I’m aboriginal there ain’t no sorry day here they actually celebrate the day they took over on 26th January and won’t change the day still.... there is no justice here for the elderly that was taking away and put in white schools and convinced them they were White there is so much history here I can’t say in one comment but us aboriginals do not even stand for the Australian anthem which is called 'Australia Fair' . As usual when viewing these kinds of videos people bring up how white people are evil because of things that happend in the past that they have nothing to do with. More or less everyone was trying to colonize things in those times, it was only the europeans that where first with the right technology. If any other race would have had the same advancements in those times they would have done precicly the same thing, it is in human nature to explore and build in new places in search of resources. It is not a white people thing its a person with a bigger stick thing.	Nothing, Race	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - General	2/107	1.869

if someone need the text here you go:) Australia's aboriginal people have faced extreme historical persecution. so much so, that in 1998 Australia implemented an annual. "National Sorry Day" This holiday serves as a form of a appologi, and it raises awarensess of indigenous populations. So who are Australia's aboriginal people? Well, Australia is home to many different indigenous populations. they include the Wiradjuri in New South Wales, and the Noongar in Western Australia. Aboriginal populations are often grouped together and referred to as "aborigines", however some consider the term pejorative. instead, legally, the native populations of Australia are referred to as "Aboriginals and torres Strait Islanders". some also prefer regional terms, like "Koori" in New South Wales, or "murri" in Queensland. Recently, a genetic study found that native Australian peoples may have left Africa up to 75,000 years ago, "likely representing one of the oldes continous populations outside Africa". For centuries they thrived in Australia usually in nomadic societies. some developed distinct tools like the boomerang, used for hunting, and the didgeridoo, a musical instrument witch is still popular today. their extensive lagends and oral traditions are sometimes referred to as "Dreaming", and help exsplain their way of life and the world around them. by the the time europeans first established a colony in Australia in 1788, native populations were thought to number around 300,000, and there may have been an estimated 300 different aborigianls laanguages spoken. However, with the subsequent colonization of Australia, new diseases, violence spurred by raciscm, and oppressive land-use policies deveastated many of the traditional societies. currently, aboriginal people account for just 3 of the Australian population. only about 75 aboriginal languages still remain, and many are in dagner of dying out completely. Up until several decades ago aboriginals and torres Strait Islanders, faced extreme racism, and goverment encroachment on their territories. many where not given Australian citizenship, nor federal suffrage until the mid 20th century. Altso, during the time, the Australian government supported forcibly taking aboriginal children away from their parents. (as we whatched a movie about) The reason for such policies varied but maby claimed it was for "chil protection" and "resocialization". The children taken away from their homes where eventually known as the "stolen Generation" and were often raised to be domestic servants and laborers. The govermant has since formally apologized for their part in creating the "Stolen Generation", and "National Sorry Day" is specifically in honnor of them. although in modern times, there has been a huge change in the governments's attitudes towards abouriginal people, high rates of unemployment, poverty, crime, and health problems for the populations persist. Aboriginal representation in the Australian government also remains low. And even today, land disputes between indigenous groups and the government are ongoing

White Australian male is the most hard done by today. No grants no jobs advertized specifically for a white Australian and still hated by because im white Australian male. Im sick of people whingeing about what happened not to them but thier ancestors this does not help unification this does not bring peace or love to mixed races. I agree that the stolen genration was not the right thing although in saying this the heart was in the right place to stop young aboriginal chikdren from being raped and treatly very harshly by there elders. Please Stop this hatred to Australians that had nothing to do with past mistakes it will not change the past which is gone it will only hurt the future of the next generation of young Australians through segregation. Please please for our childrens sake bring equality to all Australian children wether black brown yellow or white. We are all Australian we are all one lets teach our children to treat and love each other as an Australian proud to be Australian who lives in a beautiful country with peace in our hearts. Im a 4th generation Australian and I know my family has only ever helped its neighbors black brown yellow or white. And lived with peace and love serving our neighbours as true friends.God bless us all please stop this hatred to people your own people please lets help our children see the past as the past and not forget what happened but stop blaming for those who had nothing to do with it. See the present as now holding hands now giving eachother a hug now and the future and plan it together for growth and prosperity the better for our children working together as my ancestors did who intermingled and married and loved eachother no matter what race or colour you were. But for the spirit that dwelled within. God Bless Australia God Bless our Queen .To all black and white yellow brown Australians who fought and died for what we have today to live in peace together to celibrate our differences together eat dance sing have relatiinships have children together Lets not forget them all who were black brown yellow and white. Have a good day and get on with it with peace and mercy and if required we can fight together so no one will tell us were not Australian but we can show the world what it trully is to be a proud fearless strong race of Australians. We can still celibrate who we are by shareing our cultural backgrounds now thats truly the true Australian WAYAnd by the way and ways of life. Only through unity we will have strength if segregated we will loose or strength to stand together and help eachother. +Dmoney Ali The First People?In Chapter 1 'An Aboriginal Invasion of Australia' by Queensland author Rodney Liddell he states: The irrefutable and astounding anthropological evidence that the original indigenous aborigine of Australia was of a Papuan race [Ulotrici] and not the present race of aborigines [Cymotrici] whose Pre-Dravidian ancestors invaded Australia from Southern India and Ceylon [Sri Lanka] and annihilated the original Papuan Aborigines of Australia.The original Australian inhabitants, the Negritoes (the Ulotrici), were hunted down and wiped out by invading aborigines who came down from India.The tip of Cape York was one of the major landings used by the invaders who arrived in either canoes or on rafts. Archaeologists in 1973 decided to look for campsites and other evidence on the Cape, finding fireplaces and middens. Although unreliable, carbon dating of shells and other organic matter was used.To the horror of the investigating academics, the best they could come up with was between 600 and 1,100 years of occupation by the Aborigines. Which begs the question; What about the claim Aborigines have lived in Australia for 40,000+ years?Aboriginal land claims, native title and land rights are based on a false anthropological premise and are totally fraudulent according to astounding new Australian archaeological discoveries and recent linguistic studies.	Race	Ethnicity - General	2/213	0.939

Kuritarō likewise, as a white, I thought it was considered inappropriate for me to call an Aboriginal a " Black Fella" Can any other Aboriginal people shed more light on this? Of course it's not really a reasonable question to ask is it, I mean we're talking hundreds of different cultures all being lumped into 1 attempted term, so obviously nothing's going to fit such diversity of cultures& on the disease, look up the 1789 smallpox outbreak. Pretty obvious it was deliberate & can't wipe out more than that with massacres, at least in Sydney, given it wiped out so many!	Black	Ethnicity - Black	1/101	0.99

I think the point is that the historical experiences of Native Americans in may respects are similar to those of Indigenous Australians. They were both conquered peoples, driven out of their traditional lands by colonial invaders. There is no getting away from the fact that we whites, motivated by racism , the confidence that comes from religious certainty and technical superiority, took what we wanted by force without any regard for the traditional custodians. That may have been a good thing for us. Was it right. I am not real sure when I see what grew out of colonial empires. The strong have always consumed the weaker. The following video at Youtube will tell you what you need to know... "SCIENCE PROVES JESUS IS THE SON OF GOD!" Stop clinging to false pride of human ethnicity and identities, and stop treating Aborigines as something special, they are no different than any other indigenous/native race on the earth. You see, there's no such thing as evolution, it's all bullshit from atheist dumbass god-rejecting scientists who have no idea in hell what they're talking about...Your CREATOR, Father God in heaven, who gave life to each one of us, flooded the world in 2500 BC, exactly as the Bible tells us. We all came from Noah and his family (total of 8 people). Jesus came to reconcile us back to our Father in heaven. Everyone has sin in them, and none of you are able to remove it from yourself, so Jesus did it for you. If man had been here so much as only 20,000 years, proper scientists will tell you that the earth's population would be so large that we would be standing toe-to-toe TEN PEOPLE HIGH on all the landmass of the earth, that's by calculation of normal birth-rates, it can all be counted mathematically. Count in reverse from the 7 billion we have today, by normal birth-rates in reverse, we get to zero numbers of people at 2500BC, compendo? The flood, 2500BC! Capiche? Read your Bible and wake-up!Anyway, if you need more proof for 'creation' by God, go to... [LINK] Also, for your information, i'm sick-&-tired of hearing all this garbage that Aborigines own Australia, NO SUCH THING! By any law in this universe, whether man's law, God's law or universal law, you only own what you MAKE or what you PAY FOR, capiche? The Aborigines did not make the sun that shines on Australia, GOD IN HEAVEN DID! The Aborigines did not make the rivers that flow in Australia, GOD IN HEAVEN DID! The Aborigines did not make the animals that bounce in Australia, GOD IN HEAVEN DID! The fact is, the Aborigines never made a single thing of nature in this land of Australia, not so much as a single pebble or leaf, capiche? So then how do they OWN IT??? Blah blah, let's get back to truth... Christianity and God in heaven own Australia, the Aborigines never made or paid for so much as a single blade of grass! UNDERSTAND? So how do you own something you NEVER MADE????????? Sorry to burst your bubble, but only to clearly establish that they own NOTHING! Truth is better than lies. I am a native of a land that the British colonized too, so i'm qualified to speak on the issue, and I don't go around claiming that it's my land, or holding today's whites guilty for the sins of their forefathers, because living first anywhere particular on earth DOESN'T MEAN YOU OWN IT! Especially when you didn't make or pay for it, capiche? Do you wanna know the truth? Here's some truth for you... The Bible (Psalm 24:1) "The earth is the LORD's, and everything in it, the world and all its people belong to him." Psalm 50:10 "in fact, every animal of the forest is mine, and the cattle on a thousand hills." God gave Australia to the British protestant Christians, whether you like it or not! God, Jesus and Christians OWN AUSTRALIA. 1 Corinthians 3:22 "or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; EVERYTHING IS YOURS; and you belong to Christ; and Christ belongs to God." aeaeaeaeae my ancestor was a convict who became a very successful farmer in Sydney. He could farm the land in any conditions, during the drought of the early 1800's his crops & animals thrived while all around him was dying. His farms succeeded because he formed a working relationship with the people of the Dharawal nation . He joined their community & they taught him how to farm the land. The whole colony would have failed if not for the Native people sharing their knowledge of the land - and look how we repaid them! Its called Capitalism, Aborigines like seclusion they are very much a community based people. They go and live far away from civilization in their own towns without receiving a good enough education to land them a job, when they grow up they go out into the cities and urban areas for work but seeing they don't have an education or the money to make themselves look decent (hair cuts, clothes etc.) nor are they well able to find a job or even know how an interview works as they have been living in seclusion so all these factors stop them from getting a good job. They find some alcohol to ease their depression and a shitty job and then we end up at your comment! White people are completely opposite they will get good educations and live in urban areas. There is literally nothing we can do about it except donating a lot of money which won't work at all or we could drag them from their towns and try to "re-modernize" them which may work but every human rights group in the world would probably fuck us over and once again we will be the "evil white people". I'm so sick of the lies about "the stolen generations". While everyone can agree that the initial fighting against aboriginal people was wrong, the whole stolen generation things is frequently lied about. "Aboriginal children were never removed from their families in order to put an end to Aboriginality or, indeed, to serve any improper government policy or program. The small numbers of Aboriginal child removals in the twentieth century were almost all based on traditional grounds of child welfare. Most children affected had been orphaned, abandoned, destitute, neglected or subject to various forms of domestic violence, sexual exploitation and sexual abuse. Historians have given Western Australia a particularly loathsome reputation, but when you examine the records you find the majority of children placed in state Aboriginal settlements were from destitute families and they went there with their parents. In New South Wales, some children became part of an apprenticeship indenture program to help Aboriginal youth qualify for the workforce. A significant number of other children were voluntarily placed in institutions by Aboriginal parents to give them an education and a better chance in life."And hardly any of us take the whole sorry day things seriously. Like really you want me to apologise to a group of people I did nothing to, and to a group of people who have had nothing done to them? It's history. The truth is aboriginal people get so many benefits because of this now it is ridiculous, and much like black folk in the US are being incentivised to become single mothers and raise disadvantaged children, they are only being incentivised to being unambitious and unproductive individuals who live off welfare and use the money they get to buy goonbags and take taxi trips to the bottlo-O. This is a generalisation here obviously and I don't mean to say all aboriginals are like this. Of course not. But it is a large problem, which when you actually think about it, is the governments fault. We need to stop handing out all this benefits and start realising that they are just Australians, there's nothing extra special about them, and we need to do what the true definition of equality is, and treat them like we treat the rest of us.Having sorry day and all these aboriginal programs in schools and stuff is only adding to the division. BeauBum89 I think you need to get you're facts straight. Yes aboriginals in certain parts of Australia lived in wiljas, but they were still, in every sense of the word, nomadic, nothing wrong with that. A group of people can only advance technologically as much as the land allows them too. The Australian continent was far too arid and infertile to promote the development of permanent settlements. Which is why the aboriginal people lived in small, nomadic groups and developed a rich and complex culture.	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/85	1.176
+IMLYINGISWEAR; you just contradicted yourself with your statement. The term nomadic was used to describe me and my peoples lifestyle. I find that word degrading and racist . Which is why I said me and my people, were content with our lifestyle. We did not need whitefullas coming in to our country to tell us that we were inferior to them. So get your facts straight. Perfect example, the "nomadic" term. A racist term. We were happy and content. Racism started with the white man, when he decided to invade a Black mans country/continent.	Black, Racism, Racist	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	4/93	4.301
+IMLYINGISWEAR; We are not talking about if it was not for the poms then it would have been someone else who would have invaded AUS. If you are trying to justify invasion to Aus you are a racist . Invasion was morally and ethically wrong. Racist	Ethnicity - General	2/89	2.247

Beau Brown I am not justifying the invasion of the Australian continent. But you must understand. Yes, invasion is morally and ethically wrong, but it has been happening for thousands of years by almost every group of people on the planet since humans migrated out of Africa over 100,000 years ago. History is not as linear as you may think. And you must remember, when aboriginals arrived on the Australian continent from south east Asia roughly 50 thousand years ago, they changed the face of Australia forever, the largest extinction event in Australia was caused by the aboriginals hunting all of the ancient mega-fauna (large marsupials) to extinction and obliterating the areas of ancient rain forest which was once widespread across Australia by burning for the purpose of hunting. So the relationship between the land and the people was not as harmonious as many people think. This is not, in any way racist, this is fact. The same applies in every part of the world and to all people. As I grew up, lived and currently work the Aboriginal communities across Arnhem Land I have probably done more for their cause in the past week than you have done in you're entire life. And too you're point about Aboriginal people receiving benefits because its "their" land... Does that mean when I visit or move to Scotland, as I am an indigenous person of northern Britain, am I entitled to such benefits?	Racist	Ethnicity - General	1/241	0.415
BeauBum89 I don't think the Europeans gave the aboriginals a better lifestyle at all. However you can't say that they were "happy" with their old way of life either. Happiness is totally subjective. Content, probably, as it was the only way of life they knew of. Do you think all groups of Aboriginal people were running around the continent holding hands, singing in a meadow of flowers under a rainbow of happiness or something? If you do you have an incredibly bias and warped sense of history and even reality. Life in prehistoric Australia was incredibly tough and harsh. Which is why populations were small and very sparse, as resources were sparse. Life expectancy was low and the threat of tribe vs tribe conflict was high due to said lack of resources. I am not stating these facts to belittle or degrade the aboriginal people in any way. I'm in fact doing the opposite. I greatly admire the culture and their way of life. They were able to carve out a rich culture and heritage from surviving thousands of years in almost complete isolation in such a harsh, infertile continent.Oh and please explain to me how the term 'nomadic' is racist. It simply means that a group of people do not permanently inhabit an area of land and must migrate to sustain their population. Many groups of people proudly preserve their nomadic way of life, such as the Mongolians and Turkic people who live on the Steppes of Central Asia.	Old, Racist	Age - Over 65s, Ethnicity - General	2/251	0.797

+IMLYINGISWEAR The invasion that happened to my people the true Australians, is fact. It happened and all non-Aussies should hold a remembrance with Aboriginal people, as they do for the anzacs. I don't see how my statements justify my views being linear? According to Aboriginal history, must I add, whitefullas have only been in my state for 100+ years, Aboriginal history teaches me and my people that we did not travel to this country/continent. Aussie Aboriginal culture is THE MOST complex and rich cultures i have ever been exposed too. They experienced some of the worst genocide and 'assimilation' through the stolen generation by white invaders yet the culture is still going? A lot of the culture was sadly lost and the number of elders is decreasing very quickly and knowledge being passed on to those younger generations who traditionally become the new elders are being forced to leave there land in order to break out of the poorer conditions they are forced to live in. Even with all that and their is really no representation at all in society unless you go into these areas. As a white person I think I was exposed for about a term at school to the culture and most of it was from a white christian perspective which still has a supremacist focus. So when i got out of school and decided to learn more I was shocked at how complex it is and rich even after all of the stuff they have gone through in history and still today. Government funding goes into programs that assist in them getting a footing in modern society resulting in most of the kids still being 'stolen' from their culture subconsciously. The horrible truth is the government needs to start supporting their culture and making sure the elders are supported to sustain the culture and even help in finding lost traditions and giving them back to the people. They are very resilient people and the entire foundation of their culture is tethered to the land which we continue to take to build on which actually cuts of 'songlines' which are dreaming tracks they follow for SO MANY purposes both survival and spiritual. I can stress how obsessed i am with this culture. It is amazing and I dont get why the government is so blind to it. Even from a monetary point of view the aboriginal culture is a massive tourist attraction but it also could contribute alot to how to run society better. There is a wisdom about them. Matriarchal systems weren't considered bad (early feminism) But the "white man" chopped down all the trees which created salt lakes and forced animals to relocate. Used toxic fertilizers on their farms which poluted the fresh water rivers and mass killed birds and fish. Numerous animals endangered and many extinct. Thing is today, right here and now, an Aboriginal who can compete with me on equal terms has access to MORE benefits than me or any Australian of any other ethnic group, many of whom came here as refugees and couldn’t even speak English. Yet they worked 16 hours a day doing menial work to make ends meet and the went on to educate their children to fit in with Australian society. Don’t look down on Aboriginals and see them as people who will always need help. Respect their ability to compete EQUALLY. Here are some examples of some organizations that assist Aboriginals. Good luck for example trying to get housing with Aboriginal Housing Victoria or legal aid with Victoria Aboriginal Legal Service etc. Do you know there are housing blocks JUST for Aboriginals? Wow. Adding to the subject in this video about the stolen generation: I wasn't alive during that and didn't experience it and I hold the opinion that it was wrong. It really really complicates what the government can do in the present day. A lot of aboriginal kids are sick with days of snot dried on their faces and stinking of piss and faeces from wearing days old nappies. A lot aren't wearing shoes or jumpers in winter and it's not uncommon to see a baby's bottle filled with fanta or coke. Sexual abuse and child pornography became a really big problem on the aboriginal communities (government has since banned it along with alcohol) and alcohol abuse is a huge problem for just countless countless aboriginal adults. A lot of aboriginal kids sniff glue, petrol, deodorant, nail glue etc etc. Anyway, my point is that numerous aboriginal kids are living in really bad conditions staying with their parents but it's too hard for the government to intervene unless they end up in the hospital or the police station. A lot of aboriginal kids need to be in foster homes but are left with their parents who many times have alcohol /substance issues to be abused, neglected, and grow up to repeat this pattern. Very complicated issues and very hard for a foreigner to understand the present day issues that Australians and aboriginal Australians face because of each other. One Day in 1931 at Glenloth, Victoria on a windswept sandhill, the remains of the shoreline of a long vanished lake about 100km south of the Murray River, John Gibbs, a 10 year old local boy was playing in the shellgrit on Ancient Aboriginal midden. In a basin of the sandhill amid broken shells, he picked up a large fragmenting, football sized lump of petrified mud. protruding from one of the fragments he found a small bronze coin. Years later a Melbourne's Museum Numismatist would identify it as Greek, and that it had been minted in Egypt during the reign of the Greek Ptolemy Philometor the 6th, in the 2ND century. The suggestion as to how the coin turned up where it was found is, of course, that it had been left behind by ancient visitors; Greek explorers perhaps, or even Arabs, Indians and Malaysians with whom the Greeks traded. Similarly, in 1961 a family picnicking on the Daly river, west of Katherine in the Northern Territory, found a Gold Scarab, an object of worship of the Ancient Egyptians. How did this valuable ornament find its way to such a remote location? One might ask the same question of a 2,000 year old carved stone head of the Ancient Chinese Goddess Shao Lin (Protectress of mariners at sea), recovered from a beachfront hillside at Milton, on the New South Wales far south coast in 1983.	Lump, Old	Age - Over 65s, Physical Identity - Physical Features	3/235	1.277
Actually, a majority of stolen generation children were simply assimilated into society in an attempt to completely remove pure bred Australian indigenous peoples. They were normally treated as middle class or higher class citizens and were taught to view themselves as more white than black and to repress that half of their identity. Only a small minority became laborers or servants.	Black	Ethnicity - Black	1/61	1.639
Taking aboriginal children away from their families was terrible, however if you learned why it happened you would have at least some understanding of why it happened. Sexual abuse among aborigines is prevalent even today. Aborigine communities (entirely funded by the government, some have about $80,000 per person per year spent on them) have massive alcohol, child abuse and crime problems. There have been cases in some tribes where the elders have sexual rights to all young women. A lot of people don't realise they get paid benefits from the government that come close to some peoples full time income. This allows them to not need to work which may sound great but it causes problems because a lot of them just drink and use drugs which once again leads to crime and child abuse. While this is a regularly the case I've also worked with several aborigines that work hard and are perfectly civil people. I think there's a better way to deal with this than throwing money at the problem because it really doesn't help.	Sexual, alcohol	Behavioural Addiction - Alcohol, Gender - General	3/178	1.685

SirGooglinMort Smith True at first and there was and still are problems but that was only guise then they went way overboard when then they started forcefully and brutally removing children just because they were "half-caste" (like myself) and mixed race Aboriginals, some literally taken from the hospital not long after birth and was sending them all to missions and institutions to be raised as essentially servants and laborers."Policemen or other agents of the state (such as 'Aboriginal Protection Officers') were given the power to locate and transfer babies and children of mixed descent from their mothers or families or communities into institutions. In these Australian states and territories, half-caste institutions (both government and missionary) were established in the early decades of the 20th century for the reception of these separated children."" The report closely examined the distinctions between "forcible removal", "removal under threat or duress", "official deception", "uninformed voluntary release", and "voluntary release". The evidence indicated that in a large number of cases children were brutally and forcibly removed from their parent or parents, possibly even from the hospital shortly after their birth. Aboriginal Protection Officers often made the judgement on removal."" In some cases, families were required to sign legal documents to relinquish care to the state. In Western Australia, the Aborigines Act 1905 removed the legal guardianship of Aboriginal parents and made their children all legal wards of the state, so no parental permission was required" In 1915, in New South Wales, the Aborigines Protection Amending Act 1915 gave the Aborigines' Protection Board authority to remove Aboriginal children "without having to establish in court that they were neglected"; it was alleged by Professor Peter Read that Board members sometimes wrote simply "For being Aboriginal" as the explanation when recording a removal" In 1911, the Chief Protector of Aborigines in South Australia, William Garnet South, reportedly "lobbied for the power to remove Aboriginal children without a court hearing because the courts sometimes refused to accept that the children were neglected or destitute". South argued that "all children of mixed descent should be treated as neglected". His lobbying reportedly played a part in the enactment of the Aborigines Act 1911; this made him the legal guardian of every Aboriginal child in South Australia, including so-called "half-castes" The Bringing Them Home report also identified instances of official misrepresentation and deception, such as when caring and able parents were incorrectly described by Aboriginal Protection Officers as not being able to properly provide for their children, or when parents were told by government officials that their children had died, even though this was not the case." The report discovered that removed children were, in most cases, placed into institutional facilities... Children taken to such places were frequently punished if caught speaking local indigenous languages, and the intention was specifically to prevent them being socialised in Aboriginal cultures, and raise the boys as agricultural labourers and the girls as domestic servants."	Race	Ethnicity - General	1/489	0.204

+Long Nguyen Aboriginals didn't own the land though, because they believed they belonged to it. In that sense Terra Nullius was technically correct since the existing Aboriginal populations made no claims to ownership. They were occupiers, not proprietors. Besides which, the government has a claim based on the same reason it has a claim to any authority - consensus. Most people think that Australia should be run by the government, so it runs the country by the consent of the people. That's how all forms of government work. You can't rule unless everybody else is willing to go along with it. There's also the issue that you can't give the country back to the aboriginal people because there is no aboriginal people. There are hundreds of different groups which have moved around and mixed together with no common governing structure or body capable of being in charge. Australia simply could not exist now without all of the non-aboriginal people and the government and infrastructure they brought with them. Unfortunately ownership by right of conquest or claims based on 'discovery' were and are considered valid. You don't have to like it, but it's just the way it is because it happened hundreds of years before any of us was born and it's too late to do anything about it now. Besides, the fact that you can have this discussion on a computer instead of living hand to mouth using paleolithic tools, having a life expectancy of less than 40 and relying on nothing more than hope to keep you from dying of some easily preventable disease has to count for something, right? In the next pit was a woman on her knees, as if looking for something. Her skeletal form also was full of holes. Her bones were showing through, and her torn dress was on fire. Her head was bald , and there were only holes where her eyes and nose were supposed to be. A small fire was burning around her feet where she was kneeling, and she clawed the sides of the brimstone pit. The fire clung to her hands, and dead flesh kept falling off as she dug. Tremendous sobs shook her. "O Lord, O Lord," she cried, "I want out." As we watched, she finally got to the top of the pit with her feet. I thought she was going to get out when a large demon with great wings that seemed to be broken at the top and hung down his sides ran to her. His color was brownish black , and he had hair all over his large form. His eyes were set far back into his head, and he was about the size of a large grizzly bear. The demon rushed up to the woman and pushed her very hard backward into the pit and fire. I watched in horror as she fell. I felt so sorry for her. I wanted to take her into my arms and hold her, to ask God to heal her and take her out of there. In Australia we have a 'history wars' concerning aboriginal Australians. One side is called the 'white blindfold', the other the 'black armband'. This clip is closer to the latter in tone. Nobody disputes the shabby treatment given to aboriginal Australians, but many dispute the context in which it is placed. Is the establishment of a penal colony really the same as an invasion? Were the Eora (in the Sydney area) treated better or worse than the mostly white convicts? Is the 'Stolen Generation' (Aboriginal children taken from their parents) worse than the much larger number of white children (the Forgotten Generation) also taken from their parents for their 'protection'. Were the Stolen Generation raised only to be servants and labourers? (Some were, but many are successful people and, while resenting they were taken from their biological family, have nothing but praise for foster parents who gave them a loving upbringing.) Foreigners often also tend to project their home grown ideas of racism onto Australia. One of my Aboriginal friends who did a study tour of the USA felt a lot of affinity with American Indians, but not with African Americans ("Mate, we certainly have issues, but we're just not as angry as that".) It's a much, much more complex issue than this clip (mis)represents. A failure to explore that complexity in its fullness is one of the main barriers to its resolution.	African, Nobody, Nothing, Racism	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	4/232	1.724
Phaneendra Boosala Depends on where it is you're talking about.For the vast majority of Australia it was well-intentioned policy and cultural misunderstanding gone awry.The "stolen generation" is probably the best example of this. The goal of the policy was to integrate Aborigines into white society, but the basis of the policy was the racist assumption that white people would do a better job of raising Aboriginal children.Only in Tasmania was there a systemic effort to kill Aborigines (which sadly, resulted in the only successful genocide ever).	Racist	Ethnicity - General	1/89	1.124

We have the same situation in Canada. Me being native american (Indian , whatever), I also saw a lot of the past problems concerning the first nations and the eurpoeans. My grandmother is a survivor from the residential school system. She was kidnapped from home and sent to these schools. A board of schools run by the church, that's sole purpose was to 'kill the indian inside the child'. Emotional, physical, and sexual abuse all took place in these schools and left deep mental scars on those who survived it.Sure we got treaties, and even an aboriginal day to honor those treaties. But our land is violated, and our traditions dishonored. Like on aboriginal day, all natives get 5$. This used to a be a lot higher, but as currency changed and the economy shifted, so did our treaty conditions. Some say 'get over it' and we have enough given to us. But its nothing when it doesn't last. And money won't heal the scars given to me and my family by the conditions we were forced to be in. If there's a time to 'get over it', its not yet. Dougs2freshWhen Australia is handed over to the aboriginal people which tribe gets what land the nations in Australia didn't have fixed borders over thousands of years just as Europe doesn't look the same ass a 1000 years ago, do you reset to when Europeans first made contact with each tribe which doesn't work as European Asian influence will impact the tribes boundary before the boundary goes into the written record. What happens to the millions of people who are now refugees. how do you make the 90 of aboriginal peoples that are settled nomadic. How do you remove the infrastructure of the last 200 years.above is the rest option, another option is aboriginal peoples taking over government but how. does every tribe elect a leader of which some tribes never had others no longer exists. How does a president (Australia couldn't stay part of the commonwealth is why i say president) work, with Australia never being unified as far as we know before European settlement. Does 97 of the population lose the right to vote or do you make it that only aboriginal peoples are allowed on the ballot papers.I'm just scratching the surface of how crazy hand back Australia to the original inhabitants would be it might have been possible 20 years into the colonization but not now. We have to deal with the ways things are now. The governments of recent history are trying to fix the mess that colonization brought but giving the land back isn't going to fix the last 200 years. Don't blame yourself look at the evils of your forefathers and see that they are the bad guys not you or me, what happened was bound to happen when Europe, still in a post-medieval society gained the weapons of exploration and war and brought their culture and religions to other lands, it was overpopulation in Europe that caused them to leave and take the lands of others.The reason more power nations before had not done this is because they had land and food able to stay where they are. Europe was just in the right situation at the right time for a handful of people to go colonize the new and some of the old world, and in the process cause horrible deaths and diseases.What to blame is not whites or any other race , but the curiosity, population growth, and the greed of humankind to enslave thousands.Any other race could've done the same as the Spaniards, Portuguese, English, and to lesser extents Dutch and French did the same to native populations, if they had the right tools ad the same situation.There was a slave that would've enslaved the slaver if given the chance and reason if he had not suffered as a slave. There was a aborigine or Native American that would've conquered Spain if the roles were reversed.Blame humanity not the white man, blame greed, selfishness and racism . Australia's first colonists were short on ammunition supplies on arrival & expecting the natives to just scatter & not come back - they thought they were nomadic & didn't realise that they had permanent settlements where they decided to settle & that land outside that region was another Nation , so they couldn't just pack up & leave. Their guns were also ineffective against the spears.15months after the whites had first arrived in Australia, they were desperately waiting for supplies & in serious danger of being taken down by the natives, then suddenly a pox disease hit the native colony across the harbour, a distance that is still today over 40 minutes by boat to get to. The pox disease wiped out 90 of those in that area & spread throughout the Sydney basin, taking out between 50 & 70 of the natives, while not effecting anyone in the colony. The origins are known from Banks journals as he was returning & documenting less & less natives as he got closer to the colony. Presumably if he had known the cause, he wouldn't have made these records, no other records were made (or they were made & destroyed)We still try to deny what happened there, try to claim the disease got there some other way, try to claim the pox was chicken pox spread by a man with shingles (despite the distance & not a single child in the colony where he was living fulltime getting chicken pox) The surgeon's supply list makes it pretty clear what really happened - in his supplies were a jar of smallpox scabs! It's pretty clear that someone high up in the colony ordered those scabs be used as biological warfare & released a safe distance from the colony to wipe out all resistance from the native people.One day, we as a nation will grow up enough to acknowledge our past & maybe even have a discussion as to what the reasons/justifications in their eyes may have been. Roman Stefan About Asian-Americans, it would be true for modern days, because US are less likely to give Green Card to poor immigrants, but many elite Asians can easily obtained one.But back then, many Asian immigrants actually arrived in the US with literally nothing in their hands, and many first generations didn't even finish high school education. The reason why they're more successful is because they invested more in their children's education. And you disregard other Asians, Filipino (2nd largest Asian group in US) and Vietnamese that immigrated to US arrived with no money or education also.Native Americans may consisted no more than 2 of US population, but their prison share is about 1. Jackson beats Australia belongs to black people aboriginals, let me tell you how it works see in your little pathetic mind you think whites own the land but to aboriginals blacks own the land , as long as all of the aboriginals know in their hearts and minds that Australia is their IT will always be theirs , and the white man can write it on all the paper in the world whites can create their own pathetic laws and even build on the land and even go to wars and fight for their own rights but Australia will never be theirs ha ha ha ha lol lol lol lol because as long as there's one aboriginal man and one aboriginal woman walking eating and sleeping and living in Australia it will ALWAYS BE OUR LAND and last time I checked there's more them 800000 aboriginals and islanders living in Australia so you whites have a very very very long time before even thinking it could be your white land ha ha ha ha ha lol lol lol lol. There are two problems with that view. The first is that it is not true and you will know this from your own experience. Many indigenous Australian's supress knowledge of their aboriginal heritage, because they were made to feel ashamed of it. The second is that difference is not in blood type. We have got to get away from relating to one another as coloured beings. Sure, disgraceful things were done in the past, but I am more concerned with the poverty and destitution of indigenous Australian in the now, and what can be done to build bridges with an aim to correct that.	coloured	Ethnicity - Black	1/104	0.962
Racists want you to think like that. The more tension they create between indigenous and non-indigenous, the further you brothers and sisters fall behind. That attitude provides a vindication for those who want to exclude and deny. I was in a pub and being abused by an aboriginal bloke I'd been having a quiet talk with a few minutes before. Regrettably, as I tried to placate him, the whole pub turned on him. He gave them a reason to unleash their racism. Think about it and turn that anger into something positive.	Racism	Ethnicity - General	1/92	1.087

phenetiik So it went from suggesting a National Sorry Day in USA to being racist, sounds logical.And what so if Native Americans killed eachtoher? They didn't massacre eachother, they didn't set bounties on eachothers heads and kill women and children. They did not colonise eachothers land and displaced eachother into so called resorvations. The Europeans did. I hope you do realise that Aboriginal tribes also killed eachother. Have you heard about the Maori? Still the Australians have a National Sorry day. There is a big difference between tribal warfare abd colonialism.	Racist	Ethnicity - General	1/92	1.087

FrasierCraft "Your forefathers colonized the land and massacred the native people." Well, first of all I'm not American so I don't really bare any responsibility for that, unless you wanted to lump me in with that since I am white, but I'll forgive the assumption. "Today you can see the results of your so called reservations. You destroyed their culture. You are to remember and commemorate the ones your forefathers massacred, since you are living on their land, and they have to live in reservations to "preserve" their remaining culture" How many different thousands of cultures have been wiped out throughout human history? With Native Americans in particular they're fortunate (historically speaking) to have any cultural heritage remaining, and that's worth preserving - but you can't seriously think someone who is a descendant of colonizers is responsible for the actions of other people.I'd wager some of your ancestors killed people, are you responsible for their actions? Should you apologize to the descendants of those people that were killed or otherwise wronged by your ancestors? I understand where you're coming from but I think you're a bit too naive and idealistic about this to see it for what it is, and you're muddling the commemoration of sacrifices (ww1 memorial) with an interaction between two groups of people apologizing for something that neither group had any participation in. I'm not saying it should be swept under the rug, atrocities ought to be remembered so that they aren't repeated - but it's absurd to think anyone living is responsible to apologize for something they had no part in.	Lump	Physical Identity - Physical Features	1/266	0.376
13bullseye How can I know you are white? And there is a very big difference when a State, Nation and an entire people stand behind a genocide rather than when, let's say The Huns stand behind it, or the Vikings. Neither of them are even alive today, so who can we hold semi-accountable? Exactly.When you have a National Sorry Day, you as a individual are not apologizing. You as a nation are. That's the big difference. The nation that lives now, was the nation that lived houndres of years ago.	Nation	Nationality - General	4/91	4.396

FrasierCraft "How can I know you are white?" You assumed I was American, I took it for granted you assumed I was white as well."And there is a very big difference when a State, Nation and an entire people stand behind a genocide rather than when, let's say The Huns stand behind it, or the Vikings. Neither of them are even alive today, so who can we hold semi-accountable? Exactly." Well, see you almost got it, you just aren't looking at it from the right perspective. Like with the Huns and the Vikings, the America (and 13 colonies before that) that committed the genocide against native Americans is dead. You can't hold that America accountable for that genocide because it doesn't exist anymore, the America that exists now is notably different, though it shares a name. Especially given that no one that lived during that genocide is alive now. It's the exact same point you made with the Huns and Vikings, the only difference is the name lived on and you can easily point your finger at what remains because of that."When you have a National Sorry Day, you as a individual are not apologizing. You as a nation are. That's the big difference. The nation that lives now, was the nation that lived hundres of years ago." I don't see it that way, when you lump a nation together you do so with every individual, and thereby are putting every one of those individuals in the same box, and labeling that box of individuals as responsible for saying sorry. If this were something that had happened in our lifetime I would completely understand that sort of apology being made, but again - no one alive took part in it, no one alive was a direct victim of it. It is done, it's over, it happened and it was awful, but that's really all there is to it. Nothing you or I do could ever change that, and I think it cheapens and diminishes the atrocity they suffered to have people who aren't responsible for it say "Whoops, our ancestors fucked up, sorry"	Lump, Nation, Nothing	Age - Youngsters, Nationality - General, Physical Identity - Physical Features	7/355	1.972

13bullseye Native Americans still suffer (greatly) from the horrific crimes and genocide committed against them by European settlers and the government of the United States, though. And it would make a great difference, if only in attitude, considering the atrocities in America were much greater than even the ones committed in Australia. The US did give a half-assed apology in 2009, but it was buried deep in a bill of unrelated topics. Most US citizens still have no idea the magnitude of the atrocities committed against Natives, and a "Sorry Day" would bring attention to those historical injustices that were committed still have an enormous effect on the lives of nearly all Native Americans (at least those who live on reservations) in the USA today. Keep in mind, Native Americans were nearly wiped out by genocide brought on them by Europeans and their plight was only exacerbated by the US Gov. If someone like Christopher Columbus can have a national holiday in the USA, it should go without question that the people who survived a genocide and had their land forcefully stolen from them by the USA so that the nation could exist should get at least some recognition. It's just decent.	Nation	Nationality - General	1/202	0.495
grayRecognition of what happened is certainly fair, and certainly necessary. I just feel like a "sorry day" wouldn't actually make any difference in the lives of those people still dealing with the consequences of that genocide - they would still be a marginalized minority regardless of whether or not a day like that came to be. In addition the fact that no one alive took part in it makes it more questionable.Instead, if there was something akin to the black history month in the US but for native americans I think that would go a lot further to making a difference in regards to recognition (and also avoid piling on blame to people that had nothing to do with it) - but a simple "oops, we dun goof'd" day is a paltry and generally lackluster solution, don't you think? Regardless of how you feel about a group of people apologizing for something they had no direct part in to another group of people; I expect you would agree that a simple "sorry day" is rather lacking.The whole columbus day thing is a different topic altogether, I'd certainly agree that it's not really a 'day' worth having, and I'm not entirely sure why it is one.	Black, Nothing	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - Black	2/208	0.962

13bullseye "No one alive today was responsible for it". This is false, if the 'it' you're referring to is the systematic oppression of Native Americans. A quick google search reveals that 'boarding schools' in the US comparable to those mentioned in the episode actually had peak enrollment in the 1970's. Your statement harkens of a reading from the 1933 version of Encyclopaedia Britannica. There have been many waves of immigrants to this country since that time - it is no longer a British Colony. As far as committing genocide upon the Aborigines - it would have to be the least successful genocide in British history - they were usually much more efficient.Had genocide been their aim - Australian Aborigines would now be consigned to dusty pages of history Much effort and monies were and still are being expended on behalf of helping Aboriginal Australians to enter the 21st Century. It is a particularly difficult undertaking to bring what was very recently a hunter/gatherer civilization up to the speed of an advanced alien culture. Yes they do. We have a pretty good welfare system and you'll find people of all ethnic backgrounds taking advantage of it and surviving without working. My mother is white and hasn't worked in over 20 years from cheaping the government, yet the guy I'm seeing now is 1/4th aboriginal and has a full time, good paying job he formally trained for. They also recieve a lot of benefits we don't because they face challeneges we don't. They are prone to a lot more health issues than whites, blacks, asians, etc., so they get slightly better health care; things such as that, to try and help them live good quality lives. A lot of people just hear about the things they do get over the rest of the population, without looking into statistics and reasons why, so a lot of unfair and bias information gets shared. That's not to say there isn't a problem with a number of aborigines taking advantage of extra treatment they get, but it happens pretty frequently in the white population too.Sorry this is long and no one probably cares, but I'd like foreigners to understand that our natives aren't as awful as a lot of people try and make them out to be. It is also used despite many developed countries not being Western (e.g., Japan, South Korea, Singapore)" Not geographically western like Australia but is still considered socially to many as a western nation . C Kim How are you gonna accuse me racism right after I called you out for that?? smh Made? You mean colonized? I don't hate white people, me pointing out another atrocity committed by a western nation doesn't mean I hate whites. I acknowledge the Rwanda genocide but that doesn't mean I hate the citizens. I only don't like it when people try to play down crimes like these or out right try and deny them but they can believe what they want but it's an issue when they come at me with that fuck shit (See past comments) They got defensive because they know it's true and they feel guilty. Inferior? More like handicapped ..like I told another racist user, the effects of colonialism are still felt today. A good number of those nations haven't even been independent for like 75 years. Baltimore? LA? Tell me, what is triggering protest in those cities in the first place?? Police brutality but I bet you criticize them as much since it goes against your racist views towards black . Have a seat man..	Black, Handicapped, Nation, Racism, Racist	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General, Nationality - General, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	6/180	3.333
Harry McNamara Lol another overly defensive and offended person smh. Once again I never said or denied wild shit happening anywhere else. " Surprise surprise...someone who cannot get over the past." Learn to stop giving a fuck. I have." I bet you have you soulless devil. You don't have to grieve or anything but telling others to forget tragedies of the past shows how evil you are. You act like I'm blaming you for this and I bet you're doing it out of guilt. I bet if I posted a comment about African or Asian genocides your ass and many others who got all defensive and attacked would be nowhere to be found. Nobody is crying about anything except you and others telling me to get over it. "You're surprised over something that happened over 200 years ago?"No, I'm surprised cause I learned something new..that isn't really new because like my original comment said it's 'another western nation behind genocide' You can take that box of tissues along with your feelings and bounce. +kyoai you do not even need to justify anything, a quick search on wikipedia for example can give an idea of how much destruction every single race has done to others, white people have been slaves too, and worse.The only difference here is that western science has allowed others populations to increase their number and quality of life by ten fold, saving billions of lifes	Race	Ethnicity - General	1/66	1.515
+chillmode4life the ENTIRE history of my country (one of the oldest and most stable in the world) proves this point wrong, the moors enslaved and raped for centuries, provoked hundreds of battles and almost a hundred million white slaves so there are no good guys in this world, making yourselves the victims is getting pretty old . The moors brought some advancements but also a lot of suffering, precisely what you accuse the west of doing is it not?	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/78	1.282

Da KumiteYou brought up the Moors. You do realise several things. Firstly most Moors were Arab due to ARAB invasions of North Africa. Secondly, what the Moors brought were ARAB inventions and technology. The black Moors were a conquered people slaved to Arabs. Also, the Moors included Spaniards who were Muslim-converts. KaiserFailed I never said it was okay for colonists to do so, but they did and nothing we can do changes that now does it?This is a legit question, Do Aboriginal people pay taxes for the Australian government? if not, then why would they have political power? they don't contribute to the country, why should such political power be granted to them?HOWEVER if they do pay taxes and all that, then it is awfully wrong that they don't have political power. And i can guarantee you that Aboriginals didn't call their land Australia before the British colonized it, now they might do. i don't know.	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/107	0.935
linusorm I dont understand. Aboriginal people are Australian citizens and contribute to the economy via taxes. So I dont understand. Also, I don't know how that system, instituted by foreign men, can be used as a litmus test of sorts. No offense, but that's a bit of capitalistic thinking, no? No disrespect, truly. Just actually confused lolHere in America, there is the Indian Citizen Act, which legalized all natives and granted them citizen rights. Which still blows my mind. But that was in 1920's, where the notion of justice was a bit skewed I suppose	Indian	Ethnicity - Native-American	1/96	1.042 linusorm Of course they do; they're an ethnic group, not a society within a society. They're also human beings and Australian citizens. They've been persecuted over hundreds of years due to the horrors of colonialism, and much like minorities in the US, they're blamed for their own problems even when the larger context begs to be answered. Kaiser, in many ways, the term Australian is probably no different to the term European, but most Europeans would see themselves as being of a nation within the continent first wouldn't they, why should Aboriginal people be different & forced to accept only European continent wide borders & not their own Nation ? Result analysis:

- Taking into account the words that were detected, we can reach the conclusion these comments are associated with : : Age - Over 65s;Ethnicity - White;Ethnicity - General;Social Class - Working class;Age - General;Ethnicity - Black;Ethnicity - Native-American; Ideological and Political Identity - General;Age - Youngsters;Behavioural Addiction - Alcohol;Ethnicity - Asian (East- China, Japan, Korea, Philippines, Vietnam);Nationality - Chinese;Nationality - Japanese;Ethnicity - Aboriginal;Gender - Female age and physical appearance;Nationality - General;Nationality - Italian;Nationality - European or anti-Europeans;Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments;Gender - General;Social Class - Destitute;Nationality - British;Physical Identity - Physical Features;Nationality - American;Religious Identity - Muslim;Nationality - German;Nationality - Irish;
- The percentage of hate speech related words is 1.033.
- Considering that the variable Ethnicity - General has the most occurences in the post, we can interpret that this is the predominant hate speech.
- Overall there were 746/2304 occurences of hate speech related comments.
