I, as a trans man, have experienced both sides of the story... literally I've been disrespected by male leadership in the military for my gender and I've seen men (who seriously had no idea I was transgender and thought I was a straight cis gender male) talk to me (although I was a stranger to them) about female coworkers as if she was a piece of meat.Every time you speak about someone else, male or female, pretend you're saying it about your young son or daughter... maybe then you would understand why it's disgustingly disrespectful to say some certain things about others based solely off their gender . all this is a fucking joke including the comments that complain about men saying "but men are being misintrepted too" when women are not any different there are video s that show sexism against men women say "but sexism affects women too" type of bullshit	Sexism	Gender - General	2/45	4.444

Why does empowering women have to mean that we are somehow taking something away from you? I don't understand why some men are against gender equality. We are literally half of the population. The world would be no where without women (and men).	Gender	Gender - General	1/43	2.326
fuck you women can be sexist too and you just proved it with your retarded "that woman is a ma is sheep's clothing" bullshit,please don't talk to me,i don't talk to cunts that believe that women that are sexist are men in sheep's clothing	Woman	Gender - General	1/44	2.273
It's a shame so many men commenting are saying it's all one sided, cherry picking, nobody cares about men being treated this way. I, for one, do care about how men are treated and always back men up in any sexist situation they're placed within. I do not want to see my son, father husband being faced with sexism . But, why can we no longer talk about women's rights now, without these kinds of comments? Do you not worry about you mother, daughter, wife? Or is it because you want to see the side with mens daily sexism in the same videos as the women's daily sexism ? I'm honestly curious.	Nobody, Sexism	Age - Youngsters, Gender - General	4/110	3.636
+citizenxgen About 36 of adults in the U.S. are considered to be obese and face health issues as a result. +Jezza O'DoyleRules Nobody is saying that sexism against men is not an issue. They're both part of sexism , and focusing more on one aspect does not mean that we're denying another aspect of it- we often place more focus on racism against the black population, partially because there are more obviously racist events against them, but racism against Hispanics, Asians, Whites, etc still exists. I just have one thing to say. The reason the world became what it is now is because men and women are not equal, physically or mentally. When humans first came into existence, who do you think did all the hunting? Who do you think built all the shelters, and fended off wild animals? The men. The men built this world, and you can't argue against that. It's just the nature of life. If you women think you are equal to men, then how come this world is dominated by men in almost every aspect of life? Business, politics, sports, academics, and even blue collar jobs like construction crews and manufacturing. Men and women were never meant to be equal, and there is nothing wrong with that.	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/127	0.787
"Men control the world and women control men" that's how the world works. Men are benevolent by nature we provide for and protect women, but yet they've villainised us and turn society on us. women are designed to take and take and take from men until theres nothing left, then they move onto the next host. All that men are to women are UTILITIES, "men are either EXPLOITED or IGNORED".We don't exist to women or society unless we have utility value, we are kept in a state of ignorance and anyone who tries to educate or warn men/boys is shamed into silence or threatened.	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/105	0.952
Nigel Thornberry Ok Nigel, it is true that in the beginning of time men did over power women (and i have nothing truly against that). But that was the BEGINNING of time. This is the age of knowledge and understanding, a changing point. And you know women helped out in ancient and early civilizations than just gathering? Women helped fight off predators and obtain food, they helped their clans' migrate and move, shoot some even lead clans. But apart of ancient history, lets get back to our modern age . Women have just as much capability of men do. We are practically equal. Yes a few hormones and muscles may be justified but that doesn't make any significant changes. And if you think men always over power women, why don't we take a look at some of our historical women who've practically conquered men in both muscle and intelligence wise. I mean, I had the highest test scores in my district and school and I am a female.But if you want to continue living in the savage ancient ages you can go to a developing country in Africa	Age, Nothing	Age - General, Age - Youngsters	3/188	1.596

Women in the military are ”complaining about being raped too much! What do they expect?” Oh, I don’t know you dumb bitch. Maybe they expect respect from their fellow soldiers. They should be able to trust those Men with their lives, but instead they get raped by them. They probably wouldn’t trust any of their fellow soldiers who were Males after that. It’s not a logical reaction, but what do you expect, given the circumstances?I think it’s a bad idea to give Women lower physical standards for their PFA than Men, but not doing anything about them being raped is insane and evil.	Dumb	Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	1/104	0.962

The agenda has even included the feminist gem that everytime a man has sex it should be considered rape. Really it has, but I guess it is only sexism when the media is talking about women huh?	Sex, Sexism	Gender - General	2/37	5.405
Oh for gods sake. These feminists are dumber than rocks when it comes to sexism . People saying they don't want to pay for your contraception is not sexism you morons. It's called being a logical and truthful person.	Sexism	Gender - General	2/38	5.263
So then men never have to pay for contraception because it's not their body and not their responsibility is what you're saying? That's not very far from saying: That child is not my responsibility because it came from your body. Guys are often the ones that don't want kids, let them pay the price for that, imo it should be split 50/50 with your sexpartner. If you're the kind of girl to sleep around yeah, you should pay for your own contraception BUT if you're in a relationship it is ridiculous to let the woman take all the responsibility, you both don't want a baby? how about you both pay the price. Also: fuck those guys that tell women to use the pill just because they don't want to wear a rubber, it's been proven rubbers don't take away any of the feeling.. It is just plain bullshit and laziness. Personally i wouldn't want to get pregnant so i think the guy should have condoms at his house and i should have them at mine, if we get serious and i need to take birth-control pills we'll both pay for it 50/50 if he wants me to take them (because i'd rather not). Eva Verheij But its the truth the sperm does the work on the eggs the egg sits there and do nothing	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/21	4.762

ironfallout I am not agreeing with the fact that anyone should be paying for anyones contraception. I believe that all contraception should be affordable regardless of gender. With that said: Mens contraception is relatively cheap compared to women's. I have been on birth control since I was 13 because of cysts on my ovaries that could potentially grow and make me infertile, so birth control was prescribed to prevent them growing. At the beginning of every year my first prescription pack is not covered by insurance due to insurance renewal. The price is 92 dollars. for one pack, which happens to be the most generic and therefore least expensive option available. 92 dollars every month if insurance does not cover some of it, which it should since i pay money to them for that very reason. Again i dont agree with federal taxes covering it but something does need to be done, all though i have no idea nor opinions on how to make that happen. It is not that women feel more entitled than men to contraception, it is that the only reliable forms are expensive for us and in many cases are also for our health, not necessarily sex. without affordable birth control available to me i would not be able to have children and would have needed surgery to remove the cysts.	Gender, Sex	Gender - General	2/225	0.889
did i say anything about picking up random guy? if you read my comment and not become some super narrow minded person youll read 'no matter what their policies' meaning i dont care if its a male or female i care about the policies but as you can see in the video assuming your stubborn slf watched it they say that we should just elect a female president? whens the last time a girl other than hillary clinton has ran for presidency or someone with with absurd policies that even most educated girls will agree are stupid? SEE MY POINT NOW, maybe if they started running more and getting more involved with good policies we would elect them. You cant just not run for presidency and when a male comes out as president scream sexism.	Sexism	Gender - General	1/135	0.741

People need to stop disregarding the men’s side of the story. When a man complains about the sexism and discrimination against his sex , us women do not need to downgrade their struggles just to prove that the discrimination towards us is ”better” and more critical than theirs. We are all victims of the discrimination of media. It is true that women are more sexualized than men, but calling men out for complaining that there is not enough representation for the discrimination towards them is the total opposite of what the representation project is trying to achieve. Telling men that they do not have as much problems as us women is making it seem like the discrimination towards men is not important or non-exist, even though it so clearly does exist, and which is just as worse as saying that the discrimination towards women is a myth. Stop telling men that they are ”overreacting” about their problems because that is just as sexist and discriminatory as if the comment was directed towards a woman .	Sex, Sexism, Woman	Gender - General	3/173	1.734
I totally agree, people should just stop telling each other they’re ”overreacting” in general, it’s unfair to say it to a woman and it’s unfair to say it to a man. Men are the subject of sexism just as women are, one of the most painful things is that when a man get’s raped people are not even remotely understanding, women getting raped is collectively seen as bad and we all know that now (even though in that area there can still be some improvement in the department of slutshaming and comments like ”she was asking for it”) but men being raped seems to be a confusing concept for people, if someone doesn’t want to have sex but you push on anyway.. it’s rape, no matter the gender .	Gender, Sex, Sexism, Woman	Gender - General	4/128	3.125
America: ”a guy on tv said something offensive indirectly to women and im so hurt what has this country come to”Saudi Arabia: ”im not allowed to drive, leave the house, show my skin, or speak out against anything”makes you all look a little whiny now doesn’t it :) feminists, before we deal with things like making the words ”bossy, slut, slag , rape, tranny, ect” illegal to say aloud. How about we go deal with sexual oppression, honour rape and ACTUAL misogyny in countries that actually need it. countries where ” patriarchy ” means women legally cannot take a position of power, not shaving armpit double standards. Countries where ” misogyny ” means a man legally raping a women because she didn’t follow her religious practice correctly, not a man saying the word slut.	Misogyny, Patriarchy, Sexual, Slag	Gender - Female sexuality, Gender - General	5/131	3.817
You might want to read a little about rape culture. Those small acts of discrimination you mentioned (calling someone a slut, promoting the shaming of female sexuality) all contribute to it and, without putting a stop to them, our culture could end up being one where rape and sexual violence are even more commonplace.	Sexual	Gender - General	1/54	1.852

asdfboochica are you aware of the definition of the word "intersectional"? You might want to look up intersectional feminism, as you appear to have a very conditioned and narrow view of what feminism actually is. If you think that wanting to prevent a culture in which rape and sexual violence is acceptable is "whining" then you really need to readjust yourself to society.	Sexual	Gender - General	1/63	1.587
So your point is: extreme sexism is the only thing that matters, because there is still extreme sexism you don't have the right to speak out against everyday sexism .If this is how we handled abuse.. It would go something like this: "Oh, your husband punched you in the face? Pfft! That's nothing ! In Saudi Arabia husbands beat their wives till they stop moving, what the hell are you complaining about?" Because that is a totally valid statement.. right?	Nothing, Sexism	Age - Youngsters, Gender - General	4/79	5.063
asdfboochica I'm not a feminist, i'm a humanist.. Fact however is that women are just lower in the social pyramid. But i do think men have to deal with sexism too, a lot even, sexism goes both ways. You are still a scumbag though for making this disgusting comparison.(Also reed Cheeswiz247's last comment, i think in pretty much the same way as that guy, sexism happens to men and women but at the moment it's just still more apparent towards women)	Sexism	Gender - General	3/82	3.659
Eva Verheij When did I say sexism doesn't happen to men? Lmfao! So let me get this straight, any criticism of a woman is sexism ? Oh lord help me!	Sexism, Woman	Gender - General	2/18	11.111
MasterOfTheChainsaw that doesn't hood water because I could ramble about how ugly Hillary Clinton is and how bad she is at her work, but never do it to a man. It doesn't make me sexist because it's not a gender specific attack, it's a person specific attack. It's only sexism when you talk generally about women, which is ironic because men are physically superior to women, which is technically sexist to say but true lol	Gender, Sexism	Gender - General	2/75	2.667
If you only rant about Hillary's looks and no one else's then that doesn't make you a sexist, I agree with that. But sexism is more about how media systematically treats women differently from men. It's when they repeatedly rant about the looks of females but never about males that make it sexist, since it's then no longer a person specific attack but actually a gender specific one.As for your last statement, I wouldn't call that necessarily sexist (if you by "superior" refer to men's typically greater muscular strength, anyway), since it is indeed true. Sexism is when you imply a difference between men and women which is NOT true.	Gender, Sexism	Gender - General	3/111	2.703

MasterOfTheChainsaw I disagree, and I'm right because I'm backed up by the definition of sexism . Unless one attacks a person based on their gender , it is not sexism . Plain and simple. Talking about a woman 's looks is not sexism because it does not bare relevance to the fact that she's a woman . So, I could insult every woman on earth by calling them ugly and comparing them to horses, yet this wouldn't be sexist because their gender was not used against them. & I was talking about all physical activity. Boys of 16 outperform women of Olympic level, Kelly Holme's gold medal victory in the 400m was 4 seconds slower than the qualification to be in the men's 16 year old team lol kinda scary thought right? This is obviously why they separate the genders, women would rarely win anything otherwise, but hey, women can produce life. (amazing obviously) I also here people claiming hitting a woman is sexism . This kind of comment should put people into a mental asylum because it's absurd, unless, you're hitting women because they're women. But saying 'don't hit women' in itself is seXist because you're treating women differently based on their gender ,which contradicts feminism totally proving they want superiority.	Gender, Mental, Old, Sexism, Woman	Age - Over 65s, Gender - General, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	12/205	5.854
Yes, I agree with your definition of sexism , my point is that if a certain news program would consistently judge the looks of women but never men, it's a pretty strong indication that they are doing it BECAUSE THEY ARE WOMEN, which would mean they are specifically targeting people based on their gender , and as such it is sexism .Yeah, sure, men are physically superior in many ways. You could of course argue that there are still some ways women are physically superior, for instance by lacking the immense sensitivity of testicles.Just hitting a woman in itself is not sexist, like you say hitting women because they are women would be sexist, and once again if you find someone who consistently beat up women but never men it's a strong indication that they are doing it for sexist reasons. And of course, saying it's not okay to hit women but it's okay to hit men is also sexist, I agree with that.	Gender, Sexism, Woman	Gender - General	4/163	2.454
There is nothing for feminists to fight for which is of grave weight	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/13	7.692
Marvel Avenger Hm, hard to say how grave weight there is. I mean, in western society there are lots of things which arguably aren't that bad, compared to the third world. Sexism might not be the biggest problem we have, but I'd say it's big enough to be worth fighting for regardless. You don't always have to focus on the absolute worst problems there are.	Sexism	Gender - General	1/65	1.538

'It's now very common to hear people say, 'I'm rather offended by that.' As if that gives them certain rights. It's actually nothing more... than a whine. 'I find that offensive.' Every single fucking time somebody makes a video about misrepresentation of women in the media, a chorus of comments sings,"But men are misrepresented,too! You're just being a biased misandrist!"I'm fucking sick of it.At what point in this video do they say that men aren't misrepresented? At what point do they claim that men aren't oppressed or oversexualized? I realize that men are oversexualized and oppressed in the media, but that doesn't mean that anybody who points out misogyny is automatically biased and sexist towards men.Honestly, I'm very disappointed in my fellow men's rights activists for leaving so much hate in the comments of videos like this.	Misogyny	Gender - General	1/109	0.917
Kylee Killion I think people like myself get frustrated by this kind of talk, because the misrepresentation of women gets blamed entirely on men, which I find a bit silly considering that same " patriarchy " would also have to be responsible for how men are portrayed. The point should be that the media is made up of people who want to sell stuff, be it products, services or an agenda and there isn't some gender based conspiracy against women going on.	Gender, Patriarchy	Gender - General	2/80	2.5
It's because that the women screaming misogyny are far louder.	Misogyny	Gender - General	1/10	10.0
I don't really see how 2:00 is sexist. It really would not be an issue if he was saying the same thing to a man. I think context and perception is important with this sort of thing. Although sexism is a big problem and is still very prevalent within our society, it feels like some people are claiming sexism unnecessarily at times.	Sexism	Gender - General	2/62	3.226
Indeed, but it's in a video entitled " Sexism in News Media". It's condescending, but not necessarily sexist. The greater context is missing.	Sexism	Gender - General	1/22	4.545

men and women are different....why can't people understand it? women are no better than men and men are no better than women. they are equal being human beings..... with that being said, there are some things that women can do that men can't...visa versa.... if a woman say "men can't breast feed a child!!"...is this sexist comment?? men got no boobs(if you do...don't mean to offend you)....stating a fact is not sexist.... I actually hear or observe sexism against men more so than women...if you listen carefully to women's conversations you often hear "stupid/dumb men" or "retarded" when they talk about men...but men don't raise issues...why?...because we just don't care and we can take a joke....we are happy as long as we get laid...this is not sexist because.....you know this is true ;) [I know my comment was a little off topic...but i wanted to set my position as I'm just so sick and tired of these people complaining....FYI, I have no clue how I got to this video....]	Sexism, Woman	Gender - General	2/169	1.183
I dont know if I'm more disappointed in the fact that this has to be spelled out in a video for people to understand or about how ignorant the people in the comments are. Which are mostly men. You guys are kidding me right? So this is your thing, you just compile a bunch of clips, all of the mean things said to women that you could find, from all of politics on the entire Internet. You take them all out of context, so it's just one line of something someone says. Then mix in some tabloid covers, some bitchy tweets from some random columnist, and a few headlines from, uh, just some random dude's blog. Is that it really, this is your big YouTube campaign? Then, you just throw in any mention of appearance whether it's about a female politician or female journalist, whether it's positive or negative. That's not allowed either? None of it? Wow. Well hey, you know what, I'll let you in on something. Everyone in the public eye, man, woman, or teenage pop-star, is continuously scrutinized on their appearance. They haven't stopped talking about President Obama's looks since the start. "Handsome black man from Chicago" raised no protest, well that's a nice thing to say. How about now though? Is it a problem when the discussion is "He has aged quite a bit since he first took office." Um, yeah. Ha! Duh guys, of course he has. The guy has the most stressful job on the planet doesn't he? But what else do you expect living life under a spotlight? So, seriously is that an issue? No? But saying Hillary is starting to look like Madeline Albright is some crime against all of womankind? Hillary can't take that punch, that's what you're saying? Albright isn't even that much older than Hillary and she was the same age when she was the Secretary of State, but, like any of that even matters. These people are going to say whatever they want. Freedom of speech, remember? Also, some of them are obviously joking. I'm not saying it's funny, but it's obviously not serious. You do have the option to laugh that one off. But instead of showing indifference, or better yet strength, we'll just cry. Point and say sexist because you can. Because nobody in the very same media you're whining about is even bold enough to question if it's a fair accusation. What about when all they wanted to do was bash on Governor Chris Christie about his weight? I couldn't believe it, that shit cracked me up. They just kept saying over and over again, half pretending to be concerned, 'Oh well he's much too fat to be president, you don't want him to having a heart attack in the oval office." They even got some quack doctor to make a public statement like 'My professional diagnosis is he's, extremely fat. Oh yes indeed, superduper fat gone any day now I'm afraid.' Haha! Give me a fuckin break! Yeah, he is a big fat guy! Hahahaha. His mom is Sicilian for Christ sake the doctors need one of those BMI charts adjusted for all that dope ass Italian food. That's 'God's Kitchen' man. He's probably barely over par for Sicilians. Anyway, who, the fuck, cares? He isn't dangerous fat. Come on, he's regular old Santa Clause fat! But that's the whole point. He's fine. It was never even about the weight. They just don't like his politics and they're attacking aspects of his character because it's easier and it works. That's just the way that whole stupid game is played. So please stop this thing you're doing, recognize this distraction kindergarten nonsense news for what it really is, and for the love of God would you please make something that resembles a coherent political argument. i think it carries over in both ways. guys go to gym so much more often after people like Arnold Schwarzenegger, The Rock, Vin Diesel, Chris Hemsworth and etc came out with their six packs and big body which makes everyone goes crazy and guys go "I should be like that because a lot of girls are crazy about that" ( I wouldn't say all girls, that would be a huge accusation- but a lot sounds totally correct). But, talking about being carried over into real life, it is psychological effect that media has on everyone not only male or female, unless you can say that female watches more media entertainment than male. It is just a traditional role that has been taken by female are weaker and more feminine, but it takes time to push feminism in the world after all not everyone like changes even though it is a good change. But in the mean time, certain females should stop misusing the word equality and feminism at the wrong occasion.Females are not FORCED TO TAKE OFF clothes, it is a choice, you can choose to sign contract with the movie or not. if females can be forced to do that, the world would be chaotic although i believe sometimes there is "under the table" agreement but still it does not happen now. Notinterestedinyou for sure I would actually say it's more catered towards men. Giving up a child is deeply emotionally scarring for a woman . They grow very attached by what we call the maternal instinct. So, a man has a right to become a firefighter...so do you. But, why the hell would I want your small frame trying to carry my large frame? A man does the job better in nearly every circumstance—women should aim for fairness and forget equality. You're not equal to men, and never will be, and vice versa is true as well. You're talking about femretards. Feminists just believe that women and men should be treated fairly to one another—on both sides. A true feminist would defend a man's right to get custody of his children as much as a woman's. People should be measured by their character—not by their sexual organs. That includes unprotected sex with strangers, and always seeking new sexual encounters constantly. Sluts are a problem, not a badge of honor.
