Hi Every One i will tell you something Romany Gypsies have been persecuted from day one of them leaving India and other parts of Asia just like the Jews Africans Native Americans and many others it still goes on today all over the world when it's told on the news in the papers and on the Internet about world war 2 and the mass murders of the Jewish people by the German Solders it never tells about the amount of Romany Gypsies killed by them.Today they are being killed by the hundreds in Russia starved in other countries their children being taken from them and put in homes the next day the young girls as young as 11 being put on the streets for prostitution the Mafia getting hold of them and making them steel and con people. There are a lot of good Romanies as well as the small few bad ones what about the settled people the none Romany Gypsy who are pedofiles who rape kill go round stabbing people robbing people braking into houses conning people leaving rubbish everywhere and in the past and still do it today starting wars enslaving people taking countries that's not theirs and puss in the Natives out i could go on but i bet none of you will think twice about my comment and won't take notice and still have your negative views and still keep your Racist ways and keep texting your small minded racist thoughts	Gypsy, Racist	Ethnicity - General, Ethnicity - Roma	3/247	1.215

this is not true at all it is nonsense roma means man and that also means the same in egypt the original east roma empire are the roma itself that still live but are sorry that the small children of farmers because the fighters are destroyed from all sides and the pope also because the west roma empire has lost 400 years for the east roma empire and the east did not help them so they were furious and they had asked the mongole to do something about it because it was too difficult to invade east roma empire so they had planned a trap and so everything is lost and have also distorted the history because india has nothing to do with it because when their empire was conquered, the farmers and the warriors that were left were sold on as slaves and falsified their history so that they hoped that they would be exterminated and never existed again but after everything was cooled down they gwn back to their place trg to east roma empire which is now called eastern europe look is not strange that only more than 20 million roma live in balkan. like in turkey that used to be called anatolia and there is more roma than bulgarians and macedonians or albanians, it is not strange that macedony kosovo serbia turkey albania etc are full of roma that have returned gwn but the new europeanne don't know them so they come a day that those people will come back when they read something about the east roma empire because if they read the old writing they will take action and know that western europe has betrayed the east roma empire and will be back as before and in the whole of trukije and take over Balkan and etc and that is dangerous because look what they are doing now and they are dangerous but what if they declare war to Western Europe and the neighbors then they are done because they are iteligent they have lived for centuries without hu, own armies realize it for a moment	Nothing, Old	Age - Over 65s, Age - Youngsters	2/352	0.568

Legend states the Sassanid empire imported tons of nomadic Indians from their frontier with India in Sind-Rajasthan etc to do petty work and entertain , when the Sassanids collapsed under the weight of Arab Islamic invasions these folks scattered in all directions . The cousins of Roma in India live in scattered semi nomadic communities across the northern Deccan and are treated as petty thieves by the settled & caste Indian population . Its tough, but unless the majority get past the habits of petty crime , theft and scrap dealing (They steal metals and anything salvageable from public infrastructure) , their reputation is not going to improve anytime. The Roma homeland would probably have to be in the Indian state of Rajasthan, where the Roma originated - and the establishment of this nation-state would create pretty much the same problems that the establishment of the State of Israel has created in Palestine. For people that never had experience with romani. Most of the stereotypes you hear about them are true, they are dirty, stinky, thieves and much more, heck, we in Serbia have a saying "Lying like a gypsy" used for someone that lies a lot. They can't integrate at all, the blocks they live in smells like garbage just like them. Most of them pass the school only because teachers give them passing grades because they feel pity for them. They also have a carriage which they ride through town, collecting garbage in it. Also the horse pulling it can just take a shit on the street and gypsies won't do anything about, they just leave it there without paying any consequences. They also beg on the street, manipulating the emotions of people around them to get money (Like how 1 time i saw a gypo begging on the street with dirty, old clothes and flip flops. And then then that same day during evening i saw that same gypo with his buddies in a café, he literally had that rapper look with leather jacket, jeans, shoes, cap and goldchains) Also to expand on the thief part. There was this one incident not long ago, where, ironically, a novel writer who part of his wealth spent on charities to help gypsies, was beaten and mugged by 2 gypo kids (Luckily he wasn't killed). There's much more to be said but i'm just tired of typing :P	Gypo, Gypsy, Old	Age - Over 65s, Ethnicity - Roma	5/245	2.041

Unfortunately the sad reality is that a "Roma country" would never work due to their entire culture being somewhat "parasitic" in nature. They never actually create anything, advance anything or whatever, their culture only "works" (if you wanna call it that..) because most of the world aren't like them. They need others to actually create things, advance things, build things, run things etc. for them to essentially "leech" off of.I'm not saying this to be mean or whatever but it's just the nature of that culture, and the relatively few Roma people who actually do well are the ones who've abandoned their culture. The culture simply is not compatible with the modern world or in any country based on rule of law.That's also why the stereotypes about them are the same everywhere they go. Usually stereotypes tend to vary and that's often how we can tell they're just stereotypes. In the USA they have the whole "Asians can't drive." thing for example but that's not a thing elsewhere so it's pretty obvious there's nothing about being Asian that makes you an inherently worse driver. If it was true, you'd see the stereotype everywhere with Asians and cars, you don't.On the other hand the stereotypes about the Roma/Gypsies are the exact same everywhere they go as a group, because it's all down to their very culture. It's not a matter of a small minority of them causing problems or whatever, it's the very culture. Everyone living by that culture will cause problems in the west, period.A lot of Americans seem to have a very romanticized view of the Roma/Gypsies though, I have no clue where that comes from but I've had Americans comparing the dislike of the Romas to the 1930's Germany etc. which is insanely ignorant. The Jews were hated for who they are, the Gypsies are hated for what they do. No one gives a shit if some banker, football player or whatever originally came from a Gypsy background as the problem isn't their ethnicity. If he's successful in the western world, clearly he has abandoned his culture and then he's not a problem.It almost seems like some Americans think the whole romantic image of a trading nomadic people traveling around in their horse carriage is actually true. lol Maybe it's also due to the few Roma people going to USA being the well off ones (It's expensive..) and the ones maybe trying to get a "fresh start" away from their culture.. Who knows..No matter how much people love to scream "RACISM!" these days, this issue has nothing to do with race. Well, not for anyone but the most extreme of far-right people at least, it's all about their culture. That's also why they're not doing great (as a group) anywhere as they simply can't fit in to any modern society based on rule of law, it's impossible unless they abandon their very culture. If a Roma/Gypsy then decides to get an education, get a job, obey the law etc. like other normal people, chances are that person will be "shunned" by other Romas/Gypsies. They've never been interested in integrating in any way, shape or form. You have to remember that USA was created in less time than the Romani have been a problem in Europe. It went from no USA to the USA we know today in less time than Gypsies have been in Europe, and even way back in the day their reputation was the exact same as it is today, as the culture really hasn't changed. It's just a shitty fucking culture, no matter how much you	Ethnicity, Gypsy, Nothing, Race, Racism	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - General, Ethnicity - Roma	6/617	0.972

People often throw the Roma and Sinti together, and in Germany both groups were officially recognised as an ethnic minority requiring political representation and there is an organisation called the Union of Sinti and Roma. The Sinti however do not associate themselves with the Roma and consider themselves to be a different ethnicity altogether. The Sinti of Germany, Holland, France and Spain usually intermarry. Sometimes they marry local non-gypsies but less often. When they do, then the following applies: If the father is a Gypsy , then all the children will be considered Gypsies. If only the mother is a Gypsy , then the children are not considered Gypsies anymore; thus their sons never can have a say among the men when deliberating some internal issue. In the language of the Sinti, the word "Rom" simply means "Human". The languages of the Sinti and Roma have similarities but they have trouble understanding each other. Sinti has many words in common with Greek.	Common, Ethnic, Ethnicity, Gypsy	Ethnicity - General, Ethnicity - Roma, Social Class - Working class	5/160	3.125

It's so strange to me that so many people just simply believe Romani people are inherently criminal, manipulative, dirty, disruptive, etc. but it doesn't make sense to me. It's a whole group of people. You simply can't generalize personality and behavior like that. And even if large portions of their groups or their cultural norms reflected ideas like that, I just don't understand how you can just dislike or even hate a whole group of people for that. Everyone is an individual, regardless of their background. They're just a different type of people. Anyway, pretty much no one around here knows anything about Romani people other than the phrase and stereotype of " gypsy " so this was nice to learn!!	Gypsy	Ethnicity - Roma	1/119	0.84

Masaman, it's very simple. All Gypsies of the world are historically and genetically originally from India and they have nothing to do with Western or Eastern Europeans as well as the Romanian nation or ancient Rome...Their way of living, their original Hindu religion, physical appearance, and language confirm that. These gypsies are called Banjaras in India.The Central and several state governments have lifted these tribes here by giving them special rights in education, jobs and monetary help and also settling them. The crime rate among gypsies in India is negligible.No innocent child or creatures like Gypsies in Europe would seek isolation and freedom ever in presence of genuine sympathy or compassion. The real cause of poverty, enforced state sponsored criminality of Gypsies in Europe and their isolation into ghettos is due to inherent hidden gnashing hatred and degraded criminal attitude of Europeans for which they are known since centuries. European barbarism is well recorded since the days of inquisition and feudalism and colonialism of Asia and Africa with might of weapons and chains. I and I I world wars have given enough proof of your culture and fake super racism. Christ never stood for devils nor would he be ever closer to you. He too was a migrant like any tortured gypsy.America is a far far greater country which never stigmatised Gypsies and gave them dignity and respect. Throughout ,America has treated Gypsies as their own and today they hold enriched and high positions in society there fully integrated.But you have cunningly isolated them and falsely accuse Gypsies for not getting integrated.It is like running after helpless with clubs in hands and accusing them of not getting integrated . Your schools do not admit their children, you do not help them, you do not treat them like humans. You are worst followers of Christ and you are real anti Christ.Get it and learn from Americans and Asian countries how they have treated their Gypsies and changed their lives.We know how you cook stories about Gypsies to defame them. We know how a fake channel like BBC made a film about Spanish Gypsies showing them in bad light with stage managed scenes of Gypsy children being asked to enact fake acts of tampering with ATM machines and pick pocketing. I live in Europe and have encountered many Gypsies. The thing that Europeans need to understand is that how groups of people act has nothing to do with it being "built into their genetics" like some of the idiots in this comment section claim. People are people, and if a group of people is more likely to commit crime than another group, it will be for a historical reason. Hell, just think about it - two thousand years ago, Rome and Greece and Egypt were the largest and most powerful western civilizations. These people considered themselves organized and advanced and ethnically superior to the barbarian northern Europeans who lived in huts and constantly raided them to steal their shit. Nowadays Italy and Greece are among the poorer European countries, and places like Germany are considered organized and advanced, and some idiots even think that they're ethnically superior to other groups of people.The fact of the matter is, Gypsies have been excluded from European society for hundreds of years. Why are all these Europeans so surprised that it might be just a bit difficult for them to integrate into society now?	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/191	0.524

how can you compare a potential Gypsy state to the state of Israel? Jews had the kingdoms of Israel and Judea before we lost it to foreign invaders, but Gypsies never owned or ruled a land, they were just a group of people from South Asia. that's why Jews prayed for the return of Israel during the exile period, while Gypsies never had such aspirations, they never had a land in the first place. I as a child I always liked when the Romani came to our town. The used to settle here once a year for about two weeks.When they have cars, they usually had an old Mercedes and since my grandfather, who himself is not a very rule and law loving person, works at Mercedes, we always got the parts and fixed their cars for them.It was always fun doing business with them, since they aren't as stiff as the average German. They would never come back and sue you or something like that. They like a good haggling and sometimes they even paid us with a good meal. Good times!	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/111	0.901

They are not well liked among Italians though there are Italian gypsies. If you want to insult someone in Italian because of the way they live, you call them a gypsy . In English this description conjures up the idea of freedom etc but, in Italian it is very insulting, suggesting drifters, messy, dirty people, who cannot be trusted. It is particularly insulting if applied to describe a certain type of free and easy woman who dresses and behaves a certain way. The term gypsy is also used to describe a certain way of doing business eg travelling salespeople peddling goods door to door etc. This is derogatory, too but not as derogatory as when the term describes a certain type of character who lives a highly mobile, travelling lifestyle. Let me sum up what Romani people are all about:- They are against working or having a job.- They are against education. They consider the school as Gadji - something that destroy their original culture.- They consider marriage at the age of 12 normal. And the the children or children's family object, they must face tremendous punishment.- Rape is acceptable if one is drunk when he does it.- Any kind of problem is solved with violence and revenge. Blood feuds are the only way to solve an issue.Call me a racist , but if you'll talk to a Romani person, you'll get everything I just wrote confirmed. Rroma are gypsies. Romani means Romanians. You're title is wrong. Plus they gave themselves the "rroma" title because of the racism problem, just like blacks don't like being called " nigga " or " negro ", the gypsies don't like being called gypsies. It's all politics and fear of racism accusations. And gypsies exist in any other country. Just stop saying "romani". That means romanian, which are not gypsies. It's like me writing "english" as englis. And their languages by the way only they understand. Just so you can have an idea the romanians can not speak the rroma(gypsy) languages and considering they live together in the same country should tell you a lot. In my country 1 in every 20 people is romani. Of course there are exceptions, as in each and every ethnic group, but most of them are not bad people at all. It is true that they really love to party and often play loud music in the middle of the night, which is a tiny bit annoying, but overall the romani I have had the pleasure to meet are extremely nice, kind people. Unfortunately, though, here they are being heavily discriminated against, considered second-class people by some, and hearing people say "death to gypsies" is far from uncommon. They are the scapegoat that politicians blame for every single one of our problems to distract us from our misery while stuffing their pockets with our money. It is usually hard for them to find a well-paid job because of discrimination, so they sometimes turn to begging and/or stealing to feed their families. Then people say that they are lazy assholes who spend their time doing nothing and rely on government aid to survive and this only makes their apartheid worse.	Ethnic, Nothing	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - General	2/180	1.111

Why does everyone hate them for nearly 1000 years? They piss people off. I'm sorry, but when people have hated them so long, there is usually a reason. In this case, they're thieves. Apparently, word has it that one of their time honored traditions is to rip every non-gypsy off they think they can get away with. They DO NOT assimilate. They marry ONLY their own in arranged marriages, as marriage to outsiders lowers them on the social scale, particularly, when the outsider is male. They DO have a central language which derived from Sanskrit (the world's OLDEST language, originating in India) three- they try & work the welfare system. Of course, people will say this should be included under number one. Also, they are pigs . In Europe, one will see their property value plummet if they move next door. The reason for this is they are the biggest hoarders on the planet. They would shit up their property in no time, negatively impacting the value of YOURS. In the UK, they can't stand them. x y Also irish travellers are not connected to romani/roma ppl; not by language and not in genetics. But since both are nomadic ppl, like roma actually were traditionally, all kind of ppl were called by the name "gypsy", simply to denote 'they're not a part of us'. Exactly like in Balkan during Ottoman empire and many folks where forced to migrate bc Ottomans were forcing Islam on Balkanians. During that time also Roma ppl were living in Balkan. However, back then all kind of folks were called "cigan" (= gypsy) "Osman", "Turk". Basically anyone who converted to islam or/and invaded certain areas was called by one of these names. The word "gypsy" was thrown at all kind of ethnicities. Roma are an ethnicity on their own. Gypsy is a slur word. Later, during the Hippie era then a "bohemian" and "gypsy" style became a trend. The way these ppl dressed during the hippie era was and is very unrealisic compared to ethnic roma/romani pp; as they never wore feathers and all kind of these trends back then. Ppl literally mixed all kind of trends (balkan, oriental, native american, etc.) and labled it as "bohemian, gypsy", blah blah. Traditional clothing among roma/romani ppl is very diverse; as they spread all over europe and came with many european ethnicities in contact. Roma/Romani tribes reached Europe some 1000 years ago. Their origin is somewhere between north central india. in italy they live in camps, or are homeless. they don't send their 10+ kids to school, even though the law obligates everyone to go to school until you are 16 years old. i'm not being racist at all, i live in a bad neighborhood, but pretty much they are the same everywhere, they send their kids to beg outside of churches, shopping centres, busy streets, the adults steal and take stuff from garbage bins to sell (everything made out of copper is promptly scavenged by them, they take clothes and sell them in "markets", literally they show the stuff they found on the sidewalk to sell). when i went to elementary school we had 2 rom girls in class, they showed like 1 day and then the rest of the week were in their camps begging or stealing. where they live they burn car tires (you can see the smoke and smell the awful smell from their camps) and throw garbage everywhere, wherever they go they destroy, they get everything dirty, they assume everything is their own. to go to my girlfriend house i have to cross a bridge, under that bridge they "live", they sleep, make camp fires (we are inside a big city, so it's pretty illegal) and throw garbage everywhere, there's literally a 2 meters high stack of garbage next to where they sleep, but the most disgusting thing is that they shit on the sidewalk of the bridge, so i have to walk zig-zag between their shit (30m o sidewalk with a dump every 50cm).everyone pretty much hates them, and there's a reason, multiple reasons. even if you were to give them economical support or the chance to study to get a job they prefer to beg and steal, and spend their money in beer and drugs	Old, Racist	Age - Over 65s, Ethnicity - General	2/303	0.66

7:42 Irish Travellers aren't Romani at all. Due to a lack of written material, their origins are quite unknown but genetics show they don't belong to the Romani group;and only a small part of the Jewish people came from the place we now call Israel. According to the Israeli professor of history Shlomo Sand, the great David Ben-Gurion was convinced that the Old Testament Hebrews had never moved out from Palestine and their real descendants would actually be the Palestinian still living there. Interesting theory, isn't it?Apart from these two mistakes, the video is really interesting. The Romani history is undoubtedly special. In the past centuries, they sometimes have been mistaken for Jews (and vice versa) by ignorant peasants.	Old, Shlomo	Age - Over 65s, Religious Identity - Jewish	2/121	1.653

The Romani have always fascinated me and how they have managed the survive in all these different countries is testament to their culture and way of life. Yes I have no doubt there are some groups who are nothing but trouble but where I am from in northern England, travellers such as the Romani and the Irish travellers have even created a yearly fair where people can attend to trade with these groups of unique peoples. If they were to receive their own "state" it would have to be created out of either India or even Pakistan where there ancestors immigrated from and it would have to be large enough to allow them to travel as I believe the majority would still be nomadic

It's pretty funny seeing USA's minorities all racing to be the no. 1 victim of the country claiming racism and discrimination, while gypsies in the eastern europe deal with their racists by force because they can. Usually prisons offers better living conditions for most that belong to the tier that I like to call as "footsoldiers", the ones that do the action, the lowest tier they have. So even if they commit a serious crime, it's probably in their personal interest to get incarcerated anyway. I mean, in Romania there's no life sentence so why live on the streets when you can just go to prison, get to know others of your kind and learn from their mistakes, maybe get some new skills and tricks, and after getting out attempt to live the dream of owning a corrupted empire. Some of them, usually in the higher tiers, have some sort of code of honor. If you don't mess with them, they don't mess with you, especially if there's nothing to gain or prove wrong from that. It's the lower tier that likes to instigate and be chaotic. Which sometimes means the ones in the higher tier can just abandon them and let them be free to do what they want without any cover if they get themselves stuck in deep shit. But the moment they have a point and you don't, they will make sure both you and your family remembers it. It's true that the ones in the higher tier may have ties with giant illegal activities, but that can apply to any race of any country. They just have it easier because they have convenient access to manpower, unlike cultured majorities who usually need political sides and fake promises to achieve that. They are usually very united in their causes. Sure they have their own internal drama, and sometimes fights between their own gangs. But if something affects them as a race, they will band together and make sure that problem becomes a priority to deal with. No matter what's your opinion on them, imo eastern european ones are part of the toughest of the minorities. Black people in USA who complain about their country are a bunch of pansies who use the slavery of their ancestors as a sort of extra points for getting privileges, and yet the result is that the future generation of those slaves are living a better life than in their original 3rd world continent. You keep hearing about Hitler how bad he was, but in the end the jews did get what they wanted because of him: Israel. But both of them won't shut up because they want more, that's how human nature works. All minorities face discrimination everywhere in the world, but 1st world countries deal with them by being a bunch of crybabies. 2nd world minorities man up and make their presence feared. You don't mess with the gypsies of eastern europe.	Black, Nothing, Race, Racism	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	5/492	1.016

Congratulations. This is a very well-written analysis. I live in a country with a vast Roma minority and a great part of my childhood I lived among them.As for a possible location of a Romaes country ... I think you're kidding. Even though the great powers of the world would agree to find such a place for a Roma state, this state would probably be never populated. As I said, I knew them well enough to say that I understood their spirit. The spirit of free people who did not like to be tied to any particular country or place or even to follow any other rules than their own local rules or customs.Even as individuals or as small groups, they can adapt to a certain place and can remain in the area for the rest of their lives, or until they are completely absorbed by the population of that region, but as a nation , they are the embodiment of the idea of migrating people, dwells or migrate where they felt better. Because, for thousands of years, they were never allowed to access these things, the notions of homeland, citizenship, or civic spirit is something that most of them can perceive only at the intellectual level not emotionally, being notions, emptied of any content, and that's why I always admired them. They are a very resilient nation that not only did not vanish throughout history (as so many other nations did), although no one loved them, but they will probably continue to last many centuries from now on. They are like water. Very hard to contain it for eternity, the water can take so many form and aspects, being almost impossible to be destroyed.	Nation	Nationality - General	2/286	0.699

Being a gypsy myself, all of them are different. It just depends on where they live, here in America gypsies are modernize and up to date as to gypsies in romania who are more traditional, however one thing i can say is that all gypsies are united in the sense that we don't like outsiders, we do what we do because that's how we were raised and taught to, we value our family more then anyone else and to us its our culture agasint the world. But this won't last long, because each generation is starting to grow out of that and soon maybe 20 years from now there won't gypsies anymore well at least not in well off countries like America, (Sorry for the poor grammer.) Then her husband comes in talking smack to her, telling her to be pushy with the gov't workers because he apparently has a deadline for something. He then tells her that if she doesn't get it done they will give him a penalty after which she will pay for it herself. I wanted to smack him. I recently went to Bucharest. For few days I always observed the intense discrimination of Romanians against Romanis. They were totally excluded from society. And my friend who has been hosting me later told me that once during a project in a local school he saw even the legal discrimination. What he told me was frustrating. He told me there is a limit of two gypsy students per each class and its not even filled usually because romanian families pay gypsy families to not to send their kids to school, they dont want romani children to study with their children. And even if a Romani kid goes to school, scholl gives him an identity card expressing his race (I see no difference from nazis). So they cant really get educated and after the education as well, companies or institutions just don't give them jobs. And still Romanians blame Romanis for "ruining their reputation". NO!!! Stop associating Romani with ROMANIANS , it's two different things. Romani migrated into Europe centuries ago, but they have nothing to do with Romanian culture. They are a minority in Romania (around 3 of the Romanian population) and they live isolated by the Romanian culture. Romanian language is a romance language (language of the Roman Empire, originating from the vulgar latin) meanwhile Romani language is panjabi and their roots are coming from Northen India, they reject every single aspect of the Romanian culture and most of the times have a criminal agenda, especially theft. Let me just tell you the ways they are earning their money in Romania and Hungary (they probably do it the same way in other Eastern European countries).They usually send their kids to the city to beg for money. They also seek usable stuff in dust bins and they leave a huge mess around garbage containers and stuff. Another thing they love to do is to STEAL. One of their favourite materials is metal. They steal electricity wires, railway etc. Then they won't steal your wallet, phone etc. right? Hell no. They will. They will get it out of your pocket, they will steal your purse, backpack etc. They can even slit your throat if they want to. Another thing some of them do (which is probably the only thing they do that doesn't harm anybody) is that they go to the forest and collect mushrooms, flowers, raspberry, blueberry etc. and sell them. Most of them don't have a legal job. They get lot of money from the government (social help, kids money etc). And now let's talk about the 'business' they do. A lot of men go to Western Europe or Hungary (from Romania), Poland etc to 'work'. They obviously don't have a real job. They make a lot of money and come home, buy old sport cars and build 'castles' which look horrible by the way. A lot of gipsies have vans to transport stuff. Most of them have Hungarian (especially in the region of Romania where I'm from), Polish, Bulgarian or Italian number plates. A lot of gipsies that can't read (most of them) buy their driving licence in Bulgaria and they don't even know the laws and stuff. The average age when gipsy women give birth to their first child is like 15-16, or even 13-14. And they usually have like 5-6 children, which is very high compared to the 1 or 2 children that Hungarians or Romanians have. Obviously most of them are illiterate, dirty and stinky.People don't hate them because of their skin colour, but because the way they behave. There are by the way a few 'good' gipsies (for example there are quite a couple of great gipsy musicians), but unfortunately most of them are a$$holes. Not everyone's the same, stop generalising. You must really hate us for writing that long hateful comment. MOST of the gypsies I KNOW have degrees, broke out from the shitty and oppressed lives they lived and aren't hurting anyone. None of the countries you mention do anything to integrate them into their society, all they do is pretend to help but really, no gypsy gets a job without being white passing (which I am, due to my mother being a white Hungarian, hence the great jobs I get - it's not fair, i know...) and even in schools they are sent to schools where teachers don't give a fuck and even the teachers themselves are racist towards little kids. These kids grow up listening to how bad their parents are, not given opportunities, bullied, then people are surprised why they quit school so soon. Once they quit school they are normally forced into situations where they have to do illegal shit to survive and feed their mum/dad. BUT you can go to Hungary, go into a gypsy household, you'll be shocked how clean they are and how welcoming they are. FKS Creative That's the cart before the horse. They have low intelligence which causes them to not get opportunities, not they get less opportunities which causes them low intelligence. You don't get dumber because you aren't offered a job. But like Farrel, you don't seem to understand, or want to, how medians work. It doesn't say anything about the individual, it says about the number of individuals. If the gypsies have an average IQ, of 74, 50 of them have IQ's under 74, 50 over, which also elucidates other things like the distribution, a group with 74 IQ will have way less people with IQ's over 130 than a group with 100 average. The fact that you have a degree and know gypsies that do means nothing to the group average, it's subjective. Infact, you would expect that if you did have higher intelligence, most other gypsies you know would too, because we live in a world of free association, and people settle in communities and social circles which represent them. But i don't think we're getting anywhere, both you and Farrel are into fantasy, you see no responsibility for the gypsy when they fail, but take all the credit when they succeed. When it's a win, it's the gypsies brilliance, when it's a fail, vastly the case, everyone else's fault. I mean you aren't even good faith communicators, you are bad faith ones, stuffing your comments with non-sequiters like muh italians have bad economy (compared to who lol, to the gypsy community they are super rich) or subjective experiences. Go read up on the veil of ignorance argument, if you could choose which ethnicity to be born, and everything else random, like sex, intelligence, wealth of family etc, no one would choose to be born a gypsy, for incredibly obvious reasons, infact it would be one of the last choices you would make, probably exemplified even by you and mad Farrel, since what are you, americans/canadians that have like one half of your last 4 generations ancestors white?	Ethnicity, Gypsy, Nothing, Sex	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - General, Ethnicity - Roma, Gender - General	6/338	1.775

hey masaman, just wanted to make a few corrections for you. first off we pronounce our broad name "rum-knee" and my group "rum-nah chel". also the irish travellers, although similar in lifestyle and we do intermix and marry here and there, are not ethnically romani in anyway (unless mixed). the traveller groups that are supposed to be part romani are English and lowland Scotch travellers although they probably existed as a group before we arrived in the British isles and mixed. also most real Romani's wouldn't want their own country (at least not us in America) because unfortunately some of the stereotypes are true for some of us. my family have been honest businessmen for generations but i do know many con men. if a con man gypsy lived in a country full of his own people who he doesn't want to con or can't con because they know the deal, how would he survive? while more and more of us (the majority at this point) work honestly and follow the teachings of Jesus pertaining to morality we have a strong distrust for police and government. it's hard to tell at this point what came first, gypsy distrust of authority or the persecution towards Romani's. i know many people on here have stories and bad experiences with Romani's and i don't doubt them. I will say that we much more honest here in America and here we are no more criminal than another ethnic group that gets painted with a broad brush, the Italians. I do hear in Europe Romani crime is much more rampant. I won't excuse their bad behavior but I do wonder if it's in part due to them being stereotyped and not given honest jobs as often. here in America most people just think (depending on the complexion of the individual) we are either Italian, Greek, or Mexican. we blend in easier here so I think we had an easier time turning from the con game. hope this was helpful, thanks for the videos bub	Ethnic, Gypsy, Traveller	Ethnicity - General, Ethnicity - Roma	4/339	1.18

Im not racist and im 100 sure not all gypsies are like this... But ive had some less than stellar encounters with gypsies here in chileIm a venezuelan immigrant so i really didnt have experience with then before, this time i was walking in valparaiso with my gf at the time, they were on the street insisting on reading my hand or something like that, my gf said i shouldnt allow them to do it since they could try to rob meThe second one really pissed me off, i was walking in downtown santiago, and i saw a couple of kids begging for money, this was weird since unlike venezuela i had never seen kids begging for money in chile, i gave them some and their mother thanked me and offered to read my hand, i could barely hide my disgust, she was using the kids to get money from people! I've read that a linguistic study of current Roma language indicates that these people originally came from India. But from multiple different regions of India. It was hypothesized that the original grouping went off to war in a northern India area. During the war the central government collapsed leaving these Romani soldiers to take care of themselves. These Indian languages were then blended and these individuals struggled off to find a place to settle and live.	Indian	Ethnicity - Native-American	1/76	1.316

At some time in India's past, there were great social and political upheavals. A class-based religion called "Varna Dharma" was founded by brahmins and a warrior-class ordained as Kshatriyas began to carve out kingdoms of their own by conquering ancient democratic states and displacing entire populations from their homelands. These were times of tremendous oppression and genocide. These populations sought refuge in other lands. Any unwanted and homeless people who are driven out of their homelands will naturally become segregated and end up in poverty and criminality. Thus emerged the untouchable classes of India.Evidently, the Romanis or Gypsies are from these native people of the Indian subcontinent who fled their motherlands in times of great turmoils. A large segment of the Naga people of Indian subcontinent have become untouchables under this Varna religion (mistakenly referred as hinduism). If you came across names like "naga" among the Gypsies & Romanis, you can be sure that they are of Indian origin. Recently, Gypsies in Europe rallied under the name of Dr. B.R. Ambedkar, a great intellectual who drafted the Constitution of India and laid the foundation of national currency & the Reserve Bank. He himself was from an 'untouchable' class. My mother is Romanian, and while I've heard many stories I was able to educate myself in America about the Romani people. My father is American. Growing up here, it was evident that there was a big problem with racism . I quickly made the connection between how black Americans, native people, and immigrants are treated here and how Romani people are treated in Romania. I believe it is sickening to make broad, sweeping, criminalizing judgments of an ethnic group that has experienced persecution and racism . I'm Romanian from Moldova though people often tell me I don't have a European face. The hate towards Romani/gypsy people stems from Antonescu style dictatorship (in Romania) mentality or soviet influences (for post USSR countries). All of that mixed with strict gun laws in Europe (Romania has the strictest gun laws in the world) is a recipe for racism because if any person would shit in one's garden in the US, he has a good chance of getting shot and going to the hospital in the best case. That is just not something that can happen in Europe because of " common sense gun control" bullshit. Until Europeans learn to accept everyone regardless where they come from and learn basic self protection there will be toxic hate, snobbism and cosmopolitanism forever. Whining over Romani people is just a scapegoat just like complaining over migrants from Syria/Lybia which were colonized by major European powers. Of course the hate towards Romani in Romania is also mixed with conservatism around marijuana and LGBT and ultra orthodox nationalism rolling around Dughin style ideology. However, the caste system was just as derogatory/discriminatory. The caste system initially was not like this, becoming so slowly over time, to what it is today. Probably due to the higher up members of the caste system preferring the status quo. Just as the British had warped views of wanting to hold power. Also, my (albeit limited) knowledge on the Mughals, were that they were horrific to the native Hindu populations. So i did read here a few almost racist comments and i agree and disagree with most of them :). On one hand, u have ur dirty romas living in tents, or ruins almost houses, in some camps or little villages created on a land that doesnt belongs to them, the land has their owners etc. we here called them if the translation is correct, colonies or settlements (just this simple). I mean those type of romas wont even clean up their own mess, theyll rather live in filth then do something about it. This is often because their children wont attend school or if they do, they do it pretty leniently i mean, sparsely they attend classes etc. At home they do nothing and sadly its just goes in circles, what i mean is that a solution for this a way out if u will is too hard to make, cause of their willingness to change their ways. People where i live most of the time want nothing else just them to live as in 21st century one should. They either refuse f nothings to be gained doing so or wont even listen to what do u have to say. They specialize for social help from the state and live from that. Some of them steal (thats sadly true) some of them even do murder or what they like to do, steal dogs for meat and fat, cause its some kind of remedy (they believe it is, well some of them do). These people barely speak native language in that state where im from. I dont really hate them im just telling how it is. This is the first group uneducated scum u could say although its not really their fault at least not the children, their parents on the other hand. As i was mentioning its a neverending circle until they decide change is needed. Luckily there are now a few examples of this change, building their own houses, buying that land for the house to be built on etc. Working too, there are now places where they can work. Its harder for them because most of them have only basic education so, ye, they can read and write and count to some extent thats about it. So working more lucrative jobs is just out of the question for them so they are stuck with lesser paid jobs. Still as i was saying many of them embrace this opportunity and trying to turn their and theirs children lives around. Many Romas i know are hard working ppl and they have where to live, have cars have jobs and can live normally in the society. Their children are raised to do the same, uphold the laws etc. But these are just few cases and those firstly mentioned make bad reputation for those great people and its pretty sad. 3:20 (so u can better imagine) is the depiction (or can be used for it) the second group, working and living in community as equals etc. 5:27 for example is the first type of roma ppl, those that make the bad rep. for all of them all over the europe or even world. And this is what we most associate roma ppl as, not that first one, but this. THis is not true, only part of it. Whose fault is that, well i dont really know, but could be the country where they live. Dont do enough to get them from that situation they are in. A great example is that, when a house burns down for a white family (im not trying to be racist, im just trying to make an image how it is in my country) they have to fend for themselves with the help of neighbors if they have the luck to have some great ppl living in the vicinity. If not they can rely only on family. Roma familys house burns down, the first kind i mentioned, what happens is they beg the state, they beg	Fat, Nothing, Racist	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - General, Physical Identity - Physical Features	5/963	0.519

Crow29Darkness Right, right. Funny thing is, even though West Africans were forced to come to America, that didn't stop people from telling black people that their own disenfranchisement was their own fault, and they should, "go back to Africa". Regarding the question if the Gypsies/Romani could establish a state of their own I'd say impossible. First of all the number of Gypsies/Romani in countries like Bulgaria and Turkey is much higher than recognized. One reason for this is because some Gypsies identify as Turks or Bulgarians and due to their own nation forging concerns both host countries welcome this. However, similar to the case mentioned for Romanians in the video, average Bulgarian also does not like it when a Romani claims to be an ethnic Bulgarian. In fact the situation is so complex that in Bulgaria there are 'Bulgarian Gypsies' who speak Bulgarian only, 'Turkish Gypsies' who speak Turkish, and other Gypsies who have their own languages. Some of these 'Bulgarian Gypsies' will admit they are Gypsies and others will claim to be ethnic Bulgarians. The same is also true for the 'Turkish Gypsies' in Bulgaria who speak Turkish and some of them claim to be ethnic Turks while the rest will admit to being part of the 'millet'. However the situation is different in Turkey where the Gypsies are more integrated. There are Gypsies who admit they are 'Roman' but their numbers are dwarfed by comparison to those 'Romans' who claim to be ethnic Turks and the rest of the population has no issues with it. Irish travellers are ethnically identical to other Irish people and have no racial connections to European Romani gypsies, virtually all of whom are of direct Indian descent. Apart from originating outside Europe, with a small number of exceptions, there are no comparisons that can be made with Jews in terms of culture, lifestyle, achievements and contributions to European life and civilization. The shared hatred of Jews and Gypsies is a more complex issue. There are some similarities but also many significant differences. Jews are often hated for seemingly being too successful and influential in a wide range of fields. Nothing like this is generally said of Gypsies, whose main claim to fame is gypsy music in some countries and a great prevalence for being violent street beggars and thieves in virtually all societies in which they live,	Gypsy, Indian, Nothing	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - Native- American, Ethnicity - Roma	3/137	2.19

In Turkey, the most common word for gypsy people is "çingene" pronounced like "chingané" considered as a derogatory word. "Roman" is the politically correct way to say it. They are highly discriminated and marginalized, associated with criminal activities and poverty in almost every region in Turkey, however, their culture has a great impact on Turkish culture. In almost every wedding ceremony regardless of class, you would hear a "Roman Havası" song which is a specific naming for Romani music. They commonly appear as comedic reliefs in tv/media but also represented as easy-going, fun, lively and gifted people, especially in music. There are many Roman singers and musicians in Turkey and they are praised. I hope that they will be able to represent themselves in the political arena soon to end their longtime poverty and reliance on crime. I am of Hungarian decent and my family is from the Hungarian - Czechoslovakian boarder area. My family came to the USA during WWI and settled in Braddock, PA near Pittsburgh via Ellis Island. My Grandfather moved to Chicago in the late 1930's and I was born in Chicago. I never understood why many of my family members considered themselves Gypsies. I am Bulgarian and I can say for sure, there is nothing that we hate more than those dirty gypsies! They are protected by EU laws and they do whatever they want. They steal and rape and have 3-4 houses each. They make 5+ babies and drug them so they can go to the streets and beg pretending to be homeless. I had many in my old neighbourhood, so I used to follow them to see what they do, they lived in houses that I can only dream of, close to caravans and scrap yards. You cannot go in their villages, unless you have a death wish. They don't go to jail, even if they did, they have more than enough money to bail themselves. The worse part is that, they go to other EU countries and do the same, but they don't say they are gypsies but they say they are Bulgarian. So they go and steal and do bad things and take benefits for the countless children that they have! And the result is that other countries think all Bulgarians are like that and no one wants us anywhere. I actually live in England because I don't feel safe in my own country. Many people don't believe that I am Bulgarian, they say I am too white to be Bulgarian. Because Bulgarian people rarely emigrate, mostly the gypsies and Turks do, pretending to be Bulgarian. So the rest of the EU doesn't really know us. I wish these gypsies never existed, their sheer existence has made my life very difficult and a living hell! Doms are from Rajasthan India and Gypsies are from Punjab India, ..those from Punjab are known as Punjabis..or Punjapis as P and B interchange frequently in that region...when there was this Mongol invasion sweeping the western parts of India..these tribes began moving westward and some moved to the southern parts of India..So they gradually became known as Japis and then Gypsies..If you come across any gypsy spell book in your occult store..you will find that the spells are in Punjabi...They are native to India ..if they should have a homeland it should be in India. I read the many comments on how they are pickpockets and con artists, and this is very common misconception. I used to believe that myself. My mother worked for humanitarian organisation that had project to help them. They are separated in groups: some of them are having amusement parks, some are selling barbecue tools, some are collecting copper and selling it, some are professional beggars, and some are in criminal activities. It's very important to know, that this groups do not mix, and get very offended if put them in the same bucket. A specially the ones who are working for living. They might not be well educated, but they do take pride on their work. They are also sexually pure. Having their mate for life.	Common	Social Class - Working class	1/126	0.794

And there is nothing wrong with not wanting your people to be ethnically replaced by foreigners as well as there is nothing wrong to treat people based on their cultural and ethnic background. rahul aktu "Not from india. India is home of hindusnism and buddhism." This is irrelevant. Roma usually adopt the religions, culture & even adopt common given names & surnames of their country of residence. In the middle East & Turkey, they are Muslims, in the Balkans they tend to be Orthodox Christian, Muslim or Catholic, depending on where they live. In Spain & France, mostly Catholic. There is linguistic evidence of Indian ancestry. Romani shares the basic lexicon with Hindi and Punjabi.As a musicologist I have studied the links between the music of North Wester India & that of Roma from the Balkans. Tony Ofarrell Retarded is anyone who believes that gypsies here have the romantic charm that Hollywood portrays in that ethnic group. It is the black people in the usa that are truly segregated and oppressed. In BG, the communist regime actually managed to integrate gypsies into the society to some extent - gave them free housing, jobs and "forced" them to go to school. After the regime collapsed, the roma people withdrew and started building their own ghettos and abandoned the society - they don't want to live nearby us. Recent governments tolerate that because the aituation makes gypsies easy to manipulate during elections and also supplies immense amount of EU funds for the gypsy integration program (that does not achieve anything). Can you please elaborate the honesty part? My ethnic group is full of scumbags too but at least we try to build a normal society. I though you would talk a bit more about the gypsies in Spain, where their culture has had a lot of influence in Spanish identity, which now sees them as a cultural value, but distinguishes between the Romanian Romani which is a newer migration in Spain, but that lives more on the margins of society. Andalusia and the south of Spain actually identify themselves as heirs to the gypsy culture. It is interesting how in a Nation State like Spain the Gypsy culture has been taken as their unique and most particular identity.	Gypsy, Nation	Ethnicity - Roma, Nationality - General	3/93	3.226

In Germany (and no racism here, as you might think), there was a sign put up on the border to poland, pointing out "no gypsies welcome, entering is punishable by death". This was pre-Hitler, under Imperial Law, which wasn't racist , compared to England or the US etc at that time. My great grandmother, whose family lived near the boarder, nevertheless, was kidnapped as a child (ca 4 years old) by a group of "Romani". The miller from the next village, which was approx. 5 miles away, saw her sitting and crying on a cart driven by the "Romani" and noticed her as being the daughter of one of his costumers, so she was able to be brought back by the townsmen. I do not think this was a custom, but kind of a reason why those "nomadic" people were prosecuted in such a harsh way back then in more "civilized" areas. I still remember her resemblances, which might be partially wrong after such a long time, but definetly they are chilling! I am Romanian too,! my 2 cents:There are more than one kind of gypsies,:Gypsies from large cities, and the rest,nomads ,metal workers,jewelry makers.The only ones i was a victim of were the city,non nomad gypsies.They are the most numerous and most criminal group of people.I was attacked,in 1967 twice, by group of gypsies,5 or more(i was only 17),and use to travel from , high school in Pantelimon,to POdul Constanta din Bucuresti.I was working in construction,and went to school,(liceu),in the evening ,at Liceul Al Sahia ,(Pantelimon),and sleep at working people dormitory,at,Podul Constanta.The gypsies,were hiding in some woods next to ,the tram way station,and when i come down ,from tramway, at 11 pm, Nobody else ,only me, they will jump on me,and 2 of them hold my hands,one for every hand,and the rest of them check pockets and take anything of value,Money watch etc, and ,in a couple of seconds they run away .Of course I will fight them every time, but they won,the way i told you,about blocking my arms.One of this 2 attacks one of them hit me in the head with a heavy piece of wood,and for the first and last time in my life i have seen all kind of blue,red and white stars for a few seconds.I do not hate gypsy people as an ethnicity,but surely,a large percentage of them ,living in large cities,have a very criminal way of life,and refuse to do honest work,for a living.They are no Robin Hood,they will attack rich ,or poor ,if the conditions are in their favor.I am in America since 1982,and never been attacked,only once 3 young black tugs tried to take my bicycle,but i was ready for that fight and it was day time so,they did not go on with it.Other wise,the tugs here broke my car window once, stole one Fuji,bicycle and one Honda moped both ,chained to trees in front of my property.Only found chain cut ,with bolt cutter down next to tree.But,the cops in Santa Ana California apprehended the thief,and called me to get my moped in about 7 days after it was stolen.And in SACramento Ca,my VW Bus broke down on freeway,and ,i left it there on side for 6 hours and some other tugs broke in and stall a lot of it so bad ,that i only got $50 for the body,from a junk yard.I had 2 tires cut with knife,on side about 10 years ago,by someone ,that did not like me here too.So yes ,life is a fight,but some people make life harder than it should be.	Black, Ethnicity, Gypsy, Nobody, Red	Ideological and Political Identity - General, Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General, Ethnicity - Native-American, Ethnicity - Roma	6/442	1.357

You people are idiots, and have no geographical intelligence whatsoever! There are many gypsies from many countries yes but it breaks down to this....wild gypsy and not wild gypsy . I'm half Hungarian gypsy from Budapest and half arabic. USA is a melting pot especially if you live in a metropolitan city. Not all gypsies are fortune tellers, cons and thieves. That's the wild gypsies. Other gypsies like my family are all musicians, have jobs, are good people and don't do that other shit. That's you people being close minded and judgemental. Sorry u ran into the wild gypsies and had a bad experience but in Chicago on Northside if u met one of our kind u wouldn't say the things u people just said. -I am fascinated when seeing documentaries about other non-white, lesser known ethnic groups. We always hear of the struggles of blacks, Puerto Ricans, Mexicans, Native Americans, & darker Asians by oppressive racist whites. But we almost never hear of these other somewhat isolated ethnics. And considering that if you turned the tables & had the oppressive whites forced into poverty for generations instead of darker ethnics, you would see THEM the whites, committing the crimes usually associated by the deprived ethnics. Even though some do. There is NO group on this planet that is above such illegal actions, in spite of what some want to say & think. If another racist , oppressive group in power were to deny whites the same fair opportunities as those in power then you would see white-committed crimes. Most likely in Europe, these people will get the bad treatment & discrimination.	Ethnic, Racist	Ethnicity - General	3/144	2.083

Imma be honest with you Tone, the gypsies do need a final solution, by the states they are more prevalent in, namely the Balkans - I say Romania Serbia and Bulgaria combine forces and land and give them out a small territory with out of their own ones where they can resettle and start exiling each and every one of their gypsies in said territory effectively creating their own nation state, of course this would all be forcefully done, as neither the gypsies nor their defenders in the face of overtly oligarchic ruling classes in those Balkan states would simply embrace that idea and comply willingly. After all, the politicians have a huge mass of one way voters, who do not regard the ideas and solutions of the politicians they are voting for and the gypsies in themselves rejoice with their living costs all covered by the working white majority but that's just me, aint it. Dvogaming 2001 is 2001 your year of birth? you're still a kid just at the beginning of becoming an adult and thou a bunch of things you've said might be almost true, you understandably believe what your mom, dad and community told you. you still don't have a true grasp of what your community is really about and how it's perceived by others hence if your family and you are "good romani" acting like normal people, respecting the law and country you live in, paying taxes, teaching you good stuff and try their best to integrate, you'd literally be 1 in 10 thousand if not more. where are you from? cause where i live, in italy, romani means criminals and mafia (as we haven't got enough italian mafia here, inform yourself about the fucking casamonica) and they're a real problem other than really annoying dirty beggars usually faking conditions or sending their children to beg/steal into the subway or onto trains. i personally got robbed by 3 romani inside my house in the middle of the night when i was like 8 yo along with my family and had been at gunpoint. your family should really teach you what your community really is, dirty criminals who refuse to integrate. if your parents are good people, they should explain you that there's nothing good to learn from romani community, commit to be different from them and grow good kids not thieves.p.s.: anyone living in a place without the romani problem should really stfu before defending them and calling people racist as you have no idea you fucking snowflakes.	Nothing, Racist	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - General	2/268	0.746

These, in turn, would give the contributor countries the much needed justification they can get, in order to use any means necessary for the integration, reintegration respectively of the Gypsy closed-off communities and structural societies, be it forceful or through the direct application of the law, without the definite intervention of third party civil rights protection NGOs or other disarrangement on the so-called basis of racial prejudice activists. My point being, wherever I've gone, they are under protection off of the law due to their racial background and the same laws do NOT apply to them, as they do to us, reasons being unsequenced bribery of officials , fear of being deemed racist or any other vaguely formed principle.	Gypsy, Racist	Ethnicity - General, Ethnicity - Roma	3/161	1.863

This is a very good and documented video. Great job Masaman. Rromani is by far one of the most reluctant to education and culture population. They are a closed group and they prefer to live in this way. But many of them manage to evolve and integrate into the community they live in, and some become famous or very rich. Sadly the reality is harsh and I doubt it will change in the next centuries. Between 1600-1950 in the USA, the Italians or the Irish were considered a pest. I have had encounters with them a couple of times in Azerbaijan, my home country. They're mostly just beggars as far as I've seen, but I remember one encounter best. I was going back home from an extra preparatory lesson, and I held my hat in my hand. I was with with my mom, and when we turned a corner, I dropped my hat. When I looked back I saw nothing on the ground. There were a ton of people, but a gypsy beggar with her child was sitting on the ground. My mom luckily saw what happened, and demanded that the kid give my hat back. She reluctantly did, and we moved away fast. My mom warned me to always be careful next to them. What I got from this was that, they don't mind stealing at all, and they teach their kids how to do it at an early age . Let me give you an example: a decade ago I lived in a mixed neighborhood; that is, one which was half gentrified and half poor. There was a homeless crackhead wandering my neighborhood that I enjoyed chatting with. I had a crashed car in my driveway that was technically totaled because of a bent chassis, but the interior was in good shape and so was almost everything under the hood. I gave him the key to the car so he could sleep in it, and he slept in it for weeks. One day he asked me if he could sell the car battery for some pocket money. "Sure, go ahead." Then one day, I came home from work and the car was gone. I freaked out. I found him down the block and he told me, "I saw some people towing the car away. I thought the landlords called a tow company." I made him give me the name of the tow company and he gave it to me. I called them and demanded they bring back my car. They were like, "Well, an older man 'sold' it to us, and he had the key so we didn't think anything of it." I asked what he looked like. "Tall, skinny - oh, wait, that's him over there! Walking up the street!" It was the crackhead. You know how much he "sold" my car for? $60 USD. I got one of my biggest, fattest, strongest male friends to chase him down and tell him that if he ever showed his face on my street again, he would kick his ass. And I do not regret it. A good friend of mine has another friend, who as a small child was a blonde toe-head and was nearly kidnapped by supposed gypsies here in Omaha, Nebraska, heartland of the Midwest. She was simply walking down the street with her mother in their neighborhood in the 1970s and out of nowhere came a Cadillac, Lincoln or some other large luxury car that pulled up alongside them and a scary-looking dark-complected woman opened the car door and tried to snatch the little girl. The friend's mother swears that it was gypsies in the car. And over in a small farming town in Iowa in the 1930s and 40s, my ex-husband's grandmother and her siblings were warned by their mother not to go down to the gypsy caravan that would show up once a year down by their small town's railroad tracks. Ben Barber pretty good bub. us english romnichals mixed more with indigenous scottish travellers (mostly lowland travellers but sometimes highland) and carneys than the irish but it did happen too. in america we all started mixing again about 30 years ago. the irish value men much more than women so a romani man marrying an irish traveller woman is much more common than an irish traveller man marrying a romani woman . my wife is an "english traveller " but to my people we consider them scotch, which they aren't very happy about. the lore is that these english travellers are pretty much a 50/50 mix of lowland scotch and romanichal. they use a mix of our language and the traveller language. it's a pretty interesting thing to research, there are so many sub groups with interesting history. the black dutch for example, they have a very mysterious origin and now the few families left have assimilated into the romanichal culture and intermarry with us. joanne gomo well i did a 23 and me dna test and the results were 40 south asian and the rest european. both my haplo groups were also " gypsy " groups. so i understand what you are saying and it's true to some point. on the other hand we have a distinct language that is almost mutually intelligible with punjabi (i could have the wrong indian language), our own culture and lifestyle, and we have certain physical characteristics distinct to us.for example, i went to visit friends in the mid west (i'm from ny) and when i got into their town, all the people i interacted with at gas stations and restaurants kept asking me if i'm related to my friends even though i wasn't with them and i never met the people asking. i would also compare us ashkenazi jews. while they are obviously different from the ancient israeli's they share common dna markers and cultural customs. would you say they aren't really jews? i do make a distinction from the rom of central europe and my people from the british isles, but the fact that we (gypsies as a whole) migrated across the entire world and still exist as a culture at all is pretty amazing. while very different in many ways i met many gypsies from spain, hungary, mexico, netherlands, and we all share at least some traits.
