It's sad to see that so many people here are happy to dismiss some of the terrible things said in this show simply because "oh they're geeks! They don't fit in and have trouble getting women just because they're quirky and nerdy, but trust me, they're the nice guys I swear." when the show literally has instances where the main characters commit crimes of sexual harassment. If the main characters were very masculine and confident (like 'jocks') it would come across as creepy and demeaning. You can't shut down everyone who calls out something you like by calling them oversensitive and crazy . Accept that it isn't right and it isn't fair. There is nothing wrong with believing that both genders deserve equal amounts of respect. Yes, men do get treated unfairly but no where near enough as women do, it's not a game of who's worse off, it's a fucking social issue. The show sometimes acknowledges the sexism of its jokes through lampshading, but there is a difference between acknowledging and trying to stop sexism . The writers lampshade jokes so they can get away with sexist and racist jokes without paying the repercussions. The examples in this video aren't very good in all honesty so try watching this video with an open mind :) [LINK]	Crazy, Nothing, Racist, Sexism, Sexual	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - General, Gender - General, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	6/215	2.791

I hate Leonard, he is meant to be good and not only does not help Penny with her acting career but always pours scorn on it and acting must be a career that those who try it need a lot of support with so the nasty attitude of Leonard domes her to failure. As series are full of actores, it is always umpleasant to hear the actors in the series down those who would be actors. To cap this lack of caring, he has a good job while her job is a waitress and they always tell her she is a bad waitress as well as not helping her to better hersself by becoming an actress, which would bring her up to their level as university professors. On top of that, Sheldon and Leornard like havign her around and chase off any man who gets close to her but make her feel as if she is merely getting food of them, instead of making her feel good that they like her. Do anyhting they can to stop her leaving and make her feel as if she s the one who manipulates them. After all of this, she gets a job that makes her sad and makes her drink and leonard remains the goodey of the series though he does all he can to keep her in this high paying but dishonest and soul destroying job. He says his mother is bad but she at least made him get a high kudos job. that does not make him feel desperate. He says he loves Penny and keeps her down. his education also seems to allow him to hold his own with Penny and more or less with Sheldon even, while they all use and abuse Penny, enjoying her company all while they pretend that she does nothing for them. The program continuously makes reference to how soul destroying Pennies job selling medicines is and how she is conscious of this. I think it invites us, the audience to complain about his behaviour but it seems we don't, because the Penny Leonard trajectory, goes on being the same, about as sexist as the Kill Bill Beatrice Kido one is, in which, much as every thing we know about the relationship indicates that Bill controls Beatrice, untill the second last scene, all their friends say they hold the belief that Beatrice controls Bill, that she is the one who controles him. This fact, that he has convinced all that she manipulated him, much as the opposite is evidente, mirrors real life in which men usually have more control of the life trajectory of the couple but not about putting their feet on the table, while they say that women control them. Leonards teatment of Penny's situation and her hopes and fears, given her much expressed disgust of her role at wor, so her evident understand of how evil this job is, is so mean that he is even begining to look more and more unattractive, as his nasty role just holds for longer and longer.	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/512	0.195
Calculating how many women penny has had sex with is not sexism	Sex, Sexism	Gender - General	2/12	16.667

Those examples are really bad and it's not like there is no actual, blatant sexism in the show. Sheldon, Raj and Howard quite regularly make highly misogynistic comments, most of the time without repercussions and a lot of jokes about Raj are about his failure to conform to male stereotypes. TBBT is one of the best sitcoms. And Yea Feminism sucks Feminism is cancer Suck your video on sexism .	Sexism	Gender - General	1/19	5.263
I partly love this show but I always talk about how there are multiple instances of sexism within the show. I am glad you compiled it and loving all these deluded men's rights activist are riled up. Women have been historically objectified and subjected to sexism in popular shows and movies, I did not expect it to be an otherwise well written show.	Sexism	Gender - General	2/62	3.226
People seem to forget how Penny and Leonard got together, he kept pestering her to the point she went out with him to get him off her back, this is not healthy and not normal, because if a woman says no she's just playing hard to get, even if it's numerous rejections. It appears that if a female character's traits include being academically inept then the entire show around it is sexist. By that logic, characterisation for females is strictly limited to portrayals of success. The show has other female leads that are just as attractive as Penny and boast an education far superior than any of you snowflakes will ever have (e.g Bernadette) I'm not surprised at all; people have been changing the meaning of words just so they can further their agenda. Sad really. Next time you attempt to bash a sitcom with perfectly acceptable characters look for better examples because none of these clips exemplify how Penny has been belittled by the sole fact she's a woman . Because that really is sexism . Examples of other attractive females with Higher education: Priya, Emily, Stephanie, Alex	Sexism, Woman	Gender - General	2/139	1.439
Idk if the show is really sexist. I mean they don't really treat any of the characters all that well. Penny mooched off of her neighbors for years and it was ok because she is an attractive woman	Woman	Gender - General	1/38	2.632

They really messed up with Penny and Leonard to be honest. The more I think about it the more I realise that Leonard is probably more interested in how penny looks then her personality. I think penny just wants to settle down and be loved somehow and therefore goes for the sweetest person to her who would never hurt her. I mean lets be honest her ex boyfriends have all been hot and dumb like her, why not switch it up and not get hurt by them anymore, not get cheated on and go for the safety shot. No offence to either of them but I think they shouldn't have gotten together because now they are boring and constantly trying to sort out their marriage. I know penny and Leonard seemed to be a cute couple but I preferred Leonard and Priya.	Dumb	Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	1/142	0.704
Márk Moldován so women can't have sex now... woah Victorian days flashback. I don't care about how many guys penny's been with, but since she's tired of feeling awful about one night stands she uses Leonard as a security blanket. She may love him, but I don't like the pairing. My opinion.	Sex	Gender - General	1/53	1.887
If anything is it not sexist to say that a bunch of old men would be so startled by a pair of breasts that they'd automatically give leonard the job? Of course it's probably true but if anythig that's a power we women have. And how is saying this particular women has slept with a lot of men or this particular women doesn't understand physics sexist? XD Penny's the only main female character who's not a scientist and even then she's far from dumb , she's just dumb in comparison to above average intelligence. Luboš Motl But the Big Bang Theory isn't funny at all. Who watches this trash? No I'm not offended over the jokes it's just that the writing is so fucking lazy. Basically the characters say a bunch of nerdy shit that we don't understand and that's the 'joke' I'm assuming. I'm sorry who's dumb enough to watch this crap. This show feels like it's smartly written but in reality it's a nerd comedy for dumbasses that don't get jokes and have to be explained while that fucking annoying laugh track laugh at EVERY SINGLE 'JOKE' POSSIBLE. Umm, so Penny, a character that's the stereotypical blonde, is somehow unfair?? Penny has played the dumb blonde before in 8 Simple Rules. Genderism* is she being the ONLY woman with all these guys and that never happened. It would also be if all the women that were in the show were like Penny and they're not. Penny And Zach are the only dumb ones. Yet, we're only talking about a blonde bimbo and Not Zach. It's equal, dude. First clip- Fair enough. I do agree that that is sexist (even though the most raging feminist will weaponize her sexual appeal without second thought if she has the chance).Second clip- I'm sorry but a woman having sexual with so many men does indeed make her a slut. You want to know why society has this perception? Very simple. A woman has it A LOT easier to have sex . A woman is like a club security guard and men are like a line of drunks trying to get in. If you let them all in... Very stupid from your part. A woman can get pregnant, so she must be extremely cautious. If she lets just anyone in, she's not just a slut, she's fucking stupid. Also, if you ever see a man bragging about sleeping with high numbers of women, he is most likely a bullshitter.Third clip- How is that sexist? Penny has trouble getting science because that is her character, not because she's a woman .	Sex, Sexual, Woman	Gender - General	8/168	4.762
How is a character who has been established as someone who knows nothing about science, finding difficulty in learning science an example of sexism ? The fact that shes a woman had nothing to do with the scene. The joke was that shes uneducated in the world of science, irrelevant to her gender . If anyone is sexist its you for putting that clip in this video and assuming the scene was depicted because shes a woman .	Gender, Nothing, Sexism, Woman	Age - Youngsters, Gender - General	6/75	8.0

If you think putting a woman's sexual appeal on display as is done in the first scene is sexism , you're a fucking idiot. Since when is a woman feeling confident in her body an example of sexism ? Do you even know what sexism is?? Sexism is an act of DISCRIMINATION done to a person solely based on their gender . In what way is drawing attention to the fact that woman have boobs, at all a form of discrimination? God you're stupid! It's people like you that make sexism still exist. Lauren Coombes "Done to her" is a bold statement considering she actively pursued this specific role and remained there for several years. Yes 90's and 2000 were fat bettered. If you really wish to simulate the era, revert to dial up so no one is subjected to your poor tastes henceforth. This show is cringe worthy. The laugh track is heard more than the dialogue. The joke seems to be that the characters engage in sexist attitude, but are so unmasculine that the attitude is not harmful. Which is completely false. It implies that sexism ultimately is not harmful if your main characters casually partake in it. The context of the joke is not that these men are wrong in their thinking, rather that they are not masculine enough to believably pull it off. This is a synopsis of everything said in the video titled Adorkable Misogyny . Check it out if your fragile male ego won't get shattered. All of the men on the show are uber-beta, effeminate, friend zoned ninnies and weaklings, begging for pussy and demonstrating obscene levels of deference to women. This plays right to the female feminist viewer's sense of superiority, golden vagina syndrome and triumphalism. Except healthy women are simply not attracted to such men in reality. So if there is anything comical about this show, that would be it. Well, that and of course the Nebraska born alpha widow whore character who after rejecting the jerks sees wall coming and "falls" or settled for the short, fat, compliant beta male scientist.	Beta male, Effeminate, Fat, pussy	Nationality - Chinese, Physical Identity - Physical Features, Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality	4/99	4.04

Imperator Or the numerous times Raj and Howard were made fun of for their poor luck with women. Or when Bernie would remind Howard she makes more money than him. What always irritated me was the fact that the female characters only exist because of their relations to the male characters. The men are introduced first and are characterised by their personality and background. Penny is introduced as a love object for Leonard to pine over for some reason, Bernadette is introduced to date Howard, and Amy is introduced to date Sheldon. This kind of sexism is so common in the film and TV industry, and as a female I'm getting fucking sick of.	Common, Sexism	Gender - General, Social Class - Working class	2/84	2.381

Henry Butcher You're proving my point - isn't that an awful plot? It insults the female characters because they're only there to have an effect on the male characters.And it insults the male characters because they need women to, quite literally, grow up. They can't find it within themselves to be respectful of women or be confident to be who they are, they need a woman to tell them how to live.Not only that, it's a misrepresentation of nerd culture in general. 'Nerds' are the majority of people now, it's no longer the 90s where it was not cool to be a nerd. The show perpetuates the stereotype that nerdy guys are socially awkward, disrespectful of women and have a stunted sense of self.	Woman	Gender - General	1/126	0.794

entertain7us14. Are you fucking serious? These characters weren't written in just so 'they could date' other members of the cast. I could spin it around and say that Amy came into the show just to take sheldons lime light. All the characters blend amazingly together. They're portrayal of the real world is almost exact. Men are sexist, women are controlling, and the majority of people are racist . However, none of us make a big deal out of it and play the victim because for millions of years it's kept our species in peak form. When all you females parade men to be awful creature's and put women on a pedestal you are the ones being sexist. You're all hypocritical. You seem to forget that it's men who build the entire world you live in. Who build Rome? men. Who build the USA? men. Who build great Britain? men.who created governments? men. Who invented that technology in your hand? men. Everyone should thank men for the sacrifices they've made over hundreds of thousands of years to make sure their families had food, clothing and a warm house. They have a dumb character in every show, Joey from friends is a prime example of how Penny is in BBT. Just because a female character is not portrayed as a god doesn't mean it is sexist. Masticatious You're an idiot.The word sexism is a term derived to refer to when a woman or man is being discriminated against solely due to the fact that they are a woman or man. None of these clips show that in the slightest.Explain, if you can, how a woman simply wearing a tight dress in the first clip is an example of discrimination. It isn't. Since when is it sexist to have a woman comfortable enough with her body to put it on display? Has nothing to do with sexism . By that logic any time you see the stereotypical scene of a man taking his shirt off to reveal a jacked body, that too is sexism , right? No, it isnt.Because what overly sensitive children like yourself fail to understand, is that nobody is saying all penny is good for is her body, just like they don't say that about the men taking their shirts off. Ignorant kids like you have perverted the meaning of " sexism " and redefined it to fit your own agenda; which has basically become that if a woman at any point displays her sexuality in a tv show, it must somehow be sexism on the writers part.You're stupid. Feel stupid.	Nobody, Nothing, Sexism, Woman	Age - Youngsters, Gender - General	12/207	5.797

The whole scene is sexist. You may want to think about what the term "sexist" actually means. The scene promotes the social policy that.....The only power a woman has is the use of her body as a sex object. In scene, Man leering at her breast. "I don't have ball players I have girls, girls are who you sleep with after the game, not coach during the game (A League of Their Own)" So, not an example of how a women might use highly skilled negotiation powers but uses sex manipulation. "She slept her way to the top." The women does not have power by merit, education, sales growth and management success, and seniority in the company... she used sex manipulation. Sheldon points out her supposedly lowed skill employment as reference to her abilities, which traditionally known as "women's work" is actually not paid work at all but requires a great deal of skill and responsibility, raising the children who will make up the future work force. Vehicle transportation of children is a lowed paid job, transportation of any other object such as garbage are all paid substantially more. 45 U.S. Presidents, all male. I watch the show because everyone is horrible and in real life that is often the case too, The answer in the big bang theory is to just go on with all those horrible friends. Sheldon is so good at manipulating them all and holds them all together. As he says he is not a hippy, or a woman if it looks as if another block is going to pinch the graceful and pretty often very amiable Penny he makes sure that does not happen. I have known so many manipulative people, watching the show watching Sheldon helps me understand them and how they have manipulated me. I watch every trick of Sheldon's so that in future I recognise it when someone plays one of his tricks on me. In my experience the manipulative don't hold people together they drive them apart so this is an unrealistic bit of the program. Leonard stands up to him and at first Amy Farrow Fowler does not, the result is that he is bored by her. This may be often what bores men about girlfriends, women are too nice to their boyfriends, behave in a way with them they would not indulge in with other women. The show is not really about good professionals, it is about those whose first interest is their friends, awful as these are. Chuck Lorre puts people's horrible bits of behaviour in front of our noses, it is up to us to complain, he draws horribleness for us, it is not as if he did not know they were horrible.	Woman	Gender - General	1/262	0.382

I actually think the show has a lot of issues (Chuck Lorre as well), but these are not good examplesIMO, sexism is not giving Penny a last name. Sexism is making Penny, the popular, attractive, female lead....an utter disaster and failure. I'm sorry to have to put it bluntly, but for the majority of the lifespan of the show, she's been a mess. Sexism is not sleeping with 30+ men, or being dumb , or using her breasts to further Leonard's career. Sexism is making an audience believe that the unstable girl is the one that everyone blindly desires, while the other women on the show, who are intelligent and successful come across as crazy and bossy. For the record, I actually think the men are portrayed horribly as well. Raj in particular. But that's most main stream TV. I think that this show is extremely not-sexist. All of the examples of sexism that you listed are not aimed at women in general, but are character traits of one female character. And, there are two other female leads (and one supporting character) that are the opposite of Penny. It may be your opinion that those two "come across as crazy and bossy", but I actually prefer Bernadette and Amy to Penny because they are smart, successful, and all around better people than Penny. I'm a guy, and I would choose Bernadette over Penny in a heartbeat. And the guys on the show are not "All guys". They are nerdy, introverted guys and that is the staple of the show. That is also why they "blindly desire" Penny. Think of it this way: When everybody says "I want to be a movie-star", all they actually want is the money and fame. What they don't want is the familial dysfunction, abortions, and plastic surgeries up into their 80s just to look attractive. It's the same way with Penny. People want the looks, but they don't want the alcoholism, career failure, and stupidity. She represents a guilty pleasure, not a role model and most people see it. ExertHaddock i agree. leonard learns that the blind pursuit of a pretty girl ends up being horrible for you. ”Sexism is making an audience believe that the unstable girl is the one that everyone blindly desires, while the other women on the show, who are intelligent and successful come across as crazy and bossy”Seriously? That’s a very stupid, idiot thing to say!! Penny IS sexy for the vast majority of people, men and women.As they appear in the show lined up Penny would be the most desirable by pretty much every group of men followed by Bernadette then Amy for very obvious reasons.Penny is tall, beautiful and is quite smart in her own way.Burnadette is very short but looking closely at her (past the never ending breast covering sweaters) she is also quite sexy (large breast and tiny waist). The fact that she has a bad temper is offputting for some men but the fact that she is supersmart and generous offsets this.Amy dresses rather unattractively and this would be a big turnoff for most men. Her being smart and quite nice looking is something that a man would have to find out having gone past the linguistic turns she has and the rather offputting manner .How are any of those some type of sexism? They are all based on real people I have encountered.Lets take myself as an example. I like all three women but Penny would be my first choice and here is why.I could not deal with Bernadettes bad temper no matter how generous and smart she is.While Amy is obviously super horny and would be great in bed she just does not appeal to me as the character ”Amy” although I am attracted to her reasonableness and tendency to be diplomatic.Penny would be an obvious choice in that she is quite smart, has an opinion, has the right mix of humility and go fuck yourself, is willing to accept that others my be smarter than her and is willing to learn but refuses to be bullied intellectually.And the most important of all. nice hips that look quite child bearing.Is that sexism?NO!! its called millions of years of evolution. In the program the three girl protagonists have immoral jobs. Amy experiments with monkeys and Bernadette makes drugs or helps to do so and her few commens on her job show how irresponsible about human health her and her fellow workers are in tha tfeild and we all know the bad things about drug companies while Pennies job is to sell the drugs to doctors and her job is reknowned for its imorality, atractives salesmen selling the most expensive prototype to doctors or some drug with bad side efects or tha tais in some other wise otherwise dangerous. Penny is hte only one that is really distressed by the imorality of her job, drinking more when she thinks of it and often trying to cry out of it a thing that pig Leonard wont hear of. That makes her the most together of the three women I reckon. That she is attractive is the fault of the program. There are, in real life, a lot of attractive profesional women. indeed profesional women can spend more on clothes and on help so have more time to do themselves up than house wives do. In this programthough the unproffesional one is the most graceful both physcal and as to social graces which are an product of intelligence. What is sexist is to look down on women unless they have a good job and often even when they do, and even more so the fact that they abuse her is sexist. Sheldon and Leonard want ther around, even chase off competition so making it hard for her to escape them, while they continually say disparaging things to her so that she would be better off without them. She is a social advantage for them and also her company is pleasurable, she is an intelligent and witty and kind and soothing for them, a person, who they want to have around and who makes them more attractive to others but they want to have her without allowing her to feel she has any worth. They dont want to have to pay for it treating her well, sharing their glory of intelligent beings with her. They dont only, not acknowledge her worth, acknowledging her worth would be to credit her, only sin by default, they actually knock her often, discredit her all the time and also knock any chance she has of being something that is more respected, has a higher social kudos value, would bring her up to their level, by doing all they can to make ther feel her desire to act is hopless, and so making it psychologiaccally hard for her to go on instead of trying to help her get it off the ground and so to reach their level. Optimally, as leonard pretends to love her, he could as well as not discourageing her give her pratical. He could maybe help her to do less work in hte cheescake factory so giving her more time to work at acting. He could give her acting classes. His mother helped him to be a scientist, cold as she was she did not turn him into a nobody. Acting is a career that is despised by some but which needs talented people, you need to be good to do it to adquire a lot of skills to do well at it, it is not easy to be a good actor. They like to keep the relationship as unequal as possible, they hope to enjoy her and also to increase their value at her expense, by pretending she has none and so that they shine bright at her side. They are looking for a Tintin and Capitan Haddock type relationship but instead of just letting it be that if tha tis how things turn out, they are trying to make such a relationship happen by design, by behaving like though a bit less so, the second mate in Allen who is doing his

Andi amo actually these two exampels do show sexism . Mostly because the joke in the first is that Penny using her body to get a advantage is morally wrong and "playing dirty", while ignoring the fact that it is the men who lack the self control to not treat her like a object. In the second exampel Penny is being made uncomfortable for having a active sex live, implying that that somehow is shameful while also ignoring that Lenord had a multitude of sexual partners aswell and nobody shames him for this. Rather they treat that as a accomplishment for him.	Nobody, Sex, Sexism, Sexual	Age - Youngsters, Gender - General	4/101	3.96
Ok, so is it sexism because of the stereotype she plays or to support her stereotype? I'm sorry it just seems that definition according to female seperatists, I mean "feminists" have divided into so many double standards it's hard not to laugh	Sexism	Gender - General	1/42	2.381
Jessica Davis While i agree with your point that just because there is sexism against men doesn't invalidate the sexism against women. sexism is wrong always. but I don't know for sure if this is really sexist. I mean i think they handled the scene with them talking about the number of partners penny has had very well. there was no slut shaming. Amy asks how penny herself would categorize herself out of curiosity. No one ever implied it was wrong to sleep with that many people. Amy and bernadatte have both expressed jealousy in that regard so clearly they don't think its wrong. I also don't think them having a stupid female character makes them sexist. Does every women on film have to be intelligent now? Stupid women exist so what. Stupid men exist. the boys have often asked penny for help on things they are stupid about too. The first example yeah i'll give you that one. but i feel like the sexism in that one is so conspicuous in that scene that you are suppose to be laughing at the sexism . Not with it. It's suppose to be wrong. And it's pointing that out very loudly. Now whether or not that makes penny a bad role model is a good discussion, but i don't think every character on tv needs to be a good role model. TV would become profoundly boring if that were true. Yes indeed but what I think is that we should all treat each other equally no matter what race ,religion,or gender .	Gender, Race	Ethnicity - General, Gender - General	2/20	10.0
Clarice Ripley how is a woman simply wearing a tight dress as is done in the first scene at all sexist lol.... Holy shit, people like to get offended by anything nowadays. Sexism is a form of DISCRIMINATION. Please tell me how that scene is an example of discrimination lol. God you're painfully stupid.	Sexism, Woman	Gender - General	2/54	3.704

RockBeauty :3 except in the episode Leonard never told her to do so. She took it upon herself to support him the best way she could in light of the circumstances being that shes not as smart as the people they're trying to impress. Therefore it's a simple expression of her sexuality on her part.Not to mention, even if Leonard HAD told her to use her body, she is her own person. She makes that decision. Not him. Shes an adult woman capable of making her own decisions.You sound incredibly ignorant. Try again.	Woman	Gender - General	1/95	1.053

RockBeauty :3 shame you have to resort to insults rather than having a simple conversation but I can do that too if that's how you want to behave.It must physically hurt to be that dumb. Please, for your own safety, stop running full tilt into walls.Read this entire comment if you want to learn something for once. If not; remain delusional, fine by me.A) that's a joke at Leonard's expense, not pennys, you imbecile. Just because you dont understand a concept as basic as that doesnt make it sexist. Sorry. The joke that clearly flew over your head was that Leonard isnt a good enough scientist to beat out the likes of sheldon, or kripke, so his woman is there to support him. Seeing as her character is established as someone not of high intellect, she obviously cant support him in that regard, now can she? There is simply nothing sexist about her expressing her sexuality.Secondly, that's not sexist in the slightest. It's becoming more and more apparent that you dont actually know what sexism means. Like I posted above, the concept of sexism is D I S C R I M I N A T I N G against someone solely due to their gender. That's not what was done in the clip at all. Firstly, the joke isnt a reference to her gender, it's a reference to her attractiveness. If penny was the scientist and Leonard the arm-candy, you wouldn't call that sexist. So fuck off with your idiotic double standards. The joke isnt prioritized on her gender, get that through that excuse you call a brain.Thirdly, sheldon doesnt believe women are inferior to men. Nor does the show. The show has countless intelligent female presences. Just because penny isnt one isnt sexist. Amy, Bernadette, leslie winkle, that newitski girl who helped sheldon, Leonard's mother, etc. The list goes on. On top of which he CONSTANTLY references madam curie as a pioneer of science. In addition, let me remind you Zach was a character. A male, who's less intelligent than the rest of the cast (like penny), who's attractive (like penny), which serves as his form of comedic value (like penny). So if the show is "sexist" towards women because if how they occasionally portray Penny, then I guess its sexist against men too, right? No. Neither is true. Just because you're easily offended by the fact that Penny isnt a rocket scientist doesnt make it sexist. This is getting long enough, so I'll wrap this explanation up with one final point. Penny, is portrayed by Kaley Cuoco. Kaley Cuoco in real life is a devout feminist and constantly fights for equality, as well as the extinction of sexism. Fortunately, shes clearly much smarter than you are. If this scene, or any scene on the show for that matter was sexist in anyway, she wouldn't do it. That'd be a basic contradiction to her beliefs. And shes a huge part of the show so she definitely has the option to refuse certain scenes.I'd say hopefully this knocked some sense into you but I think you're far past that. Chances are you wont even read this entire comment, simply due to the ignorance you've already shown. Sorry to break it to you, but you simply repeating "nonono it IS sexist" and offering no explanation as to why, doesnt make you right.	Dumb, Gender, Nothing, Sexism, Woman	Age - Youngsters, Gender - General, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	9/568	1.585

RockBeauty :3 for the record, I dont disagree that Howard is sexist or demeaning to women. That was a big part of his character in the early seasons.But the thing you have to realize is that that isnt a promotion of sexism . If anything it was to show how disgusting of a person he was, hence why a big part of his character development was outgrowing that stage in his life and becoming a more respectable human being. Henry . . R I'm so smart and I get a joke you don't get because it takes a superior intellect to understand. First of all, you really are an idiot. The show objectifies Penny all the time like when creepo Howard looks up her skirt with those toy cars, but when she calls him out for being creepy she has to apologize for his creepiness. Sheldon has said countless times that women are just emotional not smart with all his dumb period jokes claiming he never does anything wrong and that the women around him are the problem because it's their time of the month. He calls every woman around him less intelligent than he is. He claimed Curie is basically a man because she's smart like how man should be. The first joke still objectified Penny which plays a role in sexism , yet you really don't get that because you don't know what sexism means. RockBeauty :3 I mean, I explained numerous times why the show is not sexist nor displays sexism , and your only response is "you're an idiot, the show objectifies penny". You're not even worth arguing. Dont make statements you cant back up or defend.I proved you wrong in so many ways in my last comment, in an organized and logical manner and that's what you respond with? Truly pitiful.Let me know when you're willing to actually have a conversation about the matter like an adult. If youre not even going to bother addressing the numerous facts and evidence I've provided you with, I'm not going to continue arguing with you.Keep resorting to ad-hominem though, it just makes it more and more apparent you have no clue what you're talking about. My 7 year old niece can form a better argumentative paragraph than the shit you babble on about.I've essentially told you why the show isnt sexist and backed it up with irrefutable evidence and examples, and all you've said in response is "no you're wrong. Its sexist."You are too dumb to breathe. Like I said, if you want to actually have a meaningful discussion about this subject, I'm more than willing to do so, respectfully. But if you just want to deflect everything I say with childish insults, I'll just move on. Your call. Post something of substance or I'm just done with you.Also, showing a woman is attractive is much different than discriminating against women. Www.google.comPlease, type in the word " sexism " so you know what it means. I'm not going to be your personal dictionary. Henry . . Also, you didn't prove anything wrong. You actually did just ignore all my comments about Raj objectfying and also sexually harassing women while drunk. Sheldon's ongoing tangents about how women aren't smart and are only emotional. Howard just sitting there and doing nothing while all of the ones that have manage to get a woman mistreat them and devalues them which is apart of sexism dumbass. If your 7 year old niece can come up with a better argument than I can, she most definitely puts you to shame already. Henry . . BTW, I read all your comments you're actually making things up now. Go ahead and edit your comment so you can act like you said them all along because you didn't bring it up. Nor did you bring up my other points. Notice how in the v2ry beginning you just start insulting me trying to prove your point, while also being wrong all together. Claiming sexism is just discrimination when in fact even if you claimed to know the definition, you would see that devaluing, enforcing gender roles and stereotypes and general hatred for the other sex is apart of sexism not just discrimination. Maybe you want to use that link you suggested yourself.	Gender, Sex, Sexism	Gender - General	4/117	3.419

Anna Jager oh anna, you've deluded your poor mind into thinking that any comment that doesn't praise women must somehow be sexism . What an idiotic conclusion. Nothing in the video above is sexism See, what idiots like you tend to misunderstand is that in order for something to be sexist, it must be DISCRIMINATORY against women. In no way are any of the clips above discriminating women. Like honestly, how does a clip of a woman simply wearing a tight dress get classified as sexist? Jesus christ you people are overly sensitive.... Its people like you who claim sexism or racism everytime they hear something they don't like or don't agree with that are the reason sexism and racism are still an issue.Grow up, kid, it's pathetic.
