Many people have argued that American Indian is not the correct term for our people who are the original inhabitants of the Americas. Many assume that the word Indian comes from Columbus being lost at sea and him believing he was in India, so he decided to call our people Indians based on that. But the true history of the origins of the word Indian has nothing to do with India or its people, but originate with our Indigenous peoples of the Western hemipshere. I'm mixed blood NATIVE AMERICAN. 1985 blood quantum law eliminates 10s millions of mixed blood native Americans having right to minority status and protection under the law. Not only did the USA turn their backs on mixed bloods but the tribes, shunned us as we would have a voting block and a voice to help and defend the rights of first nations people. But, today 100 million mixed blood NATIVE AMERICANS are mostly white Christians conservative and blacks. Learn and search, SPANISH AND MEXICAN INDIAN POLICIES and learn that Spanish and Mexicans were invaders upon Native American lands and Mexicans and Hispanics say they are going to kill the white people and black people. Muslims refugees say they are going to take over this country and Islam teaches to kill Jews and Christians. We who are mixed blood NATIVE AMERICAN, why should we care about those who turned their backs on us. In a few generations the majority of our population will be mixed blood NATIVE AMERICAN. You the government and tribes have stabbed us in the back. You are responsible for the genocidal act of 1985. You bite the hand that today would feed you and protect you from the genocidal politicians, Latinos and Muslims. The are out to continue genocide upon us. MANAA or MAKE AMERICA NATIVE AMERICAN AGAIN is our only option. Close the border. Send illegal invaders and their children back to where they came from. Enforce the BIRTH RIGHT CITIZEN LAW that excludes children born of people sovereign to another country and foreign diplomats. MANAA is our only option and the tribes who turned their backs on us, well you deserve what you get.	Black, Indian	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - Native- American	2/279	0.717

If your adopted, however through half sister you find out your father was Chippewa Objiwea and my biological mother was adopted and her Native ancestors is from Jalisco Mexico though not sure which tribe. However being adopted you feel disassociated, you feel like you have no where you can belong, no way to identify yourself. However like many I did 23&Me and was able to get in contact with half siblings who have answers. To be told it still doesn't matter, your 16.4 quantum is not enough to be recognized as a part of something bigger a part of recognition to your heritage destroys someone who is desperate to cling onto some form of culture identity. Then to be unacknowledged by those who view you less than them at a Powwow deters us minority with a lower percentage from wanting to learn further, from wanting to attend powwows and from trying to meet those with same heritage to understand their roots. Tell me how does a casted aside child now an adult who finds they have 16 + quantum but below required to be acknowledged they should feel, they were never accepted by the white man's culture of the adopted family. What place is there on this earth, what cultural identity through a people that their great grandparents who refuse to accept or acknowledge them for the small 16.4. They lose out on a chance to learn and help make a difference in their Tribal contributions because of quantum bias that is a form of ethnic discrimination of your own people who are the future but aren't good enough in the tribes eyes and that is how we lose to the white man with every discrimination rejection and refuse to accept those who are half breed as you call those lesser or hybrid with even less quantum it breaks my heart. Soon we will lose out on quantum, what then, will you then accept and acknowledge us as brothers and sisters despite the small when it comes to saving our heritage and our people.

”Unless Native American, you came from somewhere else” (Barrack Obama).The truth of the matter is that indigenous Native People would forever be the subject of scapegoat, and victimized by the Colonizers of their lands, as long as they occupy those rich bountiful lands in order to justify their occupation. In other word, the Colonizers, are 'Living in Denial'. That is what is all about, and the rest is the history. Besides, indigenous Native people in Colonized lands of Anglo British and Spaniard are more of the same. Kill the indigenous natives and whoever is left, marginalize them and create artificial poverty, once that poverty becomes crime and drinking, the media points to the poor and blames them to continue to stigmatize the 'other' community, scumbags, etc. Do you know the fact that Indigenous Native people had built such great civilizations as Mayan, Inca and Aztec without outside help, and all from the scratch, and all on their own, since they had been cut off from the rest of the world for ten of thousand of years. In other words, they actually are great and proud people. All they need is their beloved fatherlands back, the lands that their ancestors forebearers had lived through thick and thin, endured through hardships of all sorts. Moreover, the hidden mega genocide of indigenous Native American population in continents of America 500 yrs ago was around 15 millions, while European population in Europe was around 20 millions. Today, Native population at 15 million, while European population , in continents of America + Europe, at a staggering 'ONE BILLION'! For instance, 200 years ago in U.S.A, around 3 million Germans came, and now there are 65 millions German-Americans; while 150 years ago, around 2 millions Irish came, and now there are 45 million Irish-Americans. While 500 years ago there were estimated 5 to 6 millions indigenous Native Americans in U.S.A, before Christopher Columbus arrived, today there are only around 2 million indigenous Native Americans survived. Imagine what would it be like today if Native American people had possessed some sort of nuclear weapons to defend themselves? The answer is they would still have their own beloved fatherlands, plus their population comparable to that of European population. I've no doubt about that. In my humble opinion, it's about time to decolonize the Colonized lands, and return it to rightful owners Native American people. Remember, notorious global cardinal crimes such as Slavery and Colonialism had long been over, why on earth is this another notorious Colonization still lingering on? I never realized how lucky I was until I moved off the reservation when I married my husband. I am Quileute, a branch of the inuits in the far corner of WA state. I would suggest the rest of my brothers and sisters go around the US too! I love going to different reservations now in Alabama and Florida. But the true testimony of our broad cultures is evident in every tribe, that is that we miss home and always have to go home. I recognized that just like our close relatives the Makah, every native nation feels that we belong to this earth...the earth does not belong to us. You begin to miss it, and talk to it like it's our cousins. It's an amazing feeling. Even more strange is my father was French, I spent a fairly equal amount of time between the 2 countries, but I do not miss France. I do not miss the people. It's not home. Truly, that fact is an obvious genetic link to my people.	Nation	Nationality - General	1/174	0.575

Or Afro hair , do you know thy sent native Americans to Africa!!!! And these ppl could never pass for a African!!!!But therein lies a puzzle: "Modern Native Americans closely resemble people of China, Korea, and Japan... but the oldest American skeletons do not," says archaeologist and paleontologist James Chatters, lead author on the study and the owner of Applied Paleoscience, a research consulting service based in Bothell, Washington.The small number of early American specimens discovered so far have smaller and shorter faces and longer and narrower skulls than later Native Americans, more closely resembling the modern people of Africa, Australia, and the South Pacific. "This has led to speculation that perhaps the first Americans and Native Americans came from different homelands," Chatters continues, "or migrated from Asia at different stages in their evolution."	African, Indian	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - Native-American	2/175	1.143

In my book a "Native American" is anyone who was born in America; a "First American" is someone who belong to any of the tribes included among the original Americans who incorrectly are called American Indians. As for me, I was born in Omaha, Nebraska, that makes me native of America regardless of what race I am a part of.	Race	Ethnicity - General	1/60	1.667

I wish the term "Native American" was used universally for the native peoples of North and South America. The Inuit people of Canada, the Mixtec of Mexico, the Quecha of the South American Andes, The Yaghan of the Southern tip of the Americas, The Amazonians of Brazil and the Taino/Arowak people of the Caribbean all should have the right to be called Native Americans. Most "Latinos" deny or don't know their native heritage, its what gives us color in our skin! Its sad and shouldn't be this way, with a common event of colonialism in our roots we should all be proud of who we are now and who we where as a people before now in the Americas and in the world. Here's new information. Good news for you. From Wikipedia. The first peoples to inhabit The United States of America - the Clovis Culture – 14,000 years ago. Available genetic data show that the Clovis people are the direct ancestors of roughly 80 of all living Native American populations in North and South America, with the remainder descended from ancestors who entered in later waves of migration. As reported in February 2014, DNA from the 12,600-year-old remains of Anzick boy, found in Montana, has affirmed this connection to the peoples of the Americas. In addition, this DNA analysis affirmed genetic connections back to ancestral peoples of northeast Asia. This adds weight to the theory that peoples migrated across a land bridge from Siberia to North America. Known as "Clovis First", the predominant hypothesis among archaeologists in the latter half of the 20th century had been that the people associated with the Clovis culture were the first inhabitants of the Americas. The primary support for this was that no solid evidence of pre-Clovis human habitation had been found. According to the standard accepted theory, the Clovis people crossed the Beringia land bridge over the Bering Strait from Siberia to Alaska during the period of lowered sea levels during the ice age , then made their way southward through an ice-free corridor east of the Rocky Mountains in present-day Western Canada as the glaciers retreated. I like the Oshara Tribe, though, but that was a couple after Clovis. Siberia would be just west of the middle of Russia. Taken from: [LINK]	Age	Age - General	1/257	0.389

The reason for that is because the people of North America and South America are of the same race as the people in East Asia. Thousands of years ago when the ice bridge between Alaska and Russia was still connected, many East Asians travelled across the bridge and with time, evolved into looking how they look today. Similar, but different than present day East Asians.	Race	Ethnicity - General	1/65	1.538

Wow Chelsea I wished I seen this earlier. From Dine Nation . To kind of explain when she gets confused as to why they call themselves Blackfeet. Because all Native Tribes have internalized what the government has called us. Even I myself call my tribe Navajo. Yes that is not what we call our tribe. We are Dineh which means The People . I think it's hard to explain how we think and how we are assimilated so much. It's very complex part of our people. I felt sad too when they killed that Bison. But we have to keep our cultures strong. We lose that, then how will our people and culture exist. Thank you Chelsea.	Nation	Nationality - General	1/116	0.862

There are hundreds of Native tribes spread throughout all the Americas! There can be some tribes from Canada all the way down to Mexico(Mestizo). For South America, I would also include them to be Indigenous, maybe not Native American since they identify themselves as where they're from. (I'm not sure if this is what others believe, but my family does, which includes family members from Mexico and Ecuador.) There are a lot of similarities but also differences between each tribe. Why are they allowed to call themselves Blackfeet? Why are Black people allowed to use the N word? Natives have suffered through a lot of american colonization and suffered all those racist terms. A lot of natives often claim those words for themselves in order to limit the hurt that they can inflict. I also think that if 99.9 of the world knows you as Blackfeet having to explain every time why that word is incorrect get's annoying. I found that the most respectful way to find out how to address them is to simply ask them what they prefer to be called. I am Anishinaabe, Pottowatomi, or Huron, if you call me one of those I will appreciate it a lot more then if you call me an indian or a native american, because I am not from India and my ancestors were here way before people started calling this place America. Lori Wolfcat”Trees die all the time.” I meant to say that the tree does not die when the fruit is harvested, because it’s not a consequence of harvesting fruit from a tree.”All plants actually can feel pain.” That is not true. Plants cannot feel pain because they cannot have subjective experience. They can still react to stimuli. But that does not mean they can feel pain.”They have that sense you might’ve heard of, touch.” Plants cannot sense, because they do not have a nervous system nor a brain. They can only react. An analogy: A calculator reacts to me pressing it’s buttons, but the calculator does not sense. Only a reaction.”I’m so shocked you think fruits and vegetables are the same as trees.” I never said that. Ever.”Have you never heard of the experiment where you let a plant listen to different music? The environment they’re in determines how long they live.” That does not prove that they feel pain, nor that they can ”hear”, nor that they can have subjective experiences. It only proves that they react to their environment.”at least I wish the best for the meat” Don’t you mean you wish the best for the animal? The meat is only matter that was part of the animal.”Everything has a life” Incorrect. Dirt does not have a live, Mountains do not have a life, My smarthphone does not have a life. Your youtube account does not have a life. A plastic bottle does not have a life. A beautiful painting does not have a life. And most importantly, the more intelligent the life, the more moral value it has. It’s better to eat an 3 bananas than to kill and eat a chicken. --	-------	--	-------	-------

genesis bustamante 'Fruits are just part of the tree' I think ya did. And LOL, so, when you eat something like an orange and you smell that 'fresh fruit' smell, you realize that's a defense mechanism that a lot of fruits have to poison something? LOL, have you ever had a plant growing up? Most likely not because then you would know that reacting to the environment you're in, is a defense mechanism or an adaptation. Just because a plant can regenerate its limbs means you can kill it? LOL, so why is killing a snake bad? Plants can sense touch because most plants react specifically to touch. A calculator actually can have a touch sense because it senses the keys you're hitting and then reacting to it. And LOL, I meant that stuff like plants, animals, and humans have a life cycle, but ironically the things you listed Do have a life cycle as well. It's just not the same as everything else. Phones/Electronics have a life cycle because you can't use it without having to charge it at some point, can you? Once it 'dies,' can you continue using it? No. Not without charging it again. And dirt, seriously? You don't know anything, do you? Dirt actually comes from dead skill cells, dust, and sometimes secretions. It has a different life cycle just like phones. Dirt is actually the life source of some plants. How do you think dirt is formed? Magic? Dirt comes from basically dead things, but it actually can live. Soil, for example is full of life. Ever heard of microorganisms?? Water bottles actually do have a life cycle. It's called when it expires because all water actually can expire. Also, I'm not sure if mountains can die, but they do live. There's sometimes stripes of white or red on a rock and depending on how many stripes it has, it can live for billions of years.Jeez, did you learn nothing from school? And bananas are better than eating a chicken? LOL, you know that all fruits and vegetables are filled with GMO's, right? Wild bananas are actually poisonous. All fruits and vegetables are. Farmers genetically modified fruits and vegetables to make them edible. Not to mention the pesticides in them. So, remind me, if you raised a chicken yourself and killed it, How is that worse than eating genetically modified foods that will wind up killing you as well?I want to end processed factories for good and hunt the animals myself. Haha funny how the only edible wild fruits or vegetables you would have are small potatoes and a drop of corn.Vegans and vegetarians are the worst. They claim their diet is good for you and don't know the first thing about what They eat.A living organism that shows no signs of 'life,' pain, or feeling, then why don't we eat humans like that, huh? Oh right! Cuz you're also a hypocrite. If you wanna say, 'Well, it basically doesn't have a life, let's eat it!' Then why not eat corpses, dirt, blood, brains, or anything like that? Cuz most things have lives. You just wanna kill anything that didn't have a face.Jeez, I learned all this in middle school. How old are you that you have no clue that soil actually does live?? And most importantly, how plants can actually have kids. Not sure about vegetables, but fruits definitely have kids. LOL, wow, you don't know anything about plants. I'm a carnivore and I know more about what you eat than you do. I also know that all food is bad for you and it's because of these stupid factories. Native Atheist You are also trying to drive the notion of the good savage. Your ancestors were savages. Some scientists believe North America was more violent than the European civilization that replaced it. War and violence was a global affair. The world was not at peace anywhere, that includes the North American Indians. Native Americans definitely waged war long before Europeans showed up. The evidence is especially strong in the American Southwest, where archaeologists have found numerous skeletons with projectile points embedded in them and other marks of violence; war seems to have surged during periods of drought. But scientists such as Pinker, Keeley and LeBlanc have replaced the myth of the noble savage with the myth of the savage savage....”quantitative body counts—such as the proportion of prehistoric skeletons with ax marks and embedded arrowheads or the proportion of men in a contemporary foraging tribe who die at the hands of other men—suggest that pre-state societies were far more violent than our own.” According to Pinker, the 17th-century philosopher Thomas Hobbes ”got it right” when he called pre-state life a ”war of all against all.” Thanksgiving guilt trip: How warlike were Native Americans before Europeans showed up?Human skeletons from as early as the Woodland Period (250 B.C. to A.D. 900) show occasional marks of violence, but conflict intensified during and after the thirteenth century, by which time farmers were well established in the Plains. After 1250, villages were often destroyed by fire, and human skeletons regularly show marks of violence, scalping, and other mutilations. Warfare was most intense along the Missouri River in the present-day Dakotas, where ancestors of the Mandans, Hidatsas, and Arikaras were at war with each other, and towns inhabited by as many as 1,000 people were often fortified with ditch and palisade defenses. Excavations at the Crow Creek site, an ancestral Arikara town dated to 1325, revealed the bodies of 486 people—men, women, and children, essentially the town’s entire population—in a mass grave. These individuals had been scalped and dismembered, and their bones showed clear evidence of severe malnutrition, suggesting that violence resulted from competition for food, probably due to local overpopulation and climatic deterioration. Violence among farmers continued from the 1500s through the late 1800s. Encyclopedia of the Great PlainsWars were fought to avenge the murders of kinsman, to plunder, to acquire slaves, acquire territory, and in the case of the Iroquois it took on the mystical. The specifics varied across the continent but war was a universal affair among the Native-Americans.	Crow	Ethnicity - Black	1/420	0.238

12 Midnight I don't care about my grammar on YouTube comments, lol. Native American did have systems of laws to abide by. That is simple truth. Europeans were definitely ruthess, history spells this out. As for native American contributions, the US constitution was set up using a model if the Iroquois nation . The military tactics used by Crazy Horse when he smeared the 7th cavalry across the plains is still taught at west point today. I could name a lot more but these could easily looked up. "Native Americans definitely waged war before Europeans showed up.". I never stated otherwise. Looks like you're stating a position I don't hold and attacking it, that's fallacious. And now for your biggest failure. The Europeans didn't really steal? Lol, " aboriginal dispossession" and "bureaucratic occupation" are definitely under the umbrella of stealing. I'm 22 and lived my first 14 years on the Osage Reservation in the State of Oklahoma. However, I'm half Choctaw Indian, not Osage, and can speak my native tongue. According to our Nation's government, there's less than 450 Choctaws under the age of 35 who can speak their native language. The overwhelming majority of us Indians, or Native Americans I should say don't live on reservations and aren't connected with our ancestral culture unfortunately. Ole Okie Watson I myself don't know any full blooded Maori. I live in the South Island of New Zealand and have moved to different towns a lot and I feel like the South Island is way less cultured then the north island since I was born in the north. In the South Island (or where I live) it isn't really that cool to do kapa Haka which is our traditional war dance you probably know I still do it though. But it is still really big in some places but it is really big in the north island. There is one thing that always struck me as odd: People’s obsession with how they are called by others. As a German, I’m used to the fact that almost nobody names us the way we do it ourselves. In Slavic languages they just call us ”the speechless” or ”the ones who just babble”. The English name for this tribe is ”Blackfoot”, so what? It’s not lack of respect. It’s just a name that was given generations ago. The same goes for ”Indians”. Obviously it’s a wrong and misleading term but I don’t like the term ”Native Americans” either because it’s a made up term and it does not properly reflect the reality: Everybody born between Alaska and Tierra del Fuego is a ”native American”. I am also half Latin American and in Spanish we have a number of better terms for person belonging to the original peoples of the Americas. Maybe it’s because we are more mixed up and because we consider their history to be our history and heritage, even those of us who are genetically pure Europeans.Otherwise: Good video. Could have been longer.	Nobody	Age - Youngsters	1/186	0.538

It's true. I tried to stop eating meat when we 4-5 years old but my folks wouldn't let me. I had a pet calf on a farm I visited and would play with him on a leash. One day I saw his leash and collar in the yard but no calf. I walked in the big kitchen and there he was all opened up being processed. I haven't had a bite of meat since then. I swore I would die before eating another bite so my folks let me go vegetarian. I then went vegan at 16. I then became a serious athlete and everyone said I wouldn't be able to train on a vegan diet. After 20 years and hundreds of races won, two gold medals and numerous year end awards and two records, I proved them all wrong. Am retired now and still look 25. Don't have a gray hair. Don't eat meat. It's brutal. It's terrible sad. Now I rescue slaughter bound animals like rabbits, goats and sheep, a cow and horses. We have a farm and keep some for pets and rehome others. I think a lot of my good fortune in life came as a reward for not eating animals. I think a lot of merit is gained in not eating others bodies. One minute with an animal, no one could eat that animal unless they simply don't care and have no ability to feel empathy.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/241	0.415

Honin Akecheta Anatomically and physiologically humans are frugivores, not carnivores, omnivores, herbivores. The original diet of humans is raw vegan. As a naturopathic practitioner, hygienic nutritional consultant, Iridologist wholistic health educator, with 49 years of practice, I have been a vegetarian for 49 yrs., a vegan for 48 yrs., , a raw vegan for 16 yrs.; and my children and grandchildren have been vegans all their lives (5 yrs. through 41 yrs.). They do not become ill in any way and never have. Because of the cultural and traditional diet I was born into I was as ill as the native Americans until I learned to eat appropriately at 21 years old on my death bed. I eat no corpses or exploitive products from animals. It is absolutely unnecessary and is linked to diabetes, cardiovascular disease, respiratory congestion, cancer and degenerative aging of all cells. There is no fiber, no enzymes but plenty of waste in the form of casein, ammonia, xanthine oxidase, uric acid, pus and so on. Crazy Canuck Vegetarians and vegans are fine, more meat for me! But seriously though, it IS a false righteousness that many vegetarians and vegans ‘preach’. TWO things: There is predation in nature. If a person believes that we’re all animals, and it’s okay for lions to hunt, then it shouldn’t bother that person when we eat meat. Secondly - It’s actually cruel to let herds breed uncontrollably. They will eventually use up their resources and some will end up dying slow deaths due to starvation. They also will end up eating crops that are meant for humans if left unchecked (deer). What we all should be fighting for is proper treatment and responsible management of animals. Bonus - plants experience pain as well. Many species send chemicals and have other defense mechanisms to avoid being eaten. Fruits are made to be eaten (seed dispersal strategy), that’s true, but not all plants or parts of plants are,.. and yet we do consume them. Cruel vegans and vegetarians!! LOL — After doing 'extensive research' : I found that given the average age a person lives and the average recommended amount of water per day. I found that a person will consume about 14,600 gallons of water during their lifetime. And then I did some more 'extensive research' and found the average cost of water (tap water) to be $1.50 per 1,000 gallons. So 14,600/1,000x1.5=(Cost of Life's Supply of Water) It equals a whopping $21.9. :0 Bottled water can easily exceed twice the cost of Gaso damn line. per volume of course. Indian walks into a bar and says white man I don't understand this word I hear sometimes, they say hypocrisy what is this hypocrisy? White man says hypocrisy doesn't exist the Indian says ok what about the Bible? They force us to read this book it's called the Bible, it's hard to understand but there's this one part that I think I understand, it says there's no honor amongst thieves what's this saying mean? The white man says I don't know ask the Pope. The Indian says ok thank you have a nice day. The Indian walks down the dirt road and thinks to himself how can I ask the Pope, I don't have the resources to go all the way to Rome and ask him my questions. Maybe my friend that calls himself a Jew can help me he goes to his Jew friend and asks the questions... He says hypocrisy means they say one thing and then do the opposite. The Indian replies now that word kind of makes sense. What about there's no honor amongst thieves? The Jew says thieves have no honor, it means they don't care about doing the right thing and they Rob people because of that belief. The Jew says you know what I'm going to go to Rome and give them a piece of my mind! So he travels to Rome, he goes in the church and says you're goy you're less then goy! The Jesuit replies how can I be goy when the Pope sometimes wears that Jew hat on his head? The Jew replies Revelations 3:9. The Jesuit laughs and says you must not know about Negroland.
