Women and men are confused about what they want? How? You can't apply a blanket conformist methodology of what men and women should and shouldn't want. Everybody is different! All individuals who are unique. Some women don't want anyone holding a door open for them, REGARDLESS of their gender . Some women do...it's up to the individual's preference. I'm a guy and I've had the door held open for ME by BOTH men and women, (not all) and likewise? I extend the same courtesy (mostly)	Gender	Gender - General	1/84	1.19

Since women want gender equality, my answer to this is every person for his/her self when it comes to opening the doors and letting them go without the consideration of people behind me. Or getting on a bus or train no matter who's behind me. It makes me not to believe in "Ladies first" anymore because they refuse to appreciate the things men do for them. I'm very glad chivalry is dead women say that they don't need a man that's fine with meThey say that we got our hands full that's fine with me so from here on out you women are on Your own we are equals now you women can not have it both ways so I fine this ironic you women Want equality but you want men to stay traditional to you women it makes no sense at all but I'm Very glad that some men are really waking up to this crap stay red pill guys let women handle there own Weight whatever happens to them that's not our problem	Red	Ideological and Political Identity - General, Ethnicity - Native-American	2/110	1.818
What the woman on the right is essentially saying is: "If you want access to my Golden (fill in the blank), you need to 'step up' and incur the financial burden of helping to raise a child that isn't even yours." Uh... thanks, but no thanks, sweetheart. You wanted the "bad boy" (i.e. the gangsta wannabe who was a "challenge" and got you "excited"), so you deal with the consequences. Have a nice day. chivalry is not dead ! im only 37 and im gonna help you out the car , send you flower's take your coat , pull out your chair , help you across the road , dont believe me i been married 6 year's and from day one i been an honorable man with a chivalrous code . ask my wife whome i just yelled at for not letting pull out her chair at the restaurant we went to . any woman that dont allow me to be chivalrous i walk away from in a hurry i even been known to let the powerful independent feminist girl sitting with the bill because of that b.s. and yes i have drove off and left women because they showed their butt's cause i opened a door for them ! Coming from a man. I don't like this new opinionated woman at all. Strong women are trying to be like men...and I am not into men. I applaud the woman on the left, not the one on the right, she's just making excuses for ill tempered women.	Woman	Gender - General	2/47	4.255
I always open the door for anyone that i get in my car, man or woman . Also in stores, or any place else. Old fashion, perhaps, but i was raised that way.But these days the lady's want it different i guess, its society that forces them to be "equal" wich is crap if you ask me.Even worse is when a woman that wants too pay for dinner, thats once and never again. Boys are boys, girls are girls, thats how it should be, thats it, period.Man have balls, get over it lady's, old fashion YES, castrated NO, bye bye, ciao ciao.	Old, Woman	Age - Over 65s, Gender - General	4/104	3.846
Yeah, because being a gentleman (how my mom raised me) by opening a door for a woman is apparently sexist. Now I don't do that anymore so that I don't get scolded by a woman for being a gentleman. And I'm not the only one. So yes chivalry is dead.	Woman	Gender - General	2/50	4.0
No society could survive "emancipation" of its women.Women are allowed to do as much as the Patriarchy allows them. ( Patriarchy is inevitable).Western men are stupid to allow all that feminism, education for women, voting "rights", career "choices", etc. There is nothing more damaging to existence of civilization than a young woman with money, or with perspectives to earn money.Young woman 's ambition should be a good husband, family and childbearing. A woman that is not a grandmother by 40 is a pathetic, useless, miserable, twit-twat. The cute ones should find their good husbands, and for the misfits, it's brothel and convent. Opening the door for the women is an outdated concept. In the old days, back when women werent sluts and were staying at home to raise their families, they werent getting out of the house too often and thus they didnt know how to use a door, that's why men were helping them by opening the doors for them. Since then things have changed, now women have figured out how doors work and nothing is stopping them from being out all the time. Since now we are "equal", and women know how to use doors, it is time for them to return us the favor and open the doors for us as we did for them. Chivalry has nothing to do with need and everything to do with want. When I'm with a lady...I want to treat her like a lady. I have no desire to be with a female who is not a lady.	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/39	2.564

The black women couldn't be more incorrect. Ben Shapiro has a great take on this subject that I totally agree with and is Biblically based. The easiest stat to look at to see that chivalry is dead is the divorce rate and how children are growing up in split homes IF the male or female even remains in the picture at all. It then becomes a trickle down thing generation to generation. People don't even find it necessary to get married at all anymore. Where's the chivalry in that? Old saying why buy the cow if your getting the milk for free and again it trickles down.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/100	1.0
Women are often the dictator of the house hold, men are the ones that imply rules of life. Not all the time but most of the time, that is how it works. I was raised by a single mother and I never learned how to treat a woman until I was married and had several argument.	Woman	Gender - General	1/56	1.786
Very silly argument. Yeah I still open doors for women. I don't care what they think. I do notice half of them don't even say thank you which is so arrogant. The girl on the right uses cardi B is an example of a working woman . How disgusting. That woman admitted to mugging man getting them drugged up and taking their money. So everything she said after that point I didn't even hear.	Woman	Gender - General	2/73	2.74
Women threw men under the bus when it suits their needs, they tore family apart, stole money from men, accused all men of being rapists, accused us of being toxic to society and that we should all die. Yes, women not only killed chivalry, you massacred it. Now, men will watch woman fall, whine, cry about how there are no good men left. You're right, there are no good men left. We are all toxic anyways so stop whining and you get to die as a single cat lady while we go to countries where we are appreciated.	Woman	Gender - General	1/98	1.02

How many women are body builders? How many women are out there cutting trees down with an axe? How many women are out in the middle of the ocean on an oil rig? How many women climb up telephone poles to fix cables at the risk of electrocution? How many women are going house to house to set up cable receivers? Or setting up TV dishes? How many women are on the roof in the dead of Summer nailing shingles to a house? How many women are pouring concrete to make sidewalks? How many women are spinal and brain surgeons? How many women are involved in the creation and building process of game consoles and computers? How many women are creating satellites? How many women are digging ditches? How many women operate cranes? How many women preform autopsies? How many women are caretakers for entire cemeteries? How many women are marines? How many women are firefighters? How many women are spies for different military agencies around the globe? How many women are police officers? How many women are laying down miles and miles of pipe underground? How many women are building houses? How many women are out hunting animals to sell as meat? How many women work as butchers? How many women are farmers? How many women are designing the new car models? How many women built their empires and companies from the ground up? How many women serve on the front lines of war? How many women are designing the next rocket? How many women have gone to the moon? How many women are creating the next deep space telescope? How many women are diving to the deepest depths of the ocean? How many women are out there trying to survive in the harshest of climates with the bare minimal equipment JUST to test themselves? Guarantee there are more men working all those jobs, plus many, many, many, many more other jobs EVEN THOUGH more women exist on this planet. So, you enjoy becoming a teacher, you enjoy your little book clubs, you enjoy making your silly pop songs, you enjoy being nurses and taking care of the elderly , and there's a reason nobody cares about women's sports. Also, being a full time mommy to an annoying little shitting and crying baby is not a job and it's not the most difficult 'job' in the world. Men and women are NOT equal on any front. It's not possible for two different genders (because there are ONLY two genders) to be equal. But that does not mean women are less than. It doesn't mean men are superior and women are inferior. It simply means we're different and for all of human history, men have made the most leaps and bounds because women wouldn't or couldn't.	Elderly, Nobody	Age - Over 65s, Age - Youngsters	2/465	0.43

R.O.T.C SEEM The term "women and children first" was from the Titanic in 1912. In every cruise ship incident in the past 50 years, not a single man was deliberately left behind to allow a woman to go first. Just imagine the lawsuits. Those few who died where because they could not reach safety (i.e. the lifeboat deck) or were knocked out in the impact. Name one incident in the past 50 years where men were told to die and let women go in Western society.	Woman	Gender - General	1/86	1.163
I can't believe women keep telling men what we have to do. That's the problem. Men are not confused, we have common sense. Independence means just that. If you have a man, then YOUR man should open the door for you, not someone else's man. Men don't expect men to open doors for them, women do. See the problem? Expectation. Women should expect men to treat them as they do other men, as equal.	Common	Social Class - Working class	1/74	1.351
Women say, 'Military women can be on the front lines! They're just as tough! Why not?!' Why not? Because if a woman is crying in pain during battle, a man will likely risk all to save her, instead of keeping his head on straight. THAT is why women aren't supposed to be on the front lines. And if you don't believe that, look at the Iraq war. Those 5-7 soldiers were kidnapped and tortured. Who got the news coverage? The woman out of the men. The woman had her legs broken, etc.. but they were all tortured. They all suffered. Why did they profile the woman ? Because it would tug on the most heart strings. My mother visited recently and she was telling us she is soon retiring. She told us she has no idea what it was all for. She told us that when she was young she was told by other 'strong' women in her family that they had to get out there and show other people that they are strong and smart. She told us that she left us at home with other, her words, less smart women, who would take care of us - my mother's kids. She has worked for forty-five years, missed pretty much every milestone in all three of her kid's lives and at the end of the day, has nothing to show for it. No one cares that she worked. No one applauded her for her grinding away nine to five. It sure didn't matter to the bank account. My dad made enough doing nothing that her cash was basically pocket money for clothes and purses. Which, she predictably bought dozens of outfits and handbags out of. Just so she could hear, 'Oh. You look so put together', once in a while. Ultimately she told us she wasted her life and effort on older more successful men thinking they would make something of themselves. Her conclusion was that it was the biggest trick she ever fell for. Leaving her home and kids for a work environment of snakes and thieves. Sadly, she even admits that she has only herself to blame for her stupidity and naivety.	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	2/249	0.803

The only thing women need is to become a lady not a girl and to know their respective heirarchy in the society, but if you act like men then you are going to be treated like one. If war or economic collapse occur people will realize their natural order. It would be funny if a government send women into the frontline while sending men to cook. There are pros and cons of each gender no one can have both pros and let the other have all the cons. If its ok to be strong independent women then its ok to be mgtow, which is the formula of a decreasing birthrate in a society.	Gender	Gender - General	1/113	0.885
Well when you have women who yell at men for opening doors for pulling out a chair for a woman then YES women killed Chivalry.The only person I am Chivalrous with is my wife, and it is because of purple haired feminist that yell any time a guy tries to be nice.The last time I was Chivalrous with a woman she called me all kinds of names because I grabbed a box of rice that was out of herreach, and that black woman is a IDIOT.Because women expect men to pay for dinner to pick them up for a date to pay for drinks at a bar, but when it comes to Chivalry they lose their minds and insult and sometimes even punch or kick and spit at men.Prefect example is the Gillette commercial the Woman who directed and wrote that actually thinks masculinity is BAD, so makes a advertisement that promotes false narratives about men. I'm a pretty big guy. 6'4" over 300 pounds. Stronger than average with a really good friendly and cheerful nature. I've gotten very used to smaller people (especially women and the elderly ) asking me to get things off the top shelf for them at the grocery store and things like that. One day walking out of a Walmart I noticed a woman in her 30's struggling to load a television she had just bought into her vehicle. I walked over with a smile on my face and said 'hi' and asked if I could give her a hand. I will open and hold the door open for any woman . Honestly, it's a door. I am pretty much sure you can open it yourself. What person believes for a moment that the act of opening a door is strictly due to a thought that you are unable to do it yourself? Obviously the act of opening and holding a door open for a woman has a much deeper meaning. It's not all about you, half of it is about me. I hold myself to a higher standard. It's how I show respect for one another. That being said, I hold the same door open for any man, child, or even animal that may be passing through that door. You can choose to hate it, you can choose to think it's because I have made an assumption that you can't do it yourself. In the end, I do it because it makes me feel good, and I hope that the feeling I get when holding the door open makes you feel the same way.	Woman	Gender - General	2/174	1.149

What does women being strong and independent have anything to do with a man opening a door for them? Or offering to pay for dinner? Or buying them flowers? It's a gesture of RESPECT. THAT'S what women who feel like the Black woman does, just don't get it. People need to RESPECT each other. And for HUNDREDS OF YEARS, a sign of respect towards women was to open the door for them, buy them a meal, and put his coat down so they don't walk in mud. Or help them up a flight of stairs with a gentle hand. THIS is what is lacking. MUTUAL RESPECT. My wife and I have been together for almost 30 years. We are teaching our children that we are both honest, hard working people that can care for themselves, but TOGETHER we are stronger, and show each other RESPECT in the things we do for one another. THAT'S why I buy my wife flowers, take her out for dinner, open the door for her and help her with the kids and around the house. Because I HONOR AND RESPECT HER. Wow. Chivalry is code of conduct on the battlefield. Those with honor would not use underhanded tactics such as kicking a guy in the nuts. Chivalry has nothing to due with women and to apply it to romance, intimate relationships and any other non-battle reated subjects is not only misuse but misdirection... in doing so shows a level of stupid along the lines of thinking that replacing the "er" at the end of the N-bomb with an "a" then turns it into a term of endearment. I think in this conversation there should be a man or two also giving their opinion ! Because chivalry is certainly dying because this miss sense of equality of man and woman . Why would any sane person think that all it takes is a closed door, to put a "damsel in distress"?? The problem with so much of this Feminist thought is that it actually degrades women. It is totally true that because women want this change, both men and women don't know what role they are to play in the age-old dance of the sexes. Only liberal feminists could turn chivalry, which is, at it's heart, males serving women, into an insult to the women being served. Chivalry is meant as a "demonstration of value" on the part of the men, in service of his courtship of her. He proves his worth by demonstrating his ability to care for her. I don't care how woke you are, you want someone to care for you no matter who you are. Women ALSO demonstrate value to men in courtship, but now feminists have made THAT verboten in today's day and age . Just a few decades ago, I remember girlfriends (Not wives) cooking, doing laundry, and cleaning up their BOYFRIEND's apartments. Without even cohabiting together! lucia ugwu very slowly characteristics of black women from ghetto backgrounds are coming here through the media to children in west and South West of Africa . Even tv. I blame parents but I also understand parents don't have full control of what their kids do. At least tgere is more women who aren't like this but it's a petty to the young ones. And besides, myself as a lady, I can be independent, but I should be respectful about it. If someone feels the need or want to help me, who am I to chase away someone helping me out. They evolved the conversation by switching from victims to strong women and from traditionalists to feminists whenever it fits them. They evolved the conversation by refusing their old role and any responsibility, while imposing men to stick with their old responsibilities, but without any power.They evolved the conversation by making up nonexistent glass ceilings, pay gaps and the emergency of violence against women, just to distract the public opinion from the fact that if women want real equality and equity, they should give up a lot of privileges and perks they take from granted.But they are too scared to do it, because the world of men and responsibilities isn't the rainbow and flowers and freedom kindergarten they expected. opening a door for someone you are going on a date with is meant to show respect and appreciation, its about trying to make the other person feel these things and feel special. When that is denied its really a big put off.. This is especially because its something that is usually done without any expectation or thought about the gesture being reciprocated.. this is the same feeling whether its during a date or just holding the door for a friend.. denying someone is basically just shitting all over that person for trying to be nice.... gender/attraction/etc really has nothing to do with it, and no one wants to be around someone like that.Would you go to award ceremony and tell them to roll the red carpet back up? Men aren't confused, they see very clearly. Chivalry used to be an expression of the man for the woman he's interested in, as in his wife or girlfriend. Or it was a sign of a good upbringing and manners, like knowing which fork to use for the dessert course. I seriously doubt, for example, that Henry would have written such a letter to his secretary or his sister. Now 'chivalry' is 'expected' no matter what the situation is, no matter who the woman is, and THAT'S why 'chivalry' is dead. It's been devalued by the no longer realistic expectations and outright demands of today's woman , so that holding a door open no longer means anything real, except as a way to kowtow to women's demands for unearned support and resources from men in general. "I demand that you help me because you're a man, and if you don't I'll complain and throw a tantrum." No self-respecting woman in Henry's day would have been caught dead uttering such a crass, childish sentiment, but today's woman ? This kind of thing is splattered all over social media. Do all of you ladies want chivalry to come back? Then start treating men with the respect they deserve FIRST, BEFORE demanding unequal treatment from them. I promise you, the minute you stop judging and shaming the men who can't or won't help you at the drop of a hat, and start showing compassion for their inaction as real and authentic, even if you don't approve, that's when you'll suddenly begin to find men everywhere willingly doing everything they can for you. Why? Because you dropped your demanding attitude and opened your heart to fully receive genuine chivalry offered in a spirit of kindness, not extorting it from them like blackmail, that's why. Whitaker’s World, I’d like to relate a story to my YouTube audience which really doesn’t have too much to do with what we are discussing.....or maybe it does. I worked with a young lady from Jamaica back in the 80’s. The setting was a cubicle inside a larger office space. The business was an office furniture company in the New York area. The young lady had a habit of wearing pant suits everyday. She would arrive to work everyday in a pant suit, and greeting me with a ”Hiya Tom.” I, in turn, would respond with a perfunctory, ”Good morning Sonja”. Whenever I responded to her greeting I would never look up from my desk. This went on for some time. It was always her entering the office in her signature pant suits greeting me and me, not bothering to look up from my desk, greeting her. After a while I think she became annoyed that I would never bother to look up from my desk when greeting her. Yes, I was not giving her the attention most woman crave from men. One day, she came to work in a dress!!!!!!!!!! Any man reading this knows that there is a certain amount of energy that builds up down there on a woman from not exposing her legs, consequently when they do wear dresses, L-O-OK O-U-T ! This woman wore a dress one day and, for some inexplicable reason, I raised my head up from my desk that morning when greeting her. I HAD NEVER, EVER SEEN LEGS LIKE THAT AND I HAVE NOT SEEN LEGS LIKE THAT SINCE. It soon occurred to me why she wore pant suits.....her legs drew too much attention from men. All during that day I found concentrating on my work to be difficult and what’s more, I found myself peering every few minutes over at my worker’s legs.	Woman	Gender - General	3/313	0.958

Yes, yes women (more like radical feminist) killed chivalry. When I go out with my pops he always opens the door for my mother and I same as with my brothers with there girlfriends. Strong women like chivalry or don't mind it, we don't get offended when a guy opens a door, or helps us in our seats or stands up when we leave or arrive to a table. That's just being respectful, weak women who are offended by everything a man does are literally ruining everything for women. Men don't want to mentor us, or give us hugs when it's a time of excitement, or be alone with us for fear of smearing of their name. Women and men go hand in hand but in the society's eyes men may seem to be more superior, given the fact that men made all these things possible for women to do. For example, men gave women the option to vote. Because of men, women were given an easier way of life. The chance to branch off from being a traditional house wife and to exploit different jobs done by males. When women had a political debate for their rights always remember a male would have the last say. History repeats itself. God made woman for man not man for woman . Tiffany Anderson So tell me something, if we are equal how is it fair for a woman to hit a man and get little to no consequences, But the minute a man hits a woman for defending himself he is seen as abusive. If a man goes to court for hitting a woman you better believe he going to jail or getting a fine. But a woman can wiggle her way "outta" court, and half the time men won't even press charges because people would call him a punk. If women are equal to men that means she can take an equal man beating right? I don't think so. I'm not for abuse but this is how society thinks. Same thing happened to Chris brown nobody talked about how he was getting attacked first. I did feel as though he was wrong for hitting her that many times, maybe a push or shove would be fine, But women should stop using feminist as a way to manipulate people. The problem is many women today are not worthy of chivalry! As a male growing up in the 70's in the south my mother taught me what a real woman is.....compassion, tenderness, forgiveness, and patience.....And my father what a man should be....Stand for right, protective, hard working, honest, and courtesy for others. Women then were traditionally the nurturing part of the family that balanced the man to form the best unit to effectively raise a family. Now women are behaving more like men of the past and men more like women.....effectively leaving both extremely unhappy and passing the unhappiness on to their children.....I am glad I was born when I was and that my mother doesn't have to see the sad state of our union. I think it's really interesting how both women on this debate have their fallacies that they're using at some point. Honestly this is a debate that shouldn't exist. Equality can coexist with chivalry. In my opinion, you can treat each other equally and still show chivalry (from both sides in fact) without hypocrisy. It's wrong to be offended by a kind gesture of opening a door to a woman , just as it's wrong to assume a woman can't open the door herself. Both men and women can open their own doors, just as both men and women can open doors for each other. Chivalry shouldn't be affected by a fight for equality; if anything it should be improved on so that women also express chivalry towards men (which does happen but isn't common , and it's often looked down on). I think men would have no problem paying for dates if women had no problem saying they need men to pay for dates. In my lifetime, "I don't need you!" has been shouted at men and at the same time the expectation on men to take care of women has been kept firmly in place. When you are simultaneously told "I can do it myself I don't need anything from you" and "You need to step up and do this/that/etc" the most common course of action is let women do it themselves. Still, there are absolutely NO EXPECTATIONS that can be placed on women. Chivalry isn't dead because it means what we expect from men, and there is still plenty of things we expect from men. It's the expectations society placed on women that are dead, most people can't name a single thing that women are expected to do that men are not.	Common	Social Class - Working class	1/153	0.654

Manners are in general meant to show consideration for other people. Our responses to acts of consideration should likewise be considerate of other peoples' feelings. Regardless of the finer points of the interactions between men and women, rebuffing someone for opening a door is rude. A strong woman understands when she needs to be, and how she needs to be in a relationship. She understands that a man led by God is the front and leader of the relationship. She also understands that a man needs to feel like a man in that, that he needs his woman to be his rock to keep him grounded. A man understands that although his woman is strong minded and willed, that she needs to be cared for so deeply physically, mentally, emotionally and spiritually as well. Men have to rise to the occasion because there DNA makes them want to PLEASE a women? So when a woman is not pleased men have to start to try harder? By not pleasing a " woman " they are going against there DNA? Then by that logic, a women's DNA should have the same desire in return to please the "male" and if they don't please the man in return they have to try harder too. With the way these crazy witches think I don't blame people in general for avoiding holding the when others such as this complain either way you try to open that door for them. Father is holding kids in arms and women walks up to the door and doesn't hold it open for the man, father is unable to say anything like" if she we're a real woman she would have held the door open for a struggling father', because he would get called out for making a remark about the woman being a bad influence to his children, told he should have been holding the door for the woman instead, he is a bad father for saying anything in front of the kids about a woman like that, and how the kids should have a mother around instead because women are genetically better at raising kids. Mother is holding kids and man doesn't hold door for woman ," woman calls the man out for not holding the door and rants in front of kids that 'a real man would have held the door open for a struggling mother', man goes to call her out on the real man comment and is told, he is a bad influence on woman 's kids and should be ashamed of himself for going against his genetics to please a woman . Woman openly shames man in front of crowd and in front of her children. LOL chivalry is dead because everyone should be treated in a respectful way regardless of gender , but according to these crazy beez it's DNA that determins how men and women should behave, not social norms that have the most influence since birth in society that forces children to take on gender roles or be ostracized in society. Do you all see how proud she is to say she is a "single working mother"? Today's society is trained to appreciate and honor a working single mom. They also receive government assistance and perceive themselves in a good light for this as an accomplishment. The truth is; they are either not a faithful companion, were terrible at choosing a good man to have a child with, they were irresponsible in their sexual behavior, or they chose to raise a child feeling no need for a father or a natural family structure. I understand there are many situations where this is not a choice. I also believe a good hard-working mother deserves my respect. But to encourage this by praising those who choose to, or have to as a result of their irresponsible or immoral behavior is poison to our society. It encourages a less prosperous way to raise a child, and discourages women from being responsible in their sexual behavior and their responsibility to be a faithful wife. Patriarchy is about protection of women and children. And the safest place is at home. It turned out so that this is the problem especially in civilized societies where there relatively are no threats and anyone who has born without typical masculine traits (aggression, physical strength, struggle to compete) can achieve same goals without any risk. Women have too many rights and men have no rights what so ever. If a woman wants an abortion and the man wants to have the baby, the woman says too bad, I'm having an abortion and their is nothing you can do about it. If a woman wants to keep the baby and the man doesn't want to be a parent, the woman keeps the baby, but the man still has to provide child support. If there is a divorce, in 99 of cases, who pays the alimony, the child support, and who has to give up half of all his stuff and give it to his x partner, and who has to give up the house, the car, etc, it's the man or x husband. Oh and let's not forget that the me too movement has caused some companies to make policies that make the line between sexual harassment and innocent activities very blurry. Don't really care what these new age feminists think...I'll continue to be the man my wife loves and court her everyday, hold her purse and bags, open car door for her and more.Chivalry is only dead to the women who don't want it. Every time I hear a women repeat the slogan 'I'm an independent woman' it sounds like they have convince themselves its a good thing. You'll never here men say ' I'm an independent man '. Women continue to shout themselves in the foot generalizing and finding justification to not appreciate chivalry.	Age	Age - General	1/95	1.053
Chivalry was killed by women. Leftist woman , feminists, refuse to take responsibility for this. Arguing against this won't change anything or fix it. I'm tired of the women who think they can have it both ways and blame men for not responding to this stupidity. Everyone is suffering from the illusion that woman are somehow superior to men. We are different, we need each other and we should not, in any way, be putting each other down.	Woman	Gender - General	2/77	2.597
If we're equal women don't need title 9, they dont need safe spaces, hell why have gender segregated sports? Let women compete with the men lose their positions and their gender specific sports and we'll see how they feel about equality! Women have been capitalizing on chivalry for decades! That's why men are victims of domestic violence more than women! It's just unreported cause chivalrous men don't want their wives going to jail....	Gender	Gender - General	2/73	2.74

As far as I'm concerned and chivalry is dead it's been dead for a while now. I think women should pay for our dinners I think they should open the door for us I think they should help us across the street and because they're equal they should do all these things willingly. Men stop doing it because they really don't appreciate it anyway. And as far as dying for a woman ? I would have done that in the past. I won't now. My life's too valuable to be thrown away like that. Chivalry is dead and it's the women themselves that killed it.	Woman	Gender - General	1/104	0.962

Some years ago I was on a public bus and all seats were taken. A woman got onto the bus and I stood up to give her my seat I was met with the remark do you think I'm an f ing invalid I was shocked by this rude comment and sat down again. Since then I have asked other people especially if elderly would you like a seat various results have come about but never the rude response I was given on the first occasion. I was the only "male" at my last job. Worked with lots of girls who very clearly wanted me to walk them to their cars after late night shifts. They'd wait for me even if they got of 15mins early just so they didn't have to be alone. I didn't mind and actually think it's nice to be seen as someone who could provide some protection. Then one day I found myself being called sexist for doing so. Meanwhile I'm realizing that all the time I poured into being a decent human being was wasted on people so diluted that they see everything in shades sexism and patriarchy .	Patriarchy, Sexism	Gender - General	2/108	1.852

The problem is, people are individuals. Different women want different things. Chivalry is a generalization of assisting all women. Women won't tell you 'open the door for me, I like chivalry', because that's not how it works. Men are just supposed to do it with no request of it being done. That's how chivalry works. It's an automatic function. So if one woman is a feminist independent and one is a more traditional woman, you're not going to know what to do, because you don't know what their opinion on the matter is unless you were to ask them. Then it's no longer chivalry, because you asked, and it was a larger waste of time and becomes a whole thing rather than just opening the door in the first place. As a man who has had issues with women rejecting chivalrous actions or not appreciating them, I understand this. I work at an automotive repair shop. Women will be gathering their things to wait in the waiting room while we work on their cars. I will open their door for them, because their arms and hands are full. They might have a cell phone, laptop bag, coffee, and other things they're all juggling at once. 99 of the time, they don't thank me. While it makes the act feel empty, I still should feel that it is my duty to do so under chivalry. However, after a few bad incidents, one of which where I was reported to Human Resources and Corporate Office, I no longer do this. I was reported for being "sexist, rude, demeaning, and aggressive". I opened a woman's door for her in the most pleasant of manners (like a limo driver would) to let her out of the car because she had stuff in her hands that she was gathering. I was written up not by my manager, but by HR. I have had at least a dozen customers call corporate or leave reviews with my name attached to them. Those reviews and calls were praising me on how polite and professional I am. Yet, one customer can call and say I'm being sexist and aggressive and I'll be written up. I talked to her like a human being. I was respectful. I was helpful. I explained to her what was going on with her car and she told me "I know my car! I don't need you to tell me about my car!". She came in to get an 20-point inspection and oil change...She asked me to inspect her vehicle...and I told her what was going on with it...All I said was "Ma'am, this is your serpentine belt points*. You may want to consider changing this out soon, as it has multiple cracks in it and is dry and brittle. There's a good possibility it could break and leave you stranded (she was taking a trip somewhere) sometime in the future. You may also want to consider changing your air filter as it's beginning to fall apart completely. I have both parts in stock and can fix them for *price and it would take time estimation." And I was reported to HR and corporate for doing my job and still punished, because I offended a woman by holding doors for her and making sure she and her vehicle were safe on the road. Moral of the story: Don't be chivalrous. It's not worth it. This isn't the 1600's. Chivalry isn't going to get you a girlfriend, get you laid, or get you a simple thank you. It does nothing for you. It does nothing for women, because either they expect it and feel entitled to that privilege of man, or they don't want it and they will give you hell for it. I honestly am only chivalrous because I was taught that it was the right thing to do. I expect no reward. A thank you is nice though. I believe the attack on man is bigger than what we see in the world today! Man was created in the image of God therefore carrying the glorious image of the Creator. The first creation was man (Adam) and God spent a lot of time communicating and fellow shipping with The man. It was only later on that women was created from out of the man so that she could become the help meet to him. So both man and women can compliment each other and live together so that man and women can procreate and flourish in this world. That is beautiful!!! It's women who started freaking out when a man held the doors for them, so in time men learned to not do it. I know, women want chivalry only when it suits them, but men don't read minds. Men focus on general and universal rules, women like to add exceptions benefit them. Men leading the relationship is sexist, but in case of trouble they should take the responsibility, women believe in partnership when deciding on something, but they don't believe anymore when it comes to paying for the 1st date or man's earnings, who should be bigger than hers (otherwise the man is a failure and not attractive) but still attack men for earning on average more than women, ignoring the fact that men on average work harder, longer and in more dangerous jobs than women. Male dominated fields are problematic, while female dominated fields are victory, and it's called equality. Women are as strong as men, but you can't hit them because they are weaker, but they can hit you. Of course you can say "don't hit a woman because she is weaker", but you will be attacked for "don't give a woman that job in the magazine, because she is weaker". Women send mixed signals, wise men ignore those signals and don't chase women, instead they make women chase him. Doing something extra for women is not worth it, not in this age . Politeness, gentlemanliness, manners, etiquette, courtesy, kindness, humility, respect.Why is this so hard a concept to grasp?A woman can indeed be strong.But, being rude, insulting, male-bashing, insufferably arrogant, contentious, and hostile to a man who is showing her all the things from the first paragraph; that is not strong, that is weak. A weakness of character, an expose of a person lacking the strength to be humble, to return kindness to kindness shown. A man doesn't express the opening virtues to a woman out of malicious intent, nor does he do it as a sign of "superiority", it is a sign of compassion.Treat others the way you want them to treat you. You want hostility and attitude? Be careful, you might express it to the wrong man, or catch a man at the wrong time.Never mistake kindness for weakness.What killed chivalry?The loss of virtues.A bad attitude in the face of sincere, honest compassion, isn't a sign of strength, it's a sign of weakness, of brokenness, of pain.But, I could be wrong. But now as I get older the majority of the women that I meet they don't deserve my respect all they do is whine and cry that they don't receive the same as a man. And to me that's all it is whining a crying because compare yourself to other countries. Now women have the same rights as man and if you go on and save they don't get paid the same as men. Then why aren't all the companies in the United States of America hiring women? I mean if you go along with your premise that women get paid less than men then as a business owner I'm going to save a ton of money I'm going to hire a woman . Yes, it's that simple. The courts ruled that women are equal in 1970 and it was only a few years later when I said that to a woman . I was in a full length leg cast because my leg was broken in six places. I had just gotten out of three months in a hospital. She said, "What are you doing so I won't have to work when I'm 40?" I could have honestly said, "I'm growing a new leg while finishing my college degree on crutches." but I said, "You're equal, what are you doing so I won't have to work when I'm 40?" lylsuzi Can you name one right that men in the USA have that women in the USA don't? I can name a few that women have that men don't: 1. The right to genital integrity, nothing gets chopped off new born women in the USA.2. The right to vote without having to agree to be drafted.3. lylsuzi Okay, I like your idea of standing for women's right to an abortion. Would you also support a man's right for a financial abortion? Say a young couple get's pregnant, the woman decides to keep the child, but the man doesn't want to. If that man were to give her a one time payment of enough to cover the cost of an abortion, should he be allowed to go free and clear?What about the reverse, what if a man is excited to be a father and the mother decides against it, what sort of recompense should she face for denying him the opportunity to be a father?While I agree that there are people (man and women) living in horrid conditions around the world, I think we in the west should try to get our own houses in order before we start telling other cultures how they should behave in their our countries. Women need to learn their place . As in there is Masculine & feminine energies. Women will never have Masculine energy in a relationship - there can not be two cooks in the kitchen. A man's instinct is to ensure the continuation of his blood line. It is the woman that's suppose to center him into the family with her nurturing nature. I feel what is going on is women are running around like a bunch of dudes, living their life one foot in & one foot out of every relationship. Removing the nurturing part of relationships from the relationship. Forgetting that it is the Man that is the giver of life, not you women. You are suppose to nurture it. Topping that off with women allowing the worst options for a mate for life to move to the front of the line because he uses his Alfa energy to use you for his needs being that you are naturally submissive to a man in that since , while moving the best possible mate to the back of the line because he showed you respect. Then Men have to deal with what's one of the aspects of the spirit of Jezebel (a wondering eye). Women by nature are comparison shoppers; And if you compare him to one person, you'll compare him to everyone & no one stands a chance against the best traits of everyone... The problem is too many women are spoon fed a man hating narrative and develop deep seated unconscious bias against men. This is most often seen with women on the Left who have the attitude 'a woman needs a man like a fish needs a bicycle'.This generally isn't how Conservative women see men. There seems to be a far better mutual respect amongst Conservatives than amongst Democrats.	Woman	Gender - General	1/68	1.471

The irony is that women by and large say this because they have no experience in their entire LIVES of meeting a single actual misogynist , or experiencing actual sexism . THAT is how privileged they are, they have been so safe from sexism that they think men having any sort of sexual desire is sexism . You give them special privileges or treatment, and they'll feel entitled to it, and their ridiculous standards are the result of them living their whole lives with everyone around them worshiping the ground they walk on. They think they're being oppressed when something interferes with them taking away men's rights too, because they think they're OWED everything in the world. That's how you can always tell who has the power.... if their biggest complaints of oppression are always of the form of whining about how their rights to infringe the rights of others were infringed. No Nonsense Norseman: My reply, in the same situation, was, "No! But because I'm a gentleman!" (The unspoken implication being that SHE was NO lady!) My other tactic was, & is, when a woman walks through the door I hold open, without a word or glance, I say, loudly, "Don't mention it!!" When she turns scornfully round, & snaps, "I didn't say anything!!" , my courteous reply was, & is, " I beg your pardon!! I thought you said, 'THANK YOU!!'"In fact, I will always hold the door for anyone behind me - man, woman OR child, because NOT to do so is just bloody rude!!When I was teaching, years ago, in a village school, a class of 7 to 11 year olds, I ALWAYS referred to them as ,"Ladies & Gentlemen", with the same respect as I expected from them & with which I required them to treat each other!! It was far more effective than screaming at them, since that only increases classroom riots & chaos!!Courtesy, whether in the classroom, the workplace or driving on the roads, is like a pebble thrown into a pond! The ripples go out & out and finally return The motorist to whom I give way, & wave out, may tomorrow, do the same for another driver, &, you guessed it - two weeks later a complete stranger may do the same for me!!What goes around DOES come around & if one wants to live in a piggish society, act like a pig!!	Woman	Gender - General	2/254	0.787

No nonsense Norseman!! I don't agree! "To thine own self be true!!" To return ignorance with an insult is only to contribute to an all ready bad mannered & abrasive society! To return such ill-manners with studied courtesy is far more effective!!My reaction in the same situation, when I've held a door open, for an obnoxious woman , who sails through without word or glance, is to loudly say, "Don't mention it!!" or "My pleasure!!" or similar....!When she turns round, and says, with obvious scorn, "I DIDN'T say anything!", my reply is, " I DO beg your pardon!! I THOUGHT YOU SAID ,'Thank you!!" This is actually far more embarrassing to the ignorant, who only expect insults back!!All my adult life I have endeavoured to treat all men, women & even small children, as ladies & gentlemen & irrespective of station or position in society, NOT because of who THEY are, but because of WHO I AM, which I hope is to consider myself a gentleman!! To sink to the crass level of the rude & ignorant is to betray one's own sense of self-worth & self- image!!And believe me, a studied courtesy to the piggish is a far more effective weapon than an exchange of insults!! They just don't know how to handle it, because it throws them off guard!!	Woman	Gender - General	1/223	0.448

I agree. And I am a woman . It's sad to see women falling prey for those double standards and even demanding them, thinking it's rightful just because it's legal now. Well, in Saudi Arabia women are literally a property of their husbands and fathers, that's also legal. 200 years ago in Western world women could not walk alone in streets or they would automatically be arrested for prostitution, children had to work instead of going to school and hard labor it was, it was all legal. But it isn't right! You can bet 100 of all the times men are mistreated if those things were done to women they would scream aloud how unfair it is.	Woman	Gender - General	1/116	0.862

I've always believed in chivaryl. I never thought of it as toxic or destructive. A woman can still be independent, even when a man wants to show her that he cares, respects and admires her."Evolution of conversation"? What does that even mean??? When you want to be equal on EVERYTHING, that should include the treatment and expectations that are put on men to be placed on the women. Pay your own bill, open your own door, work for your wage, support your own children, support yourself, pay for your own mistakes, etc.	Woman	Gender - General	1/94	1.064
Also, we are NOT doing everything. Men work more, men pay more, men tend to die more from their line of work, men sacrifice more depending on their job, men have higher domestic abuse rates, men have more suicide rates, men have more UNREALISTIC expectations in the modern age .There are many things a women can do that a man can, but it doesnt mean we're doing everything. If we were, we wouldnt have to ask for child support or welfare because well... We would be paying for it ourselves since we are strong, independent women. Of course they'll try the whole "but I earn less" then get a better job, work longer, budget your buying, and take less days off.	Age	Age - General	1/123	0.813
Lulu Gangrene And do you know why men are no longer motivated to make wealth? That was the old pattern...make money, attract women, marry and live happily ever after. Wendy, it's called having good manners, being a gentleman, and here is a little side note for you, I am 67 years old , your younger women, in their 20's like it when a man holds the door open for them. they are not the combative feminist that the Democrat Party is made up of. How do I know, I have worked with these young women, I have opened and held the door for them. When they ask why? I tell them I am an old fashioned man. To which they have replied " I like old fashioned men." Men do what you have been taught, first, if she objects apologize and let her pay her own way then.	Old	Age - Over 65s	3/118	2.542
She doesn't make a good point, women don't work more than men. When only looking at full-time working women, and taking in to account at home work. Men still work more overall and that's not even counting women that stay at home or work part-time.Despite making far less money than men women owned the majority of personal wealth in the country. There's nothing equal about this and there's no Saving Grace for women in this.	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/76	1.316

A Woman is a Woman . As A Man is a Man. So if a Woman has a problem with Her Man for being that which He is. She should immediately without guilt, pause or reservation. Move on in order to seek out or be found. So that this Man whom She deems as satisfactory, to Her wants & needs can manifests.But personally I don't entertain such ignorance & foolishness. For no Woman who deems me as her own, is going to tell me how to be a Man. And in turn I do not trespass, upon Her Womanhood.So Humble Yourselves & Respect Yahweh's Creations. i can understand why MGTOW men exist. they're frustrated because nobody will date them, as they are self-centered, unwilling to sacrifice, and often times have the same qualities as what they claim to hate in others.this isn't just a women problem or a man problem, its a people problem. our desires and "natural instincts" are inherently selfish, greedy, uncaring, shallow, and lustful. the sooner people realize that denying yourself is the first step in becoming a better person, the better HUMANITY as a whole will be. too bad people aren't up for that.women's identities are being destroyed, their images are being used as attention and money grabbers for corporations and industries. as women are inherently more trusting than men, they buy into things more easily. literally buy into. 80 of consumption is done by women and in the clothing industry, 85 of the money made is by women's purchases. a female's nature is not to be shallow, carnal, and uncaring, as they are portrayed in the media and seen everywhere, nor is it to be a pushover or property of someone else's. they are made to be nurturing, kind, caring, and loving. they are the calm for the man's wild heart. it makes me sad and angry to see their nature being twisted into a tool being used by politicians and corporations.men are losing their place. when women are told they need to "climb up the ladder and push the men down" the men are losing their way and losing their motivation. men are being exploited as well, the powerful sexual drive being used as a massive money grabbing machine. they feel unrecognized, and even hated, blamed for the actions of a few. men are made to be strong, protective, honest, and noble, and the only thing stopping them from being that is themselves.guys, please don't blame girls, it won't achieve anything. girls, please don't blame guys, that won't achieve anything either. guys, don't give up on girls. there are plenty of good ones, but you won't find them at the bar. girls, don't give up on guys, and don't give up on respecting them either. Wendy doesn't sound like she knows the first thing about how a man thinks. She says this bit about women making so much progress and "doing it all" and that men need to rise to meet them where they're at. She doesn't seem to grasp that there's nothing they've done to motivate men to do that. Men don't "have to" handle you or your full-time job. Women working isn't a problem. 1. Chivalry was originally a code of conduct between men only. 2. This conversation doesn't work because it's essentially just women speaking on the roles of what women are and men. How can women define the role of a man without the actual energy and say from a man. 3. The lady woman with the makeup, floral shirt, and fake hair is going to sit and speak on 'juggling a million things' as though a mans life is insignificant or lesser. Sorry but your 'million things' to a man can be navigated through all the female bs and feminine energy to be broke down to a minimal.Men and women are different. As a man I can say that chivalry according to a woman's view point never existed, until the media and nonmen gave it a role in society. Women just want to characterize something non physical so that it can be passed off as good or bad. We don't think emotionally like that. Logically you are treated how you treat others. yeah you're doing everything yourselfe. millions of thing as you say. the fact that you keep ignoring that that is what most man have been doing on a day to day basis since the dawn of society is so very, very annoying. men really don't need to rise up to meet you cos they are still way ahead. think about the so called paygap haha that's because they actually do more. they don't ask or need recignition for ever single little thing they do. and the raising kids thing is only valid if men are treated equally in court. as long as lot's of men are denied the ability to raise their kids you can't fault them for that at the same time. that actualy kinda sounds a little like "oppression" right there, doesn't it? never mind, probably just my male neanderthal brain... were was i..., oh, and by the way the fact that woman always call raising kids work or a 'job" just proves most of them have no idea what actuall fulltime work is like. And without the "agreability" of colleagues and the endless white knightng you enjoy all the ffig time, everywhere you go. try a couple of days when 99.99 of people are completely unwilling towards you, have no respect for anything you say and/or do, did, want to, or are trying to do. and icing on the cake is the very person/people you are doing it for are the most unconsiddering, ungratefull and entitled of all. Just be a decent and upstanding human being around your kids and they will grow up to be decent and upstanding human beings... That's 99 of the "job"description right there. if it wasn't mensioned i wouldn't have bothered even to bring it up because it is actualy so simple and easy, one might even say it kinda comes natural... Barbara Riley Child support isn't about supporting the children. That's a lie politicians use to justify robbing a person's wallet. Dear Women,We already know what you're capable of. We also know what you're not capable of. We've lived with you since the beginning. We've respected you since the beginning because we literally CAME from you. If we've disrespected you, we can own up to that, whether it was due to ignorance or having a bad role model. But for the love of almighty God, STOP trying to CONTROL who we are. Who we've always been. We are the fighters. We are the protectors. We are the initiators, and the providers. We acknowledge you are also like that in some regards, and for the rare exceptions who are not like the average woman , are like us in ALL regards. But just because there are the rare few does not mean that applies to each and every one of you as the norm. We are not calling you weak or inferior, only that you ARE different from us in a number of ways and both sexes tend to have strengths where the other doesn't. So please, don't let your desire to show how "strong" you are move you towards rejecting our admiration and courtesy. Because without you, we'd be nothing more than beasts. However, as a fair warning, don't be surprised to discover that when you abuse or take advantage of our admiration, courtesies, and gifts, or when you decide to step onto the battlefield we men have known for our entire existence, that we will remember what you did. That we will act accordingly not based upon solely rational thought, but instinct. The instinct to protect ourselves, to survive. Anything that we come to know which hurts us we learn to either avoid, or negate completely by whatever means necessary. So please, stop hurting us. Because I promise you there will be consequences for that in the not so far off future.Sincerely,Men.	Nothing, Woman	Age - Youngsters, Gender - General	2/314	0.637

Ok so if men know that women are under stress and are juggling a lot every day, WOULDN'T BEING THERE TO LEND A HAND BE A GOOD THING? My word. Just because a man opens a door for a woman doesn't mean he thinks she is incapable of opening a door because she is lesser than. Maybe it's the opposite and he is respecting her, like you might do for your boss, your parent, etc. No matter what some people just want to act like they're being treatas like a victim and that is only further dividing men and women today. Can you imagine being a freshman boy in college who is polite? He opens the door for a female student and gets shut down, belittled, and made to feel stupid, etc. Modern feminism is really driving young men and women apart. Here's a thought: women like Suzanne Venker who embrace chivalry should be allowed to espouse the beauty of this "dance" (as she puts it) and women like Wendy Osefo who expect men to "rise to meet us where we are" should be allowed to expect men to rise to the occasion without each side belittling and demeaning the other side. Unfortunately, it is the case all too often that one side gets offended by the other and tries to turn the issue into a moral issue so that they can silence the other side. Let women who want to be "alpha women" do what they want and live the lives that are the natural outflow of that choice, and let the women who want to embrace the traditional roles for women do what they want and live the life that follows. Nonetheless, I was pleasantly surprised to see that these two women were respectful to one another and Wendy didn't accuse Suzanne of being a "traitor to her gender " or anything like that. Of course women have killed Chivalry... And there's nothing wrong with that, as long as they accept the consequences. If women are equal, why should I risk my life to save or protect them. If they want equal pay, then they should do equal work... so why should I offer to lift the heavy items onto the top shelf for them, for instance. The problem is that many feminists want it both ways. They still want all of the past advantages of being a woman ... they don't want any of that to end... but they also want all of the advantages of being a man. But you can't have both! If you want all the advantages I (as a man) have, then you need to assume all the responsibilities and risks that I have as well. If you're willing to do that, then I have no problem with you being treated as an equal. If you aren't, then you're not really trying for equality; you're simply parlaying your advantages (and the chivalry of men who innately want to give you things) to gain ever greater and greater advantages. It's pretty simple really ... feminism killed chivalry. Feminists wanted to be treated just like men ... so we treated them just like men, and they complained that we weren't being chivalrous. The acts of common courtesy were simultaneously demanded as a sign of respect and demonized as sexism . The main problem with feminists is that they want it both ways all the time ... so we ignore them. Sadly this also effects normal women who don't adhere to the religion of feminism ... and it adversely effects the men who no longer feel comfortable interacting with women for fear of being berated, chastised and in some cases ... arrested.. It boils down to, if you want to be a "strong, independent woman who don't need no man" then fine ... don't call us when you think you need us, do it yourself. Change your own tire, move your own furniture, open your own doors, fix your own clogged sinks ... there are plenty of women who appreciate men and plenty of men who appreciate women, it's the feminists neither of us can stand. danimari6 The writing is on the wall ; but no one dares to say it. In order for men to go back to being chivalrous on mass again ; you would have to take away women's rights(suffrage, running for politics, military service, career mobility, etc.). That black woman on the right seems to think it's a two way street where she can have it both ways(men opening the door being chivalrous ; and women being strong and independent) ; but the only problem with that, is that you can't go in two opposite directions at the same time. In other words, she wants to have her cake and eat it too ; but it just can't work that way. Until women decide to give up their "rights" and/or "privileges"(which they won't) ; they can expect fewer and fewer men to open the door for them. It's really that simple. Nathaniel Woodard Well said sir! You're absolutely right about all of it too. Feminism is a mental disorder that should be treated by a doctor. It has made finding a relationship more difficult (in general) and has effectively killed chivalry. The worst part about it is that feminists don't speak for the majority of women, they're just really loud and annoying. They speak for lonely cat ladies that hate men because they've either never been in a relationship, or they've only dated "nice guys". That's just a guess on my part. I have never talked to any to find out. It's not worth the time or energy I'd consume, or the inevitable aneurysm I'd get trying to understand how their warped minds work . AriEl MiX I get what you are saying. In a egalitarian legal system, assault has to be treated as assault regardless of the victim's ability to defend themselves. If a small man hits a bodybuilder MMA woman , and she is clearly able to easily defend herself, this is still assault.	Woman	Gender - General	1/50	2.0
whatever000whenever I agree there are nuances but really... honestly those are rare occasions. For the most part a man is stronger than a woman and is able to defend himself while a women is not able to defend herself against him. Scottie boombottie there are always exceptions to the rule (there is a video in which a thin girl who was a professional karate trainer was attacked by two burglars knocked one down and his friend run away, both were built bigger than her) but the rule still stands. AriEl MiX I understand that a woman is no match for a man in any context but there is also the matter of the woman being stupid enough to not think it through that if tries to start a fight she will find herself in the hospital or six feet underground, but for the most part in Texas a woman hits you three times you have the legal right to to assault her back and trust me a man can take 3 punches and give back 3 without an issue I mean I can wait to get punched three times I'll be patient enough to give her back an entire platter of pain and deep deep regret.And to be honest I don't tend to punch even though I will I know how to box, I enjoy the simple things I'll just throw the person off of a ledge and that goes for anybody who crosses me incorrectly. They seem to want a kind of "equality" they can turn on and off as they like (no cry about the gender disparity among garbage collectors or sanitation plant workers) PLUS retain all of the legal and social privilege and entitlement society and the legal system granted them in bygone days in recognition of disparate male and female roles in evolution, the family, society. certainly has died because women think that a man is weak if he is chivalrous. Now this does not apply to all women. But, it does apply to enough women. Women go out there and they seek the bad boy the one that's overconfident or confident. The one that seems to put his needs and desires first. All at the same time deep down inside they're hardwired to want that man to nurture them to take care of them to protect them but also give them the freedom to be themselves. The question is they don't know what they're supposed to be right now. I'm strong black and I'm independent. I'm an independent woman . There was a thing called interdependence. That's when men and women in a relationship in a society depend on one another. And that means you have to establish to an extent certain roles. In any corporation in any military there are roles that are established. There's someone that is in charge and takes the brunt of the responsibility there's someone else that executes showed two aspects of the things that need to be done. What is a cook, or someone in supply, or a general everybody has everybody has a position. And these positions although all unnecessary are not equal in authority or power. ImakeSnowflakesMelt "I met a single female out of the literal billions of females on the planet that is a contradiction to your statement, therefore your statement is entirely invalid."Yes. Individual variance is a thing. No. It does not mean rules or principles or ideas are entirely invalid. And who said being an alpha female only manifests as being a dominatrix? For that matter, who said being an "alpha" was exclusively about sexual behavior?	Sexual	Gender - General	1/74	1.351

Jonathan Vega Let's not make arguments about brain chemistry and innate biological drives if we don't have any concrete evidence to back that up. Saying that men aren't likely to be intimidated when there's no physical threat is fine, and I agree. That doesn't mean it's "engrained" in men's brains. And, again, it very much depends on what you mean by alpha behavior. Is a physically fit, 120 lbs woman going to physically intimidate a man who's 6'4" and 200 lbs? Of course not. But physical intimidation and sexual behavior are not the only expressions of dominance in human beings because we're also defined by our social dynamics. I've known plenty of women who know how to play their game. They know that overtly challenging their man will eventually lead to him feeling his masculinity or position is threatened which tends to make men behave more aggressively. To avoid all the problems that come with that, they concede certain things face to face while working behind the scenes and manipulating situations to their advantage to get what they want. That's what I mean by alpha females and alpha males playing different games. It's entirely possible for an alpha male to think he's got his girl under lockdown without knowing just how much she has him playing into her hands. Oh, and just because something isn't known to you doesn't mean it's unknown in general. What would you call, for example, Joan of Arc? A woman who commanded armies of men. Human behavior can usually be averaged out to establish general trends, but individual variance means that we're capable of all sorts of things depending on the situation. So yes. It's entirely possible that there's an alpha female out there that would either be the equal or superior of an alpha male.Edit: Also, I've been seeing people mention relationships where a woman doesn't act alpha around her man. That's because it's a romantic relationship. Having an alpha type personality as a female is, generally, not considered desirable in relationships with men. So we change our behavior to be more suitable and complimentary as partners. It's far less likely that a man will want to stay with an aggressive and dominant woman than vice versa. I also guess it'd be hard to maintain a good relationship if both people are always trying to one up each other and constantly fighting for the dominant position. Feminists never address the elephant in the room: If women can do anything a man can, why don't they?? I learned that chivalry was dead a number of years ago when I was yelled at by a woman after I held a door open for her. She was literally 3 feet behind me and my natural instinct was to hold it for the next person. I had no idea if they were male or female. Fast forward 15 minutes and this same woman (who was quite short btw) came up to me in an aisle and so sweetly asked me for help reaching something off the top shelf because she could not reach it. I simply looked at her and told her that hat this was unfortunate and had she chosen to speak so nicely to be previously I would be happy to help. But since she chose to instead yell and scream about me doing something to help he she had made it VERY clear that she is to be left alone to so everything herself. Yeah, but they're unwilling to take responsibility for anything, much less destroying their own privileges.As for the woman on the right claiming "we do it all", just remember that the biggest social ills--teen pregnancy, violent abuse, truancy, dropout rates, drug use, teen smoking & drinking, gang affiliation, prison incarceration, and the rest--almost invariably have single mother homes at their roots. What's really happening is they're covering up women's failures with a propaganda scheme in which any and all recognition of their failures is deemed " misogyny " and the speaker is cast out. Chivalry didn't die, Chivalry was brutally murdered! While holding a door open, Chivalry was hit in the head, knocked down a flight of stairs, pulled outside, tied to a bumper, dragged down an exceptionally rough road, then sent down a boat ramp into a cold lake... murdered!Women today emulate the worst traits ever cited in men. It wasn't enough that women literally had everything; protection, total control of the household and generally the finances, constantly being put on a pedal-stool and praised, the opportunity to compete evenly on nearly every playing field, grotesquely preferential treatment in the Courts, and a plethora of excuses to get out of just about everything... while being hailed as a hero, because being a mom is soo tough. Nope, that wasn't enough! So you decided to fabricate issues, sensationalize incidents of rarity, virtue signal, victimize one-another, actively diminish the role of men, decimate the family unit at the expense of society, and champion the lunacy of the lowest common denominator. Wow! what an accomplishment, don't you feel proud and empowered? The Feminist movement began and became popular in affluent western societies during the past 150 years, a time when many women became capable of raising a child successfully without the help of a man. If she can't find a suitable man, an affluent woman can now hire help. If she can't afford to hire help, the government will bail her out. Thus, we men have become optional. But as the women on the left of this video pointed out, we have evolved over 2+ million years to provide and protect our women. And now they don't really need us. We're like fish out of water. More and more western woman have stopped doing the things we men appreciate. Chivalry is dead, the institution of marriage is teetering and natural selection is in big trouble. Sgt Steel "Surely you have heard of cultural marxism by now??"Yes, and the book I'm now reading is making a case for blaming the Marquis de Sade for the Sexual Revolution. It's "Libido Dominandi" by E Michael Jones. He says that Sexual Liberation was always about manipulating and controlling people by means of their sexual drives and passions. He says that the demon-infested ruling class want us all to think and act like homosexuals even if we aren't homosexual . And yes, I don't blame women for causing the problem. I blame women for using their power for so much evil and not even feeling sorry about it. Same as I blame everyone else for.	Homosexual, Sexual	Gender - General, Sexual Identity - General	4/115	3.478
SRTSROGE srtstroge I'm reading a book now by E Michael Jones, "Libido Dominandi" and he explains how sexual liberation is a means of manipulation and control and is the root of Revolutions like the French one, which de Sade was a major influence on. He explains how de Sade's version of sexuality led to feminism as a backlash because women figured out to some extent that they were getting screwed but as we see now feminists are stupid idiots who blame the Patriarchy instead of deviant degenerate dirt bags like de Sade and his lies about getting liberated. Feminists demand a right to abort their babies but they're toofa king stupid to see how that only serves to objectify them even more. Really stupid. I can't express how stupid society has become. I am 53 years old and I have never, in my entire life, met even a single adult woman that has meet the minimum standard for being a Lady under the code of Chivalry.When woman are not ladies, why do they expect to be treated as one?Women never accept responsibility for their actions.Women also only want the good parts of equality, but not the not fun things. Obviously no one bothers to look at the past, and courteous behaviour between men and women. So many dispose of chivalry being dead because one side does nothing in regards to it (often being the man). Yet don't account that the other side does nothing as well (often being the woman ). Over time BOTH sides are at fault. If someone says chivalry/courteous behavior was only expected of men, fail to read it was a standard between gentleman and gentlewoman. One side should not be expected to be courteous, while the other side simply acts entitled. If one side is courteous, then the other should respond in kind. And thus chivalry (or simply manners, etiquette, etc) reborn, even if in just a few people.	Nothing, Woman	Age - Youngsters, Gender - General	3/123	2.439
It's in a man's DNA to want to care about women, what's wrong with opening a door for a woman ? When you have women yelling at men for doing kind actions, encouraging each other that the other gender is trash, and when you see how false accusations can instantly ruin a man career, it's natural that men will just force themselves to stop caring. This is a lose lose situation for both genders. The more anger and hate brought in, the more it will rebound...	Gender, Woman	Gender - General	2/85	2.353

I think the core issue is missed here.It's more about what women decide the intent of "chivalry" is rather than the ACTUAL intent of a man.As a man, I look forward to the opportunity to do something helpful or special for a lady friend. My intent is for them to understand I think they are special and I want to show them how special they are by doing something for them. It has NOTHING to do with implying they are weak or incapable - it NEVER has. That's just twisted and sick.If a woman decides it is some sort of power trip or domination thing, that is HER problem. It is unfortunate that women like this will likely never understand that they have a problem.As a man, I appreciate it when a woman opens a door for me or offers to buy me lunch.Modern "feminism" is an absolute poison that is emotionally and intellectually destroying the lives of women. By the late 50's Women's Lib introduced generations of women that thought liberation was to behave like MEN - much more promiscuous than any average man could ever be. That meant that men very often got fu*ked on the first date. But it also meant a whole lot more. Women gave up on Motherhood to a large extent and no longer assumed the duty of even replacing their generation. They felt entitled to screw around on their husbands and lost the ability to pair bond, by turning into jaded sl*ts. And they divorced husband 1 when the timing was right - to cash in on assets and support payments etc. - simply because they realized that they loved themselves much more than anyone else. Years ago I drove a bus. I was going upstate and along the way struck up a nice conversation with an older woman and a 20 something woman in the front seat. Along the way I stopped at a diner to drop off a package and usually got a cup of coffee when inside. I suggested to the women that they can get a cup if they wanted while I took care of business. We ended up together at the register so I told the cashier that i would pay for the women's coffee. The young woman immediately became indignant and said, "Are you paying for it because I'm a woman ?" The older woman was horrified and clearly upset at her for this but held her tongue. I said its not a big deal and she let me pay for it. That was my initiation to feminism, and if this is to be the norm you can have women. Women want respect, but when you do things that honor and show them respect they use it to complain about. Chivalry and its sibling, romance, appeal to female vanity, and that follows the course of the moon. Whatever magic was thought to be in that, was born of female ideation and collusion. Venker is right, women have killed that mystique, but she is wrong that men are confused. They just don't want to have any part of the shenanigans perpetrated by women who are confused. Its not in my DNA to 'provide and protect' any more than it is to thief and pillage. A man's identity is not centered in appeasing a woman's vanity. This is the myth inculcated by a male's mother at the cradle. This has not "just" happened. It is the intended result and it has been the goal for decades. In college in 1979, I held the door for a young woman in Colorado. I am raised in the south she in New York city(we in the fly over part of the country always add city). She F-bombed me and said she did not need my help! At the age of 19 I had never heard a white female use language like that (sorry if that offends you-that is the truth none the less). Not long after, I was in a class and was called on to answer the female teacher in the affirmative. I responded "yes mam". She at once, said to me with seething anger to get in the hall. She follwed me out and very loudly told me (also with f-bombs) to never talk back to her with that smart-elic "yes mam" again or I would be kicked out of her class and if she could kicked out of school. What is funny to me is the teacher failed all of the football players regaurdless of improvement in reading speed or comprehension. One of the young men had a 4.0 (out side linebacker named Tom never made less than a 92 average in everyother class for 4 years except this speed reading class). What is funny is that I dated the girl I opened the door for. And she got to the place where she would wait for me to open doors and for me to pull out and hold her chair and other evil and insulting and belittling actions like that by me.Are women weaker? Yes they are. Is that why I hold the door? No. I do "chivalrous" things because I value her and my actions will show that. Chivalry is no longer required, if women want equality, chivalry can't exist - how can it, how can men treat women as equals and still be chivalrous? That's not equal treatment, that is superior treatment, women want special treatment just because they're women but want to be treated as equals? This isn't fine dining a la carte, you don't get to pick something from this section that you like, then something from this other section and then another item from another section, you don't get all the good with none of the bad, equal means equal, you get the bad with the good, equal means you have to work hard, as hard as men, you can't just rely on being treated differently because of your gender . This is a good thing for men, marriage rates are dropping, people are having fewer children, updated conscription laws mean that if required, women will have to serve in the military if requested to do so, not just men, no more alimony for women, in fact, let women go to work and if you happen to find a guy who marries, I hope he stays home to raise the kids and if things don't work out between the two of you, I hope you have to pay him alimony and child support - the pendulum swings both ways, if you want real equality, you can have it, let's see if you can actually handle it.,	Gender	Gender - General	1/241	0.415

Actually, the woman is supposed to be the helper of the man. Of course nowadays people think that's demeaning to women, but I believe in it whole-heartedly. When I'm married I want to be a keeper of the home and nourish my husband as he provides for our family. Many people have forgotten those roles, which is why society is such a mess.	Woman	Gender - General	1/63	1.587

Yes, I think that a man must have a mission in his life and the woman must support him in his mission, and i also think that in the western society many women have not forgotten their role, but abandoned their role as wives, as mothers and as housekeepers because they were brainwashed by feminism into believing that wives, mothers, housekeepers are oppressed slaves and also society inflate their ego teaching them that they are queens (and a queen doesn't do house chores nor does she cooks etc) meanwhile society still expects from men to do they rolle (pay on first dates, hold the door open for women, be a provider and protector etc) which is normal, it even says that this is his identity, which is not normal (a man who doesn't go on dates, doesn't hold doors open for women or doesn't have a family to protect and provide for is not a man without identity), thus in the relations between men and women especially in marriage there is no more a healthy balance and this has lead to a decrease in marriage and birth rates resulting in the decline of the western civilisation. ( I know thing are more complicated than this)P.S. Promiscuity destroys the pair bonding ability of a person that he or she cannot become a good spouse and a good parent. As a 51 year old man, I have 2 points on this. 1) Chivalry equals weakness to women. A guy that does what used to be considered as manners and etiquette are considered as weak and women can do as they please. 2) I got my divorce in 2002. I said I would remarry as soon as I met a woman who passed one simple test. Am I better off with her in my life than without her. It is now 2019 and I am still single and don't see it changing. The woman talking about how she is strong and independent and he can accept it or needs to step up is exactly the problem. Men tend to be analytical people. When the costs outweigh the benefits, we do not do it. Women today want all the perks of the past and do nothing to earn those perks. If a man caves and gets a relationship with these women, has a kid, he has a very real, better than 50 chance of losing his house, half his assets, and the privilege of paying child support for 18 years. I'll open a car door for a girl I'm taking out on a date but the true test for me is if she reaches over and, at least, attempts to unlock or open my door by the time I walk around to my side of the vehicle so I can get in. In my opinion, it shows the reciprocation of a respect and mindfulness towards others. Courtesy is a universal concept which I'm finding alot of people, both men and women, are lacking these days. Self absorption, I feel, is the root of the deterioration of positive attributes, such as respect, common courtesy, manners, common sense, and general awareness of ones surroundings. It's ironic how in a day in age where people are so concerned with how they feel or how they are affected by others, that they can be so unaware, or just straight up ignorant of how they, themselves, affect people around them. Absolutely. I believe in Male and Female. Masculine and feminine. Testosterone and Estrogen. Feminism and the message of today is "Women you need to be more masculine, more male, and act more testosterone driven". Ladies this just scientifically and naturally was not meant for you. Everything in the world is push pull. Greater lesser. Masculine feminine. Positive negative attraction. It just doesnt work long term for a man to be masculine and a female to masculine as well. I guarentee you the black woman above on the right her husband is a mild feminine trait kind of guy. Thats how their relationship is working. Chivalry is a way for a man to show a woman how much he cares about her by going out of his way to treat her nicely, e.g. opening doors for her, letting her walk first, pulling out chairs for her etc. It means the man thinks highly of her otherwise why would he care? I am a woman , a strong woman ...and my strength is feminine, not masculine... God has made me different, and I excel in different areas than a man does... Chivalry is an essential part of romance and love, caring and respect...and the world has put this all on its head... What is wrong is called right and what is black is called white... What is evil is called good and what is poison is called food... We were told to walk upright by the Holy Word of God...and He placed our heads above our hearts, so our common sense will trump our emotions... He has placed our hearts above our stomachs...so our compassion and empathy toward others, will trump our own needs and wants,...and He has placed our stomachs above our loins...so what is needed will be more important than our lusts and desires... But the world has turned this upside down... Now our lusts and desires has become more important than what we truly need...and what we deem we need ourselves, has become more important than displaying emotions of sympathy and empathy to the needs of others...and as for common sense? It is dragged through the mud, and we bang our heads against rocks, while critical thinking has become the least important thing on our agenda.... What you may or may not know or have first hand experience of...is the fact that LUST is uncontrollable... and here is the reason... Lust is the desire of a demon, manifested and acted out through a human avatars... When you have reached the point where lust has taken over your life, you have become a slave.... I'm not a feminist, but I'll be damned if I sit in a car and wait for a man to open the door for me. If I walk up to a door at a store, and a man offers to hold it open for me, fine, or even a woman for that matter. That is called common courtesy. Damn right it is dead and Damn right women killed it. As a single man in his 50s, I find women immediately want commitment, shared assets ... They seem to want to be treated like Princesses. I still pay for meals and what not, but generally I am like Fuck No. I don't treat women with a tenth of the respect and courtesy I used to. My attitude has changed due to family court bias, affirmative action, (where I have actually been told I cannot hire the best candidate but must pick a women, and lost several job opportunities due to quotas, despite being better qualified - always a top 5 employee in every company I have worked for - five in all). Further, I don't even want to speak with women in the workplace - whereas before I was very helpful. But after my good intentions of helping train women being misinterpreted as flirting - I wont help anymore. I have women grab my package while I was bending over tying my shoes, or demonstrate (to my disgust) how they could deep throat a banana , but yet more than once have had ANONYMOUS complaints to HR, that cost the company time and money to investigate, only to find ABSOLUTELY NO grounds. Here's the truth:All men and women are lonely and have low self esteem - women are more sensitive to being in that department - medical fact. Women will date the idiot boys who never grew up because their parents didn't teach them Theology, courting, romance, etc. So, men grew up to be lazy, jock(ish), lovers of sex , money and themselves for their wants such as toys (sports memorabilia, cars, athletic things, bbqs, man cave, etc)Women would go on dating apps and judge the people from tinder to other apps and sites and only lust after anyone that looks like Thor. Meanwhile, the actual romantic guy is stranded and she won't go after him because he may have a magnificent heart but physically looks like Shrek to her. Which is than good for the guy because more than likely, she's had sex with countless guys and she may not know she has one or more stds. So, men gave up on dating and marriage. Since 2015, countless articles have written about that. The main issue is - say this 'Disney Princess' finds someone great, she'll go deep into investigations and spy on him from his past, where he lives, his social media, likes, etc and she'll force herself a reason to get away from him - judging him and rushing off to her 6 pack idiot ex. So, guys caught up on this and basically gave up. At this point with the high in divorces, men find it cheaper and better to live alone - which is sad.	Sex	Gender - General	2/260	0.769

I am a 63 year old moderate independent voter and retired U.S. Army Master Sergeant (1972-1993). The problem here is not 'toxic masculinity' but 'toxic extremist femininity'. It seems to be the goal of feminists, and the far left, to turn men into women and women into men, and Hollywood is doing its part in that campaign. It is no wonder many young men and women, are increasingly confused about their gender and how to act. Don't believe me? Just watch an episode of the hit comedy series 'The Big Bang Theory'. You will quickly notice that ALL of the strong characters are women and the very weak, almost pathetic, characters who often question their gender roles, are ALL of the male characters. Men and women were designed biologically to be very different from each other and there is NOTHING wrong with that. As an example, in traditional heterosexual marriage it is a partnership of two different genders with each of the partners bringing their own unique biological essence and hard wiring to the marriage, and this has been a very successful formula for raising good families over many millennia. On the other hand, the lack of a male parent in a traditional family has been well documented as a major cause leading to the children, especially the male ones, turning out troubled or becoming gang members. As for me I was born to be a male, am comfortable with that, and I am not at all confused about my gender. It is what I am and all I wish to be. I am also polite and respectful to the opposite sex, and very much admire them as they are. In my opinion there is nothing wrong with feminine women and masculine men, and it would be a very sad world indeed without those two unique gender qualities. BTW, in case you are wondering, I have been married happily to the same very feminine woman for almost 45 years now. As the French say, and I heartedly agree, 'Vive la difference!'. Or just reverse the genders, which always works a treat, now you as a woman have to romance me, & make me feel special, make sure the diamond ring is up to standard & any perceived slight against me will break the conditions of your lifelong probation. How powerful do you feel now? People need to look a bit more into the psychology of humans & how our instincts & behaviours were shaped by our quest to survive, rather than just looking at it superficially like, "man big, man powerful, women little, woman weak". What I don't understand is, if I'm going in someplace, I open the door for myself and, there a person coming in behind me, out of respect for another human being, I hold the door. I always get a thank you. But if a man does the same thing, many women get angry with him for just being considerate and courteous to another person. Feminist haven't killed chivalry. They've gone beyond that. They've killed human decency. Everyone should be liberated. But there's a big difference between being a liberated woman and a pushy broad. The way I see it, instead of wondering why there are so many gay men nowadays, the question should be: why aren't there more? If I was a man, I wouldn't want one of the women of today. Again, we see the same thing from Fox News and as usual, they bring in TWO WOMEN and NO MAN to discuss these issues. And THAT is the real problem with male/female relations in the USA today. ALL the CONVERSATION is from the perspective of WOMEN.Statistically, according to the Center For Disease Control, the average woman is 5-4 inches tall and weighs 167 lbs. That is as heavy as a MAN was during the 1960s and the male was on average, 5-8.Today, again, according to the CDC, 35 of American women are OBESE . The MAJORITY of women are FAT . And it gets worse. According to Mental Health Experts, 25 of younger American women are so psychologically fragile, so psychotic and Neurotic that they need a mental health drug to just get through an average day. The number goes up to almost one out of three after a woman turns 40 years old . What does it say about any society in which almost 40 of its society is on mental health drugs? The issue has gone WAY BEYOND Chivalry, and is now at the stage of Critical Mass. Men are literally frightened to be with women because according to our bizarre laws, men have little if any rights in our society ONCE THEY MARRY OR COHABIT. The pendulum has swung so far in the OPPOSITE direction, that Society has literally castrated men's ability to make rational decisions. 'Once You stick Your Penis in a woman , You literally become Her Bitch. She has complete control of You. And WOMEN are ruling the USA.But we cannot blame women for this. The reality is that it is MEN that have allowed this to happen and even encouraged this process. So yes, Chivalry is dead, and women have killed it. But MEN have allowed it to happen. Suzanne gets femininity. It's what separates women from others that are NOT women. My grandmother worked for the Corp of Engineers and raised 6 children and supported her husband who provided for the family. The difference from today's woman ... she never let her work and independence distract her from nurturing her children and honoring her husband. I love Beyoncé yet she is not a role model of femininity. She is a woman of survival and loyalty. A woman tends to become her life experience. Anon E Moose I started dating a European woman .. she's an absolutely fantastic person. Very thoughtful, kind, interesting, fun, and fair. Pretty much I have no chance with her because I've been ruined by the selfish insanity of American girls.	Woman	Gender - General	1/40	2.5
I now only hold door's for men, because they appreciate it and understand it is common courtesy in navigating through a building. For some reason, if I held a door for a woman , they immediately bring gender into it by interpreting the action through a gendered len's in order to create an argument. It seems like they are trying to make themselves feel powerful by finding any way they can to throw abuse at a man. It makes me wonder what is wrong with their personality to have that need to attack anyone who doesn't have a vagina.	Common, Gender, Woman	Gender - General, Social Class - Working class	3/98	3.061
Slick Van Tanoid ... it's God's way of weeding out the bad Girls. If a woman doesn't treat you the way you want her to, she will be that way in marriage. Just know that there are good girls out there. And yes, the hunt can be difficult. Stay single until you find her. Don't get involved with the wrong girl. If you treat a good girl good, and they treat you good, and you've got a friend forever. If you can't find a girl, just raise your respect for yourself. But a pair of new shoes, exercise, take up painting, go in a trip by yourself. Improve upon yourself. Best advice for both men and women.	Woman	Gender - General	1/117	0.855
Chivalry is dead and feminist have killed it. You want to be in the infantry open your own damn door. If my woman runs her mouth to some other dude and she hits him she is on her own. You want to hit a man you put your place in a man.	Woman	Gender - General	1/52	1.923

+TheMusketITuckedIt That kind of sex is no good.... It just denies a sacred bond that can form between the two Sexes ((male and female)).	Sex	Gender - General	1/24	4.167
trok 13 Don't fool yourself. Every single woman is to a degree a feminist. Don't believe it? Try taking away their special privileges like alimony child custody and call to register them with selective services, see how many will support you on actually making things equal.	Woman	Gender - General	1/46	2.174
Mark Race feminist women yes. Not every single woman did, I'm a woman and I hate feminist, they killed marriage and chivalry and I hate them for it.	Race, Woman	Ethnicity - General, Gender - General	3/28	10.714

You know where I like it...You're so right and It's already happened. China and India already have four times the U. S. Population. A huge amount of the US population is now from these countries and Mexico who are all having kids like crazy . Their divorce rates are less than 1/2. Liberals and feminism are quickly destroying our country and especially the Caucasian races who are the main supporters. Men are to blame as well for letting it happen. TheOrganicartist you don't have sauce, you don't know that's why.... You don't know lol. Keep it real, that's why every woman I see assume I have others and they are right and I tell it like it is, and guess what. Still get the action. You sir have no sauce	Woman	Gender - General	1/50	2.0

kam shaft Well I don't now more and more men are not getting married these days that are in my age bracket which is like 24 till like 28 years of age and they Have basically written of women completely and don't even associate with them because it is gotten so bad	Age	Age - General	2/52	3.846
Warmaster 7 Men did too. This stupidity started because of White woman and White men allowed while Black people were indoctrinated.	Black, Woman	Ethnicity - Black, Gender - General	2/21	9.524
fantasia243645 I was talking about who is responsible for the destruction of the Family.At some point we as a people have got to stop blaming other people who don't look like us for our own decisions.I didn't get married. I don't have children. That was a decision I made.I didn't blame the 'white man'. I didn't blame anyone. I made a choice. Black people's problems are self inflicted. Nobody made your mother throw out your Father to get welfare and child support. That was decision she made. Women throwing the Fathers of their children out if the house. Is the reason MOST WOMEN were so easily led astray by the feminists. The one Man that would clothe and feed a woman and her children. Women tossed away like a broken toy. That is self inflicted. Mark Race Yes, but so is Fox. In fact, Fox was somewhat uniquely actually created by Roger Ailes to be fake news. So it's impossible to go back to a time when Fox News was even arguably NOT fake news.	Race	Ethnicity - General	1/40	2.5
Mark Race Yes, I am sure that you believe that, although the weird bit you added about "and gay or transsexual " was sort of out of left field since it has nothing to do with this at all. But I'll just put that kooky shit aside, because I think it's probably just some sort of right-wing version of virtue-signaling. (Making you, what, a social injustice warrior? Well, whatever.)Anyway, when people who watch MSNBC sit and listen to Rachel Maddow talk about Russia for the thousandth time, they believe that they're watching real news just as much as you believe you're watching real news when you watch Sean Hannity tell you an endless stream of lies and half-truths as he goes through any contortions necessary to keep propagandizing for Trump. You each look at the other and think, "What they're watching is bullshit," and you're actually each right!What you don't realize, however, is that it's equally as true of each of you. I'm sure you tell yourself that Fox News is real news, and that's lovely and very cute. But it's also not true, and in fact it never was true, and you're a deluded fool.Of course, you'll believe what you wish to believe regardless of the truth. So enjoy your fake, corporate news.
