Anyone dumb enough to get sucked into this shallow garbage shit bs.. You're about as programmed as it gets. The entire METOO movement was so coordinated its ridiculously funny how people don't see it. Smug as fuck and guess what Rose!! No matter how many innocent babies (cause that's 'progressive' right rose?) yeahhhh dumb fucks. Wake up, the bitch is scum just like all the others. They LITERALLY worship Satan sacrificing kids, mutilating, doing whatever you want.. Ego on steroids. This bitch sold out a lonnng time ago. Anyone who (most of Hollywood and silicon Valley is btw) wants to buy her shit... Remember: she worships the father of lies. Oh and pedophilia. *golfclapBurn evil whore. No one cares about you and your ass chin and fuckin Joan rivers lips lmao.'the girl wants to get out of the cocoon' LMAO THE ONES SATANTIC ABUSE SHIT DOES TO KEEP PEOPLE TRAPPED. stop acting like you are anything but a fart in the wind.Next time you wanna talk, take a big ass dump in your hand and eat it, fill it up whole like a good little slave.Or wait.. she is a strong woman and speaks her mind and her truth. Most people cant handle honest people they like to live in a fake fantasy world where everyone pisses in each other pockets and talks behind each others back. She has the guts to say what she thinks without being fake like the rest of society. People cant handle real people. She isnt a bitch she is just passionate about what she believes in and her trauma has allowed her to see the bs of hollywood and its fake crap	Woman	Gender - General	1/91	1.099

she only became a feminist when she got old and ugly because guys didn't wanna sleep with her any more she wasn't getting the attention and definitely wasn't getting any roles in hollywood so only then she started hating men. And no Rose you didn't stop acting, hollywood stoped casting you. And I wonder why well maybe your disgusting bitchy attitude has something to do with it. Now she found a new way to get attention being this twatt she is today. If you disagreed with the adam sandler audition don't go move on the world doesn't evolve around you, that's a hard concept as your an out of work washed up actress screaming for attention in the last resort you could. i think maybe you where just angry because you didnt get the part spiteful twatt so you need to chuck a tantrum. The legal system in most countries truly needs an overhaul due to the way victims of sexual assault and/or rape are typically treated. In many western countries a single judge, typically a male, is the person who decides whether the case "has merit" enough to go to trial which involves a jury. And unfortunately those few cases where a woman does report the rape to police and takes it to court usually end with that one judge deciding it won't go any further i.e. the case is dropped. Furthermore, those women who do go to both the police and the courts commonly experience a lot of blaming by police officers and it gets much worse when it comes to the lawyer defending the assailant(s). It still happens that the sexual history of the victim is legally allowed to be brought up, as is her mode of dressing, behaviour and so on, all to try to make it look like it wasn't assault or rape. And if the woman froze, a most typical response to sexual assault and understood as quite a normal reaction - at least by psychologists and rape crisis counsellors - the fact she froze and didn't physically 'fight back' is taken to indicate she consented! Unless a survivor of assault or rape has very obvious marks on her that doctors - typically those who saw her after the traumatic event such as when making up the 'rape kit' in Hospital EDs - will unequivocally state is proof of force used against her, from bruising to tears etcetera, it's extremely common for the case to be reduced to one of 'he said, she said' with the survivor being further victimized by a court system where a woman who has been assaulted or raped has every aspect of her life out under the microscope by the defendant's lawyer to try to prove it was consensual and indeed to blame the survivor. Furthermore even cases where evidence of physical force is obvious, the assailant's lawyer will still try to make it appear to be a case of consensual sex that was a bit 'rough'. One famous case in point is in the book "Lucky", the debut novel of the writer, Alice Sebold, of the much more well know "The Lovely Bones" (which was made into a movie), in which she relates her own horrific rape and the trauma of getting it to court - and winning. At the time, Alice Sebold was a virgin who was attacked and raped by a man she did not know on her College campus, and it was very obvious that it was an incredibly aggressive rape: her assailant had also threatened her with a knife, nearly strangled her, hit her etc. - but the lawyer for the rapist went on the attack in court regarding everything from the clothes she was wearing at the time to asking why she didn't strike him or scream out! The book, "Lucky", is a must-read for every woman (and those who know a woman who has been through sexual abuse, assault and/or rape), particularly as it reveals the mendacious techniques used by lawyers for rapists and abusers, and the way victims of such trauma are re-traumatized by the legal process. Combine the horrendously traumatic effects of being through sexual assault or rape - such as seen in Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD), a frequent result of such events - with the current legal system that tends to revictimize the survivor(s), and it's no wonder so few women report assaults.	Common, Sex, Sexual, Woman, doctors	Gender - General, Nationality - General, Social Class - Working class	13/590	2.203

Rose McGowan was never a Meryl Streep or Julia Roberts type actress. She used sex to get where she is and now wants what others worked for. She didn't quit Hollywood it quit her. She's found relevance in this metoo era of professional victimhood and manufactured outrage. I don't think she's ever proven one single ridiculous story she's told. She got crap for bad plastic surgery and made up a car accident. I dont doubt that she slept with producers and regrets it now that the money is gone. She's a pathological liar and narcissist. She had no problem with sexism in Hollywood back when she was getting roles. This generation certainly needs some strong female role models but people like Rose McGowan and Stormy Daniels aren't them. Plenty of women in Hollywood have refused to do the hotel auditions and lost roles but built careers off talent and hard work. They get absolutely no credit for that. People who build a career on a mattress have a short career. It only last as long as their looks do.	Sex, Sexism	Gender - General	2/180	1.111

Asia Argento was cheating on Anthony Bourdain with Hugo Clement days before his death, it was photographed and all over European newspapers. Anthony confronted her, they had a fight and Asia post a bullying picture on Instagram towards Anthony, hours later Anthony was dead. When Asia found out he was dead she removed her bullying post and proceeds to post how he was her rock and how much she loved him. The media won't call her out because she is huge in the metoo movement and a huge feminist, she was photographed happy with Harvey Weinstein 4 years after the alleged rape ocured. Her friend Rose McGowen was asked to help Asia not get shamed by the public, even though the media has left her alone. Rose wrote a letter recently and gave it to media outlets to state that Anthony and Asia had an open relationship, (this was not known to be true to anyone, no photos in 2 years with other partners, Asia also asked the paparazzi Rino Barillari to delete a pic of her and Hugo dancing ) they are trying to do public relation damage control about Asia being a slut and helping to kill Anthony with her bullying, with not one word of sympathy to the daughter of Anthony or the family. Anthony deleted Asia from social media before he died....Pass this on he deserves it. [LINK] [LINK] Asia Argento once made a movie where they dressed a 10 year old in drag and performed oral sex on Marilyn Mansion. Her dad made horror films simulating snuff films and had her star in them as a child, he also featured pedophilia. Asia Argenta's Instagram has many pictures of her worshiping the occult. It is said that she thinks she is a red witch (whatever the fuck that is) Her young daughter has the same images on her profile as well. Her best friend Rose McGowen that helps her try to champion the Metoo movement has a felony cocaine charge pending. Rose McGowen attacked Anthony Bourdain after his death stating Asia was strong enough to live for her daughter, Anthony wasn't. I would've appreciated her opinions and her overall role in the movement a lot more if she had a history of fighting for women's rights and if her career choices somewhat reflected that. But if you look at her work prior to her turning 30 it essentially consists of exploiting her sex appeal, being a gothic-50s sex vixen with an edge and controversy generating red carpet dresses. In other words, she was ok with using the system and all the established paradigms. Now that she's in her mid 40s it's all wrong? Hello??? Man, I barely recognise her... I remember her as the hot chick that dated Marilyn Manson, showed up with him half naked at the VMAs and played the witch Paige in the supernatural drama show Charmed. She wasn't vocal about all of that stuff at all back then. Seems really weird how this wave of feminism hit her now all of a sudden after so many years. Women want to play the HOLlywood game but then want to act like victims. No woman should be raped and if a man does he should be killed. But sex for roles is as old as HOLlywood itself. Putting women in skimpy outfits is as old as Hollywood itself. Rose knew the game and Rose played the game. To nitpick a little bit, it's great that she is speaking out, but like everyone in Hollywood, they are complicit in the shit and deal with it until it becomes popular to speak out or until they are financially able. They don't speak out when any real risk is involved, yet expect normal people in society to bear that load. We all know that sexual assault is wrong, and guys that commit sexual assault are societal outliers. It's not the norm as they try to assert it is. I'm tired of being lectured to and told something is wrong with me by people who let the shit slide until they made enough money and now they want to pat themselves on the back and show me how I should act. I wish the interviewer had done some meaningful probing - like why did she choose to now talk about feminism, what was her stance on being a pin-up girl, did she ever try to change that image or consciously chose it knowing the risk it entails. On one hand, she says acting is easy but then later says directing is easy, acting made her anxious. This interviewer just felt like she was sucking up to her and agreed to everything she had to say and did not want to pick up on any contradictions. What I don't understand is this: You cannot have the attitude of "if I want to wear nothing , I can", but then fault those who put together a description of what to wear. If someone reads that and decides to wear it, that is their choice and they should not be judged for it anymore than you want to be judged for "wearing nothing ". If someone reads that and goes "yeah, that's not for me", then they have a choice to walk way. Just like she had a choice to not allow herself to be sexualized by wearing that dress. If she chose to allow it, it was her choice and she was a part of the system of sexualization. I just don't get now how she can say "it's my choice" yet blame others for the "system". Either you're fed up with the system and make choices that counter the sexualization or you CHOOSE to play into it as your prerogative to do so. Where is the personal responsibility? Weinstein is certainly the type. And you are right, everyone knew what kind of person Harvey is for decades. Distinctions need to be made in each case if Harvey raped, sexually assaulted or was merely involved in consensual agreement of transactional sex with women who may now be crying assault or rape. It is likely he is guilty of all three types of charges, but from my experience, women have a bad habit of selectively editing reality after the fact to suit their story. Those who prostituted themselves with transactional sex need to be honest about it and not conflate it with assault or rape as that diminishes the plight of the victims who suffered those other violations. Adam Sandler did nothing wrong. Self entitled Rose McGowan is just looking for a headline to help her career. Casting notices written usually by casting directors, not the star of the film. How that is Sandler's fault is beyond me. Most casting directors are actually Female. As for the actors reading it, there are Women who would be fine with the casting notice and would be fine with doing that role. She isn't being forced to do it. Everyone talking *ish about the girls who settled out of court are not understanding that things are only "settled out of court" in a courthouse. This person was going to be prosecuted if the victims were willing to be dragged through the mud for months during a public trial. Months of having to endure "slut shamers" like you who was not there but yet somehow knows exactly what happened. The humiliation and shame they already felt was compounded by a room full of lawyers (including their own lawyers and local police) telling them they don't have enough evidence to win a conviction so wouldn't she just rather get it over with by settling? A confident person with enough evidence and a smart lawyer would never back down for some cash. But a scared girl with no support, usually girls with a history of instability or abuse, brainwashed to have a fear of being banished to slut-ville has-beens who failed to sleep their way to the top town, well that humiliated and defeated victim will take what everyone tells her she deserves! Because girls are taught this if they are famous or not. Predators know how to find the insecure and fragile people who are easily intimidated... Hello that's what defines PREDATOR. Your personal experience with gold diggers &amp; promiscuous women has no relevance in a rape allegation. There is no correlation here. You have no idea what you are talking about until and unless you have experienced this first hand. Predators choose times and places where there can be no witness beside the victim and they learn how to leave little evidence behind. Don't act like you have never heard of rich people getting away with something criminal. There are thousands of cases where criminals and predators have paid away the consequence of a crime. In the case of Harvey, Cosby, and any other cerial rapists, how many victims need to come forward before we start talking about the institutions that enable these Predators versus focusing on how a damaged and scared victim acted poorly. I found her attitude quite annoying and arrogant and not because I am man and I think that women should be kind and pretty. There are a lot of women (Rashida Jones, Tina Fey, Lena Dunham, Mayim Bilaik...) who admire and say more or less the same things without this bad-ass pose. I disagree also on one thing: women of course must wear what they want and have the right to feel comfortable with their own body, however showing your boobs and ass on a magazine or during an event doesn't give an independent, powerful strong message to women. On the contrary, in my opinion, it gives the idea that that is the only thing women can do. You are sexualising yourself and you are using the same narrative provided by generations of sexist men. To the young girls and women who read this: how to break the narrative? Become writer, director, producer. Create your own narrative and live it. Be aware of the dangers. Learn how to respond. Learn how to refuse a sexual harassment and think about it. Be ready. If and when it happens you probably will be less scared and more confident.	Sexual	Gender - General	1/196	0.51

She's tired of not being listened to and not being taken seriously. This is her way of fighting back. And you know, I think she is doing a lot of good for a lot of people despite what her critics say. We needed someone to blow the whistle on Hollywood like she did. And the media moguls are still trying to silence her, to make her seem like just another crazy feminist, so no one will believe her - it's gaslighting on a worldwide scale so they can get away with it. Paula, equality? You have brainwashed yourself on what victims you women are. It is just like the fact that you were never drafted, but not one of these angry, hateful feminist said that was unfair to men, instead all they say is that we were not allowed to vote one time in America. Act like a Woman , and you will be treated like a Woman .	Woman	Gender - General	2/65	3.077

Roman Darius I can't believe you just said that. I mean, I sort of get your point of women not protesting for the things that don't benefit them. The thing is in a more biological standpoint, men are usually stronger and therefore better for the army, although nowadays there is a a lot of women in the army. You should also consider that when men were drafted women filled in their jobs, so they were still contributing. The problem is women nowadays, as Rose says (maybe not in the most calm way) deserve equal opportunities in the workplace and not to be a treated as mere objects partly because I think we have proved more than enough that we are much more than that. Also, the feminist movement benefits men by defeating gender roles.	Gender	Gender - General	1/135	0.741
Paula, once again, the white women are complaining too much. To argue that you women filled the jobs of men as they went off to war is ridiculous. Those men did those jobs every day without complaining, and now that you are doing those jobs that the men did, you think that it is a fair comparison to going to combat? If the women will not stop bringing up the fact that they were not allowed to vote, we men will remind them that they never had to fear being drafted, sent to a foreign country, watch their friends die and maybe them coming back in a body bag or paralyze. Now as I watch Rose McGowan talk about her hatred towards white males, that we are racist, rednocks—she has said this on other videos, I truly hate her! She went from a beauty to a beast. Her eyes are that of a woman who is full of rage and bitterness. And to be truthful, I would be afraid to be in the same room with her. Lol. You know what I find very telling after watching and skimming through the comments? The majority of male commentators here (and some female) who are proving Rose's point about sexist Hollywood indoctrination. People don't even have to agree with all her points or perspectives but there should be a way to counter it without resorting to misogynistic remarks. Most of these insults flying at Rose don't have an intellectual foundation in their bodies. What I keep reading in response are these defensive attacks saturated with sexism. The attacks are completely sexualized: She is referred to as a Cunt (a derogatory term for a woman's genital area); being told she is just bitter because she is now too old to be objectified sexually; ridiculous justifications that it is nature for Hollywood to sexualize women because of procreation (wtf?); and my personal favorites - all the spiteful MRA anti-woman lingo being thrown loosely around whenever a woman points out an injustice against other women. We'll hear 'but what about all the men' to detract and counter the female issues. Or we get 'she is nothing but a femnazi' while all feminism gets brandished as evil and wrong. All these responses are reinforcing how right Rose really is about the 'system' itself and how the male mind has been indoctrinated to insult or engage in bringing a woman down they don't agree with. This mindset is also plaguing women too. Many males here are doing it through sexual name shaming rather than creating some type of respectable argument to debate her points. The insults go straight to her looks or her feminine sexuality. She is called fat or ugly; labeled as a Cunt or a Bitch (a comparison to a female dog). Why? I mean, at least most of the time when men are being insulted they get more neutral insults flung against them. Why can't a woman just be a plain out ahole or a jerk like some guy if all the maturity needs to sink below sub zero? Why does every derogatory insult need to attack either a woman's gender or sexuality when there is disagreement? The very comments proclaiming to be against her are helping to showcase what it is she is actually against. This is ridiculous. She gets slammed for actually using the very system in place, that many women have, a system that would have held her back for not complying with it. And because she might have had some self-realization for what it was that she was participating in she gets crucified for wearing something tight or very revealing at a time in her life to discredit her? Those types of remarks are showing the misogynistic indoctrination of the West because switch over to some indigenous populations where the females still remain completely exposed on top and use scarce undergarments in their cultures away from civilized indoctrinations. They are not being sexually exploited or shamed for this by the men in their tribes so this BS argument that it's natural for men to treat or exploit women in this sexual way due to procreation is hogwash.	Fat, Gender, Nothing, Old, Sexism, Sexual, Woman, Zero	Age - Over 65s, Age - Youngsters, Gender - General, Physical Identity - Physical Features	11/520	2.115

Hollywood is a visual medium and you have men and women who get by on looks. Keanu Reeves, Channing Tatum and Zach Ephron to name a few. You have just as many stupid romantic chick flicks like The Notebook or movies like Majic Mike. The men and women who built a career on looks and not talent set their own expiration date. People can ask you to take your clothes off or meet them in a hotel for an audition. I seriously doubt any of the Meryl Streeps or Sally Fields of the industry ever hesitated to say no. Strong women and men guide their own career. Rose McGowan took her own clothes off and took bimbo parts. Her acting looks like she's reading the que cards and that voice is like a fake 90s goth chick like like it's like nails down a like chalkboard. All things she could have worked on with an acting coach but it was easier to take her top off.	Bimbo, Chick	Gender - Female intelligence, Gender - General	3/166	1.807

I'm sorry but such a huge percentage of women are fucking idiots. I look at the comments and I can't believe you imbeciles can function in daily life. As if every major hollywood actor isn't some massive heartthrob who has to train 7 days a week for months drinking only chicken milkshakes so you can finger fuck yourselves to them. Men are used as sex objects just as much as women are, the only difference is in the preferences of male sexuality vs female sexuality. Leading men are usually sex symbols for longer simply because women young and older by large margin find handsome older men sexy, and young girls and yes older women, find young twenty something studs sexy as well. Men on the other hand, typically only find younger women sexy, that's genetic, it's how nature wants us to be to find healthy young women to reproduce with and create stronger children, it has nothing to do with sexism. Is Ryan Gosling fat in any movies? Do you think if he suddenly gained 30 pounds and refused to lose it he would get ANY roles, or women would give a fuck about him anymore?Rose McGowan is a fucking terrible actress, she should thank her lucky stars, much like Zac Efron that they were considered so good looking that they got roles even with their minimal talent range. Not to mention that almost every major movie today and video game is dominated by a strong female lead and that's fine but the idea that women are being oppressed.....what kind of brain do you have?This fake men vs women war really needs to stop. Most of us men have supported strong women forever, we don't give a shit if the hero is male or female as long as they are awesome. We all played the shit out of tomb raider 20 years ago and feminists complain that it's only acceptable because she's hot.....when the fuck has a male video game hero not been a ripped, ass kicking super dude that none of us could hope to be?This bias blindness women have is really troubling. It's like the great meme of Barbie and He-Man. +horrored "3rd wave feminism is about superiority" — according to you and the other antifeminists who insist on shutting down the discussion by slandering all feminists as being radical anti-man feminists rather than putting forth the effort to counter their claims. To more reasoned people like myself, modern western feminism has multiple facets and focuses and even ideologies (e.g. some feminists insist transwomen are not women), but one sort of consistent theme is a focus on the way society interacts with and constrains women in non-legal manners (with the exception of issues like birth control), as opposed to the more concretely legal agenda of the earlier waves of feminism. So it's a pretty third wave feminist thing to point out the misogyny of rappers, or the type of sexism Rose McGowan is claiming exists in Hollywood. Now, you don't have to agree with her, but the fruitful way of expressing that disagreement is to provide cogent arguments ... not lazily claiming she has no points or logic and that all of third wave feminism is about female superiority. I try to understand what it's like for men, but I'll never really know. I'm a feminist and I respect men and don't want there to be animosity between the sexes. Feminism is simply a call for equality. It should not create unnecessary turmoil, there's unfortunately enough of that in the world for religious and racial and personal reasons. Women should be paid for the same work when they have the same qualifications. This is not the case in many parts of the world, and a woman running for president doesn't change that. Women should be as safe from sexual violence as men are. This is not the case in many parts of the world. (And men are certainly subjected to sexual violence by women, too, which is a crime.) Just a couple of examples of the things that feminists want to change...If you hope that your mother, sister, and girlfriend are safe to walk down the street at night, and that they get a decent wage, you are already a feminist, I think. The billboard of a big strong manly looking thing choking out a smaller woman looking thing is in poor taste.	Woman	Gender - General	2/56	3.571

+Hollie The billboard is not offensive in any way. Choking a woman is terrible but that's the point, it wouldn't make a very compelling villain if he was nice to people. And there would be no tension behind female characters if you knew they wouldn't die, or get hurt, just because they are a woman . Do you actually believe men would start abusing their wives just because they see a billboard for a movie? I can assure that has never happened. If FOX has chosen a different picture, how would it be better? How would it be less offensive? To be honest I agree hitting women is wrong, but as I stated, it's the bad guy. And why do have to assume just because a guy disagrees with a woman , the only possible reason it that she is a woman ? You do realize that men disagree with eachother to? I don't like Rose for the reasons I stated, and I wouldn't think any differently had she been a man. As for your statement on the other comments, I honestly haven't seen many that criticized her without a reason, and with the few I did , it wouldn't be fair to assume it was just because she's female. And tell Insane Ashely Judd what the FUCK were you doing at the Woman's March crying about taxes on Tampons? Ashley Judd is truly a sick woman	Woman	Gender - General	1/50	2.0

Roman Darius If you want to talk about tampons, the concept is very simple: if I have a headache, I take medicine. Medication is considered a necessity, so they are not taxed. Trust me, you want me to take medicine for my headache so I won't annoy you with my white girl whining, am I right? So...I'm bleeding from my uterus, I need a tampon. Tampons and feminine hygiene products are NOT considered a necessity, so they are taxed in some states. You want me to use a tampon to keep me from bleeding all over your house, right? I mean, I could free bleed (theoretically, because personally I don't get my period anymore. Cancer sucks.)...now, because of my white girl privilege, paying a tax for my tampons was never a problem for me. It's the principle. Women bleed, we have no choice. We need sanitary products for health, safety, and apparently to make you men feel more comfortable. There are women in shelters, in poverty, and on the streets who free bleed because they have no choice. It's not safe. It's not healthy. Why should lip balm be tax exempt and not tampons? I guarantee if men bled, there would be no tax. Just think about it. Calm yourself and think. In the words of Ashley Judd, since you mentioned her, "I'm nasty like the bloodstains on my bedsheets. We do not actually choose if and when we have our periods. We do not like throwing away our favorite pairs of underpants. Why are pads and tampons still taxed when Viagra and Rogaine are not? Is your erection really more than protecting the parts of my womanhood? Is the bloodstain on my jeans more embarrassing than the thinning of your hair?" Fun fact: Ashley didn't write this poem. It was written by a 19-year old young woman from Tennessee.Fighting for tax exemptions is just of the issues in which we, the privileged white girls, used our voices to bring to the forefront with the Women's March. We used our privileged voices to get people to pay attention. We used our privileged voices to stand up for the underprivileged...and I have a feeling that you are asking, "What are they marching for, anyway? Women already have rights." To that, I say this: This march is for people of all genders, races, ethnicities, socioeconomic backgrounds...people who are afraid to report a rape because others might not believe them. This is for my fellow plus sized women who will be denied jobs because the fitter women "look smarter". This is for the people who do all the work while the opposite gender boss takes the credit. (Yes, Hidden Figures is real, and still relevant.) This is for LBGTQ citizens who just want to love who they love and make it legal, just like you. This is for the young kids who don't have access to quality education and health care. This is for women who wear hijabs and endure the stares and secret suspicions of others. This is for the transgender and gay teens who are beaten to death and hung to a fence because their attackers are afraid of what is different. This is for the woman who will lose her health insurance and will be diagnosed with cancer, who will have to choose between being treated and going bankrupt or dying. This is for people who have been sexually assaulted by a person in a powerful position (i.e., "grab them by the pussy/balls") This is for my young students who are terrified their parents will be sent back to Mexico, and because of the president's ignorance, they have learned to hate.	Gay, Gender, Nothing, Old, Patriarchy, Sex, Transgender, Woman	Age - Over 65s, Age - Youngsters, Gender - General, Sexual Identity - General, Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality, Sexual Identity - Transexuality	10/1140	0.877

It makes most men uncomfortable when women are intelligent and maintain their strength and power. It makes them feel inadequate.If it's a man he's strong, confident, cool, a bad ass.If it's a women she's a bitch, crazy , damaged.Truth is most men can't reach the stereotypical "Male" role. They feel inadequate and competitive around other men that have. Submissive Women make them feel better about themselves and their masculinity. When women aren't it makes them very angry. Because they feel more inadequate. Man struggle with women that make more than them, that are more educated or more intelligent than them. They struggle with women in power situation or women with more skill. Because of gender roles and toxic masculinity. Man is supposed to be the bread winner. The protector. The handy man. They're supposed to be Alpha, a mans man. Captain of the football team not the captain of the debate team. They struggle with this perceived role and their place in the tribe. They want the cheerleader the hottest most popular girl in school because it will solidify their standing in the tribe. More conquests they get the more manly they are. When women don't give in they're stuck up bitches. That's why rape is about power, not sex . Weak, powerless men, trying to exact their power on women. Releasing their anger and self loathing on women. True alphas aren't threatened by strong women. In fact they're attracted to them.Take George Clooney. Rich powerful successful sex symbol that was a bachelor for years. Could have any women he wanted. Finally marries a brilliant strong human rights lawyer. soooo what you all are sayin is.....since she wore skimpy outfits and posed sexually in magazines and what not BACK IN THE DAY....she has no business being a feminist and therefore should always remain " sexual " and keep dressing and acting like the person she USE to be??? LOL...UMMM OK..... people GROW UP, SMARTEN UP, CHANGE AND EVOLVE.....sounds to me like she sees through all the fucking bullshit that comes along with hollywood....good for you rose.....personally i like her and what she has to say, all you people shaming her and leaving nasty things on here are scared of a smart feminist woman .....and when the hell did the word "feminist" become such a HORRIBLE word? sounds like you all have some growing up to do as well	Sexual, Woman	Gender - General	2/126	1.587
Describing what a woman is wearing is sexist? Give me a fucking break!	Woman	Gender - General	1/13	7.692
The Matadore It would cost a lot more than a penny. You need to pay people to design the advertisement, teams who discuss the best spots to put it, people who'll actually put the hundred + billboard ads up, THEN pay all those people again to take them all down! and repeat the whole process with a different picture.That would cost a shitload, and the worst part is that singular morons have this power all by using the woman card, or whichever card you can pull to get ahead.	Woman	Gender - General	1/89	1.124
" Woman card", eh? Ah, you just used a Trump-ism, thereby losing any shred of credibility you may have claimed to have in the eyes of the rational. Good job.	Woman	Gender - General	1/29	3.448

Bitter asshole, here: How is anyone reacting positively to someone so full of shit? o O Non issues talked about as if they were drama? And it's creepy how she barely talked about her accident but talked about inconsequential shit instead.Fuck, I hope she's like David O. Russell and is at least a good director that makes good films.So it's sexualized women ISN'T sexist? '...', or, is it just sexist if a human with a cock and balls enjoys the sexualization? Or just when they want to show the sexuality of the female body? 'Cause first she was "hypersexualized from a young age" but later it's "I wear what I want 'case I fucking wanna wear nothing..." when talking about a dress that is literally stripper-wear, and that's supposedly "empowering". So...? Damned if you do, damned if you don't, I guess. It's not like aesthetic appeal is important for males and females, given that ugly actors never succeed 'cause audiences just don't respond to them despite whatever talent they might have, and it's not like Joseph Gordon Levitt, Ryan Gosling-type men are always having to promote their film through their sexuality as well, just to capitalize on it... but, hey, even if it weren't. Sexuality is freeing and empowering, ain't it?Praising the clothes of a woman is bad too apparently. And, no, it's not just women, nowadays "fashion" is quite the mainstream topic and it's common to see an article interview with Miles Teller, Chris Brown and their clothes being commented on, given that the current fads are from hip-hop culture that is incredibly materialistic and clothes are a big part of that. Shit, weren't Steve Jobs and Bill Gates' dress style iconic and always noted if they didn't wear them?She's played 32 parts in 34 films she's done, and 11 roles in 11 TV shows, one of which she was in 112 episodes... but she doesn't "identify" as an actress? Just like Dolezal identifies as black, I guess...She said the positive side of sexism that isn't focused on is progressiveness? The same women that is contributing her grain of sand by saying an image where Jennifer Lawrence is getting choked by Oscar Isaac promotes violence against women even though it's a film about mutants fighting to the death and Jennifer Lawrence playing a warrior... wouldn't the sexist thing be for Apocalypse to refuse to hit her only 'cause she's female. +Denzel SmallsYes, in the third world countries but feminists don't give fuck about those.Instead they are way too busy pickering on who the fucking cares matters such as movies and videogames.Or Chicka-Fil-a. Besides, feminism is not about equality but bringing women to same level as men, which according to first world countries laws, has already happened. Egalitarian is for equality. Feminism is for whining and attention whoring while making everyone's life as miserable as possible.Actions speak more than words of supposed "Definition".What happens in your life from the moment on you start your education makes the difference what happens for the rest of your life. If you choose to waste your time on gender studies instead of filing in to Stem fields or becoming a politician, you don't get to bitch and moan that As for respect, just like men, you need to earn it. You don't automatically deserve it just because you have a vagina and you whine and moan like pig with a baseball bat in it's arse. Fucking work for it and stop being an attention whoring cunt about it.And if you want to be a feminist and earn my respect. Then go out there in to middle east and africa and start bringing rights for women in there. But as long as you are feminist in a first world country and whine about petty shit that no one gives a shit about then you have absolutely 0 of my and anyone else's respect.So fucking go out there and work for it. I'm sorry, but looking back on this, she is such a fucking joke.Just earlier she cried sexism an X-Men poster of Mystique and Apocalypse fighting, and said it promoted violence against women. She even tried calling out the director and producer. LIKE HALF THE STAFF ARE FUCKING WOMEN!But here at 3:18, she is asked why she wore, that and replied replied that people asked her why she would fight against sexism if she wore a see through dress...She replied with "Because I fucking can"Well, Rose, the FEMALE that chose the billboard can do what she please too, because if you want to objectify yourself daily, thats your buisness, but you have no business judging anyone else. Take a look in the mirror and learn just how much of a hypocritical bitch you sound like.	Sexism	Gender - General	2/138	1.449

There's a difference between a woman choosing to dress in revealing clothing because she chooses to be liberated, and a woman being forced to dress that way because it's what is required of her. Just because the staff is half female doesn't mean they call the final shots. It also doesn't mean they see the objectification happening. They've been desensitized like most people.	Woman	Gender - General	2/63	3.175
The difference between personal choices and obligation starts to change when you enter the territory of the workplace, I think. Appearance and sexuality also complicate the issue. I like to dress sexy sometimes. But if I was going for an interview, it wouldn't be fair for the employer to say I should wear something sexy. Whether the employer is a man or a woman , and whether they instruct male or female employees to dress sexy, it's crossing a line.	Woman	Gender - General	1/79	1.266
You have a point about male actors being sexualized. It's true that some of them are. I do think there's a difference between being asked to go shirtless in multiple scenes and getting the role in the first place. Unless you know what the initial instructions were for Taylor BEFORE he even went to the audition, it's not really worth comparing. We're not talking about Rose doing great at her audition (which, for example, allowed her to wear anything she wanted). Let's say that the audition only focused on her acting ability and general "look." It would be fine if she was told that her character was scantily clad and that there would be sex scenes or whatever. Essentially: you're going to be sexualized in this film. The point is that she would have been judged on her ability more than her cleavage.	Sex	Gender - General	1/143	0.699
Christ, the geek loser retards have arrived. I agree that the X-Men thing was a dumb thing to complain about, but it rapidly devolves into idiotic radical conservative nonsense. She is very psychologically damaged, and is not a good person to be talking about sexual abuse, any more than a prostitute. Sexual abuse happens to all kinds of women regardless of what they wear or how they look. But when you act and dress like an angry whore, it will not help to properly address the issue.	Sexual	Gender - General	2/58	3.448

+iVenge You are the problem, a prostitute is probably a great person to ask about sexual abuse. Yes sexual abuse happens to a lot of women who wear all kinds of things and all kinds of women have a right to address the issue. Calling a victim of sexual abuse an 'angry whore' is wrong on so many levels. It doesn't matter what you're wearing no-one has a right to touch you without your consent or harass you. Men can be sooo sly. Female sexism ? Cute. Let me know all the women directors who sexualize male actors...smh. They want women applicants to show up with skin tight clothes. We seldom see this for males. If the part calls for it, it is still uncommon.	Sexism	Gender - General	1/46	2.174
+Bat Taz Thinking that passive-aggressiveness is mostly a female trait is sexist in itself. It has very little to do with gender and more to do with individual upbringing and personality. That's like me saying that mostly all men communicate in an aggressive way. I've known plenty of men to be passive-aggressive and plenty of women to be aggressive in their communication.
