Chinese students fighting racism in America! Because they wouldn't dare to raise their heads up in China. In China, foreigners are considered second class citizens, and they got a lot fewer rights than native Chinese.... So, they are asking not to be treated the way they treat foreigners in China!!! And they speak up subjects they wouldn't dare to even mention in China. That's all... It would be better if BBC would make research before releasing a propaganda spot. The term 'Chinese' itself is racist . The region people now are forced to call 'China' is really many separate nations and people from different ethnicities. It was the last 100 years or so of racists regimes that forced all these different ethnic groups to forget their roots and forced them to be under the monolithic shell of 'China' 'Chinese'. People should fight against being 'Chinese' if they really want to get rid of racism .	Ethnic, Racism, Racist	Ethnicity - General	3/74	4.054

While I am against racism in all forms against all people, China itself is the most racist country on Earth. Even China's name in Chinese Zhonghou which is often translated as "Middle Kingdom" means a bit more than that: it means the country at the center of the world. They believe, even the "communist" that China is still the center of the world. And China has a police of Hanism, which Mao Zedong was actually against, that believes Han people and culture are the best. China is putting into that idea into action against other Chinese ethnic groups, the Uygur being the best example but it can be seen in other groups as well. China is also HIGHLY, I had to capitalize, racist against Africans instead of being open to them and other historically maligned groups and refugees. They even have separate Chinese and African bathrooms and Chinese only restaurants IN AFRICA, sorry again for capitalizing. I could go on and on but look it up yourself and see for yourself. :)Just wait though, the replies will be full of Chinese 50cent army(a network of Chinese trolls paid by the government of China the equivalent of 50cents for every pro-China post) saying that US or Europe is racist for what it did in the past. The key word is past unlike China who is doing it today and who denies it even happens when there is overwhelming evidence unlike the US and Europe who acknowledge it. :)	African, Communist, Ethnic, Racism, Racist	Ideological and Political Identity - General, Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	7/248	2.823

As you know the definition of ill gotten gains; the only way China could further effect the wound from the repeated backstabs is too declare war on the U.S./Britain/Canada decimating themselves instantly without full sickle support. Don't know much about Thailand, Vietnam etc yet and don't hate anyone have a laugh; its funny too hear a Japanese guy talk shit about a Chinese guy & vise versa. Chinese people are some of the most racist people on the planet. They will never accept non-chinese as one of them and they will always take the side of the Chinese in a dispute. Little did I know how racist the Chinese are, until I encountered a Chinese racist , it was a brutal experience and this happened in Europe. It should be more than obvious that the increasing anti-asian racism is connected to the rise of china, but also generally to the fact that (american-)asians are way too successful. You can't escape racism by only working hard, you have to find your place in the racial hierarchy far enough below white people in order not to appear as a threat and be accepted as useful. I am a 60 yr old born-again christian, black female. It is 2019 and we STILL HAVE NOT CONQUERED RACISM . I tell you, I am just so tired of this ' RACE ' stuff. None of us filled out an application before we came here. We did not choose our race , dad and mom, or what language, culture we would be born in. Why should anyone apologize for their race or made to feel ugly and/or unaccepted due to their race . Things like being loud, rude, obnoxious, mean, and hateful are the things to apologize for but NOT THE COLOR OF OUR SKIN (...you were born the WRONG color)...SAYS WHO??? GOD made us the race HE wanted us to be ((HE loves variety)). Why did not get a chance to pick & choose our RACE . As long as SINFUL MANKIND is on this earth, RACISM is something we will have to deal with us JESUS return. Come quickly, LORD JESUS :(... There is nothing wrong with racial pride but when you feel that you are BETTER or should have more PRIVILEGE or feel SUPERIOR over another racethen....YOU ARE WRONG!!!! 8/15/2019. They travel overseas not to experience new culture or people or places, they travel overseas so that they can take photos and show off to their friends.If you go china, say you r there to see your gf family, they will say chinese culture this chinese culture that, do this , do that but when they come to overseas they do not even want to respect others or even care about other people's cultures. Hypocrites, How can the Chinese complain of racism in the states, when they treat non Asians with such racism in China. If you really want to make changes equally make changes back in China. Stop generalizing non Chinese as foreigner, as if no other culture but Chinese culture matters, stop shouting Hallow at peoples backs in the street. Stop creating segregated housing, saying black foreigners can't rent here, but white foreigners can, or foreigners not allowed to this area because of military racially profiling as a group of Korean friend that went first are allowed to enter. Before addressing U.S. issues it would be great if you could make social change and reform in your own home country. Since non-Chinese are not allowed a voice in China. Think, Do you think its fair a Chinese can become an American but a American can't Become Chinese. The policies and social construction of China is far more racist then that of the U.S. even though the U.S. is extreme in its own racial issues, take this as a learning situation back home to make changes please let people know its not ok to label people as foreign or Chinese each person has their own culture, language and way of life, skin color should not determine how much a person gets paid ect. ect. you just had a name removed life as a non Asian in China is far more traumatizing then what you went through. For me growing up in a poor black area, internalised racism is black children enacting gangster culture. The media overwhelmingly paints black people in negative ways and these children come to internalise these images, and it becomes part of their identity formation. Studious black people?? Hardly ever seen, so these kids become disengaged from education and are more interested in being a gangster because to them that is cool. That is expected. Humans are mostly conformist, just look at conformity experiments here on Youtube, you can have people stand up when a bell rings in a doctors office just because others are seen doing it repeatedly. I KNOW Of this form of racism BECAUSE I LIVED THIS. I went to a majority black school and was educated in this rebellious lifestyle. The people around me aspired to be cool, they thought they were rebelling against a system that wasn't for them, but hey were only eleven, so I doubt they had a true understanding of what this meant, only that they should be lawless in order to rebel (they sometimes expressed this vocally). Having a competitive personality I was keen to impress my peers. It did not matter what was to be sought after, had the school culture been to strive for high achievement, I would have strived. That was not the culture, so the school was extremely bad, each of us trying to act as cool as possible. Oh you are going to skip class! Oh My God, you are soooo cool! They looked up to me and I was popular. Black children who wanted to work hard were absolutely ridiculed and bullied, I was certainly not going to be seem in that light! unfavourably! I realised it was a trap when my sister's year left the school and were still hanging out on the street. I wondered where their life would go? Was shocked and felt set-up. It was like smoke and mirrors that lead to no where. So I woke up and completed five years of work in one year to ensure I could pass school and get into college. I went to college and found the joy of learning - I got all A's. I was sad about all the years I COULD HAVE BEEN LEARNING, I am still sad up to this day! I went to university and now, existing in this world, I no longer feel empowered, I did as a rebellious youth, subscribing to that I felt alive! During this time I believed I lived in a post-racist society. Now I work in spaces where I am judged, looked down on etc. Without anyone having even spoken to me yet. It is one of the most draining and depressing experiences! It is the biggest system of oppression facing black people right now and it is one that has them killing each other or ended up incarcerated. So black people are not free if they internalise a culture that will have them locked up. They are still lynched if they are being killed, even if it is by someone that looks just like them. it is quite a genius system tbh, ruthless and insidious, but of course the most evil thing that exists to keep a people down! Studying Psychology and understanding how we come to see ourselves and others come to see us, it fascinates me that this is the case. I have no doubt that this system has been designed intentionally, and you only feel the oppression of it when you do not enact it, when you uphold it you feel empowered, probably how white people feel on a day to day basis carrying out their norms. I feel more respected on gym days in a tracksuit than on work days in a suit. I am being unauthentic, not operating in my

The BBC are unbelievable. The Chinese, forgive my generalization, are one of the most racist ethnic groups and nationalities in the world. I have been living in China for 5 years, and everyday I take a moment to relax myself before going outside because I need to prepare to endure a barrage of abuse from people laughing directly into my face, trying to walk into me deliberately, and thats on a good day if im not being extorted. Please see through the face game. If you say even something innocuous they take objection to, there will be all hell to pay, but they will come to your country and start forcing demands on you. Wise up. There is a big difference between indiscriminate racism and necessary probabilistic generalizations which are usually true.	Ethnic, Racism, Racist	Ethnicity - General	3/132	2.273

I just realized that I was a victim of passive racism for the last 10 years of my life without even knowing it. I always said that Canadian people are not racists but the trick is that I did not know what is racism exactly ! Racism is not only when somebody punches you in the face or insults you ! Racism is also when you leave comments on YouTube and 99 of the time you do not get any likes or answers, and when you come back you find 100 people who left comments after you having 100s of likes and comments ! People ignoring is racism too ! When nobody calls you if you do not call them it is racism too ! I had 20 contacts on my phone and Viber and I always had conversations with them, then I got the idea to check the discussion history and I found out I was always the one who started the conversations, so I decided to make my experiment and stop sending messages first...1 years after only 1 of the contacts sent me a lazy "hey" ! This is racism ! Especially when you go on Facebook and you find out they were contacting each others and hanging out together without you ! Canada is so racist , but coward racist not like french, french people are openly racists. Chinese people are the most racist people on this planet, my people also. China, tired of being disrespected? Then stop sticking to yourselves wherever you go and start assimilating. Learn the new culture and language. Learn to act, think and dress like the people around you. Learn to treat others with the appropriate manner and respect the way we western people do. Pay your taxes to the full; live an honest life (cuz we know when you hide your cash income in the holes you burrowed in your back yard). Humble yourselves and stop acting like China is the most superior country in the world. Contribute to the community of all people, not only to yourselves. I do not fully agree with you. As a Canadian Chinese, I think we should try to learn about the new culture but we shouldn't assimilate ourselves with it. And i don't think you actually read or fully understood the essence of the humble oriental culture, but instead praising the western culture as if it is your root. China is indeed progressing, but you should read some news and actually go the country before you make any comments about its sincerity and the degree of its contribution. I like Koreans just like how the other races are as we all equal, and I agree with your idea that people should contribute to the society. That is the Canadian Value, as well as what we should be. Take a good look at your own racism of others especially BLACK People. Your race are no better than the Europeans who have wiped out their own and still are wiping out others. Guys, this immature, childish behaviour is just adding hate on hate, and we don't need that, especially in today's world. We have to work to build each other up, and NOT tear each other down. Just because some Chinese are racist , don't mean the whole group is that. This type of generalisation is a form of racism too, FYI. We all have a right to stand up for ourselves, as I'm doing now, as these Chinese students are doing. As long as its peaceful, harmonious and not being mean or rude. I'm not trying to defend the Chinese, or a particular group of people, I mean to say that for all of us on this earth, whether your Chinese, African, Indian or other nations/races. There is racism everywhere, not just in China or America, and each of our role is to stand up for what we believe in, in a ethically correct way, and disarming the hate, poverty and bad stuff that goes round, not adding fuel to fire. this breaks my heart SO MUCH because i resonate with them as well and because i am chinese too (cantonese to be specific). my name in pinyin is a bit different than mandarin pinyin because we speak a different form of chinese, so our names are spelled differently. My chinese name is wen bao xing. wen is my family last name and bao means precious and xing means gentle, warm, and kind. And the fact that growing up, american kids would always ask me what my chinese name was right after they would ask me (all the time) what my ethnicity was so id tell them. Right after, they would instantly ridicule my name and proceed to make horrible and racist "chinese accents" to say my name and say ching chang chong. I felt so insulted, hurt, and completely disregarded and discriminated. Like my own culture and ethnic background is a complete joke to them. It was like MY OWN RACE AND ETHNIC CULTURE IS A COMPLETE JOKE OF EXISTENCE. LIKE THE BIRTH OF MY OWN RACE IS A JOKE AND MEANT TO BE ONE FOR EVERY OTHER RACE TO BASH ON AND MAKE FUN OF. We all suffered extremely serious racist abuse behaviour and even physical violence by Chinese people in China: far more serious than anything described in this video. Serious physical assaults, threats, disapproving stares for those of us that had local girlfriends or boyfriends, refused in housing and house shares, ripped off and getting robbed were daily occurrences for us. Local people often refused to sit next to us on public transport, share elevators or gym equipment with us. Foreign females, particularly those of European descent suffered serious sexual assaults. genericusername555 Chinese people have their own cultural environment which is very different from others. What you get used to alot in the past has little influences in China, the local people are neither know much about that nor do they care about foreigners' special needs. You said that the money thing is all about the government and has nothing to do with what you're trying to say, well so is the dorm thing. There are many Chinese local students disagree with this separated policies but there are not much things they can do, do you think they have more choices than you? For busy hours everyone get pushed, even children who unfortunately take on some extremely crowded subways, if they don't push, they'll get late at work, it's nothing personal. Racism is nothing but an excuse that people have used to justify their actions. And it sucks. But what is the alternative to forgiveness? Hate. Do you want more hatred in the world? Do you want to be one of the people you so despise? You speak of a creator... Do you want to stand next in line to those people when judgement comes? I hope not. Black and Abroad in Asia for the last 400+ years the people who built this country for free have been getting more than just named called. They have been burned alive and hung hourly. No Asian ever came out to protest in their favor. Instead the are proud to discard their native names and revert to themselves as kathy and Michelle. While blacks fought and died to get rid of miscegenation laws they still stood on the sidelines and waited until the dust settled to finally have an opportunity to Maryy Dave and chad only because the black civil rights movement prevailed . Furthermore, chocolate people continue to march in the streets protesting unarmed killings of chocolate people, and no where in those protest do you see Asian people helping. Maybe a few lynchings and live burnings will wake these people up. Sadly, I predict they will still shun their history, their names, and purchase blue contacts because they have a deep desire to be, and be with these same people who do these disgusting acts. But when it comes to them, they are furious e.g D&G case, Virgin airlines case.(white worship) and want their rights without going back. 3) They will also try to reason it out saying their racist behavior is for their protection against black as they have a reputation of crime or 4) in ancient china it was believed that black skin is a sign of working in the fields so in 2019 it still means every darker skin person is a poor farmer LOLZ!!! Also that means farmers are ugly dirty and should be avoided!!! If all fails its 5) "you guys don't know the depth and value of our culture so u wont understand" when cross countered with.... Sixian Tan Well, I'm a Singaporean so we wouldn't have such problem haha. Singapore is a diverse country with the population consist of ethnic Chinese, Indian and Malay plus some Eurasian, so we embraces English based education system. But Singaporean Chinese today are a totally separate group from the Chinese with a separate society and culture. Just like Malaysian Chinese. In fact, we don't even considered ourselves as "overseas" Chinese, we're regards as the local people in our own countries. To us Singapore is our only homeland and Malaysia for the Malaysian Chinese. Sixian Tan Yeah, there are a lot of PRC in Singapore too and they've communication problem with the locals because they don't speak English. They have this perception that since majority of the Singaporean are ethnically Chinese so they don't have to learn English. But then they encountered a lot of awkward situations and problems here. It seems that they aren't very clear about the circumstance and cultures in Singapore. I can say that Singaporean Chinese is a distinctive group of their own with a separate society and culture from the other Chinese. We share more common with Malaysian Chinese but even so there are still differences between our cultures. All people have racism inside of them..it is just that some people have learned to hide those behaviors and thoughts better than others. The fact that you target only international students from a particular ethnicity is a sign of prejudice. There is racism in every country, but sometimes when people stare at dark-skinned people, it is because they think they are beautiful—it is not always for a negative reason. How do you know the remarks they make in their mother-tongue, when you probably do not speak their language? Or is this rumor you are repeating?	Racism	Ethnicity - General	2/95	2.105

Bailei Hust gotta understand where theyre coming from. Most have probably never seen a black person in their life. The black people they have seen are from western media: heavily stereotyped roles where you guys are portrayed as thugs and criminals. Also, keep in mind they have a general distrust of outsiders. And don't forget the classist implications of skin color in china- this is a country where people have just begun to get rich and money is the difference between two worlds. The geographic wealth gap is huge, and the poorer people in the countryside have darker skin. Yes, I know it's racist , but it doesn't mean Chinese culture and people are inherently bad. It's human nature to keep to ones 'own' group UNLESS they have been taught otherwise. They are coming from a place of ignorance. Give them time, willing activists, and good policy, they will change for the better like the rest of the world did. So they keep insisting to the others like to the USA government and also to the AU government etc etc.. with very very derogatory comments like calling me as Phillipino maids, or they insulted me for having multiple plastic surgeries, until I have fairer skin than them. While I never have those procedures to make me more beautiful than the chinese. They also keep attacking me, like I have to obey them, they said if I indeed have that chinese ancestries, then I have to accept any chinese guys as my spouse, even the bad ones, the unwanted ones by them. Also, they to the Japanese, they lied that I am korean, or phillipinos, etc. But behind the Japanese, they mistreat me somekind like a slave, by calling me deserve to be treated bad due to I am Japanese, or American. On the other occassions, they insult me that because I am American in ethnicities origins, then they would send false reports to the USA government to reject me and to deny me. I really didn't want to step in this shithole comment section, but the difference is Asian Countries , especially China is a civilization state, and western countries are nation state ran by different group of people. The mentality is different . because a civilization state focus on ideologies and common values, while the Caucasian countries tend to catagorize people by blood tie and genetics. in short Asians are mostly not accustomed the race way of thinking ,so we are not racists , except for india . where racism is structured and sustained , whether this was implanted by indian culture or religions , it's domestic problem for india. But western countries try to sell race concept, and want Asian countries to join, then beat them in their game. this is stupid. there is no solution , as its not severe enough to start a war in peaceful era. But ever if there will be one targeting Asians same as against Jews, that will be the very moment to reshape this sick world . as Asian countries moving up to lead the world in many fields including military, having so much population and with entity and a certain level of solidarity , the ending will be quite more optimistic than the Jews' . Chinese themselves (or at least their government (we're talking about PRC ofcourse) are racist toward Minorities lets say Its highly known how China treat Hui and Uyghur badly just because the Minorities are Muslims , even going far as to forbid Muslims to conduct fasting or forcing people to eat pork and drink alcoholic beveragesMaybe its majority arrogance syndrome problem But here in Indonesia even if Chinese Indonesians are only minorities they got nerve saying Javanese cultures or Sundanese cultures as uncool, or old kind of junk or random unworthy villager's cultureIf you live and understand Bahasa Indonesia you would hear alot like "gueh tuh lebih sukak yak makanan tradisional" (translated: I alot more into international food definitely) or "gueh tuh ilfil pake batik kayak mau kondangan" (I'm definitely not going to wear Batik, cause it looks like Im going to a wedding) or "apaan gamelan ning nong ning gak jelas" (what the heck with Gamelan, ning nong ning nong randomly , so weird) Especially those Chinese Indonesians who live in the capital city jakarta and the surrounding areas of bodetabek (bogor+depok+tangerang+bekasi) While I think other Chinese Indonesians in other cities are much appropriate than those of obsnoxious ones of jakartaAnd they tend to exclusify themselves with their par wealthy Chinese IndonesiansIf you wondering why there are lot of Chinese Indonesians much wealthy than Pribumi thats because our the then president suharto (who some say he's of a chinese descent) give lots of financial supports and money to chinese Indonesian, he make chinese as a trader and industrial officer, while forcing Pribumi to take governmental jobsSome Chinese Indonesians would say how suharto "force" Chinese Indonesian to have Javanese and Muslim names are a symbol of racism , but on the other hand it was not an act of racism It is indeed an act of scheme by suharto to make Javanese looked bad among the other Pribumi, cause all industrialization at that time was only at Java with Javanese named chinese Indonesians who own themAnd those Chinese Indonesians who had Javanese and Muslim names actually is a tool to disguise themselves as Pribumi descendants , so it would ease them on gaining land and more fortune You could see even tho suharto reign is over long ago, there are so many Chinese Indonesians who are non Muslim and not Javanese choosing Javanese and Muslim names	Old, Racism, Racist, Weird	Age - Over 65s, Ethnicity - General, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	5/401	1.247

We aren't racist to them without a reason, especially when they're literally the ones responsible for robbing our grocery stores and jewelery shops 80 percent of the time. SelenaBEST This is true, but what you don't realize is that if you were in a situation with Black people, or any other type of race that's notorious for crime and murder, you wouldn't go near them as well. I know that not all Black people are bandits or criminals, but it's still difficult to approach them because of their reputation. It isn't really our fault for being cautious of Black people. For example, imagine you were on a train with a somewhat mental person. Now this person starts making all kinds of bizarre noises and crazy movements. While he may be harmless, you still wouldn't approach him/her. We all know that not all mental people are harmful or dangerous, but there's always that uncertainty. So you can't really blame us for being racist towards Blacks. Their reputation for crime causes uncertainty. This is our perspective. Lin Andy I agree, most black neighborhoods are dangerous to live in, but wasn't it the whites that put us there in the first place? Wasn't the media that was showing that black people are robbers, crime, and stealers? Were you ever in a situation where you saw a black person doing a crime instead of hearing it in the media? Americans don't like the Chinese because of what the Chinese are and Americans are not - The Chinese have a high mean iQ, they are very industrious, they have strong family values and an overriding Confucian value system, they have a fantastic education system, they have an ancient and wonderful culture, most of their students speak more than one language, they are entrepreneurial and innovative, they have a morality (i.e. the women are for the most part not sluts) and finally they have a code of social conduct. It's interesting to hear people fighting on here as to whether China or western white majority states are more racist . Their name tags were ripped down... and this seriously counts as something which should be shown in international media??? I went to study in China at Beijing Language and Culture University (now called) in the 90's. Chinese people would try to cheat western students at every opportunity, even national regulations mandated that we had to pay more simply to visit tourist sites. Some of the swimming pools wouldn't let you in unless you were Chinese, or at least Asian. When walking along a street in Wangfujing with a female Chinese classmate, the local vendors angrily asked her "why she didn't like Chinese people". So if Chinese students honestly want to fight racism , the best place to start is right in their home country.	Racism	Ethnicity - General	1/123	0.813

However, those Chinese students made this video because the people around them in college are doing things to them and their culture in a hurtful way. While it is a huge problem to have our info blocked in China, I am sure that is something that people do not want but we cannot do anything about it. Me, too. I was adopted from China when I was a year old and now live in the US in an area where there is some diversity, but everyone is mostly white. I've heard stories about how some adoptees from a foreign country like China feel like they don't fit in because of their race . For me, I feel proud for being different. No one where I live treats me differently because my race . I am so lucky to live in a place where people are so accepting.	Old, Race	Age - Over 65s, Ethnicity - General	3/88	3.409

I took it granted as one of the culture China has since they have also same attitude towards Chinese people. But from what I felt by living in the western society, I used to be the object to racial comments or racial behavior by some white or black people(not everyone obviously) just because I am Asian. AMAZING VIDEOS 1. the link you gave me talked mainly about white skin, which is irrelevant to Caucasian race . Whiter skin tone has been one of the beauty standards since thousands years ago. The editor of that video intentionally put it in a video about "white people" to mislead westerners who do not know much about history. 2. also in the link, the translations were wrong, which many comments have pointed them out, if you bother to read them at all.3. According to stats, most East Asian females in US marry East Asian males. The older generation (NOT ALL, and I don't like those racist older generation) tends to pressure their daughters to date East Asians only. I personally know many examples. 4. Most Chinese companies are merit-based, that's how they grow so fast. Race is irrelevant, unless they want to show people that they are tolerant, so they might hire a white or black guy to show the diversity. Guangzhou is different because there are way too many black people, so diversity quota won't consider them. 5. Don't reflect your own inferiority complex onto other people. [LINK] 2003 Report doesnt seem to agree with your imaginary logic of public regulation. but well well so typical i should have known.... neways yet with this rule most of the hotels dont take foreigners. Amlan Das 2003...it's 2018. And drug problems and other illegal activities caused by foreigners are true. You didn't argue with these I suppose you can't deny. To answer that question why same Chain hotels have different policy on accepting foreigner guests, here are the possibilities:1. The hotel doesn't want to go through the regulation registration works with local police and foreigner affair department. 2. Local security department has special arrangements for them. 3. At the moment for some reason they don't want to work with foreigners. This happens all over the world. Maybe they had bad experiences with foreigners due to difficulties of communication or customs or whatever. None of these related with racism. The sarcastic thing is, in China most people are complaining about Chinese are too nice to foreigners, and the visa policy is too easy so the amount of disrespectful behaviors and comments, even criminal activities from foreigners are continually increasing. In the future, I hope we will have more strict regulations like the Japanese do.	Racism	Ethnicity - General	1/169	0.592

Lolz here goes your visa policy argumentVISA is easy? in 2017 the china Labour Bureau started new rules which allowed having replacing normal work permits with cards stating foreigners can use these cards most of the places to book flights to get quick boarding passes check in most hotels. Guess what nothing has changed only the process got lengthier and complicated. I am not complaining against the rules. As an expat I am happy to abide by them as a part of responsibility.... China is very friendly to foreigners.... kind of right they are friendly to fairer skin and unfriendly and to darker skin and THAT is racist. Many fairer skin westerners school dropouts who have got teaching jobs in schools all over china, while darker skin foreigners native speakers have been rejected from numerous schools even with a legit teaching degree... And there are number of day to day incidents that are just a google search away [LINK] Finally about hotels.... hotel businesses is an extremely professional business. no place for personal feelings. Hotels and airlines are trained to have these kind of situations and customers, this is a regular part of their business. And even chinese hotels see a lot of rude chinese customers who they really regret to have....guess what many chinese only hotels are regularly raided by civil dressed authorities to check on illegal activities including drugs usage and prostitution.... much less than in hotels that foreigners can stay . Finally check online how rude chinese tourists behave in foreign countries.... throwing noodles on air hostesses face pooping in the aircraft.... peeing in elevator ... gorging and wasting food in hotels.... the airlines or hotels did they stop giving chinese people service despite their bad experiences and unwillingness ??? they still continue right?? There is no personal feelings in professional businesses as u stated "they had bad experience with foreigners" LOLZ I wish someday the foreign airlines/hotels do the same. And what is a 2003 rule hanging in without any updates? if its not available its not there ... Amlan Das don't know how mush hatred you have towards Chinese people but well. Lets talk about this. All I'm talking about just facts, no matter how many references you are citing if it's not relevant it didn't makes you right. 1. What does Number of the experts in the country to do with the increasing numbers of problems that's experts caused? The only relevant data is the increasing number of the population of the experts. [LINK] 2. Visa. How many foreigners arrived with tourist visa and get student visa and stays in China for a loooooong period of time making money in all kinds of jobs especially English schools even if they aren't native speakers? How easy for them to go to the best universities it is ridiculous. They can do whatever they want without the resident permit and switch visa types inside the county. As I know not so many courtiers allow that in the world. 3.Hotel. Not gonna say much because what you saying is what hotels should be and in reality in most countries that is not what hotels are really like all over the would. 4. 2003 means your data is from 2003. 5. Chinese tourists? I can write an essay about this issue but Maybe just read this. [LINK] 6. Don't go down to the color topic. Too many countries got too much to be discussed. China would come the last. Stop projecting. 7.I'm also tired of this argument, but I kinda have to reply you because for you it's just randomly saying whatever you want to say about others without any consequences but for me it's my duty of citizen to speak up for my nation. I'm a Chinese citizen I studied and lived in counties in Asia, America and Europe and Africa, worked in tourism industry and married a foreigner who lived in China for yrs. I'm wondering how long have you been to China and how much do you know about China and other countries to say China is the most racist country? I guess not much because you dislike China so much you won't try to understand more about the it.	Nation, Racist	Ethnicity - General, Nationality - General	2/361	0.554

I have been in China for nearly a decade and I have been studied/worked all over the world including other asian countries, european countries and the US.... and me myself am with a Chinese , and I do have tons of great chinese friends and definitely one size fits all doesnt work. I do deeply love the country and continuously learning about the history and culture and have respect for that and the many chinese people who do truly follow that . So before you know me I would request STOP judging and making assumptions. But I guess you do not know (or not clear or updated with the facts) Talking for your own citizen and speak up for nation ??? Surely u r doing it pretty well ... nothing wrong in it . but u missed the whole point (not surprising) is about being biased/unbiased. I stand up for my own country as well but i would’nt blindly try to cover some of the real life issues it has . And THATs what you are doing I come from a heavy populated country. And my parents didnt travel so much as I do. nothing u show on the report gives a justification for pooping and peeing in the airplane or throwing hot noodles at an air hostess’s face... this is just that SIMPLE: rude behavior and as far as I know the Chinese culture, politeness is said to be a virtue and a character of the wise.... Guess guys forgot their own culture. Also everyone has a first time When young people in our country travel usually we are taught to ”adjust” and ”not do whatever I like” and i have seen the similar kind of upbringing in other countries as well. Your report says Chinese people in large numbers got exposed to foreign countries recently so they dont know how to behave.... And you complain foreigners in China doing what they want??? For a record never heard an Expat peeing in the aircraft or throwing noodles at an air hostess face in china.... switching visa in the country.... without leaving? where did u get this wonderful information my friend? or is it another of your walk down imagination lane ? those who come with a tourist visa/business visa/family visa and want to change their visa to a period longer than their intended stay HAS to do that EXITING the country and coming back and doing the FULL formality. Many do that by going back and forth hongkong. As per current rules a Z visa is allowed on arrival ONLY if the person has already been hired by a legal company in China and has all necessary documentation required by the Govt to give him a Z visa and Z visa is not a Work permit Those who do part time jobs while being on tourist and student visa are doing that ILLEGALLY those who are overstaying and living without a valid visa are ILLEGAL RESIDENTS.... And lets not dive into the Illegal immigrants in other countries.... So your country is no ”easier” than other countries about visa. The process is much complicated than in other countries and yet has way lesser benefits for a legal expat.... also a worse quality of life that is what the link i sent u before where China ranked 41... dont understand what u wanna prove by giving back the same link focusing only about China.... The numbers and facts DONT change.... China Ranks 41 way behind other asian countries like japan taiwan singapore and this comparison is done based on parameters of expat life - numbers dont change.Next the hotel issue , travelling, cycling and hiking through different countries I	African, Blind, Nation, Nothing, Racist	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General, Nationality - General, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	8/1052	0.76

Amlan Das I'm confused. What's your point again? You started with backing up this comment about "Chinese is the most racist group". So do you think Chinese is the most racist group or not? yes you are confused and you are reading selective parts only to support your point of view and taking it personal and biased to you background. thats not intended ... i answered the comment posted by another person "where are foreigners not allowed" and then u drag into other things.... I never mentioned one word saying chinese is the most racist . I put up the incident of african american teachers who being eligible still doesnt get job because of skin color preference and that IS RACIST . Showing appreciation does that mean i have to agree with everything that is unjust? Showing respect doesnt mean I need to keep my quiet and let anyone show their racial biased behavior on me!!! then why are these students putting up a video on youtube for and why r u commenting on it !!!!! then they should also just "show appreciation" to the country that allows them to live and study....I have no intentions to "reform" but i have the right to speak experiences and facts. Hell, give him somebody to look down on, and he'll empty his pockets for you." Actually, I'm talking about Confucian influence across the sino-sphere, including all east Asian countries. It promotes good work ethics and family value, but very totalitarian. You probably do not know much about Japan and Taiwan, please learn the history of their politics and economy. I don't like Confucianism, and there are plenty of other great philosophers in ancient China, but it's sad people don't pay much attention to them. When you refuse to really communicate with people or understand the rationale behind their behaviors, you are basically deaf to their voices. You are contradicting yourself by saying "China has lost its culture" and "Mian Zi" as a culture element still remains. And that is preciously the point, they whine about racism just because some unknown stupid kid decided to take down their name tag to play a prank on them. And they just couldn't get over it. Meanwhile in China, foreigners are still not allowed to truly stay in the country, forever stuck on temporary visas with no promise that it will be renewed next time. Doesn't matter how well you speak and write Chinese (better than these students' English), how much tax you pay or how much time and money you have invested in the country, you will never legally become a part of it.But apparently I am mistaken because "China is not an immigration country" is the recurring argument they use to justify their own systemic exclusion of non-Chinese. Saying "China is not an immigration country" is the same as saying "We don't want non-Chinese" but apparently it isn't racist because they are not White.How many Chinese have immigrated to the West in the last 20 years? Those people who keep complaining China not taking refugees should really check world news more often: thousands of Burmese or North Korean refugees cross the Chinese borders once domestic wars or famine occur. They will stay and most of them will become Chinese citizens. In a single city in Southern China, more than 200 thousand african business people or students live there and all these happened in the last decade. Refugees rush to Europe because it is geographical closer for them to reach and European countries are generally more peaceful place for them to stay.	African	Ethnicity - Black	1/95	1.053

This is what my black friend just said about his experience in China: At the time, that major also offered a chance to go to China for two years and I thought it would be awesome to go there, a new experience. I preferred it there because I made some friends there, had great experiences there. I enjoy some of the foods there, like and apart from the pollution in Beijing and some other cities, the weather is much better than in London. And also, I feel that it's much safer there. In all the cities I have been, I can walk around at night in any area without any incidents. Here I have to watch out sometimes. People there seem to smile a bit more than here. I don't know if it's the weather, but people seem colder here. Very positive. It was great	Black	Ethnicity - Black	1/147	0.68

Lin Andy the truth is that you don't know anything about black people. All you have to do is go on google and type in " black inventions" and I'm sure you'll find many things that you use everyday. Its not that hard to do but I doubt you'll actually do research on black contributions to humanity because it doesn't fit your narrative.	Black	Ethnicity - Black	3/62	4.839
That's not the point. It is true that I didn't mention anything about Black inventions, however, the purpose of my statement was to argue with the Black guy above, who said that Asians didn't invent anything. I think you took my statement as an insult to Blacks by saying that they didn't invent anything, although I didn't intend it that way. Did I say they didn't invent anything? No. I just said I wasn't sure of it, not having enough research or knowledge on them.	Black	Ethnicity - Black	2/85	2.353

You're just mad just because your ego was hurt, as a Black person, judging by your response. People like you resort to personal attacks like that last sentence you wrote, usually insulting the opposing arguer's intelligence in some way, once your prides have been been attacked and arguments have been wronged. Additionally, based on your logic, everyone would be intellectually inferior to one another just because they have no knowledge on each other's cultures. I'm pretty sure you don't know everything about my people's culture as well. Does that make you intellectually inferior? No. It just means you haven't done research, it does not mean you're dumb . What about the 2008 Olympics in China and how your Chinese brothers did not allow Africans(as well as Mongolians) in there bars? OR, did you know that that infamous Human Rights movement of Tiananmen Square back in the late 80's originally began as Ant- African protests in Nanjing? Prior to all that there were African students studying over there and the Chinese was constantly harassing them and discriminating against them especially if they saw one of them with a Chinese girl. There were riots among the Chinese and Africans over there(and NO we did not start it and NO there was NO looting). There was one incident were the Chinese tried to lock the Africans in their dorms and kill them by setting the dorm on fire cause a lie was spread that a Chinese woman got raped by a blackman. All of these incidences led up to the Nanjing protests that spread to other parts of China and then what became anti- African protests turned into Human Rights. Look it up . Also, get that book entitled: Race and Racism in China and in the Chinas. Written by a black man named Dujon Johnson. These whites keep Africans poor and make them raising more kids so you guys can dump more food, weapons there. Have france, UK or the states ever tried to help them with their industry? that's what Chinese are doing there, they are building railways , electric power plants, roads, all kinds of infrastructure there. And yes, they do take nature resources as well, but they won't forget the most important process, they pay.about Tibet , things westerners would love to do is just saying "free tibet". but instead of trusting the media propaganda for no reason, why don't do some serious research first? Tibet belongs to China, not always, but for thousands years, the Tibetan in Western countries are later generations of land lords, when communist took China, they executed all the landlords in Mainland China, not only tibet. tibet is not only one person, it has many people from different classes, if you go talk with a Tibetan from lower classes, you'll see how much they love communist, communist sucked, but they do bring hope to the Tibetans so they can be educated and have opportunity to earn their lives, go look how desperate low class indians can be then you'll realize something.	Communist, Nothing	Ideological and Political Identity - General, Age - Youngsters	3/230	1.304

That being said, you're right about China not having the same standards of political correctness regarding race, but you're wrong about China never having a racist history. China also practiced Black slavery, albeit on a smaller scale, and you can find documents about Black slavery today from the time of Zheng He. China simply deported the Black slaves when they were done with them; China sent them to India usually. China also has a lengthy history of racism and slavery with other peoples in its interior. China has racism too, and China generally is more supportive of racism in private, as shown in its leaders' rhetoric against African immigrants, but I think racist countries can thrive in certain contexts.	African, Black, Race, Racism, Racist	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	11/141	7.801

If charities really wanted to help africa this would be there philosophy. But aid is about control a clever way to keep africa under control and make westerns who donate feel good about themselves. After all they are saving those poor children. A better way would be to pay a fair price for the goods africa produces. So now the father has enough money to feed his own kids without aid. We had slavery, Jim crow , and other messed up stuff in history but we have been correcting ourselves. Though still not perfect but we are moving along in the right direction. Tibet and Taiwan are not our problems nor how they choose to govern themselves. We should only be concern our problems at home and not worry about theirs. There is xenophobia in every country. I'm not gonna deny what you said, but I will offer another perspective. Asian countries are very homogenous, so they are surrounded by people who all speak the same language and who all 'look the same'. No thats not a racist joke. I mean that people have generally the same skin tone (usually pale in places like China and South Korea who idolize very pale skin, and more tan in Southeast Asia who don't seem to care about being pale as much), same dark hair, same dark eye color. And white, black, latino, russian, etc people don't really travel to the lesser known places of Asia (the tourist spots are usually the capitals of the country and such) so in those places they are not as exposed to other types of people. Meanwhile in the US and other places of the West like Canada and the UK, it's much more mixed. There are people of all kinds of race. So more people are exposed to different cultures. Asian countries are homogenous which makes it harder for them to experience different cultures, and that where we come in to educate them. But in places in the West like the US, it's inexcusable that racism is still prevalent because it's so much more mixed here and there are so many people here. You think we'd learn by now to stop being ignorant fucks and start thinking of all of us as one stupid species: humans.	Black, Race, Racism, Racist, Tan	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General, Nationality - British	5/243	2.058
Carol Oh please, Asian people don't get a pass for being racist simply because they do not have racial diversity in their immediate surroundings. It doesn't take much to be pleasant to someone. And the fact that there is PLENTY of racism toward foreigners in Asian countries while they cry over hear when it's against them makes them a hypocrite, not naively innocent creatures who don't know better. Be the change you want to see, Asia. If you want to talk about illegal things going on in your countries by foreigners, stop violating U.S. immigration laws and doing other crimes while over here (like stealing - my bike was stolen by an Asian delivery guy and from what I heard that my dad told me when he reported it to the police, this is not unusual occurrence). The point is, if I grow up in a household of dark haired people, that doesn't give me the right to treat a blond in a bad way because I simply didn't grow up around blonds. Asians travel enough and have enough common sense to know how to behave without prejudging and yet they don't. Then they send their kids to America (after being raised by racist Asian parents) and expect to be treated in a way that they do not treat others in their country. Oh WELL...	Common, Racism, Racist	Ethnicity - General, Social Class - Working class	4/225	1.778

Jill The Lefevre You're right, they don't get a pass and it's not right at all. They're not innocent naive creatures, and many Asian countries really need to start changing their ideals to fit into the modern world. But they really just aren't as exposed to much racial diversity. And for something you know little about, things can get twisted. All in all, I just wanted to offer another perspective so people can maybe imagine how different the Western culture is from Asian cultures. I think what we need to keep in mind is they have a different history that affects them in different ways and affects the current generation's opinions on the world, and the US also has a very different history that has led us to where we are now. Also, anyone can be racist so we should not accuse an ENTIRE race for being racist . To be clear, I'm in no way saying any type of racism or just any sort of discrimination (whether it be against Asians, African Americans, Latinos, blonde people, or even people with glasses) is okay. The main goal is to stop it all. To stop the hate. And to do that we need to learn to understand each other, empathize with each other, and teach each other the different cultures of the world. So when OP blamed Asians for being racist to foreigners in their country, that's not okay. Not everyone is racist there. And when the people in the video took down those students' names, that wasn't okay. We can't beat racism with more racism . Jill The Lefevre Okay replying to you again cause I read your replies to Zhi Hzccz, and I just wanna say again that RACISM DOES NOT BEAT RACISM . What do you expect to gain by hating on an entire race because some Chinese guy stole your bike? By using racial slurs and attacking people with stereotypes? Judge a person by their personality and actions, that's fine. But DO NOT bring race into it. We are our individual selves, and we are not tied down by the stereotypes created to put down certain races. That MAN is a thief, but his race is not. I'm sorry for your own past experiences, but holding grudges isn't good for the mind or the soul and prohibits us from truly moving forward.	Race, Racism	Ethnicity - General	5/128	3.906

There is systemic real racism in Asia and in China. Chinese behavior overseas is fairly disgusting. Not everyone but more than an acceptable minority- especially in males from wealthy communist party backgrounds. When u go to china, they demand you be like Chinese but continually remind you that you're an outsider. This statement is not accurate. I'm from Hong Kong, and you can even find a sect of HK culture that is " racist " against mainland Chinese people, simply for not "respecting our culture". Simply put, Chinese people understand banter better than many modern western societies; my white friends can call me " yellow " or even "dog eater" if they don't mind me calling them "gwei lo" (white ghost) every now and then. In previous generations, this was observed with cultural and political overtones, but nowadays it is simply a part of the lexicon, similarly to how in smaller American towns & cities you are expected to smile at every passerby on the street. This is simply cultural divide, not widespread racism , and you would do well to not expect every country to bend to your social expectations. Race is a fictional doctrine created by a group of people (of Germanic heritage) for the purpose of adopting a hierarchal system where a small amount of people on top will be served by everyone underneath them. At the bottom is the largest pool of people and in the middle is tiers of people organized by their role of overseer over the people underneath them. The group defined the top of the pyramid as "White" and the bottom of the pyramid as " Black " and in between as stages of light to dark. The people in the middle are protectors of the top as they serve in roles of OVERSEERS over the lower classes. This system was known throughout Asia and Mexico as the Caste System, as was heavily religious based as the White was Pure and Closest to God and the Black was Wicked and cursed. Today it's the same system that serves as a model for all Corporations including "States". The thing is White wasn't referring to skin color, that only came about with the invention of Race in the 1800's.	Black, Race	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	4/182	2.198

I believe the term you are looking for is "Pseudo-science".—American Anthropological AssociationStatement on "Race" and Intelligence(adopted December 1994) [LINK] The American Anthropological Association (AAA) is deeply concerned by recent public discussions which imply that intelligence is biologically determined by race. Repeatedly challenged by scientists, nevertheless these ideas continue to be advanced. Such discussions distract public and scholarly attention from and diminish support for the collective challenge to ensure equal opportunities for all people, regardless of ethnicity or phenotypic variation.Earlier AAA resolutions against racism (1961, 1969, 1971, 1972) have spoken to this concern. The AAA further resolves:WHEREAS all human beings are members of one species, Homo sapiens, andWHEREAS, differentiating species into biologically defined "races" has proven meaningless and unscientific as a way of explaining variation (whether in intelligence or other traits),THEREFORE, the American Anthropological Association urges the academy, our political leaders and our communities to affirm, without distraction by mistaken claims of racially determined intelligence, the common stake in assuring equal opportunity, in respecting diversity and in securing a harmonious quality of life for all people.American Anthropological AssociationStatement on "Race"(May 17, 1998) [LINK] From its inception, this modern concept of "race" was modeled after an ancient theorem of the Great Chain of Being, which posited natural categories on a hierarchy established by God or nature. Thus "race" was a mode of classification linked specifically to peoples in the colonial situation. It subsumed a growing ideology of inequality devised to rationalize European attitudes and treatment of the conquered and enslaved peoples. Proponents of slavery in particular during the 19th century used "race" to justify the retention of slavery. The ideology magnified the differences among Europeans, Africans, and Indians, established a rigid hierarchy of socially exclusive categories underscored and bolstered unequal rank and status differences, and provided the rationalization that the inequality was natural or God-given. The different physical traits of African-Americans and Indians became markers or symbols of their status differences.As they were constructing US society, leaders among European-Americans fabricated the cultural/behavioral characteristics associated with each "race," linking superior traits with Europeans and negative and inferior ones to blacks and Indians. Numerous arbitrary and fictitious beliefs about the different peoples were institutionalized and deeply embedded in American thought.	Common, Ethnicity, Race, Racism	Ethnicity - General, Social Class - Working class	10/378	2.646

When I say "heavy" accent you are misreading what I mean. Jason Statham has a Heavy accent. Adele has a heavy accent, Ray Winstone, David Tennant (real voice) etc. It's getting ridiculous what the put subtitles on these days. Having an accent has nothing to do with how ell you do, or do not, speak English. It isn't like French. England, let alone the U.K, let alone the English speaking world is FULL of acent. Some heavy, some light and those are people for whom English, or American Australian English etc. is their FIRST Laguage. It isn't a suggestion that anyone in the video isn't American born, or that that matters either way. The answer from someone who isn't, from someone being "polite" to "it sounds like" 9 a deliberate difference from you ARE) is "It's just a misunderstanding mate .. cool?"Or similar.Yes it DOES. I stated clearly, twice that they do this to MANY accents. The examples I've used are ALL English, white people and the "rural" accent, although not race specific, is also for British people. Chinese, African, Eastern European, they're not even mentioned in my examples. This is something that happens with more and more accents these days. As stated, it is annoying. I can assure it has nothing at all to do with ethnicity, r country of origin.	African, Ethnicity, Nothing, Race	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	4/111	3.604
Read the comments and you'll understand what that means. There's subtitles on BBC shows with people from all over the planet AND from within the United Kingdom.. It's a act and hs nothing to with these people being Chinese.We laughed at the video in my house because he subtitles were not needed. More to the point, you're so busy misunderstanding what "heavy" means here, you're ignoring the fact that the post in question says subtitles in these cases are a joke and it is happening too often. But hey, why let somebody saying the same thing get in the way of some uncalled for righteous indignation eh?	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/107	0.935
I'll say it again, I've seen British people from Cornwall, Scotland, Wales, N.I, Newcastle etc. subtitled whilst speaking English. This has NOTHING to do with these people being of Chinese descent. It is just a trend that is sadly increasing.	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/40	2.5
