Life Noggin: there his another reason why it his a bad idea to do that, that you did not mention, specifcly for that purpose. Even if you old person your bone naturally produce the new blood and remove the old one. getting a blood donation to speed that process up, and if you do it to often this will prevent your bone from producing new blood since your bone will percieve as the new source always come from outside, then if something happen that the doctor run out of blood donation, and your schedcude to receive some when they are out, and it take month for the new one to come, but the old person bone still exspect to receive the new blood from outside, and will never produce its own blood untill it his too late and that old person as die from having old blood for too long. That does not mean you should never get a blood transfusion, Blood transfution are for after an accident when you lose to much blood, that the bones can produce it fast enought before the person die from lack of oxygen to the brain, and heart, they are other medical reason as well, but you never stay constitly on it because it his just a one time thing. Unlike the young blood make old people better reason.	Old	Age - Over 65s	6/226	2.655

There's an episode in criminal minds where a physics was kidnapping and usually killing young healthy people for their blood, tricking an old couple into taking one of those transfusions for the wife, who could barely stand. At home the next day she was walking and they were slow dancing in the kitchen... then the day after that her condition deteriorated. They went back to that guy, and he tried giving them another transfusion, but was caught by the fbi. And a little note for those who don't watch criminal minds, it's a fictional crime fighting show. Some of the stories are based off of real events, but it's all fiction	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/111	0.901

So people are slowly coming back to their senses, except instead of drinking it you inject it.. How is it less barbaric or why is it barbaric in the first place? All carnivorous animals drink the blood as soon as they kill that's exactly what we used to do. There is nothing bad about it, you've been brainwashed, "satanists drink blood, vampires drink blood, evil devil worshipers" bla bla..	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/69	1.449
