I support women’s rights but I don’t support the third feminist wave it seems to me to be just misandry . Just as an example look at Michele Causse she literally despised men she said that women should not need or want men at all. She supported euthanasia and committed physician-assisted suicide on YouTube even though she had no terminal illness at all. There is one thing she did say that I agree with and that was that the radical feminist movement is a lesbian movement,she was obviously very proud of that fact. I believe feminists have destroyed the traditional role men play. Men are leaders and we as women are here to help man. We were made from man and for man. The Bible and the Torah tells us what a honorable godly woman is and how to act and how to be with a man and what is appropriate and whats not appropriate. The Bible gave us our morals amd values. The stripping of the Bibles teachings have degraded us as a people and as a country. Thats why we see the confusion of the lgbtqaijbdldosbdbxjckcnvkksjs community!!!! The lack of appropriate morals and values have turned this country into a pig pin of immoral sinners. And the Bible tells us clearly what to do with these immoral sinners! Get rid of them permanently if they dont repent of their nasty immoral ways.	Woman	Gender - General	1/141	0.709

If you are a woman , and not a "feminist", you are labelled as anti-feminist....lol. The interviewer is confused. Camille is saying Ladies you need to Woman Up, Use your Lady-B's and that means Do it Your Damn Self and like men, if you don't provide then your family suffers so you should reject the Welfare state and feel it is an assault on your own womanhood. ”She’s as misogynist like every average man is.”Someone is fluent in feminist shaming language. Response to your misandristic comment/charge of misogyny:One may ask the accuser how does a pro-male agenda become inherently anti-female (especially since feminists often claim that gains for men and women are ’not a zero-sum game’). One may also ask the accuser how do they account for women who agree with the target’s viewpoints. The Code Black shaming tactic often integrates the logical fallacies of ’argumentum ad misericordiam’ (viz., argumentation based on pity for women) and/or ’argumentum in terrorem’.Are you aware of the uglyfying effect of feminism on woman? What Paglia fails to realize is the inherent cognitive dissonance between living life as a woman and being able to live freely. It is unfair to blame woman for wanting to live freely rather than blame (the overwhelmingly male) perpetrators for hindering this. She claims women need to take responsibility and yet does not seem to recognize that it is the men who are ultimately responsible for their actions. As much as the right can’t stomach it, the 1 in 5 statistic remains. Women have a right to be fearful and a right to ask for protection, damn anyone who calls women weak for asking not to be assaulted for living ”freely”. Woman should be afforded the same life experience as men yet the female experience limits women in their freedoms; so it’s impossible to live freely as a woman.In the words of Sylvia Plath ’Yes, my consuming desire is to mingle with road crews, sailors and soldiers, barroom regulars—to be a part of a scene, anonymous, listening, recording—all this is spoiled by the fact that I am a girl, a female always supposedly in danger of assault and battery. My consuming interest in men and their lives is often misconstrued as a desire to seduce them, or as an invitation to intimacy. Yes, God, I want to talk to everybody as deeply as I can. I want to be able to sleep in an open field, to travel west, to walk freely at night...’ Ironically the dismantling of gender is required in order to truly ”free women”	Gender, Woman	Gender - General	5/259	1.931

Men aren't guaranteed EITHER they've just been taught since they were young that it's baked into the cake and know no one is gonna protect them and thus at least SOMEWHAT mentally prepare for it. When I walked home from bars when I used to drink I knew what streets to not be on, stayed under street lights as much as possible so I could watch shadows coming from behind me and wear obvious headphones with no music so someone would think I couldn't hear them to bait carelessness on the potential mugger's part. I've even wrapped my zip up jacket around my waist to hide my wallet in my back pocket whilst shirtless in the winter to look NOT WORTH MUGGING on a long walk home one night. I love how the interviewer says she doesn't understand what Camille means by "stop blaming men for your unhappiness." LOL the interviewer does not obviously know that it's common sense today that every INDIVIDUAL-MEN AND WOMAN are responsible for their own life and happiness- So are you saying that men ARE responsible for woman's happiness???? Doesn't that contradict a feminist stance on "men don't control women"? Yet- you don't understand why women shouldn't blame men- or anyone else - for their unhappiness??? You are a pure fool.	Common, Woman	Gender - General, Social Class - Working class	2/87	2.299

So what the interviewer is saying is that women are weak fragile things that need to be protected and taken care of by men. And that they can't be held responsible for their own actions that men must be responsible for not only their own actions but the actions of women. How very patriarchal of her. These are the same additives and belies that 60's feminism fought against it is also the the reasons women were not allowed to make contracts in the past (women were not held legally responsible for their mistakes or actions so if they made a deal and then broke it the person they made a deal with had not way of enforcing the deal. at least not with the women so they would take a male relative to court over it. And because of this after a while people stopped making deals with women and only made them with their male relatives).Modern feminism is regressive. Just like modern social justice. Loaded question about hate speech indeed. Who decides? Camille has it right about free speech. She is also correct that young women need to be responsible for the situations they put themselves in and for their own actions that may have negative consequences. Third wave feminism is full of contradictions-women are smart and strong, but they can't get into certain jobs or programs without affirmative action programs. Women don't need men, except of course to do all the dangerous and dirty jobs. Men have no say in whether a woman gives birth to their baby, but is fully responsible if she decides to have it. This is a waste of time except how adept and brilliant Camille is at countering these attacks on her position by a clueless feminist journalist. The conversation between Jordan Peterson and Camille Paglia is far more fascinating. They discuss the history of how all of this idiocy going on today started. I am not familiar with exactly what Postmodernism is. However, I think I recognize to whom they are referring when they use the term, Neo-Marxist. I believe these are the same individuals whom I refer to as pseudo-Marxist. Jordan and Camille both discussed how much the Neo-Marxists despise the working class. This exactly coincides with the deliberate attack on working class men (the true Proletariat) by the feminists (the true Bourgeoisie). This is why I call them pseudo-Marxists. In the past most Marxists were at least perceptive enough to realize how necessary it was to enlist the aid of the Proletariat (especially working class men) to be successful in replacing the status quo. After the success of the revolution, then later on they would prosecute the Proletariat. But, the modern pseudo-Marxists aren't even intelligent enough to realize how foolish it is to deliberately alienate the true Proletariat especially when you are so obviously Bourgeoisie (professional women, making mega bucks, dressed to the nines, glittering in jewels, living in showroom houses with designer furniture). I would also call these people pseudo-Anarchists. They also consistently wrongly refer to themselves as Anarchists and yet they are constantly lobbying for MORE laws, MORE restrictions on basic civil liberties. It is obvious to me that they have no clue what being an anarchist truly means. If you look at many of us who now call ourselves MGTOW and see some of the statements being made I think you would agree that many of us are true anarchists, philosophically but not necessarily politically. These people (especially the women) are really sad, pathetic poseurs. They may talk the talk but they definitely do not walk the walk. One of the many examples of this contradiction would be a feminist who blames everything on the "Patriarchy" and demands that system be destroyed. But then less than fifteen minutes later she is actually DEFENDING the existence of the Patriarchy when she makes the demand that "all men should have the responsibility of protecting all women!" She is apparently not aware that the system for which she wants complete destruction already supported her second idea. But, she is also not intelligent enough to keep her big mouth shut because some MGTOWs liked her first idea and despise her second one anyway for the very reason that her first idea would deliberately eliminate the idea that men have ANY responsibility to women at all including being required to protect all of them. What is Toxic Masculinity? Any idea or process or action embraced by any man which could conceivably result in a situation where it might be personally toxic to him, in other words detrimental in some way to his personal well being. For example the idea of believing that men should pay for women's dinners on a date is potentially toxic because it may threaten his financial stability. Getting married is toxic because the marriage has a high probability of ending in divorce which could expose him to a very toxic environment dealing with cops and courts and government bureaucrats especially those	Misandry, Patriarchy	Gender - General	3/586	0.512

She noted in a 1995 interview with pro-pedophile activist Bill Andriette "I fail to see what is wrong with erotic fondling with any age ."[81][82] In a 1997 Salon column, Paglia expressed the view that male pedophilia correlates with the heights of a civilization, stating "I have repeatedly protested the lynch-mob hysteria that dogs the issue of man-boy love. In Sexual Personae, I argued that male pedophilia is intricately intertwined with the cardinal moments of Western civilization."[80] Paglia noted in several interviews, as well as Sexual Personae, that she supports the legalization of certain forms of child pornography. She wants ”to get the male bashing out of Feminism.” Did she forget the implicit bashing and outright blaming of men in The Declaration of Sentiments?The bourgeois style she’s talking about has always been there. The Suffragettes and subsequent Feminists, up to today, are primarily from the middle class.We haven’t reverted to the 1950s. Women were working in factories half a decade before the mythical and often demonized 1950s. The Honeymooners television show was based in the 1950s. We actually might see heartier women with actual honor systems if we go back to the 1950s.Ism is defined as a doctrine, theory, state of being, and one other that I’m blanking on. An ism is meant to either be devoted or adhered to. Given this, what is Feminism really? What doctrine, theory, or state of being of the feminine must anyone be devoted or subservient to?I think if we look at the term Feminism, after separating out the joined terms and viewing it holistically, we can see that the term means literally nothing . That makes it an empty suit of sorts for anyone to use and make things up as they go.	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/195	0.513

My impression, after viewing the whole video, is that the interviewer was better than most at not interrupting. Which probably required some restraint since common sense has been replaced with popular feminist mantras like "men need to be afraid of women and consequences".	Common	Social Class - Working class	1/43	2.326

I think the real problem is that women have moved ahead very quickly with the establishment of their own sexual identity and equanimity of standing in sexual relationships but have failed to simultaneously develop their ability/willingness to take responsibility for their own actions in that regard. Not to sound like a comic book here but - With great power comes great responsibility! Women have eagerly taken up all the the reins of power but they continue to fail to act responsibly in the exercise of that power. When push comes to shove, many women will continue to fall back on finger pointing to escape having to take responsibility for their actions when those actions lead to undesirable outcomes. They know full well that when they point the finger at a man, society will rush in to destroy that man on their behalf. This is because society continues to considers women to be "powerless" (even though they are not) and affords them a protected status in that regard. As long a society continues to ignore the role of women in bringing about an undesirable outcome, we will have turmoil between the sexes.	Sexual	Gender - General	2/191	1.047

Good Green Goy I think that some people do go as far as to label any differing opinions as hate speech but that isn't what it actually means. Paul Scott 'so you're saying....' is the main tactic the interviewer used throughout this interview. By the logic you present, the Jordan Peterson interview with Kathy Neuman was also in good faith (which i hope we can both agree, was not). These types of interviews are quite common and are used to quote activists out of context to discredit them (both left and right). Furthermore, characterizing the left in such a manner of 'always going for the throat' is simply a falsehood because many members operate behind closed doors and would do anything but make themselves vulnerable. I can tell you mean to understand ideas better and I hope this does not come across as abrasive. I simply think you are optimistically giving the interviewer and MSM too much credit.	Common	Social Class - Working class	1/130	0.769
Going for the throat does not have to done in the open, nor does it necessarily render one vulnerable. The interview, in-fact, did not quote Paglia out of context and as far as I can tell did nothing what-so-ever to discredit her. Weather that was intentional on the part of the interviewer or the network I can not say for sure. But in my opinion and from what I've seen in other interviews I don't get that feeling. If the interviewer meant to use her facial expressions and questions as a means toward this end then she is terrible un-talented because while I did get the feeling that she does not agree whole heartedly with Paglia, I also do not get the feeling that she was trying to undermine Paglia. In addition, each time the interviewer asked a question it seemed to elicit the exact responses opponents might need to hear to sway their thinking. This could certainly be due to Paglia's own skill, experience and eloquence, but still I don't get that feeling from the interviewer.Believe me when I tell you that we're on the same page when it comes to distrusting media. well, it seems that all the progressive lbgt ..xyz community have confused themselves to the point where a big bunch don't know which bathroom to go to, or are afraid to attend the bathroom.Here's a simple solution to help all those simple minded and confused people: put a picture of a penis(with pubes, so dad's and mom's can take their pre pubesant kids to the bathroom) on the bathroom for the people that have one. and a penis with a red circle around,and a diagonal line across (no puberal or post puberal penis)for the people that don't have one.Now this might offend men that identify as women or something in between, but if they truly feel that they should be in the no penis bathroom, it will have to come off first.same for people with puberal or post puberal vaginas that want to go into the penis bathroom, they'll have to grow one.And the same should apply for prison's and other places here there might be an issue. Western world has entered a comfortable zone in the late 20-th century, were comfort and luxury are the values, not wars, bravery and honor. So we pass the men's world and entered women's. Aggressive modern feminism is just the social norms catching up. There is no such thing as equality - its either the men's world or women's. As this bright women says - u have to be responsible for your actions. For men it means - if u want to live in a civilized, comfortable world u will end up with matriarchy (cause its a women's value, their world). I am not saying that "all women only" bathrooms are always clean, but almost every time I used a gender neutral bathroom in the past, I thought it to be gross. After that law has passed, I started noticing that a lot of those type restrooms have a sticky, nasty substance on the floor where we walk - it freaks me out! Hence the reason I have, many moons ago, instituted a shoe free home rule. Just thinking that my boys had to use those restrooms, and walk on that with their shoes,,and then walk on my floors, and carpet... no. I guess most parents don't teach their sons to be considerate towards others, and as they grow, most never develop a conciouns around that either. I hope I myself am raising my kids to be considerate, and respectful towards others; be they boys or girls Thanks Camille - I love your refreshing way of thinking - Men indeed are not our enemy... I'm a fan of Paglia. As the mother of four young men, I loath the male bashing and blaming of men for things that are not their fault. It's not man's fault that when we got what we asked for, namely equality, some women want to be cared for. I also have grave concerns where women set themselves as a hyper sexual creature. That's good but there are very real risks in this behavior and girls need to be educated about it.	Sexual	Gender - General	1/82	1.22 putting women to work was a mistake that generated new problems, which are being resolved at the cost of men, sexual revolution was a mistake that has generated new problems at the cost of everybody, giving women an education is probably going to lead to division of academia to male and female branches with different discoveries and perspectives on what a Truth is, giving women political power is going to lead to the world led by women for women, prohibiting men from using their physical strength against women is the main reason why women get ahead...if women were given sexual power that they use over men, why men cannot use power that has been given to them over women? Especially when men and women are in competition now?	Sexual	Gender - General	2/128	1.562

T C How about long lasting relationships, that are needed to raise up a kid? Have you ever thought about how sexual revolution changed power dynamics between men and women?	Sexual	Gender - General	1/30	3.333
Katallylos if you care so much about long lasting relationships, why do you only attack women who are promiscuous ? Throughout history you have examples of promiscuous men. Giving women an education is obviously not a bad thing, people who make such ridiculous arguments are simply guys who cannot stand the fact that both genders have freedom of choice. Women have proven capable of doing top jobs, just like men have proven capable of child bearing or domestic housework. Give people freedom of choice and stop being backward.	Promiscuous	Gender - Female sexuality	2/87	2.299

Ryan V Ok assuming you are a man - Is this how you are trying to get laid in life? By advocating for womens' interest against interests of men? Well if that is so, you are just proving my point. Women get ahead mainly because of their sexual power over men like you...who end up friend zoned :) Being a man does not mean you have to give to women what they want :) Actually many women admit they want a man capable of saying No to them.And yes, I do care about long lasting relationships, because promiscuous way of living serves only young people and hurts children. And I wrote also that promiscuous men are irresponsible as well. See, that is what I would like to come back - responsibility. Which is tough sale I know. Responsibility feels unpleasant, binding where freedom feels so nice and unbinding...I am not sure if women proved that they are capable that much. If companies forbid men being aggressive toward women (because she feels hurt) or fire people advocating for the case of men (James Damore or CERN scientist whose name I do not remember now, that wrote and supported by facts that women are not good in physics for example) convinces me that there is a double standard for men and women. Or what about the case that happened in Canada. Women became ministers just because they were women, not because they were the most capable.People have been given freedom of choice and look at the world now....pure chaos. We need to start asking difficult questions like how much freedom is too much of freedom or how much empathy is too much of empathy. Again - it is a hard sell to liberals like you, but too much of freedom and no responsibility leads to chaos with no rules Too much of responsibility and no freedom leads to pure order with no freedom. Freedom where we can prosper lies in between - chaos of nature and natural order, which one is.I am glad conservatives have started speaking up. It is quite interesting to see what liberals keep saying and what conservatives have started saying. It is my belief that the Truth can be revealed only if we look at it from at least two different perspectives. I hope Trump will be re-elected. I hope more conservative political leaders will be re-elected. I hope there will be new Sillicon Valley made by conservatively thinking people. If feminism has been a social project lasting over 100 years it is perfectly understandable to look at the results of this project. Only a mad man keeps running a project that causes more harm than good. And if it has been advocacy for women's rights till now, the time has come to start standing up for men. If we wish to survive. Women have proven to be capable of same tyranny as men. Why should we let them keep doing it?	Promiscuous, Sexual	Gender - Female sexuality, Gender - General	3/498	0.602

Katallylos, Although I agree that too much freedom without discipline leads to chaos, I think that your denigration and blaming of women is not only unfair but inaccurate. I am surprised that you cannot see any examples of women performing their jobs well and efficiently across the various job fields. Really? Are all the women who are employed in businesses, schools, hospitals, manufacturing companies, universities,...etc do such a poor, subpar job? What do you have to base that on besides your own dislike of women. Well It is unfortunate that you have mommy issues, but denigrating women makes you no different than the radical feminist you claim who do the same thing to men.As for your statement of women not being "good at physics" I find that quite puzzling considering that there have been some women throughout history who have made some very important contributions in physics...some of them even led to a Nobel Prize. Ever heard of Marie Curie? She won two Nobel Prizes in two different fields of science, physics and chemistry. The first person. What about Rosylin Yalow? Lisa Meitner? Oh wait, didn't a woman just recently win the Nobel Prize in Physics? A Canadian Scientist named Donna Strickland? There was also another woman in California who won the Nobel Prize in Chemistry. Good Golly Miss Molly, Although I do agree with Camile Paglia in her analysis of feminism. I do too reject third-wave feminism. However, I do not think that embracing the opposite extreme ideology, such as that of Katallylos, is a reasonable response or position to take. Some people who reject feminism end up embracing misogyny instead. That is so unfortunate, but I believe that is what people do psychologically. It is like replacing one addiction for another. Ryan V To the extent that getting and keeping a "top job" involves merit and unusually hard work, as it should, we should neither seek nor expect a 50 men and 50 women mix in all fields. Jordan Peterson often cites the fact that the freedom of choice that we all celebrate exists to the greatest degree in Scandinavian countries; and that as a result, occupations tend to be more dominated by one gender– some by women, others by men– than in places with less freedom of choice. Promotion by merit also implies that those who have other goals in life than being career workaholics will probably not reach the highest rungs of the ladder, and there is nothing wrong with that. The problem is with those who expect to "eat their cake and have it too".	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/137	0.73
Jakub Rogacz I never denied that women weren't promiscuous , if you actually checked my comment. Promiscuous	Gender - Female sexuality	3/59	5.085

Jakub Rogacz Haha are you serious? I would be interested to visit the place where you live, if the men never brag about who they have slept with. I am no expert but in British US culture its common for men to talk openly about being promiscuous and who they have slept with especially when they are with other guys. Theres countless films about womanising men and those characters can be portrayed positively. Its not black and white, there are men and women who are faithful, and those who are not. I don't think there is anything with taking either approach as long as you don't hurt someone else, but anyone who just blames women needs to take their head out of the clouds. Regarding prostitution, the trade wouldn't exist if there weren't men who slept with prostitutes, again both men and women contribute to that and a lot of women who do, do so due to socioeconomic reasons or even forced to by criminal gangs. Yes. Camille was not criticizing Madonna's looks (she looks amazing) but the fact that Madonna simply stopped evolving as an artist some time ago, and that she's simply too old for certain costumes now. It's like watching her morph into Cher and trying to play the victim b/c some one criticized her is even worse.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/55	1.818
I've always wondered (and marvelled) at French film actresses who generally appear to accept their age and evolve their repertoire accordingly. No crash dieting for a role or squadrons of personal trainers. You won't see many of them go under the knife either, and if they do, it's done very subtly. It does give one pause. I mean, we ridicule middle aged men who try too hard to stay young (cars too fast for their reflexes to handle, dating girls young enough to be their daughters...). Perhaps rightly so. There is something appealing about the idea of aging gracefully. Part of it will involve letting go of your past and evolving. But isn't that a reasonable philosophy for achieving balanced happiness in the end?	Age	Age - General	1/124	0.806

MUH PATRIARCHY!	Patriarchy	Gender - General	1/2	50.0

Graham W Feminists fight the patriarchy . Patriarchy is a social system that benefits men. To say women should fight against the patriarchy , then say they shouldn't blame the patriarchy , is contradictory."All" seems to be an important word in the sentence. Women can't blame the patriarchy for "all" of their problems. And that exception, to the interviewee, is sexual .If you are a feminist, and you believe the patriarchy is a general part of the social system that needs to be overcome, then it's probably a hard pill to swallow when a feminist says: "It's everywhere... except in the bedroom. That's on you."	Patriarchy, Sexual	Gender - General	6/103	5.825

It's the way the internet used to be, before governments and corporations colluded to dumb it down.People are working on "Web 3.0" projects, which will replace Twitter and YouTube and whatnot, with decentralized systems that cannot be shut down. The best of these will also be encrypted and anonymous so governments and their corporate buddies cannot retaliate against people for producing or hosting content they disagree with.What we're learning in the internet age is that it doesn't matter what the law is. If something is technically possible, your governments ARE using it against you already. That will always be there, but "Web 3.0" is a way to at least preserve speech, our most fundamental right. This interview was much needed, but too short. I really hope people on the fence here pick up Paglia's book because it takes a lot of words to be counter-culture nowadays against the establishment talking points CBC was playing here. Via the internet, America has exported it's ideology of free speech to individuals across the globe and that genie isn't going back into the bottle. Paglia demonstrates here how to handle being (as a man or woman or trans) in a tough world full of people you disagree with. If you want to call speakers being banned "far-right" or say they use "hate speech" then boy howdy! You are not ready for the present-day/near-future of internet arguments spilling over into popular culture. You ain't seen nothing yet. Camille Paglia isn't an assault on your sensibilities unless you're a delicate, shrinking flower. She's a life-line to sanity if you listen to her. Wendy Mesley played the role of clueless establishment figure full of faux-outrage quite well here, but that shtick is precisely what's going to be intellectually demolished in the next few years. Buckle up for the future!	Nothing, Woman	Age - Youngsters, Gender - General	2/187	1.07
very smart woman , great points.	Woman	Gender - General	1/5	20.0

Paglia is a very interesting lady for sure. I think that people like her, and the thoughts that she brings to the table will serve to advance the gender issues in society. I was always impressed with her thoughts on women empowering themselves without bashing men about it. If you are a woman with respect and confidence in yourself and careful about what situations you put yourself in, you can avoid a lot of problems. As a man I do the same kind of thing when I go somewhere, I judge the situation and if I find it to be unsafe for myself or others with me I leave and take responsibility for myself. Example: Out for drinks with friends at a pub and it looks like a drunken brawl is brewing a table or two over, move towards paying your bill and leaving and not hanging around for the bedlam to start and putting yourself there.	Gender, Woman	Gender - General	2/157	1.274
otsoko66 There is nothing shallow about respectfully and not hatefully thinking outside the box. Nobody has all of the answers but she turns society's accepted norms upside down and shakes out the garbage that has defined the genders for too long and is quite honestly dated. Have a look at and listen to people in everyday life and objectively see the patterns that people follow because of their gender norms such as the football men, the soap opera women etc, desperately wanting to belong to a group of sexuality patterns because they most likely can't form their own identity. This isn't meant to stereotype these activities because they already are! It is different to see women enjoying football games etc nowadays but are they doing it to stay close to their guy or is it really something they choose? I don't see a lot of guys following their ladies around to the things that they enjoy, some but not to the same degree.	Gender, Nobody, Nothing	Age - Youngsters, Gender - General	3/163	1.84
Embarrassingly shallow thinking? Her works span centuries of androgyny and gender expressed in art, exposing the sexuality of whole civilizations during their rise and fall. Mustbe, I think you've completely misunderstood the criticism. Camille's point was straightforward to anyone not trained to screen everything through a feminist coloured lens. Camille was talking about women taking full responsibility for themselves.... just as men are expected to!.... and also to stop blaming men anytime something in their lives doesn't go the way they would have preferred. The fact that Wendy Mesley couldn't wrap her mind around the notion that women could be expected to do these two things simultaneously is just bizarre. And telling!But then again... Wendy next interpreted Camille to be advocating that women 'go back' to the days where men and women occupied separate realms.	coloured	Ethnicity - Black	1/111	0.901

The women has a PhD in gender studies, if she says she's transgender , she should know what she's talking about. Also, on the gender issue, just because she doesn't want a penis, that doesn't mean she's not transgender , which is also one of many reasons I love her. She can enjoy her fluidity without insisting on having permanent body changes so she's clearly not at any of the far ends of the spectrum. Her saying "I'm lesbian " is only meant to let people know that her sexual preference is women quickly, rather than spend hours on explaining gender fluidity, which she does brilliantly in other talks. Her being biologically a woman and into women translates into " lesbian " so I think it is very smart not to overcomplicate things, when it is unnecessary like most democrats these days, and thus get lost in the details. Whatever kind of person you may be, please give one shred of evidence that this prof has ever said anything hateful about you or anyone else? I'm pretty liberal on many issues, less so as I grow older, but I'd also draw a line at being told what language to use. And it's become apparent to me that constantly being offended is a good way to try to cohearse others into accommodating your particular worldview. But, nobody is obliged to agree with you or respect you, and same applies to me.
