| wow, that's incredible bullshit.women are the ones whose sexuality is understudied and has little care, whose contraception is under attack, who are called whores, hoes, sluts, and thots. Who are told their virginity should be kept, that they shouldn't be "damaged goods", that they shouldn't have a "stretched-out, dried-up pussy ", that women's " sexual market value" ends before 30. It's men who are dating women a fraction of their own age , but women are old hags, and if they like young men, "cougars".The whole porno and sex industry is full of men trafficking, raping, abusing, screaming insults at, etc, women. There are strip clubs for males everywhere, Hooters, men traveling to foreign countries to rape and exploit child prostitutes, men buying women for sex (prostitution), pimping, men having multiple wives. | Age, Old, Sex, Sexual, pussy | Age - General, Age - Over 65s, Gender - General, Nationality - Chinese | 6/131 | 4.58 |

| AlmostEmily We don't. Feminism has caused the following: Men get called rapists for nothing but gender , men have no reproductive rights, men have a blatant disadvantage in the law, 3/4 of homeless people are men, 95 of work related deaths are men, 94.3 of suicides are men, men make up nearly half of all cases of rape or domestic violence yet no one gives a shit, men barely ever get custody of children, 98 of homicide victims are men, men make up 48 of the population, men are seen only as evil, violent, rapists in this society, men are told they are bad for being masculine, prostate cancer is funded a lot less than breast cancer. There are plenty more examples, but I don't have the time to list them all. Also, name JUST ONE fucking right a man has over a woman . | Gender, Nothing, Woman | Age - Youngsters, Gender - General | 3/143 | 2.098 |

| When 75 of these clips aren't even sexism , just calling a woman attractive. (Which, to feminism, is sexism now)I've seen many of these clips and many are taken out of context.For example, the man stating that "is a woman 's brain a deterrent to tech?"He is not stating that a woman should not work in the tech industry. He is stating that companies should not feel obligated to hire a woman just because they feel they have to hire more women to be progressive.He is giving a legitimate biological reason as to why there may not be as many women in the tech industry, their brains may just be less wired to it. | Sexism, Woman | Gender - General | 5/116 | 4.31 |

| Ha, ha, ha. If, as a Woman , your only source of information were Fox News, what would it teach you about a Woman's 'role'? Some of you Women may be predisposed to believe the Male written 'rules' about how you should behave. But, are you having doubts? Are you considered EQUAL? Especially if you're watching Fox 'News'? Here's a compilation of comments to think about. Think about it, please.Or... You can always drink, take anti-depressants, work-out, get 'elective surgery', or read your Bible and discuss your concerns with your Male 'shepherd' who will 'set you straight'. Unless you have other options. Disclaimer: There are ALWAYS other options. | Woman | Gender - General | 1/108 | 0.926 |

| This is pretty fishy. Some of these are totally justified, like hitting a woman back in self defense. Some seem taken out of context, or are poorly phrased questions. But even after filtering that out, the majority of these are just depressingly sexist or ignorant. | Woman | Gender - General | 1/45 | 2.222 |
| James Burgess the majority of this klipps are from the same skumbags who ruin any sort of chanse of having a normal konversation about this sort of thing sinse people now auto conect people like this with anyone having a different oppinion wish is why i dissagree with this sort of video witch feuls the thought that every one on the right is a sexist homophobic racist | Homophobic, Racist, Witch | Ethnicity - General, Gender - Female age and physical appearance, Sexual Identity - General | 3/67 | 4.478 |
| This isn't the kind of sexism you should get to frustrated by. There are so many countries where female fetuses are aborted just because of their gender , so many countries where they aren't offered necessary education. There are almost no countries where men are given protection from sexual abuse. Yes it happens to them too , 38 of rape cases are of male rape. I think it's pretty sexist that we forget to consider them at all. | Gender, Sexism, Sexual | Gender - General | 3/76 | 3.947 |
| You should 100 get frustrated by this sexism . Just because it's worse in other places doesn't mean we should just sit down and put up with this. Why settle when we can work towards eradicating this as much as possible? Also, this compilation isn't "forgetting about men" it simply shows instances of sexism . Most commonplace sexism is done directly to women. Not to mention, these kind of attitudes create limiting environments to both women AND men. If women are seen as the ones who must stay home, in turn, men are seen as the ones who must go out there and support a family. Sexism always hurts both. | Sexism | Gender - General | 4/108 | 3.704 |
| Also, the male rape statistic is a red herring. It's meaningless for the discussion at hand. | Red | Ideological and Political Identity - General, Ethnicity - Native-American | 2/16 | 12.5 |

| +Centrist 922 Ofcourse, being a self respecting girl I am offended by these people, I meant "don't let them get to you too much, thier not worth it". I just want equality, that's the only reason I mentioned male rape exists. Feminists are supposed to fight for equality aren't they? and I didn't see a single example of sexism against men in this video. | Sexism | Gender - General | 1/64 | 1.562 |
| Really? So I shouldn't be sad about people I know getting hurt because "in other places people are getting killed?" Also, places where girls are aborted because of their gender ... I'm pretty sure it's spelled Alabama. | Gender | Gender - General | 1/36 | 2.778 |
| yes men get raped toi . but the thing is: they should teach sex ed in schools. self defense and stop teaching victim blaming because it is never the victims fault it doesn't matter if it is a men or a woman rape is rape | Sex, Woman | Gender - General | 2/45 | 4.444 |
| Underscore It is true. You can't never make a woman happy. You can do everything for her and she still won't be happy. | Woman | Gender - General | 1/23 | 4.348 |
| ch6sayki I laughed so hard, they actually are little 5 year olds trapped in old men's bodies when you think about it. | Old | Age - Over 65s | 1/22 | 4.545 |

| Joya Saxena I was also speaking from experience as my mom was never around while growing up because she worked so much and my brother became a troublemaker as a kid because she never taught us anything but I was naturally well-behaved so I learned a lot of things on my own. Long story short, my brother went to juvie when he was a teenager after causing hell in school and at home and only recently he was tamed by his awesome girlfriend who taught him what love was and has become a decent human being. If it weren't for her, he'd still be a major ahole. There are women who get greedy and want both children and a career but inevitably find themselves sacrificing one for the other and you know which, because bills don't pay themselves (unless they have a faithful hubby who respects them and fully support them) I personally would rather not have any kids unless I can guarantee them my full attention. While I came out okay, there are soooooo many cases where emotionally abandoned kids choose the wrong paths in life and my brother almost did, how do you think criminals are made? Children are all born innocent. I believe there are still men out there with integrity and who aren't misogynists; though less than ever. The previous few generations has spawn quite a lot of misguided kids with single moms or from dysfunctional families and with so many misleading sexist propaganda messages all over the net by older generation of sexists spreading hate, any young adult or teen would easily get brainwashed into believing them, thus fueling the age old war of the sexes, known as feminazis and masculinazi. This video is a good example of that, any misguided teenager would watch this and assume all men to be scum and young men would argue against this video and point out women as scum. I've came across many hateful propaganda videos right here on youtube promoting misogyny worst than this one and I was disgusted by all the sexist men in the comment section praising the video and adding their dehumanizing comments about women. I was so tempted to comment and argue against but realized, my input would only fuel their blind hateful obsessions. Like a quote by Mark Twain 'Never argue with a fool, onlookers may not be able to tell the difference.' Hate fuels hate and if you don't think before you speak, you'll end up joining the war of sexists without realizing (Both men and women) My first comment was only directed toward the sexist men in this very video. Hate is born from ignorance, because it's easier to hate what you don't understand. Humans are imperfect beings and I believe some sexists will change once they are more experienced and educated. I'm no exception, I once did ignorantly think all men were scums because I was once misguided and the men in my life were just aholes. Sorry for the long comment, it just came pouring out. P.S. Educate, don't join the army of hate. | Age, Blind, Misogyny, Old | Age - General, Age - Over 65s, Gender - General, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments | 4/516 | 0.775 |

| ch6sayki thanks for inspiring me! I have been in lots of YouTube drama over the years and it hasn't been fun. | ch6sayki My mother wanted to stay home and raise me - but my father abandoned us when I was born. My mother had to often work two jobs - while my grandmother raised me so we could survive. I wish my mother would have had a high paying CAREER because life would have been bearable instead of a constant battle to just survive! Today my mother is 83 years old - has no pension, retirement and the lowest social security and still has to struggle just to barely survive! I'm college educated but still battle much discrimination in the workforce because I dared to enter men's better paying jobs and got breast cancer when I finally landed an executive level job. As a single woman - I need a man's income level. Its not feminism - its just hard core reality! Thank God I never had children - I'd never want a daughter to struggle like this. | Old, Woman | Age - Over 65s, Gender - General | 2/157 | 1.274 |
| Lisa Nicolette My comments were directed towards women who had choices and chose to have kids while unprepared. My mother didn't have a high paying career as well, she owned her own business for a while and was struggling and in the end sold it and her ex stole all her money. I had a similar childhood, moving between "homes" I spent half my childhood living with my grandparents because my brother would constantly bully me and my mother wasn't around to punish him. My mother decided to have us because she was reaching her mid 30's and was afraid she'll have no one to look after her when she's old , so basically she had us for insurance. She had us while financially unprepared and while renting and didn't teach us anything and didn't show us any love, i'm talking about women like her. And only 2 for men, but we make almost half of victims. Women can beat men in the street and most people laugh, if the man defends himself he is called a woman beater. Also, a study recently came up about twitter misogyny . | D2016-1 Because men have their bodily autonomy threatened every day. Because men are (LEGALLY) restricted from serving their country to the best of their ability. Because men are 20 of their legislature, but 50 of the population. Because men are more affected by rape, in terms of sheer numbers (1 in 4 for women, 1 in 7 for men. Both are too high). And that's just the legal bullshit. Feminism has shifted from a legal movement to a social movement, trying to take down misogyny on a more personal level, than a purely legal one, because the movements in the past have done most of that already. | Misogyny | Gender - General | 1/107 | 0.935 |

| D2016-1 "men's-only bars, etc." I listed legal stuff. You start with two money-traps (ladies' nights attract men who want to bang women, buying them drinks and do other shit) and a private company made for women who want to feel safe going home in a dangerous neighborhood.I already talked about the suicide thing. The homicide one is more complicated than you're making it out to be (women are far more likely to be murdered by someone close, and almost twice as much by an SO). I got nothing for the homeless one, but I don't see why this must be a gendered issue. End homelessness, not just (wo)men's homelessness.Everything from the sentencing to the blue collar job thing is a result of social gender stereotypes feminism is trying to get rid of. So there's another reason to support feminism.Haven't heard the "women and children first" thing in a long fucking time. We all know it's outdated as fuck, and I haven't heard it used in decades.Any claims of false rape claim epidemics is a load of shit. Yes, it happens. My buddy was accused by his ex-boyfriend, and he hashed it out with the cops and settled the whole situation.And yes, look at the radicals. That's the best way to find out the basics of a movement. Look at the people you yourself have identified radicals. That's like saying Islam is defined by ISIS, Christianity is defined by the Westboro Baptist Church, and conservatives are defined by Nazis. | Gender, Nothing | Age - Youngsters, Gender - General | 2/253 | 0.791 |
| Guy With Opinion Can you really just stop feuding every logical thing I mention with excuses? Not everything boils down to "legal stuff", it also includes the privileges and advantages women are given. It's hardly a money trap if they stop 50 of customers from entering the premises.Doesn't matter how you word it men are still majority of victims of murder. It is very hard to not look at the radicals when they take up the majority of the movement. Put it this way, if a lot of people already hate the movement, what chances do they have of anyone supporting them? 3rd wave feminism is cancer. The "women and children" thing is still VERY relevant, if you believe that has disappeared you are misinformed.And why say you don't see how this has to be a gendered issue when your full argument is how women have it worse and why we need FEM inism, when Egalitarianism fights for you whether you're white/black, male/female,atheist/religious etc. Feminisms history is actually bound in racism and radicalism. It was an essential part to getting womens rights which no one can deny. I believe todays feminism is similar. You get the Suffragists which are the cool, collected ones. As I believe you to be yourself. Then you get the Suffragettes. The ones that cause violence, vandalize and hate. Which unfortunately are the loud majority.Also, Liberals created the KKK, not Conservatives. | Racism | Ethnicity - General | 1/238 | 0.42 |

| +D2016-1 I pointed out the fact that most of what you said wasn't purely legal and legislation-related because if I had done that, you would've said the same thing. Show me an example of "women-only" bars, because I assumed you were referring to "Ladies' Nights". The first sentence of the second paragraph indicates an almost George Bush level of distaste for nuance. The second sentence proves you get most of your information on feminists from antifeminists. The answer to the third is (to put it in simple, yet bound to be misunderstood, terms) marketing. And the final one needs proof.Ok, first half of the third paragraph: I was referring to homelessness specifically. Calm down. And you've also completely ignored me when I said that feminism is a necessary part of egalitarianism. It's a piece of the puzzle, as are racial equality, LGBTQ rights, rights for the disabled , etc. "Feminism" just kinda became the catch-all for gender equality, because the notion that men are disadvantaged by these same systems that disadvantage women (albeit to a lesser degree) is a fairly new one.The rest indicates that you need a history lesson. You are technically correct that racism did infect earlier iterations of feminism, but eliminating that is one of the stated goals of 3rd wave feminism. And on the KKK thing: [LINK] | Disabled, Gender, Racism | Ethnicity - General, Gender - General, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments | 3/222 | 1.351 |
| Guy With Opinion History lesson? Tell me how? My facts are accurate. I get my information from fact sheets and credible sources, not "anti-feminists" Here's about the women only stuff: [LINK] [LINK] [LINK] [LINK] [LINK] The movement genuinely consists of trying to separate men and women. It's more about bringing men down rather than lifting women up. All over my twitter feed has been about the "sexist" billboard for the new Xmen. Nothing about child brides, female soldiers etc. Feminisms decline has made the movement a cesspool of wingnuts who violently protest, vandalize, harass and censor. | Nothing | Age - Youngsters | 1/96 | 1.042 |

It's kind of not the point. | Gay | Sexual Identity - General, Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality | 4/51 | 7.843 |
| Guy With Opinion I didn't ignore shit, obviously missed it out. So I'll answer it now. Women in first world countries are not oppressed. If you actually concentrate you will see men get the shit end of the stick just as much as women, if not more. If feminism is about for women then why do feminists always tell me feminism is for men too? Unless you're saying feminists are liars. If you're saying they are not liars, are you saying you're a liar?Men:- Majority of rape victims (if include prison rape)-Majority of homicide victims-Majority of suicide victims-Majority of homeless-Majority of combat deaths-Almost half of domestic violence victims but get 5 of the attention-Court cases favor women over 70 of the time-Women get lesser jail time than men for same crime- Woman hits man: Deserved it Man hits woman : Woman beater-A woman can hit a man several times in a crowded area and people will stare or laugh, man hits her back and he gets arrested-Never saw a male plus-sized modelI can give you genuine statistics for all of these if you really want me to, I can't be bothered right now. | The sexism is there all right. But it's not in what is said. It's in what is worn: in the sexist attire that is so routine that it's INVISIBLE. It's passes for LIFE.This is part of the denatured language of the women's movement that a radical hominism wants to deconstruct.We can talk all we want about sexism in the abstract, but if women keep dressing like that; if they keep exposing their legs and arms; if they keep adorning their bodies; if they affect pedomorphic, pediomorphihic, and theriomorphic presentative Otherness (i.e. as child, as doll, as animal, as in feline fingernails), all the pretentious nonsense about sexism, as tendentiously defined by a reactionary feminism, will not change a thing in our society.But the denatured language of the reactionary women's movement tries to avoid these far more difficult issues. Women prefer to attack images of femininity (implicitly blaming the men) than attack the real thing (explicitly blaming women).Just like the attack of that scientist's shirt. Women prefer to attack a scientist showing images of sexy cartoon women on his shirt, then attack real women in real life.That's what a radical hominism means by the denatured language of feminism; and why it is not a discourse, with adequation to a real world, or correspondence to a real world, or at least reflecting a degree of coherence; but is instead an ideological language; ideology has a purpose but no real meaning.Just like accusing Donald Trump of sexism for calling a woman a slob, even though he called a man a slob too. Which proves that feminism has no real adequation, to no correspondence with, a real world, not even coherence; since it's incoherent to attack one use of slob but not another use of slob.It's incoherent to attack a scientist wearing a shirt with scantily clad cartoon characters on it, but not attack women who dress like that in real life.It's incoherent to attack a Trophy T-shirt marketed for women, but not attack women who behave like trophies in real life, that is, as sexual objects.Even the word "object" is glossed expediently, as part of a language, not a discourse. That is, it had tendentious or accusatory purpose, but no real meaning.The opposite of "object" is "subject" in normal usage. If a person is not a subject of sexual relations, she has to be an object. Only in the obfuscatory illogical language of the women's movement is not being an object a mental act rather than a behavioral practice.That's why hominism calls feminism the thinking woman's ideology: women prefer to THINK liberation rather than RISK liberation. It's easier to THINK it's wrong to be called a trophy than to risk not being a trophy by initiating a relationship with a man, asking him out, paying for the date, etc.It's easier to THINK it's wrong to be a sex object, but much harder to be a sex subject. Logically one must be one or the other; there's the law of the excluded middle that the women's movement conveniently ignores.So women create a false antithesis: being a sex object and not being a sex object. But to women not being a sex object means THINKING one is not a sex object and perhaps ASSERTING it or writing articles about it.Otherwise female behavior does not change. It's as old as the Second Wave women's movement: the man asks the woman out; he pays for the dates; they become engaged; he proposes on one knee. Then she proclaims to all the world that she is not a sex object, not a trophy, and | Gender, Mental, Nothing, Old, Sex, Sexism, Sexual, Transition, Woman | Age - Over 65s, Age - Youngsters, Gender - General, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments, Sexual Identity - Transexuality | 51/1670 | 3.054 |

| Misogyny is prevalent in hip hop culture. Overt misogyny in rap music emerged in the late 1980s, and has since then been a feature of the music of numerous hip hop artists. A survey of adolescents showed that 66 of black girls and 57 of black boys believe that rap music videos portray black women in "bad and offensive ways". Gangsta rap, the most commercially successful sub genre of hip hop, has been particularly criticized and associated with misogyny .A 2001 content analysis of gangsta rap found that approximately 22 of the examined rap lyrics featured violence against women, including depictions of assault, murder and rape. By comparison, Eminem scored 78 for violent misogyny . Of the eighteen songs on the The Marshall Mathers LP eleven contain violent and misogynistic lyrics and nine depict killing women. | Black, Misogyny | Ethnicity - Black, Gender - General | 7/135 | 5.185 |

| Matt trahanYou view women as only sex objects? Yet you support feminism? Seems like a bit of a contradiction to me.I think we need to define viewing as a sex object here. I see it as viewing the opposite sex as nothing more than a means to sex as if that's their entire worth. Sure, there are some men who probably think that, just as there are women too. But to generalize men like that is stupid. If you're complaining about judging people on physical appearance, that's never going to stop, for both men AND women. Don't think women don't do the same exact shit.There is nothing wrong with men being aroused, and I personally don't believe there is anything inherently wrong with sexualization in general. | Angel McEwanWell, feminism is an ideology, a group that supposedly shares common beliefs. I don't think it's unfair to generalize feminists like this, because " sexual objectification" is one of the main complaints of modern feminists. Unlike men as a whole, who hold many different values/beliefs. Modern feminism in America has evolved to playing the victim and man-hating. "Real" feminists, the ones that actually care about equality, aren't the ones trying to censor people or cry about them being treated as " sex objects". They're the ones trying to help women in other, less fortunate countries, where sexism is rampant and women can be legally raped. Perhaps I should distinguish between the two, how about I call the first world man-hating feminists, "Victimists" instead? | Common, Sex, Sexism, Sexual | Gender - General, Social Class - Working class | 4/123 | 3.252 |
| LordU that does sound reasonable, though sexual objectification should not be brushed under the rug, even though issues in less fortunate countries are way more severe | Sexual | Gender - General | 1/26 | 3.846 |
| +Lord Comparing Feminist complaints to male "values/beliefs" clearly indicate, not only that you know nothing about Feminism, but that simple points of comparison escape you as well. What is your point here? Feminist with complaints have a vast array of values/beliefs as well. If you're implying that Feminist are singular in their purpose, that would be correct, as opposed to MEN, who are free of such survival concerns.. Although its clear that your use of the word "real" denotes your limited understanding of the male/female dynamic in America, and your misogynist proclivities, "real" feminist fight webs of sexism on all fronts. The truth is that many women ARE victims, NOT because they choose to be but because of a patriarchal system that indoctrinates female inferiority from the color pink. Only an idiot like you, who has never experienced victimization would fail to see this. Also, you say man-hating feminist as if its a bad thing, yet no one has to say woman-hating male because its perfectly understood and accepted. Isn't it only logical that man-hating feminist would exist in a misogynist , woman-hating world since one was obviously made necessary by the other? But I'm sure you could never wrap that pea sized brain of yours around this simple concept. | Misogynist, Nothing, Sexism | Age - Youngsters, Gender - General | 4/209 | 1.914 |

|---|-----------------------------------|---|-------|-------|
| +Angel McEwan There is nothing reasonable about anything that gonad had to say. Feminist are compelled to fight sexism on all fronts because it is so deeply embedded in the American psyche——just witness the women in the video. And the objectification of women is at the root of most of the problems women face daily, from cat calls, to harassment in the workplace, to women fighting over men, to rape, the list goes on. As for women being victims, this is a simple fact of their existence——NOT, in the sense that they are helpless, but that they are victims of a Patriarchal system that privileges men while disenfranchising women. This is what opponents cleverly ignore when they refer to women as victims, knowing that no-one wants to be seen as helpless. But they would never point to the female victimization by the State in which women still only make 70 cents on the dollar. Also, Feminist are not man-haters but freedom lovers protectors of the vulnerable because they recognize the deep web of misogyny that has trapped this country. Calling them man-haters is merely an ad hominen attack that distorts the real issue of gender inequality. Finally, as for Feminism being an ideology, the same thing is true of the Patriarchal system that privileges men while oppressing women. | Gender, Misogyny, Nothing, Sexism | Age - Youngsters, Gender - General | 4/218 | 1.835 |
| Jerome DevereauxWhat is this "patriarchal oppression" that you keep referring to? Fox News? Because they made a few sexist comments and jokes? I see you mentioned the gender pay gap, which has been proven false so many times that anyone who still brings it up as evidence of sexism is just plain ignorant. I don't even have to link a source, just google it and you'll have pages and pages of links debunking the myth.You also bring up the fact that I can't even speak of the subject because I haven't experienced it, which is just a lazy way to deflect criticism. I've no doubt there is still sexism (that goes both ways) today, but to suggest that there is a system in place that oppresses woman while privileging men today is just plain bullshit.And a "woman-hating man" is not understood and accepted(unless they're one of them) and no one pretends it is. If someone came out and said that they think women should be treated worse, they would be roasted by men and women alike. So I'm not even sure why you brought that up, you're trying to point out a contradiction that isn't there.Women have the EXACT same rights as any man, and while there are sexist idiots in the world, that doesn't mean the system is trying to "oppress" them. | Gender, Sexism, Woman | Gender - General | 4/226 | 1.77 |

It's murder, and s deprivation of the right to life, since they have the genetic makeup of a human and the scientific requirement of life is met, it is a human, with rights. We always say they have the right of choice, but do babies get the right to choose? Not to mention promoting a societal norm of being too lazy and too irresponsible to prevent pregnancy, so we can just play God and sacrifice lives for the sake of our convenience? Is it fair that the father gets no say? Is it justifiable to have a 4 month old baby fighting a scalpel for it's life? Being torn apart limb by limb in the womb for the mistake of existing in the wrong place? Is it fair that 50 percent of black babies are aborted? When only 1 percent of babies who are aborted are from rape? Y'all love children when they're dying by assault rifles to push your retarded gun control movement but you don't care when it's millions every year to your own hands. | poopoomcfartface actually, bodily autonomy is very important. would you want people taking your organs so they can survive, but you havent consented? probably not because they might need an organ that you would die if you didn't have.and consenting to sex is different than consenting to pregnancy. partners should be allowed to pleasure each other with sex even if they dont want a child. and there is also this law, that makes it illegal for a male (for example) to lie about using condom/other protecting stuff and then getting the female pregnant. | Sex | Gender - General | 2/93 | 2.151 |

| Fia Durhuus okay, so why is it that babies dont get to choose whether they live or not? Why can't women be better at choosing who they have sex with? If women would stop choosing this degenerate lifestyle of just fucking any dude with money, and started dating real men, they wouldn't have to worry about him lying about a condom, and you would probably be wanting to get pregnant if you had a man you loved. | Chris G As a woman, I'm going to tell you why it's sexist in this case by giving you examples from my own life. I am highly trained in my chosen fields of study and employment. I work hard at everything I do, and it is reflected in my regular raises and promotions. Unfortunately, a lot of the time, when my success is mentioned, so are my looks. I have had multiple coworkers and superiors comment on my looks as being equal to or greater than my skills. It's not that it portrays men as "better"; it's that it portrays women as objects. Men actually have very little to do with this kind of sexism you don't seem to think of as sexism. Which, btw, this not actually a call that members of privilege groups get to make. You don't get to tell a person of colour what is and isn't racist when you're white, because you cannot fully view the experience from their point of view. You are not the one living with the oppression; they are. Has someone ever said about you, "Chris is a highly skilled, super valuable employee, with a rockin' hot body"? Or how about, "Yeah Chris, it's very interesting that you excel at x, y and z. And I mean, you're so hot too! Beauty and brains!"? Or "Man, your ass sure looks nice in those slacks. You're working this promotion!"? What about, "It's a good thing you're hot, because otherwise you would've had a really hard time landing that job/raise/promotion."? Because I and almost every woman I know has heard things a lot like this in their field. Those are not compliments. These are inappropriate for the topic of discussion, and demeaning to me as a person. Because while I have the good self-esteem to know that I am awesome, my looks are not equal to the value of my hard work and dedication to my education and career. Imagine having what I just described as your entire life, day in and day out. I have never had a single man I have discussed the subject of work with talk about anyone treating them like this. Sure some guys have that one girl who hits on them a lot, and makes them horribly uncomfortable. It's equally uncalled for, and while that is harassment, it's not quite the same thing. Because that is harassment, not blatant sexism. It happens because the harasser is an awful person, not because the victim is male. This specific kind of commenting is not only uncalled for, but also revolves around the fact that it is a woman being discussed, and therefore she must be critiqued by her outer appearance. I know it seems like a harmless compliment when you're not the one on the receiving end, but when it is the constant, overarching narrative of womens' lives, there is a very serious problem. And these things I have mentioned are the most blatant, easy to decry, casually sexist actions. As are some of the instances in this video, because they are blatant. Most of the aggression is subtle though, and hard to navigate for people who haven't really been there. As a woman, this shit makes me uncomfortable, and I don't like to be treated like my looks are more important than my career/education/personality/humanity. And most women I know feel the same. We're even telling you now that it makes us feel unsafe and uncomfortable, and that it's sexist because it places value on appearance above and beyond, or equal to personal achievement. | Racist, Sexism, Woman | Ethnicity - General, Gender - General | 8/595 | 1.345 |

| Curtis Sharkey I'm genuinely interested in the debate too, which is why I specifically enumerated at least three individual points. I'm glad you clarified the double standard issue, but I only wanted to get you to elaborate on a stance that, these days, is much more standard "progressive" fare than anything particularly nuanced. I can find copycat positions on MSNBC in about two seconds with my remote. If you aren't going to go further than parrot, that's fine, but it simply proves my point about the fickleness of the position and the people behind it. It also speaks to the same point that you seem to think I was at all emotional, presumably simply because I insulted you =) (Which, quite frankly, was by internet standards these days, a friendly jab or poke at best) This, again, points to fickleness in argument. Don't be so sensitive, kiddo. Sexism is a critical contemporary issue, and one that won't likely be solved within our generation, and to have people that won't follow through or throw up their hands at the most minor perturbation does a great disservice to the endeavor. Thus my original point about inconsistency - not only in double standard, but in defining precisely why human beauty cannot go hand in hand with, or even supercede on the level of impressions without denigrating, professional esteem. If you truly want to learn, it requires earnest and thoughtful participation/deliberation; even and especially on sensitive points. | Sexism | Gender - General | 1/243 | 0.412 |
| +Chris G A lot of it has to do with the content or manner of how someone says it. Are you saying it because you genuinely feel that the woman is beautiful and you just feel that she should know, or is there an alternative plan to the phrase? Are you trying to butter her up because you want something from her? | Woman | Gender - General | 1/62 | 1.613 |

| ElGranPandaIn this case, the stereotype is true. Conservatives are "pro-life" - which means they believe that women should not be able to control their own bodies. They would impose compulsory pregnancy on rape survivors—yet at the same time, conservatives also believe there should be virtually no social safety net. No government help for women with unexpected babies. In fact, no government help whatsoever for single Moms. Conservatives also resent paying even an obscenely low minimum wage, and they have all but destroyed public education—all social infrastructure that benefits and protects ordinary people, particularly children and mothers of small children. The Republican/conservatives refuse to impose any kind of gun control, or even a gun registry, even though 10,000 Americans a year are killed by gunfire—literally thousands of them battered women. Conservatives don't give a rat's ass about battered women. They care about their guns, more than they care about any woman. In Canada, the federal Conservatives defunded aid to medical clinics in African countries, clinics that frequently treated women with obstetric fistulas, a horrifying childbirth injury requiring surgery—if those clinics also performed abortions, or provided abortion information. Think about that. An obstetric fistula is a ticket to endless pain, loss of continence, social isolation—and Harper's conservatives knew this, and still stopped the aid to those clinics. The malice of conservatives towards women is boundless. The conservatives are profoundly hostile to working people in general, and campaign incessantly to weaken labor laws, even though these laws protect workers from exploitation; this has a huge negative impact on working people of both sexes, but it is particularly hard on women, who usually work in the home as well as outside it, and who still provide most childcare. Conservatives, of course, would never dream of funding day care centers. I could go on and on. The evidence is overwhelming: conservatives hate women. | david resendizAnd I say to you, your answers prove my point. You actually believe you have the right to control women’s reproductive lives. You presume custody of our bodies. And you don’t like poor people much either; your contempt for poor people and single moms drips off every word. You lecture me about how you don’t want to have to ”spoon feed” single moms. Lecturing poor people and in particular, single moms on how they should be ”tough” in the face of grinding poverty, is a classic pronouncement of the conservative woman-hater. And of course, you don’t give a damn that literally thousands of American women are killed every year by crazed, gun-wielding ex-boyfriends and husbands; if you did care, even the tiniest bit, you wouldn’t be able to dismiss the slaughter with a stupid quip about how guns don’t kill people, people do. If conservatives cared about women at all, they would at least support gun laws that made sense. But Conservatives will tolerate absolutely no gun control, no reforms that might keep these deadly weapons out of the hands of lunatics and wife beaters—nothing.
