighbor asked me if that was true. I said "yes". All of a sudden the neighbor's face filled with anger and he said "My dad says we hates injuns" and with that he attacked me with his tomahawk. I pulled pack and the blade of his tomahawk cut my cheek. We fought and I won. I took the tomahawk away from him and threw it as far as I could into the creek. Some people who claim to be Native or part native are not looking for some monetary benefit. It just happens to be the truth. Indigenous Americans isn't there an issue in quantifying blood? I dunno like I'm British Nigerian... My parents are first generation.... There is an interesting phenomena amongst a lot of Americans of European descent claiming to have indigenous ancestry. It's actually fairly common . I've oft wondered where this comes from. Was an ancestor a black African , and the family tried to hide it? Did the tent revivals of the past lay the seed of some sort of native ancestry so white European Americans could rationalize their presence on this continent? Seriously, I really do wonder. Since I was born, I've been told we have some Cherokee ancestry. One of my mum's cousins says Cherokee & Choctaw. That cousin also shared a photo with me and my mum, stating the women in the photo were our native ancestors! Granted, my immigrant ancestors & their descendants moved into the areas these indigenous people inhabited, as well as live along the Trail of Tears, but nothing in my genealogical history has yielded a damned thing except a story someone composed that they heard from their grandmother. No one was raised native, that's for sure, so if they were indigenous, they left the blanket long ago. My mum recently had her ethnic DNA done, and even though this offered only a keyhole into our ancestry, it shows she is completely European. None of her cousins have shown any indigenous dna either. This year, that myth dies in my family, and to be honest I'm relieved, because it felt wrong to claim any native nation , because we have none of those traditions or connections. I think as more and more European Americans have ethnic dna performed, the majority will discover it's a myth for them as well. Very good reason. First white culture is not real, there never been a white culture. Its Europe descent. Also the tribal behavior of minority simply see the "white culture" as dominant and so they try to bring it down while bringing themselves up. Its never been about an honest discussion. Its never been about trying to establish truth or restore past injustice. Its good old "my group is better than your" mentality. White are in general more sensible than other and it affect them. The comment "oppressed more people of other races" is in itself very very generalizing and narrow minded about history. Blacks never had the power to invade any Europeans country since forever so its not like "they could but chose not to".	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/125	0.8

I would imagine, all of my white friends, particularly those that are aware of their European ancestry, are very proud of their culture, which can include race , depending on where you're from. And if someone is especially pleased by their physical appearance, your white skin, his sloe eyes, her kinky coiled hair, have at it! I believe what people take exception to is when one puts forth the idea that one race is superior to another. We should all be able to agree that race is a social construct, but as much policy and many laws have been written and enacted based in this falsehood, we must now deal with the repercussions and ramifications. I encourage the indigenous people to reject the quantification from outsiders, unless this is what you want. Develop your OWN method of determination. The Mashpee people fought for their land and eventually won! Well wishes with future endeavors, Peace!	Race	Ethnicity - General	3/153	1.961

Because whites were superior to everyone else, being openly proud is rubbing it in other race 's faces, being openly proud of being white is like bragging about your gold medal while everyone else is being comforted for their participation trophies. Whites also were the least brutal and oppressive race , they were just more advanced than everyone else.	Race	Ethnicity - General	1/57	1.754

(Some) Europeans changed the rules of the game by convincing everyone to work off of the superficial metric of phenotype. I don't mind an Irish or Basque person being proud of their ethnic identity. Once we start getting into the "muh racial culchah, cullah, and history" territory, I lose personal respect. Overall, this is how I see it: Race is an ideology. As of now, it is operating as an oral tradition/religious system within our country. Like any religion, I can respect the individual's right to practice and understand the world as he sees fit, as long as it is not forced upon me &amp; doesn't harm me. The problem with 'race' - it's not out of its 'New World colonialist spreading Catholicism' phase yet. It is intrusive and its fundamental adherents are often imperialistic/borderline genocidal. You can have your racial doctrine, just control your adherents and deal with that genocidal, homicidal tendency that keeps popping up (maybe make a binding canon like other religious movements). Also, don't get mad if people like me don't accept your concept of race for explaining human differences, or tend to see nuance when it concerns population history in Europe, Africa, or anywhere else. It's because of my own beliefs/principles that I can't bring myself to honestly celebrate black, white, yellow, red, brown, or blue culture, much the same way I don't typically practice Ramadan because I'm not a Muslim.	Black, Ethnic, Race, Red, Yellow	Ideological and Political Identity - General, Ethnicity - Asian (East-China, Japan, Korea, Philippines, Vietnam), Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General, Ethnicity - Native-American, Nationality - Chinese, Nationality - Japanese	9/236	3.814
Also, Somalis are proud of being Somali. Different ethnic people from Nigeria are commonly proud of whatever their ethnic background is. The problem with ethnic African Americans, just like a large swath of our country, is that they have been deeply racially indoctrinated like you. We've been conditioned to be concerned with phenotype and "race," and to form a sense of identity around it. Even worse with African Americans, many feel ethnically lost, so they convince themselves racial identity is all they can describe their sense of peoplehood with. We lack an ethnonym which is not inherently racial. "African American" is largely rejected by ethnic African Americans and is generally misunderstood in the US. Crazy how you have a history of racializing distinct ethnic groups, then wonder why their descendants are obsessed with race. I support Native American causes, but one thing bothers me. Archaeological evidence and genetic tests all point to Asia as the origin of Native Americans yet I never hear anyone - except maybe the Inuit in Alaska and Canada - from the Native American community recognize that. All the Native American origin stories center around Gods, animals or nature just divinely giving birth to Native Americans in the Americas. Please enlighten me, but do any tribes have origin stories that tell of migration from another part of the Earth, in particular Asia? After all, it is where you get your black hair and brown eyes. Before the increased racial mixing that has occurred in the past 150 or so years, Native Americans had an Asian quality to their appearance. Of course, many still do. Peace and truth.	Black	Ethnicity - Black	1/137	0.73
I meant to point out that most painted portraits weren't true depictions of people in the past. For Native Americans, many of the portraits could've been exaggerated. They could have been what the white men wanted others to see. I think it's best to refer to photographs to see what Native Americans look like. However, it's also hard to tell the skin tone since the photographs are mostly black and white. Native Americans have definitely changed over the years after all of the mixing with blood. There are some Natives who still look like the typical way you would imagine a Native to look like. Others can appear light-skinned and have different features. We are all changing as we connect with other races, and that's not really a bad thing. We are still connected with our spirituality and heritage. :) And yes, dark-skin is attractive, all skin is attractive. My cousin is a beautiful dark-skinned Native, and her sister happens to be a gorgeous fair-skinned Native. They are both just as Native as the other one is, one is just lighter than the other.	Black	Ethnicity - Black	1/184	0.543

If you were referring to me, I wasn't avoiding saying anything. Through my message I meant to end with yes, we are mixed. We are connected with other races. Most tribes are going to be mixed with either black, white, etc... My tribe is mixed with the French and it's not a big deal since it doesn't make us any less Native. We are still proud of our heritage. So there's no point in bringing attention to their appearance. I hope you are able to understand what I'm saying now.	Black	Ethnicity - Black	1/91	1.099

I know it's kind of fuzzy to tell what counts, but that's up to the individual themselves. I only bring up skin color because honestly, it's not that important. Being Native is more than just a skin color or blood amount. It's the individual and their spirituality and traditions. This is my belief. Take it as you will. cocokai I agree and understand what you are saying. That makes sense in a general way. The exception is that our intelligence, reasoning and emotions as human species is what makes us different than the rest of the animal kingdom. Original early migrations from Africa is a fact, yes. So what? How does that relate at all to why it was okay for Europeans to attempt to wipe an entire population? It wasn't for resources. It seems that you are referring to a need for a survival. They had resources in Europe. We've all heard the story of Puritans escaping religious persecution and Columbus stumbling across the ocean. At some point, it so much more than resettling into a new territory - over time or even instantly there grew a deep seated hatred that made them say - "we don't want them here" - which lead to things like sterilizations, massacres and policies that diminished Native populations. That is no longer only "migration" - that is an enemy who knows no boundaries. I wish it was so simple as claiming migration and animal kingdom yada yada. Your answer is good in an anthropological sense, but its also good excuse for those who do not want to deal with racism and land issues.	Racism	Ethnicity - General	1/212	0.472
IngridDo you feel the same way about the current Muslim migration into Europe? What about the African migration into Europe? Populations have been on the move since the beginning of time. Not only is it part of nature, it's healthy. And it's not just 'whites' who've displaced previous civilizations. Todays Japan is inhabited by a people who came from mainland Asia and displaced the native population. Throughout India and the Asian continent populations have come, replaced and yes, killed previous populations. Same with Africa and the middle east. Check out the history of Genghis Kahn and the lands he conquered, subjugated and the people's he slaughtered. And yet, it's only whites people seem to hold to this standard of behavior and only whites people think should know better. I used to work with intellectually challenged adults when I was a teenager. We were told that no matter what the 'clients' did, we were responsible. If they attacked us we would be asked to consider what we'd done wrong that caused them to behave this way. If they pooped themselves and threw their poop on other 'clients', we would be asked how we'd messed up and caused this to happen...why? Because they weren't intelligent enough to be held responsible for their own behavior. This is exactly what lies behind all political correctness. The idea that 'others' aren't really our equals and can't be held to the same standards we hold white people. Political correctness is the most toxic example of racism there's ever been. All people have migrated, fought, replaced, murdered, enslaved others, etc...And they always will. While you wring your hands over ancient crimes, new migrations are supplanting old western civilizations even as we speak. Will you preach against them I wonder.	African, Old, Racism	Age - Over 65s, Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	3/292	1.027

It is not so much a matter of race as of culture...however different races have created and developed different cultures. Native people's cultures have to do with land and spirituality...we do not separate things like the white man does, everything is connected in our worldview. Your state of mind (what some awakened individuals among you call separation theology) causes you to destroy the natural environment. ..that's where our cultures clash!Now you are talking about "entitlement"...that's amusing coming from a non Native, as you people have acted, throughout history and specifically on this continent (and in Africa, Australia, etc) as the most entitled people on the planet, as your "Manifest destiny" concept clearly demonstrates. You believed, and still do, that you were destined to dominate and rule the entire world, and follow the dominion theology...if that's not entitlement, then nothing is!! mewabe4 - nice generalization. You're putting all white people in a single race and saying how all of their minds are like that their goal is to pursue manifest destiny and white greatness. First of all you know nothing of the Manifest Destiny if that's how you interpreted it. Secondly, you think people (you specifically referring to white rather than all races because lots of races have pursued imperial agendas btw) are after domination and to rule the world, that's not why colonialists have travelled to America neither the reason why we had a Manifest Destiny. Your worldview is so narrow-minded. People like you use identity politics to pursue an agenda. You feel just because you're of a culture or " race " (whatever that means) must mean you're entitled to feel victimized and special because of past events in history. The Legendary Pandicorn I feel as if though the Americans way of deciding who is native and who is not is completely inhumane. Checking blood is just plain cruel and cold	Indian	Ethnicity - Native-American	1/55	1.818

The Legendary Pandicorn The counter argument would belong more to the fact that even if you find a tribe (which would of been it's own nationality) you have a long way to being recognized and if you are anything else no matter if you were raised as a native you are denied that existence by the government and denied if you are less than a certain quantum by the tribe. But blood quantum is in part needed by a tribe so you can't have people who are hardly any native since funding is poor. And I don't think there is a way to not receive any type of funding and just be part of the tribe. So it is still tied to the government because the tribes need funding and are stretched thin. I have two grandparents who are from two different tribes but my blood quantum isn't one half because they weren't full blooded and worse they left their tribes and clans to get jobs and be able to live better lives in the 50s and 60s so I am am tribeless even with contacts in the tribe because the Tsalagi are a one half quantum tribe and it is extremely hard to find documentation of my grandparents other than their marriage certificate ( with english names they choose that were not tied to their clans or family) and my father was denied his heritage because DNA might list him as about 76 native american (also 20 white (german and english) and 5 (west african) but he isn't able to go by his lineage so he can't become a member or claim benefits. And some are lineal so unless you can track your ancestry you can't belong. Also because the government developed this blood quantum there are even tribesmen that argue they are more native than someone else and so on. Yes this is true. I'm Navajo and in order to take advantage of the heathcare system, etc. it all depends on blood quantum that is decided by each tribe. Its very logical and straight forward, when people start to put their emotions into everything, like what the left likes to do then you can quickly become offended. I grew up with my grandfather always being grateful that he lived in the United States. He was always thankful that we didn't live in Mexico or weren't conquered from the east by China. I mean look at those indigenous people in those countries. I am not a victim of "Historical Trauma". My grandfather always told us to learn as much as we could from the white men, they were not the enemy, we become the enemy when we decide to play victim and find "educated" lingo to excuse ourselves. Also many tribal communities don't like to discuss this but we had slaves, whether it be black people in southeast US, or other tribal people who were captured in war battles. We all some kind of ism against each other so I don't think saying that racism or tribalism was a repercussion of "colonization" is relevant. It is also true that many people take advantage of our" free" healthcare system (which of course was paid for by our ancestors forgoing their land rights) seeing as I live in a area near the Mexican border and many illegals come through the emergency rooms and even clinics looking to get care and taking what little healthcare resource we have.	Black, Racism	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	2/264	0.758

I agree on most accounts. But being told you aren't native for people who come from a native back round but don't meet the blood requirement, means more than a loss of benifits. Imagine if someone told you that your aren't apart of the culture you grew up in or your family was a part of. Of course race and culture are separate things, but when the government decides your not native, it feels like your stripped from your people. That isn't to say your argument is wrong, I agree with it on almost all accounts. But this is why people are angry, as time moves on native people are becoming less native, in the next 50 to 100 years there may be no 50 native people anymore. And when that time comes you can't quantify a people by blood anymore, then it's about culture and how much a person knows about it. But native people have already experienced a loss of culture, most tribes' language is either dead or in danger. Holding onto culture is hard, and one day we'll have to come to terms that we are dying. And that is the true pain here. 500 years after the Spanish arrive in the Americas, and we've hit the breaking point. Maybe there will be a resurgence and Natives hold onto who they are for sometime longer. But you have to ask yourself, in another 100 years will Native people be anything but a memory?	Race	Ethnicity - General	1/246	0.407

Or because none of those are viable on large-scales. "My parent is a native"? Then you should either pass the DNA test, or you kick the problem of the DNA test back a generation. "I grew up on a reservation"? Great. In an age of photoshop and paying off people to say things, prove it. "I speak a native language"? There are people who learned Mandarin in under a month, I don't see how that's trustworthy to determine nativeness.What if you have a "Nativeaboo"? (A Weeaboo but claiming false native heritage). If they go live on a reservation, learn the language, and pay off people to say they are his parents, does that truly make him a native?Also, don't think that "because the Nazis did it" automatically makes something bad. The Nazis also raised German Shepherds, and I don't think that means it's evil.Also also, if you bothered to read the previous comment replies, you'd know that it's often times the tribes themselves that do the DNA testing. Yes, I think it is better for the few who manage to 1. gain fluency in a native language (far from easy to do) 2. live on the res, AND 3. find people to pose as parents, to receive aid not meant for them, than for the tribes to slowly die out because the government goes ONLY by DNA testing. (This is a hypothetical example, since there are variations on potential types of "proof" that could be used in conjunction). We are talking about impact on a macro scale here – about the continued existence of entire tribes over time. This weird American obsession with a small number of people "ripping off" the system is fear-mongering and distracts from the core issue.Defining community by blood wasn't some fringe Nazi practice liking raising dogs, it was the cornerstone of their ideology. It is a also a false definition for what makes a community or a culture what it is - humans aren't divided into neat little DNA based packages. History and community goes into making a person part of a particular culture/ethnicity – along with, in our present-day, the way someone looks, since people get treated according to their perceived " race " no matter what their personal experience.And finally, yes I did read that some tribes use DNA – however, some googling will tell you that a lot more goes into it, often it's proving your connection to a native ancestor. And just because some tribal leadership has adopted a method doesn't make it a good one – the blood quantum system, for example, has been used to keep out black folks whose ancestors were enslaved by certain native tribes. I'm not quite sure how much you understand about blood testing, if you even do at all. The German Shepherd was a perfect analogy.Sorry to burst your bubble, but Nazis didn't have blood testing. In fact, the Nazi comparison feels really out of place. DNA was discovered in 1953, so proving anyone's bloodline back in the 1940's was basically educated guesswork and family stories. It wasn't understood, the current version is used to give aid, and the closest historical approximation was used maliciously.Meanwhile, to adapt the analogy a bit more, Service Shepherds, or rather service dogs in general, were not well understood. Yes, records of dogs assisting the disabled existed, but normally those came from people who bonded with the dog prior to their impairment. The Nazis used their German Shepherds to assist their owners... in hunting down people. It wasn't understood, the current version is used to give aid, and the closest historical approximation was used maliciously.Also, I checked out the article. It does nothing to prove your point about either Nazis or the issues with DNA testing. All I saw was cultures exercising their semi-sovereignty to decide who does and doesn't count as one of them, which I am able to respect. Sure it shunts out others, but if they were a large part of the culture of the nations that chose to shunt them, then they wouldn't have been shunted at all, which has nearly nothing to do with the US Federal Government since the US Fed Gov doesn't decide each nation's requirements.	Disabled, Nazi, Nothing	Ideological and Political Identity - General, Age - Youngsters, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	20/259	7.722

I agree with you Pandic. I'm full blood Chickasaw from Oklahoma. Years back, say 1940's, nobody wanted to be Indian . But since the Chickasaw tribe has become so successful economy wise, everybody wants to be part Chickasaw because of the benefits and programs we now have. But you have to have an Indian card. To obtain a card your great grandparents had to have had a roll number from the Dawes roll number list that was made in the early 1900s. A lot of people around here are called white chickasaws. If a person is 1/164th Chickasaw they are entitled to benefits. If you stick them with a pin they would lose their Chickasaw blood. Lol. No offense to anybody. I would let my love express itself in the concern for my friends, my neighbors and anyone icame in contact with. I would let love permeate me, overcome me, overwhelm me and direct me. I would learnthejoy of giving, the pleasure of sharing, the happiness of helping. I would love the unwanted, the lonely the unknown, and the unloved. Where society overlooks people, I would socialize with them. I would go where the road isn't paved and friends are few, where need is great. I would go where God is likely to be found. When we get to heaven, all earthly memories will disappear because there is no pain there. We must learn to love and forgive, love and forgive. I don't care about the past. Its refreshing to here the voices of Native Americans. (Not sure which they would prefer to be called.) I think their struggle is left unappreciated today. KellySmith555 Thing is, most native americans across the continent (not just the US) don't think " race is a social construct".Can you not see how disrespectful this video is? They're using the native american image to push a political agenda. +bejoang27It doesn't matter what "most people think". Race IS a social construct. That's just a fact. Secondly, can't you see how disrespectful you are being? You don't decide who is a "real" native and who is not. No one in this video suggested that Natives are the ones calling out other Natives as being fake. Regardless, other Natives don't get to decide who is and who is not apart of their race . That's not how reality works kid. Being mixed raced means you absolutely are of multiple races, given that we agree races exist whatsoever. Therefore, a certain percentage of blood or absence thereof, does not change the absoluteness of ones lineage. Your decision on someone else's race means nothing . Sorry if that hurts your feelings, but that's the facts.	Nothing, Race	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - General	4/131	3.053
KellySmith555 If these people said to real natives from, say, México, Guatemala, Perú or Bolivia that they're native american and started shamelessly redefining what native american means in front of them, well, they would obviously react with confusion probably mixed with anger. And before you get mad at them and call them racist I want you to understand why they do it, they're an EXTREMELY small minority in the whole american continent if we go by absolute terms, if they don't segregate and differentiate themselves they will inevitably be assimilated by the non-native majority and go extinct, just like neanderthals are extinct even though most humans have neanderthal DNA. No matter how hard you abstract the term " race ", people like the girl at 0:51 are NOT native american (she literally just looks white).	Race, Racist	Ethnicity - General	2/133	1.504
+Bejoang27Why'd you delete your previous comment? hmm? Regardless, Neanderthals are a different species, races aren't. Races are arbitrary constructs that associate outward appearance and geographical places of origin to groups of people despite the fact that from a DNA perspective, there are extremely few genes distinguishing peoples of any given race from any other given race . So no, kiddo, nobody is going extinct. Again, race IS a cultural construct, therefore, there is no absolute definition of what a Native is beyond having Native ancestry from North or South America.	Nobody, Race	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - General	4/90	4.444

+bejoang27Hahaha! I guess you don't know the definition of a species if you think the ability to inbreed is all that's required. But, let's use your logic for a moment. If being able to inbreed is the only thing necessary to declare something the same species, then it doesn't matter if the two groups inbreed or not. The species will remain intact. Native white-headed ducks ARE Ruddy ducks if they can inbreed. They are the same species in your account. So who cares? They won't go extinct by inbreeding. Their population will simply multiply. So what's the problem?See you can't have your cake and eat it too. If they are the same species, then it doesn't matter if they inbreed. If they aren't the same species, then their mating would create a new sub-species by definition. Which is what happened with our ancestors and neanderthals, humans are a sub-species of two primate groups, one neanderthals and one a creature similar to modern day humans. But what you don't understand is that races aren't species. There are no such things as "sub-races", because race is a social construct. The only thing that defines your race is who your ancestors are. You have Native ancestors, are Native. You can have more than one race at one time, kid. Races can't go extinct.	Race	Ethnicity - General	3/222	1.351
There are biologists that consider neanderthals and humans to be from the same species and there are others that don't (because just like with the term " race ", there isn't a clear line that divides different species), if you're claiming that race is a social construct then you'd also have to claim that species is a social construct too, either way by most definitions organisms that can produce offspring are labeled under the same species, but that's besides the point.My point is that neanderthals as a population (or as a socially constructed term or whatever you wanna call it) don't exist anymore even though most humans carry a small percentage of their DNA. Listen, why were Ruddy ducks separated from white-headed ducks? Because they wanted to preserve white-headed ducks as they REALLY are, otherwise they would've been completely genetically assimilated by Ruddy ducks and they would no longer resemble even in the slightest how white-headed ducks were originally. There's absolutely NOTHING wrong with wanting to preserve native americans as they originally are, call it a social construct or not. Who cares you say? Well me, and many native americans as well (and also the people that decided to separate Ruddy ducks from white-headed ducks). With this mentality you're contributing to their disappearance, but according to your logic they won't disappear because someone that is 0.00000001 native american is unquestionably native american if they say they are, which is downright absurd.	Nothing, Race	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - General	3/240	1.25

False again.”if you’re claiming that race is a social construct then you’d also have to claim that species is a social construct too”Nope. Species are separated by genes. Races are separated by geographical locations. These are not analogous. Don’t confuse yourself.But to obliterate your point officially, if you want to go that far, its easy to say the classification scientists give to different animals are not black and white restrictions that converge with absolute systems of measurement. Species as a whole is just a term, the reality of different life forms is often a gradient, not a fixed sequence, meaning, yes, to some degree, species and the other classification we give animals and other life forms are founded upon our qualifications, not upon a rigid system that exists in nature. Species classifications are merely tools we use to describe reality as we see it, not as it actually is. So no, its not a social construct, but a human invention of measurement and organization. As science changes so to do these terms, while reality doesn’t change.”either way by most definitions organisms that can produce offspring are labeled under the same species, but that’s besides the point.”Again, no that’s false. And no, its not beside the point. Donkeys and horses, lions and tigers, various distinct animals can mate. Clearly, they aren’t the same species. Your point is simply false. If you are going to make claims further in this direction, its best you use some peer-reviewed sources. At this point, your just making things up it seems.”There’s absolutely NOTHING wrong with wanting to preserve native americans as they originally are, call it a social construct or not. ”Eh, no kid. Here’s where your problem is. Races don’t need to be preserved ”as they originally are”. It sounds like you want to prevent Natives from breeding outside of their population? Are you a Nazi sympathizer or something? What you don’t seem to get is Natives will mate with whoever they want. That’s why we have mixed race people. Because Natives themselves decided for themselves to mate with the people they fell in love with, regardless of their race. Its sounds like you are trying to keep them as pure breed horses or dogs or something. Le’ts face the facts here. Race is not something that should or needs to be protected. People need to be protected, regardless of their race. If someone is harmed because of their race, we need to protect them. We don’t need, nor should we preserve the ”purity” of a race for any reason. Again, race is a social construct, if a certain race is changed over time, that’s fine, it doesn’t matter. Nothing is lost. What needs to be preserved is Native culture and history, not ”pure bloods”, as you’d have it. There is no more value in a person who is mixed race and a person who is only one race. None. The only reason you would want to preserve ”pure bloods” is because you value them more for some reason. Which IS a problem. Just replace Natives with White people and you’ll understand why your logic is sick. If you were standing here saying we need to keep white blood pure, you’d be a Nazi. So why do you think its ok to say those things about Natives? Guess what, its not ok.I think you can figure out for yourself the flaws in your logic. "You said that species classifications are tools that we use to describe reality as we see it, not as it really is, and that they're not social constructs because of that, yet race could be defined like that but you say it is a social construct, you contradicted yourself."No, my child. A social construct is a concept created by humans to help them communicate and interact with one another. That's the definition of a social construct. In this case, a social construct is a tool that is explicitly defined as a tool created by humans for social communication and interaction. The category of "species" is NOT a social construct, because it is not designed specifically for the purpose of helping humans communicate and interact with one another, it was created to help humans categorize animals and other life forms for scientific research. BOTH of these things are concepts, but one is a social construct and the other is not. There is no contradiction, you merely don't know the meaning of social construct. Now you do."If I had a nazi mentality I would be talking about native american supremacy and that people who are part native american (like me) are inferior."Nope again. You have a Nazi mentality because you believe in segregation of races to preserve their "originality". And Hitler wasn't an Aryan, yet he believed Aryan's were the best. So, thinking of yourself as lesser, doesn't keep you from idealizing another race. Supremacy isn't the only thing Nazis believed. I fail to see how species can't be considered a social construct. Definition of social construct: A social mechanism, phenomenon, or category created and developed by society; a perception of an individual, group, or idea that is 'constructed' through cultural or social practice. Lots of things can be considered social constructs under that definition, and the 17th century precursor of the modern concept of race was also created to categorize humans for study. it was created to help humans categorize animals and other life forms for scientific research. Yes, species were created by humans and we agree that they exist because we have assigned living beings that label and everyone around us agrees of the existence of species, and I could even argue that the term species also simplifies human communication by grouping animals that share similar characteristics into a single group, categorization is fundamental in language and therefore the term species does help humans communicate with one another, the fact that this concept was created to categorize something makes its purpose to help humans communicate and interact with one another. BOTH of these things are concepts, but one is a social construct and the other is not. Definition of concept: an abstract idea; a general notion. In other words a social construct, there's a reason why a social construct can also be called a social concept. "I don't believe that. By the time that many reproductions have happened, that creature will likely no longer even be human." That was a hyperbole. Would you consider someone that is 1 native American a native American? "What you value is the issue. That something is "lost" that deserves to be preserved. That's the Nazi mentality." We are animals anyway, I don't see what's wrong with thinking that human races, whether they're social constructs or not, should be preserved as they really are just like we preserve endangered animals like those ducks I've mentioned a thousand times now. There are dog breeds that are extinct even though there are dogs that descend from them. You can demonize me all you want but I'm not calling for the extermination of entire races, I'm not saying non-natives are inferior, I'm not saying native americans are the master race, I'm saying that if they all mixed and were eventually absorbed genetically by the non-native population they would be replaced with something different that couldn't be considered a native American anymore, that mixed population would obviously still be a part of the bigger concept "human race" but they wouldn't be native americans anymore.	Nazi, Race	Ideological and Political Identity - General, Ethnicity - General	4/426	0.939

The question is problematic on a number of levels. First, America is a shorthand term referring to the United States of America. There were many European nations that were attempting to establish colonies in the Americas (some were more successful than others). Natives started losing land to colonial powers a century and a half before the founding of the USA. And "stealing" can be too simplistic to describe the process of aboriginal dispossession. Land was acquired by purchase, lost as a result of open warfare, treaties, fraud, bureaucratic occupation, coercion/threats, etc. There was theft of land in some instances. But, not all land acquired by colonists and Americans was technically stolen either. However, on a related topic: I see a common response from usually conservative White American males that tend to take their views to the other extreme, by cultural default - namely, they take up the position that there was no "rightful ownership" by tribes anyway. It is the standard "might makes right" mentality that has been rationalizing colonization and domination efforts for many generations. This represents a deep cultural legacy and entrenched social conditioning.	Common	Social Class - Working class	1/186	0.538

————— In the state of Tennessee, with those of us that are Cherokee, such as myself, we are registered on a registry, which began dating back to the Trail of Tears, and from that point, the family genealogy was kept up with by the state. I assume this is what the speaker means by the state knowing our "quantum," though those terms are not used in Tennessee. My family's history is on the data base, and the state has records of my whole genealogy. I believe that this was done with racist motives back when the record keeping began, as those that were Native Americans were not only brought in through the back door in Tennessee, but they were either forced to leave, or had to prove that they were disabled and could not go on the infamous Trail Of Tears. Why so many registered Native Americans did not go to Oklahoma, was that the civil war was on during the taking of the lands, and if the children were off fighting the war, the elderly family members were allowed to stay on their land. Later came the land grab via marriage laws, where if a woman was a Native American, the state would give a white man 500 acres of Native American, Cherokee lands, to any man that would marry the woman. The state began breeding us out, and using our own land in payment to any white man that would take a Native American bride, in order to carry out this movement. This ended in Cleveland, TN area, the Aimohee District of the original Cherokee Nation, left with many mixed families, and almost no family in the area without being partially Cherokee. My own family is on the Lee Registry, and our family has been kept on logs and files since the civil war era, which today is still done under the guise of getting state money, land in a 'rez,' or reservation, and other benefits that were the 'trade,' for our lands. These are not "entitlements," as the state took land in trade for this, so note that this is not welfare. I always feel the need to point this out, as Native Americans are now hated due to getting state funds, though this was the trade off from the state, initiated by the US government, and not by the Native Americans. I personally have had people accuse me of getting my college tuition paid for due to being Cherokee, as recently as last week, and I find this as a typical insult degrading my own triumph of hard work putting my own self through college. I was the brunt of hearing insults about Cherokee's now having casinos on their land, this came from my now x in-laws, and many others. There are many insults hurled at Native Americans, and the media never tackles these racial issues, because as the young boy in this video stated, people feel as though all the	380

hossam katbeh : Here we go again Attack on Whitesim not saying that America is peachy perfect and clean of what happen in those days. The Natives weren't ether. It's not just a one way, it goes both ways And since your Arabic like you said, Muslims have a long history of Wars, Genocide and Slavery So the Arabic's are not innocent A chronological list of battles and wars across the Islamic World and beyond, from the seventh century to the present spans at least 1,432 years of Islamic history. There have been 254 campaigns in total, averaging an outbreak of conflict every 5.64 years. Although large parts of the Muslim world are very safe from war, a few countries in the Near East, Africa and South Asia are quite vulnerable to conflict. In addition persecution of the Muslim community also currently presents a danger in lands such as India and Serbia, which are not listed as parts of battles or wars (such as the Gujurat pogrom in 2002 in India). The most peaceful period was between the eighth and tenth centuries, in the middle of the Islamic Golden Age (a cultural, intellectual, political and technologically advanced age), and the worst during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries during the White European imperial age. The Early Middle-ages (7th-10th Centuries) saw twenty-seven campaigns, the High Middle-ages (11th-13th Centuries) thirty-seven campaigns, the Late Middle-ages (14th-16th) sixty-one campaigns, and in the Contemporary Era (18th-19th Centuries) fifty-nine campaigns, with the Post-Early Modern Era (19th-20th Centuries) registering at least eighty-seven campaigns in total.The list of battles in not fully complete and only includes additions made in Alexander Mikaberidze's "Conflict and Conquest in the Islamic World: A Historical Encyclopedia"' (where for example the Siege of Silistria (1854), is not mentioned). However the number of campaigns appears accurate and are listed chronologically. Certain campaigns known elsewhere may also have names different to those remembered in Islamic history. In addition there are more than several notable battles in Islamic history that have had several important implications in relation to Islamic warfare. Some of the most famous battles have included Yarmouk, (636), Masts (655), Xeres (711), (1071), Maritsa (1371), Nicopolis (1396), Mohacs (1526), Preveza (1538), Algiers (1541), 2nd Panipat (1556), Djerba (1560), 3rd Panipat (1761), Pollilur (1780), Gallipoli (1915), Kashmir (1947) and Chechnya (1994). Some of the most famous campaigns have consisted of the Turkish War of Independence (1919-1922) and the advent of the Crusades (1096-1272) in which the Muslims eventually triumphed. Throughout Islamic history, some notable weapons were also invented during warfare such as the torpedo, giant bombards, trebuchets, rockets and scimitars.7th Century (55 Battles)[1]Total Campaigns: 254, Total Battles: 1,423Muslim Campaign (624-630)Battle of Badr (624)Battle of Uhud (625)Battle of Medina (627)Battle of Khaybar (628)Battle of Mecca (630)The Syrian Conquest (629-639)Battle of Muta (629)Battle of Ajnadin (634)Battle of Bosra (634)Battle of Marj Rahit (634)Battle of Wadi al-Arabah (634)Battle of Yarmuk (634)Battle of Damascus (635)Battle of Fihl (635)Battle of Marj as-Suffar (635)Battle of Yarmuk (636)Battle of Jerusalem (638)Battle of Aleppo (639)Muslim	African, Age	Age - General, Ethnicity - Black	4/714	0.56

&gt;It is a thing for social engineers pushing progressive agenda. It's an evil thing, especially if it's male. The "white man" is propped up as the thing to dismantle. It's very interesting how aggressive this media is. Yes, that's probably because straight white men have oppressed every race on Earth. They've colonized or occupied every country in the world but five. In their own countries they facilitated the brutal systematic oppression of women, people of color, and LGBT. These groups are now amassing more political, social, cultural, and economic power as a result of ideologies that exist to generate empowerment in opposition to straight white male hegemony. &gt;I'm not sure if it's bolstered by President Trump being in power, Trump is a white nationalist who represents straight white male privilege. You're looking at this from the wrong angle. The government is paying them because they broke treaties/agreements with the Natives. There are disputes which date back more than a century. We bought land and resources from these people and didn't pay. Many we simply forced to leave or murdered. The gov't isn't just giving these people money for nothing . The Federal gov't was sued by over 100 tribes, and ended up settling for over 3 billion dollars in 2009.To Natives, land is not simply a property value or a piece of real estate. It is a source of traditions and identities, ones that have emerged from centuries and millenia of relationships with landscapes and seascapes.	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/116	0.862
So what? Tribes are nations, just like the United States is a nation . Am I not an American because both my parents were born elsewhere? Even though I am a natural born American citizen? Why should not native tribes be able to absorb into their nations folks who's ancestors were not native Americans? If you get a mail-order bride from Moldova, and your son gets a mail-order bride from Thailand, and you grandson marries a man woman from Guatemala, your great-grandchildren will only have 1/8 American ancestry, yet will be considered 100 American. Why should the people of native nations not be able to do the exact same thing, and still have their descendants be considered 100 Apache, Cree, Navajo, Cherokee, Mohawk, or what have you? Fun Fact: 99 of Native Americans are more White and European then they are native.And according to PEW research on interracial marriages, Native American Women marry outside their race at 46.	Race	Ethnicity - General	1/32	3.125

525Lines I can hear that, we all had tribal wars with one another but not to the extent of what the US government did so I don't think that's a fair comparison. Tribal warfare for land and resources isn't equal to the goal systemically eliminating a race of people and wiping their existence from history for hundreds of years through cultural assimilation. These are 21st century values applied to 15th-19th century issues. Native groups did a lot of killing, too and that's from Roanoke on. Lots of Europeans and Africans entered into native communities and they were assimilated as bad or worse. 99 of the native deaths were due to disease before anybody in Europe knew what was going on. My mother told an old family story of an aunt who, as a child, encountered Native Americans in the Midwest. I would love for things to have gone better the idea of a tribe that might be 500 members saying a big chunk of Ohio is theirs, that's asking a lot.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/109	0.917
525Lines you stop their land and all the natural resources on and under it and they're supposed to rubber stamp your thievery byaccepti g more "beads" and go away. White folks still act like they're bargaining with a country that belongs to them when they, as usual, murdered innocent people and stole it. Why should they bargain for"benefits" when the gold oil silver and other resources your murderous ancestors stole belonged to them. Crazy!	Crazy	Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	1/74	1.351

- The percentage of hate speech related words is 1.5499.
- Considering that the variable Ethnicity - Black has the most occurences in the post, we can interpret that this is the predominant hate speech.
- Overall there were 4209/7907 occurences of hate speech related comments.
