My boyfriend is also lebanese and I would definitely agree on you saying they are SUPER romantic. Like, whenever he finds a moment to say i love you, he will definitely do it. Not to mention, he is so close to his family like if his brother has a problem that will be the whole family’s problem. As a woman , having to witness my boyfriend taking care of his mom and even saying i love you to his mom is such a plus.And... He loves food so much haha	Woman	Gender - General	1/90	1.111
I’m so jealous. I married into a Lebanese family and I have not experienced any of these funny things. Mine are rude, make remarks on my race , don’t make lots of food, are not generous...believers of nepotism and isolation. I picked the worst ones. :( Glad your experience isn’t like mine. I am Arab myself and i have NEVER said any insults to anyone and i am also Gypsy so I am Syrian-Gypsy and I and my family are the 100 opposite of everything you are saying about Arabs! I can definately NOT relate to anything you said at all because I am Arab and my family and the Arabs in my family are NOTHING like you have described....and growing up we always ate whatever we bought at the grocery store, never ate any Arab foods at all... and yeah, learning to speak Arabic is kinda hard, but i am still trying to learn to speak it and we have never had big meals, we always ate whenever we wanted and we never filled the table with more than 1 kind of food....like if my mother made lasagna that was all that was served nothing more....and there never was any set time for dinner, it was more eat when you're hungry and I am never late for anything and never have bee, if you tell me to be somewhere or to meet you at a certain time then will be there at that place an hour or 2 before we're supposed to meet and as far as family oriented is concerned, no. not really in my family– our motto is look out for yourself cause nobody else will and i never use hand gestures when cooking and i don't really use spices except when cooking my husband's food because i am a Vegan and my husband is not so he spices everything i don't and we never celebrated any Muslim holiday and never had parties or anything growing up, we weren't party people growing up, when holidays came around it was just another day of the year and an excuse for lazy people not to work...and as far as prayers go we never really prayed and i still don't pray with anyone or 5 times a day as a Muslim should, i just read the Quran whenever i have time.	Gypsy, Nobody, Nothing, Quran	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - Roma, Religious Identity - Muslim	5/339	1.475

Well the problem is that they tells everyone your life story.One time I was in the mall and I found a woman that looks like my mother like 100 so I tell her 'mom, can I buy these shoes?? PLEASE I WANT THEM SO BA-' and the woman said 'uhhh, sorry I'm not your mom...' AND I WAS SO EMBARRASS AND MY MOM WAS LAUGHING AT ME IN THE BACK!!!So it was fine cuz none knows about it. So two days later, we was in my grandma's house, and I heard my mom talking ... and I heard my name while she was talking... so I went to the room that they were in. (That has all of my cousins) and I spy on them... and guess what... SHE TOLD THEM WHAT HAPPENED IN THE MALL AND NOW THEY ARE LAUGHING AT ME!!!1 like = STOP TELLING MY EMBARRASSING STORYS MOM!!! Offering politely to people multiple times is called Ta'arof. It's a common thing in the Middle East and it is not just an Arab thing. Just saying. My mum is half Arabic so that makes me part Arab but I feel like I'm completely Arabic because I can relate to this on my dad's family as well. Whenever I'm in public with my mum and she's talking to her mum to let her know everything's ok (my grandma makes my mum call her every time she gets out of the car cuz she's so overprotective ) and my mum talks really loudly and people just stare at my mum so weirdly and then I'll start joining her conversation like: Tell teta this tell teta that (teta is like a way of saying grandma in Arabic. There are lots of different ways like in English like how you could say nana or Mimi or Gigi) and people sometimes go up to my dad and say: sir I'm not sure what happened but I can assure you it will be ok. My experience of being with a middle eastern guy is.... 1 Arabs/kurds will think nothing of quizzing you about personal stuff straight off the bat,first meeting...Are you married? No? Why not? You are getting old .Yes? Do you have kids? If not, why not?if you have one or two kids why don't you have more?etc 2 They will arrive at your door unannounced at any hour, with their wife and kids and their wife's cousin and his wife and the brother in law of a friend who is over from Syria etc etc. and you MUST invite them in, rustle up a three course dinner preceded by nuts,seeds,popcorn etc and followed by fruit and then tea,then sweets.And then more tea. 3 They are the WORST time keepers.just awful.4 They are super indulgent of kids. You can take your kids to an Arabic restaurant and even if they are literally bouncing off the walls and generally being a nitemare the staff will not care and will be all "mashallah" and giving them lollys and stuff while you just want to throttle them. 4 They refer to everyone in their extended family as a cousin because they usually forgot long ago the convoluted way in which they are ACTUALLY related. If you ask its always "his mum is my dad's sisters husbands nephews son." or summin like that.Living with them is lovely and infuriating in equal measure. Once you are accepted you will never be without help if you need it and the way they rally round each other in times of need can be very comforting.Hope I didn't offend anyone, much love. Idk what fantasies some of you are living in. I wouldn't comment on this had I not been educated. Maybe you should take your own advice and go read on culture and religion. There is a BIG difference, yet most Arab men, though come from different cultures and different religions (because they Arabs do have DIFFERENT cultures and religions) all behave the same out of fear not respect. Ill save you the comment on 'maybe you just don't get it because you're not Arab.' Oh but I do. Ayse Demirkazik Honey don't blame the whole Middle East on what your saying about us because most people have families and they do leave the men there sometime to take care of whats going on. But sometimes you got to do what u got to do. Sometimes there are priorities. For example my father is currently in Yemen with the rest of his family and he can't leave anyway because of the war and the chaos over there. There also no good food sources. Is that somewhere you want to be with your family or is that where you want to be placed. No of course not. It's not just because they feel like it sometimes in most cases they do it for a really good reason. Why would you want to flee ur home. Being Arab means putting your family first. Also I mean you can't say anybody in any other culture doesn't get easily sexually aroused. Naturally You tend to be sexually aroused no matter what. What language you speak and which music you listen to don't define your race . The latest studies (google it pls) have shown that the majority of us Lebanese still carry phoenician genetics, even the muslims (which explains why the Lebanese muslims tend to be more open-minded and looking almost europeans, physically). Arabs are those who came from the Arabian peninsula, they resided in the Gulf area, in Iraq and in Egypt. Not to mention that there are no similarities between your culture and theirs. The music you listen to is different than their music, they dance differently, they have a different mentality, and I am not saying we/you are better or anything, they are just a different culture. Politically, we are meant to be described as Arabs because that keeps us under the influence of the nearby countries, but the truth will always prevail: We are NOT arabs.	Race	Ethnicity - General	1/148	0.676

The blood is mixed, but only 1 of the Lebanese people came from the arabian peninsula. The others came from the crusaders, some were maronites (christians) who run away from turkey's despotism, and so on, but those who came from the arabian peninsula didn't come to lebanon, they came to spain, egypt the gulf countries, just not to Lebanon. Even the muslim shia in Lebanon are ex-crusaders, and some came from Persia, that explains why most of them are blond with colored eyes	Colored	Ethnicity - Black	1/83	1.205
Tina The Lebanese people are largely of Semitic descent.This also goes to other arab countries neighboring Lebanon,who are also genetically Semitic.Phoenicians themselves were Semitic,they are genitic cousins of Arabs.I have visited lebanon and I can say theres a tiny group of christian people,who have no pride in being arab and feel the need to belong to any other ethnic group.Moreover,there are sides who benefit from feeding that ideology in order to let people like you feel like what ever crises Lebanon or other arab countries suffer from does not relate to them as they are not part of it in a sense.Fortunately,Lebanese people are certainly proud arabs and a very minimal group carry that line of ideas if any.Have a nice day. Tina agree with you, the Lebanese are not Arabs genetically. If anything, they are Eastern Mediterranean, possibly with minor Arabic admixture, but not dominant. For a pure 100 Arab one needs to travel to the Gulf countries of Arabian peninsula, and check villages or remote areas, since in the cities people are largely mixed, with Persians, or Balochi, or Indian , or Pakistani, or Zanzibarian.	Indian	Ethnicity - Native-American	1/64	1.562
GrapeDonut Technically speaking a dominant language doesn't mean anything in terms of who is native to a land . The Native Americans speaking English doesn't turn them into English people , Africans speaking French as their official language does not make them French it makes them colonized. Including North Africans who speak French. Sudanese people speak Arabic but they are not genetically Arab. I'm just saying a language doesn't necessarily mean anything about ethnicity . Teya lorens Through DNA tests. For example, it's a well known fact that only 1 of modern Egyptians carries the maternal haplogroup common for the pharaohs. However, around 50 of modern Western European men have got it now, while modern Egyptians have now deeper and closer associations with Sub-Saharan ethnicities.As for the language, you postulate that Arabic belongs to Semitic language family. The family of the language you speak does not define your ethnical roots as somebody in this thread had already pointed out. Language if you will is a state construct - one common language always served the state as a unifying factor for the tribes who either spoke their own languages or mutually unintelligible dialects. In one word it's easy and practical to control a country where everyone uses the same language. Omg you're totally right with everything ,i'm laughing so hard ,i'm arab Lebanese and i can agree with everything , for being late i can't say that everyone is like that but MOST people are like that for example when we plan something on specific time we already know we aren't going to make i don't know really , and for seasoning it's so true especially since my dad works in this domain so when i first tried to make pasta i had A LOT of seasoning and they all taste delicious so i putted everything but it ended up horrible and i couldn't eat it , for arab in general family is really something that we Cherish so much so somtimes when insulting the other he may not say anything but he won't accept anything bad about his family ,well for being loud i've never thought about it , i thought that my family and friends were loud because they are expressing their overflowing feelings , the final thing about asking someone for multiple times yeah we do it a lot you should do it because sometimes we won't the thing but we don't say it immediately it like no i don't want but if you insist then there's nothing I can do , it's something like being shy or you just don't want to trouble the others so that's why we insist like saying it's okay i don't mind i'm not troubled	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/245	0.408
OdzBall ????? how are they going to have the culture of the gulf 'real arabs' as you say, if they aren't from the gulf? this is not how culture works, this is not how language works, and this is not how society functions. this is some dude who thinks he's better than everyone and doesn't have the basic understanding of literally anything. you are not The Chosen One. but entertain me, since they supposedly don't Speak Arabic, what language is their official media? what language is their news papers? a dialect is not a different language, if you stand by your argument then the gulf countries aren't even Arab, the only Arabs are the African countries who speak fusha in daily conversation.	African	Ethnicity - Black	1/122	0.82
OdzBall what are you talking about I'm Lebanese the Lebanese Arabic dialect is just like the dialect of the people from Saudi Arabia or UAE, they have their own dialects that other Arabs cannot always fully understand but we use these dialects only to speak to each other, everything else like learning, news, e-mails, etc.. are all in Fusha Arabic (which is the extremely formal Arabic)Also I like to compare this to the British and American English concept because it seems to be easier to understand for foreigners: just like listening to a British person speak with another British person can be a bit weird for an American person (and vice-versa), a conversation between two Lebanese people can be a bit hard to understand for a person from Saudi Arabia or UAE or any other arab country (and vice-versa) (btw sorry if the comment is too long)	Weird	Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	1/149	0.671

OdzBall I did, Saudi Arabia did not force the Lebanese to change they're textbooks. Lebanese people changed their textbooks because the Lebanese schooling system was old and needed improvements. And to this day it still needs a lot of improving which is still happening right now. Every year some lessons are removed/shortened so the system would be easier for the students. I have a really close look to that and I know what I'm talking about, this schooling system IS old and these improvements ARE helpful, because they're not changing the lessons they're just briefing them. I really don't see how is Saudi Arabia involved in that.	Old	Age - Over 65s	2/107	1.869

OdzBall damn.. ur version of history goes only as far back as you want it to. What do you mean by Arab? do you mean it in a modern loose sense where north africans and the people of the levant ARE considered arab we do speak the same language albeit in different dialects. dont shit yourself you dont speak aramiac. Do you mean Arab in a racial way where the people of the paninsula are refered to as arabs bcuz their from "arabia" and speak a similar arabic to each other? Do you mean original arabs ) ( where most of saudi arabia kuwait bahrain and qatar doesnt even fit under that category but some in sudan, lybia and the lecant and iraq do. which definition of arab are you fkin using. Are we talking about race , cuz then it doesnt matter what you speak or where u are or what culture your in it would be decided by what your actual bloodline is. or do you mean it in a political and cultural sense where lebanon was influenced by almost every major empire in history from ancient egypt to the time solomon ruled that area to the helenistic culure to christian byzantium to a time when arab muslims ruled and you mentioned french. your on here like a dipshit refusing that people call labanese arab wtf do u wana be called then? you dont have a culture that wasnt influenced by regional powers from every point in history for to start rejecting outsiders. lebanon and the levant were like the center of the fkn world until recent times and the final 1200 years of being in the center was arabized as fuck. so unless ur gonna roll back the hands of time and change history lebanon is Arab. Like a guy got stabbed to death for not giving money back or a guy gets shot for refusing to move his car wtf is that! Also there is too much bitchiness and everyone is hungry for money! This is also all sociologically proven! Our society is fucked! It opresses women and it stole their rights from islam when islam gave them so much rights and praises them but the sad thing is that women are too blind to even see that and the continue living under this delusion that they have to be subordinate to their husband its disgusting how controlling they are! We live in a male dominated society! And the fact that ur backing them up is even more upsetting the arab society is only about family honour! As a girl ur not even aloud to laugh in front of a man cuz the man will think of u as a slut and disrespectful and if u laugh like that in front of a woman? She will never give u her son for marriage lmao! Plus everyone there is depressed because of social pressure! Please do me a favour and go do some reading! Miss MIMI Alright, my bad, your country is fucked up so only speak for your country. But as an Egyptian, a Muslim Egyptian, and someone who has lived in SA for a minor part of my life let me tell you that none of the things you described happen. Like people getting shot and stabbed for not paying money or moving their cars? Lmao. I won't claim that my country is the epitome of cleanliness but it's not so dirty as to go whine about it on social media. Maybe your country really is fucked up enough to legit your complains but mine isn't. Also, yeah, it's a male dominated society and yeah, women rights are undermined even though Islam gave us so many rights but lol, if a guy tells me I can't laugh in front of him I will bitch slap him. And if a woman decides not to "give me" her son for marriage I'll tell her to go to hell and that its her son's loss. Not that I'm "looking for" marriage anyway because it is, I gotta say, another stupid system that people follow so blindly, they marry just for marrying and I will never be caught doing the same.And girls getting put down for having boyfriends? Gee, my last boyfriend would definitely like that after the way I dumped him. But my bro and my mom didn't seem to have a problems with me or my bf. If you come here to Egypt on Valentine's day, you'll see that 2/3 of the country are actually dating without prior official engagements, so I think it's safe to say that it's only your fucked up country that is too... well, fucked up. Forgive me if I sounded rude first or now but if I hate one thing, it's people dissing their countries and societies on social media, because it affects us all. But if what you say is true, you can go ahead and diss yours as much as you want, just make sure to say that this mostly, or maybe just only, happens in Jordan. May Allah's mercy and blessings be upon you, dear.	Woman	Gender - General	1/360	0.278

Natalie Pesick again, i did say i was jordanian and thats how arabs in my country are. So i didnt generalise to all arab countries like i know in morocco everyone is chilled. But even for my country i said most and i did end it everytime with "but not everyone is like that" because some individuals are different. Im happy for you that ur society is not as strict but generally speaking male arabs are controlling over the women and take advantage over them. I have 2 Moroccan family friends and theyre so strict on their children. My bestest friend is egyptian and she told me that in her extended family everyone is so jelous of the other and there was so many problems over money. Also she told me her experiences in egypt how because she was the best in class, girls used to threaten her with a knife to give them the answers in a test. Shes faced so many traumatic events in her childhood hence why now at the age of 20 shes suffering from depression anxiety and schizophrenia. And now there is still war happening over sissi and mursi. All this wouldnt have happened to her of she had lived in a country with strict law like the UK where we all live in now. So generally speaking most arabs are killing each other and the politians arnt even doing anything. Theres so many people dying in syria palestine iraq and other countries and no1 is doing anything about it. One thing i admire about jordan is that it accepted many refugees from syria palestine and iraq. But overall im ashamed of being arab because its just kinda fucked up really, but im ever so proud of being a muslim and following the sunnah. I am happy for u that u have a strong enough personality to stand up for urself and go against ur social norms and that is exactly what i would do. I do not belong to any society which is kinda sad, but i do follow my religion, my morals, my logic and my values so im happy to have an individual identity seperate to my society's.

Miss MIMI Actually no, in your first comment, you generalized. You said that the arabs do that because they are fake af and that they all do that to make their families look good, which is what really made me feel a bit annoyed.Yeah I do have to admit that we still have so many political issues, not Mursi no, more like the brotherhood who suddenly became a terrorist organization instead of a religious organization. And yeah, some people are fucked up here, personally, I've never been bullied on school and I've always made sure to stand by the ones being bullied because bullying sucks, but no one gets threatened by knives to give anyone answers that sounds like an exaggeration. If what she says is true, she should have reported it, simple enough. I don't know her circumstances and if she's anywhere near me I'd happily help her. But then again, every society has it's bright side and its dark side. The US and the UK have horrible dark sides too and I'd never swap living in Egypt for living in the UK like, everBottom line is that yeah, there's the bad and there's the good in every society. If you abandon ours for another, just please try to not diss it on every chance you get.P.S.: you belong to where you want to belong and frankly, I don't think it's a bad thing to not belong in any society so count your blessings	Terrorist	Religious Identity - Muslim	1/249	0.402
Rose M. Saleh maybe youre i right i apologise if i made u feel that way, but that the knife thing 100 happened to her, that was around 8 years ago and its ever so possible to happen + when youre threatend you dont know what to do cuz ur just too scared and she was too young to even understand that she needed to report it and even if she had without evidence the police wouldnt do shit. She told me thats how some girls in egypt are. i obviously know that the US and the UK arent perfect hence why i didnt say that i belong to thwir societies and yes i totally agree that every society has ups and downs 100 but western people tend to be much more open minded than most arabs and thats a fact and thats what i like about them. I am just someone who stands up for my rights as a human and i felt like jordanians have taken them away from me like for example no1 cares there about mental illnesses they believe its a minor problem whereas in the west they put a lot of emphasis on it and thats just basic human rights i also stand up for womens rights and i do admit arab countries have improved on womens rights which is a good sign like in other countries girls arnt getting education or there is forced marriages upon 12 year old girls so from that perspective i thank god that arabs arnt like that and i pray for the other countries that are like this. I really just wish that people try to imitate prophet Mohammed PBUH as much because thats the only way our society will improve and then id be proud to as Im arab. Miss MIMI I guess we can agree on that. I'm also glad that our countries are finally giving girls some of their rights. Just yesterday my friend who lives in S.Korea was telling me that they have social discrimination and casteism. I mean who would have thought? But that is the thing you know, no matter how much a country would seem civilized and open minded, there has to be something. Anyway, I'm glad you left Jordan it seems like a common belief that Jordan sucks. Also, thanks for the heads up I'll never go to Jordan now that I know how they treat their women. Miss MIMI shut the fuck up ... i am from jordan too ... from al karak habibti oky .... i am a doctor ... 28 yrs old , and i have a boyfriend .... and i live my life the way i like ... so do my sisters !!!! what the fuck are you talking about ????? IF you live in a family that does not respect women that does not represent the whole country ... any one reading this don't believe her .... we love our country and i would never choose to live in another one . William Sheikhspeare u know what there's this running joke/story among Algerians that Shakespeare was actually Arab, bc his name in Arabic is sheik zubair, and the name doesn't sound English anyway..... And in his play the tempest, he says that the witch sicorax was banished from Algiers	Witch	Gender - Female age and physical appearance	1/47	2.128
i don't think so.....most of them just look at the woman body not the "heart" . I am half arabic and live in an arabic country	Woman	Gender - General	1/26	3.846
mohamad.ybr No, it doesnt apply to all man in the world, in some cultures man are humans, not dogs sniffing and jumping on every female passing by. Bdw, being interested driven by the body and overthinking about sex is not about the gender , its about the character, the difference is just that Arab women were thought to hide it since is not acceptable in society, while man are encouraged into being interested in females as nothing more than body, and the property which have no other purpose than sacrifice themself to make man happy	Gender, Nothing, Sex	Age - Youngsters, Gender - General	3/94	3.191

sefafefa Don't act dumb . We see what you're trying to do- you have Israeli flags plastered all over your profile. You're an Israeli, you don't need anyone to explain to you what Palestine is. You people just like to make yourselves feel better about being an Israeli living on illegally occupied land by belittling and trying to completely erase a nationality and culture. Pater Noster Having white DNA or blue eyes and blonde hair would not indicate that person being white.That's like saying every white person is black cause they have African DNA. And guess what people, Lebanon isn't the only Arab country to have a certain amount of light skinned.	African, Black	Ethnicity - Black	2/49	4.082
Let's do some history lessons. 150 years ago Lebanon became an independent country, before that it was just another region in Syria, ah yes your forefathers came from a "filthy damn Arab country". And Phoenicians were Canaanites not European, nore did they just live in modern day Lebanon but also parts of Syria and Palestine. If you have Caucasus or European ancestry then you're not originally Lebanese and you can call yourself whatever you want white, French, spook hell you can call yourselves snails and frogs for all I care.	Spook	Ethnicity - Black	1/90	1.111

King of Ebla at the end of the day, we will never agree. And we can keep arguing till tomorrow, but it won't change the fact that Syrians, Lebanese, Palestinians, and Jordanians are white. I agree that there are many different shades like olive, fair, and tan complexions, but we are definitely not dark by any means	Tan	Nationality - British	1/57	1.754
King of Ebla and don't get me wrong. I DONT MEAN WHITE LIKE ETHNICITY! I MEAN WHITE AS IN CAUCASIAN AND THE COLOR WHITE.	Ethnicity	Ethnicity - General	1/24	4.167

Result analysis:

- Taking into account the words that were detected, we can reach the conclusion these comments are associated with : : Gender - General;Ethnicity - General;Age - Youngsters;Ethnicity - Roma;Religious Identity - Muslim;Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments;Ethnicity - Native-American;Age - Over 65s;Age - General;Ethnicity - Black;Social Class - Working class;Physical Identity - Physical Features;Sexual Identity - Transexuality;Nationality - General;Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality;Ethnicity - Asian (East- China, Japan, Korea, Philippines, Vietnam);Nationality - Chinese;Nationality - Japanese;Nationality - German; Ideological and Political Identity - General;Behavioural Addiction - Alcohol;Gender - Female sexuality;Sexual Identity - General;Gender - Female age and physical appearance;Nationality - British;
- The percentage of hate speech related words is 0.4442.
- Considering that the variable Ethnicity - General has the most occurences in the post, we can interpret that this is the predominant hate speech.
- Overall there were 361/4376 occurences of hate speech related comments.
