0:49 So everybody on the bus reacted the same way as if you were a man. And you're calling this 'sexism'. You don't know what sexism is, do you? Just because people don't jump to your aid and help the poor maiden who's claiming to be in distress that does mean society is sexist, it means you feel entitled as a woman to being protected. Sorry, equality's a bitch.3:48 Disparity is not discrimination. For example, you say 1 in 5 people in parliament are women? Okay, what percentage of people trying to get IN to parliament are women? Because if it's anywhere near 20, then there's no discrimination. You keep using the term 'gender equality' when you mean to say 'gender parity'. This entire section is just you talking about disparity as though it is discrimination, and that is openly dishonest; and the fact that you'd use such a tactic to make your argument instead of using actual evidence of discrimination proves two things: 1) You are an intellectually dishonest person, and 2) There are no actual examples of discrimination for you to present, because if they existed, you would use them. Parity is arbitrary and anybody seeking parity at the expense of fair treatment is a pretty awful person who's just seeking power.5:11 "84 front page articles are dominated by male subjects" What is a "male subject"? Is it any subject that doesn't cater specifically to women? Because subjects, especially news subjects, don't have to cater exclusively to one gender; and just because the front page news article isn't about shoes and fashion, that doesn't mean it's directed solely at men.5:24 "Only 1 in 5 UK architects is female, yet 63 of them report experiencing sexual harassment in the workplace during the course of their career" What the hell do you mean "yet"? Those two claims are in no way related whatsoever; it's a complete non-sequitur.5:40 This entire section is just ridiculous. You are claiming sexism against women, not because women are the predominant victims of crimes (Because they aren't), but simply because women ARE victims of crimes. That's insane. So in your mind, unless we live in a world where men are the victims of crime and women aren't, the world is sexist. You are messed up. Also, half the statistics you quote here are crap you've made up, and the fact you have to do that just further demonstrates not only how dishonest you are, but that your position holds absolutely no merit, as you feel you have to lie to justify it.6:07 "1 in 3 women will be raped or beaten in her lifetime" So, correct me if I'm wrong, but what you're saying here is that 2 in 3 women, the SIGNIFICANT MAJORITY of women, live their entire lives without being the victim of violence? That's incredible. Human beings live a long time, and their lives are complicated. The idea of being alive for that long without ever being the victim of violence is unfathomable to me. But you're telling me not only is this the reality for some women, but for the significant majority of them? And this is worldwide, even including countries where people are beaten on regular basis? What number of men are beaten or raped in their lifetime? 49 out of 50? This is not an example of sexism against women, this is an exclamation that women are a pampered and protected class.6:11 "I decided that that argument that women were equal now really didn't stand up to scrutiny" You're right, you have all the same opportunities, MORE rights, and are	Sexism, Sexual, Woman	Gender - General	6/672	0.893

Fantastic talk. Ties together the apathy towards "everyday sexism " in the street or bus to the workplace with the bigger picture of systemic degradation of women. Pointing out the nuances of peoples' reaction to "making a fuss" about harrassment and how that triggers guilt, shame and keeps people from reporting or speaking out about it. The implied 2nd class status of women in our society is harmful to everyone. Time for a cultural shift.	Sexism	Gender - General	1/74	1.351
Equality of opportunity does not equal equality of outcome. Less women WANT to be politicians. It doesnt mean they cant be. I dont see any complaints that women have a lower death rate in the army, they make up almost zero roadworkers, or garbage collectors. So what is the deal here? "We want to be equal in the good jobs but not the crap ones"?In the uk 2 women a week are killed by a partner. She doesnt mention 1 MAN a week also dies at the hands of a partner. Not exactly insignificant is it. Also, in domestic situations MORE women are violent than men. She doesnt mention that either. If she is going to speak about equality, she should present statistics which represent BOTH GENDERS how can you discuss equality only mentioning one side?	Zero	Age - Youngsters	1/137	0.73
Weird that a video with over 8000 views has only one comment. Weirder still that before I refreshed the page there were three comments.	Weird	Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	1/24	4.167
Well done, Laura!!! It's a real pity that, in 2014, such a project has to exist, but it clearly does. My only advice - if you think patriarchy/casual sexism is bad in the UK, for goddess' sake, never visit Australia...	Sexism	Gender - General	1/40	2.5
