This is a very accurate video. Older people are definitely pushed out of and not even considered for most jobs. Some of that is valid, as an older person you generally are not as up to the demands of a hard physical job. Also as an older person many of us are not as fast mentally as we used to be and can lose some memory ability. Having admitted older people have some downsides, it is my experience that most of the job bias is just pure predjudice. You only need to read the comments on this video to see how bad it is and how acceptable it is to demonize anyone who is in the 50 and older class. It is truly amazing to me how little the next generation understands the past and how much they seem to blame and hate their parents age group for things that are occuring now. Take today's young and put them where we were 35 years ago and very little would change but in those younger minds it's all about how selfish and stupid we boomers were and how we left nothing for them. It will be truly interesting if as they age they grow out of this distorted view of their parents history. I suspect that they will as we the now aged boomers did with our parents. Unfortunate for the speaker and the sympathizers, this is a phenomenon only in the West. Probably a bigger issues specifically the USA. I will never understand why ppl over there resist soo much being an old person. I mean what's the point in living without accepting facts. I may be young today but I'm pretty accepting of the fact that I will be old , as long as I do not die before I do. Yes we should sympathize with their issues but you can't sympathize and be understanding yet get told that you are being offensive. This is somewhat true with gender issues as well. The facts are, old ppl are weaker and lack motor skills in general Old do not look the same as when they are young. Which is a superficial thing especially at that age .The old really do need to prioritize the young. It's an evolutionary instinct for a reason. Prejudice against the aged? LMAO! You see this now because we just came out of a near Great Depression where millions lost homes and jobs . Younger people eventually bounced back but not your middle aged who are now old because lets face it almost no company ever hires older workers when they can get cheaper and younger ones. Now this older generation is crying because nobody would hire them. Solution is save your money during your working years and use that and SS to live on later	Nobody, Old	Age - Over 65s, Age - Youngsters	2/88	2.273

You're not even talking about the actual prejudice of which is completely Justified. That wouldn't be socially acceptable or diplomatic....Light, fluffy and a big pile of stink, like usual.I am not going to be greedy and attempt to live until a ripe old unnatural age.everyone who does is refusing to get the fuck out of the way of the Next Generation.You're all stagnating by forcing everyone to stay the same as the old retain their positions of power and their social clout. They brainwash a percentage of the up-and-coming generation in order to keep things the same and retain their positions of power both socially and economically.They sacrifice the future for their own petty greed.The old perceive My Generation as a threat to their power.The fact that we live as long as we do is one of the heaviest contributing factors of what is debilitating or stagnating evolution and our ability to adapt.Holding onto culture and traditional values it's something that the old love to do and then there's the whole respect your elders bullshit while our elders piss all over us.in a desperate culture War, which is nothing more than evidence for Divergence in our species, these old farts punish anybody who dares to step out of line or refuses to respect their bullshit Authority.	Age, Nothing, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s, Age - Youngsters	7/225	3.111

Contributing to a 401k instead of counting on social security is a responsible thing to do. Selling things and living within your means. Youths won't get social security even though we pay for it and you want to tax more to make it more luxurious? I'm making sacrifices while I'm young so that I'm not a burden on others. Maybe they should have to. We all pay for are short sightedness and the elderly seem to push there burden on young people. 14 trillion in debt unsustainable social programs set up like a pyramid scheme. Ridiculous. Young people don't hate old people. Young people aren't in charge of getting rid of or hiring old people at jobs. It's the other way around. Old people hate young people. They've been force fed the idea that millenials have caused all these problems. Every headline they read says we're killing an industry and how we are ruining home ownership. They blame the younger generation for the problems they created because they don't want to acknowledge the fact that they have been in charge for a long time and botched the job.	Old	Age - Over 65s	3/93	3.226
We have most of our presidential contenders are in ther late 70s and most of the urlers of the US are over 60, but if you are not in the ruling class and you are old you are a stepping stone, an impediment, and basically refuge to be discarded. This is one of the reasons people are so ruthless in their careerism and ambitions, if you are not on top by the time you are 50 you are headed for disaster	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/81	1.235

I think what Boomers aren't realizing is that there exists a common understanding between the 3 major generations below them....about them.Us Millennials have a common understanding and respect for GenX, while also trying to warn gen Z on what to avoid as we try and figure out how to navigate through this mess.When Gen X become our elders, they will not receive the same resentment that boomers receive now (And that says a lot about the current sentiment).This isn't "Ageism". She keeps proving that anyone to throw around ”-isms” doesn’t have a good argument for whatever shit they want to peddle. And whatever happened to ”power+privilege” noise? Why is a generation with so much money and power being sheltered from any negativity by demonizing everyone who dislikes them for good reasons with ”muh -isms”? Boomers are hated by everyone after them because they hate everyone who came after them. Boomers are incredibly selfish, and go out of their way to rod their children/grandchildren of their future, by continuing to push for laws that benefit only boomers, or laws that they won’t be alive to face the negative consequences for, like any law that is pushed to deny global warning, or to ”own the libs”. You can’t eat your cake, and have it, too, boomers. Either continue being selfish pieces of shit, and accept being called out as selfish pieces of shit, or realize that hate doesn’t come because ”lazy millennials” are bored and picking on poor old boomer, poor old boomers with all the power and influence, to entertain themselves, or just because millennials are big meanies. The ” Ageism ” in America is not about how long someone has been alive. It’s about the attitudes, mores and ideals that come from each generation. Agreed. What they don’t realize is that the 3 generations below them (GenX, Millenialls, and Gen Z) are in consensus about the current sentiment in regards to the boomers. Please don't call it ageism . An -ism is a distinctive practice, system, or philosophy, typically a political ideology or an artistic movement. When applying -ism to a phenomena, you induce good and evil into the equation, and young people not caring about old people is neither. The outcome of said phenomena might be good or evil, but the reason for it isn't, and if we want to "fix" it, we need to understand why it happens? And no, culture is not an explanation of that, even though it manifests itself through culture.	Ageism, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s	2/92	2.174
It's not just about young people "not caring". People generally treat perceived age groups poorly and that treatment negatively effects them. In the case of this video it's specifically talking about the elderly . Except the same can be said about children too. as older people typically mistreat, abuse and disparage the youngest generations. In other words it is and should be an -ism. You can't say it isn't when liability laws are passed that force the elderly to forfeit everything to the state and go to nursing homes... or when children are being murdered in schools or locked in cages at the border. Ageism should induce good and evil... there's a lot of evil done because of this particular prejudice.	Age, Ageism, Elderly	Age - General, Age - Over 65s	4/120	3.333

I adopted the " Old person in-training" doctrine at age 30 or so, and it sort of helped me gradually "adjust" to being the 'insignificant old person' (Which is an unavoidable phase of the human existence and the FACTUAL way the world views the aged)..I suggest any male over the age of 40,; read the book, "Younger Next Year" by Chris Crowley & Henry S. Lodge M.D... It confirms everything said in this video, and my own lifelong experiences. It teaches us how to take inevitable, gradual "insignificance" as the soul-crusher it can be, and totally IGNORE it — and instead, turn the aging process into "an interesting town" along life's journey.. It truly helped me , both emotionally and physically.	Age, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s	4/121	3.306
IizUname Sometimes, 'insignificance' can be a blessing anyway. Perception is a relative thing, I think, so the more 'essential' one is PERCEIVED to be, the more stellar and consistent the level of performance will be expected of them from that point on. My theory is that THIS is what leads to many suicides among public figures with declining popularity, or productivity... If not, simply creating higher stress levels and the health concerns that go with that stress. Again, just a theory of mine, and i'm no expert — I'm just a HAPPILY insignificant old guy. ;)	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/96	1.042

IizUname Hi Liz. No advice, just a note. I've always found that being centered on my spiritual beliefs has kept me up, not focusing so much on my outward self, but my inner kid, haha. Other people often think i'm younger than i am. One lady friend is in casting at Fox said that I have some 'neoteny,' or have kept some of the characteristics of youth a little longer than some folks, that i'm 'in the middle range' and that they're always looking for that trait because youth 'n good looks have been responsible for having sold about 90 of movie tickets since 1915, but that it's usually accompanied by a well maintained good attitude. I think of Peter Pan and Tinkerbelle almost every day because and keep a couple of their yt videos handy, even though i'm a big, straight guy. No apologies, I love to watch them fly, love them for what they 'are' and for teaching me about life when age 4-5. A sense of humor doesn't take much maintenance, so remember, at 24, your'e still young enough to have a considerable 'Huggies' budget and I've got a bottle warming up for ya right now ;) A light but 'genuine' smile lets a person watch the little things that happen at the fountain of youth, it's something you wear. Elderly people carry so many experiences.If you have the patience, you can learn so much.	Elderly	Age - Over 65s	1/16	6.25

That patience doesn't come from sharing a commonality in the form of you, some day, going to be old and them already being old . That's not the starting point you want. You don't want the elderly person to tell you about things to know when you're old , you want them to tell you about things to know when you're still young. The wisdom you want is something you don't know, and the root of that is respect for the elderly , not an acknowledgement that you, some day, will be old as well. That puts you on the same level, and you don't want that, because you aren't on the same level. You want to acknowledge that you're young and have a lot to learn and out of respect for the experiences of those who came before you, you can learn.This video is like most progressive ideas, noble goals with counter-intuitive means. Baxter why do you pretend that "surviving" is a virtue? It used to be an accomplishment to survive. Not since WW2, but it "used" to be.72 of all people are pureBred fukpotatos no matter what age group they fall in. It just so happens that anyone of retirement age or older, right now, were exposed to lead for the majority of their lives on a daily basis. So their fukpotato to normal human ratio is artificially higher.We should be ignoring the elderly lead poisoned generation and hoping those in power die sooner than later. To be perfectly honest. The vast majority of them are cognitively impaired and socially dysfunctional due to life long lead exposure. The real truth is never pretty.	Age, Elderly	Age - General, Age - Over 65s	3/123	2.439
Zenn Exile You're not incorrect. It's not a virtue, absolutely. But being old comes with a lot of experience. Respecting the elderly around you for their age allows you to hear them out. When, they then, speak jibberish and nothing of interest, you'll know. But speaking to them and respecting their word starts with an actual respect for their age , not an acknowledgement that you, too, some day, will be old and should listen to them to know what it will be like. That's a very autistic approach	Age, Elderly, Nothing, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s, Age - Youngsters	6/88	6.818

Isn't this a modern phenomenon, and culturally biased at that? My impression is that the extended family took care of their own elderly until the 50s or so. Then wives had to start working and the family became stress In the white culture the extended famiy all but disappeared But you still see it among Hispanics and Asians	Elderly	Age - Over 65s	1/58	1.724

The flooding of women into the workforce fundamentally lowered wages for both men and women, so that neither men nor women can raise families on one income. The current batch of old people is fundamentally responsible for pushing women into the workforce, reducing the happiness and productivity of everyone.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/49	2.041
Uh, no, it was the generation before the current batch of old people that pushed women into the workforce. It began with women filling in for the men who went to war(WWII), and continuing to work when the war was over. And when the men came home from war, they fathered the Baby Boomer generation (who are the old people now).Spot on with every point though.	Old	Age - Over 65s	2/67	2.985

Zenn Exile You would have been better off stating that wages have increased. Which they have. But real wages have gone way, way down.It's not because women work, but because women and men work. Two incomes creates more buying power, which causes higher prices in a competitive bidding market (i.e. real estate). The home I was born in now lists for four times what my parents sold it for, that's an insane rate of inflation. Single-earner families, which used to be the norm for the middle class, are now the purview of the elite (top earners) and the impoverished (regular and low earners). To be middle class now requires two average wages. That's not sexist, because married gay men still need two incomes to buy a home.And stop molesting potatoes, and YouTube commentators against their consent. Zenn Exile okay, so you're saying...The average worker has a lower hourly wage today than seventy years ago.This lower hourly wage allows people to buy more than seventy years ago.Neither men or women work in most households today.Families with two incomes have less buying power than families with one or no income.The home I was born in was not recently listed for four times what my parents sold it for.Most middle class families in the past had dual or no incomes, not single incomes.Most modern-day middle class families are single income homes.While heterosexual couples require two regular jobs to afford a home, homosexual couples can afford a similar home with one or fewer incomes.And you reserve the right to continue molesting potatoes.Ladies and Gentlemen: the opinions of Zenn Exile	Homosexual	Sexual Identity - General	1/139	0.719

The current prejudice against old people is two-fold: (1) The current generation of American old people are fundamentally responsible for mass immigration, the promotion of college to young people (and the debt associated with this), and the gutting of American resources to foreign countries and lobbies. (2) The mass importation of immigrants creates intersectional feminism, which causes old Trump voters to be abused by young immigrants (and their descendants).	Old	Age - Over 65s	3/69	4.348

David Olsen I am interested in the research results that support your claims. Between your different comments to this presentation, you make quite a few. To take one example, you say , "The current generation of American old people are fundamentally responsible for mass immigration..." This raises many questions . How do you know? When was the study done? What are the other elements of the distribution? What are their percentages? You see what I mean? But a citation to your sources would be fine too. Ask old White people how they feel about race-related policy changes that were developed in the 1990s, such as Affirmative Action and Hate Speech laws.
