| I'm European and I will say many Asians have an inferior complex..They bleach their skin, take injections to stop the MELANIN and tablets, soaps etcNot to mention cosmetic surgery!After doing all this to yourselves how can some turn around and ridicule another?People listen up..Every single one of you are living on BORROWED time, you are here one moment and then your time is UP! With that knowledge, how the hell can you waste precious time on trivial matters?Grow up! Mentally evolve into better versions of SELF Lay down your egos, repent and be a person of higher consciousness!This lady is beautiful, stunning and she didn't have to bleach her skin, or use those injections that can risk your life!This message is for everyone who honestly haven't mentally evolved from the ridiculous cycle of this BORING racism .. it's an insult to any intelligent, evolved mind! | Racism | Ethnicity - General | 1/151 | 0.662 |

| I understand both sides. I understand that she is half Black (she is very lovely to look at) so she should not be picked on or get called names. That is dead wrong and very disgusting. If I would married outside my race I would be very mad with people picking on my children. But at the same time, somebody pure Japanese should be called miss Japan. It is not racist just makes sense. But for advertisement, entertainment, sports and other things it should be a mix of both. Half Japanese men and women can do everything else just like full blooded Japanese men and women. | Black, Race, Racist | Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General | 3/106 | 2.83 |

| It never ceases to amaze me, that regardless of where black people find themselves in this world, they are always scorned and given a hard time, always called upon to justify their humanity because of the colour of their skin. Blacks people are the strongest and most resilient version of human beings living on planet earth, who through stiff adversaries have managed down the centuries to somehow to rise up and defy the stereotypes and that I guess is something to be envied. So brothers and sisters strengthen your bodies, souls and mind to continue to weather the storm because there are universal secrets yet to be revealed. | Black | Ethnicity - Black | 1/108 | 0.926 |

| She's not half black and Japanese. She's half black and Asian. If she was raised in Japan, speaks the language, and knows the culture then she's 100 Japanese. The term 'Japanese ' represent a culture not a race . If she became an American citizen after being raised in Japan, then she would be a Black , Japanese, American. She is black by race , Japanese by culture because that's where she was raised and she knows the language and customs. She would then be American through citizenship. I'm a black man raised in America. I'm a black American, not a African American. I've never been to Africa, I don't know any African languages or customs because I was raised in America. I have African decedents but I'm not African . A white South African who was born and raised in Africa and becomes an American citizen, is more African American than I am. So, if your a black person that was raised in Japan and you know the language and customs, you can tell the Japanese people that you are 100 Japanese but you're not Asian! | African, Black, Race | Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General | 15/183 | 8.197 |

These pageants are always a bore because all the women look exactly the same! Miss America (some white girl) Miss Morocco (some white girl) Miss Philippines (yep, a white girl) Miss Peru (definitely white) This is why NOBODY watches that stupid Miss Universe pageant anymore. | Absolutely stunning in her beauty as well as her intellect. Just like in North America where white was once the standard by which beauty was judged simply due to 'white peoples standards' & ridiculous belief that they were the most beautiful race on the planet, Japan too will have to accept that their once biased standard of beauty can no longer hold in a diverse country. | Race | Ethnicity - General | 1/66 | 1.515 |

| Many of you are making comments ts about acceptance and generalizing about which groups are more accepting of mixed children. But I tell you, it really depends on the community and the individuals involved in each circumstance. I have observed that, in the US, being mixed makes one "other", but for most people it us a curiosity, or a relief because they believe it will be easier to identify with someone who is mixed than with someone from a different culture who MAY have a strong resentment to them based on race/cultural background. In Japan, it seems, being "other" is generally a bad thing.But I have heard of half black children in the US being bullied and called names by their black classmates and likewise from some of their white classmates. The lighter the mixed child, the more culturally "white" their peers tend to assume they should be. Though any mixture that is at all observed makes one "not white" and therefore "black" or "mexican" or "asian", always being called by the identity of the mixed group instead of the white majority.It is sad, but in the end it represents an important truth: we all want the same thing, to be accepted by our peers, and that results in the same fear of being rejected based on our immutable qualities. Sometimes that fear leads people to reject and mistreat others who are different on the basis of acceptance by the more homogeneous group, or because they are acting preemptively in self defense, despite the reality that they are acting as the aggressors.No one is defined, ultimately, purely by the color of their skin, but rather by the way they acted and the way they spoke. I hope that this comment speaks to some of you on this thread and encourages you to challenge your assumptions every day, knowing that what we assume does not always represent what is true. | Black | Ethnicity - Black | 3/322 | 0.932 |

| Japan's Homogeneous??? What a damn lie, Japan has NEVER been homogenous. The history reflects that, so I think Japan needs a reality check. That right there is the problem, people keep talking about "pure Japanese" when in fact modern Japanese arose from a mix of Koreans, Chinese, Ainu, Paleo Siberians, Ruuukyuu, possibly Southeast Asians and Micronesians, and other indigenous Asian Peoples. This idea of Japan being this homogenous society is a fucking joke. Get real. Let's tell the real truth, Japan had a problem because she was Half Black and relatively dark skinned. They don't use the same currency and the same banking. So the j€ws made up lies about them and got them attacked. It wasn't because of oil it was because of their banking. After attacking them they changed their banking and currency. You see a pattern? They can't attack japan though because Japan is stronger than the US and they know it. The older ones will still hate and posture about the "good old days" all the way up until they die, unless they suicide first. But, though you, and everyone like you, Japan WILL become more like you, with MORE immigrants, or, die out.Note: What those who want to whine about pure-blooded "japanese" dont care to remember, is that the Ainu, a native people, were there in the islands before ANYONE else. THEY are the "real" japanese. Those that are there now have shuttled off all the remaining Ainu to a small island. | It's not fear. The Japanese don't have to accept someone as a good representative of their people when she doesn't look very Japanese and holds Americanized views of "diversity" that go against the Japanese people.She even said, 'I want to start a revolution,' she told AFP. 'I can't change things overnight but in 100-200 years there will be very few pure Japanese left, so we have to start changing the way we think.' She is greatly imposing on the Japanese people by trying to start a revolution to mix up all of Japan, to change the Japanese social norms (way they think), and to assume their won't be any pure Japanese people left in 100-200 years. | The only way for mixed race people to not get bullied and to be accepted honestly is just to have more mixed race babies, increase the population. Here in the United States biracial kids used to be a big deal. Families didn't accept them. They were picked on a lot and I'm not saying that it doesn't still happen but less people are inclined to pick on somebody for being mixed when half your class damn near is biracial. there's so many mixed race kids here in the US even in the South. | +zapp utopiaThere's going to be some racism whether there's a rich culture or not. When the Japanese people want to preserve their culture in their own country instead of having diversity and multiculturalism, some would call them racist for doing so. Therefore, it's probably not possible to have a rich culture without some people calling them racist . Some Japanese people don't like this woman representing Japan because she doesn't look very Japanese and advocates American values of diversity. If Japan were to accept her as a valid representative, wouldn't Japan become less Japanese and be more American? | Racism, Racist, Woman | Ethnicity - General, Gender - General | 4/98 | 4.082 |
| +zapp utopiaYou think Japan wouldn't be any less Japanese if the people were less Japanese and the society and culture were more like America in terms of diversity? What? That's what this woman represents to many Japanese people.How are they being indecent? It's perfectly understandable that people who think someone who doesn't represent their values and doesn't look very much like the people she is supposed to represent isn't a very good representative of those people. Does being a decent human being mean not preserving your own rich culture? | Woman | Gender - General | 1/91 | 1.099 |
| Encore Baby well if Japan didn't agree with it, then she wouldn't have gotten to where she was. I'm talking about the people who decided to make a fuss about it. Idk....seems kind of jerky to me. And yes, being indecent is an understatement for racism . | Racism | Ethnicity - General | 1/46 | 2.174 |
| +zapp utopiaThe people who run the Miss Japan competition are a small group compared to the entire Japanese population.How is it jerky? Must the Japanese think that everyone (even when they don't look very Japanese and/or advocate non-Japanese values) is a good representative of Japan?Where is the indecency? Are you saying Japan can't preserve its rich culture because you think it would be racist to do so? I know I'd feel like a jerk if I went to Japan and represented the country as a person who didn't look very Japanese while at the same time telling them they should look less Japanese and be more diverse like America.The Japanese can rightfully point out anyone who they think isn't a good representation of Japan, whether they look Japanese or not. | Racist | Ethnicity - General | 1/134 | 0.746 |
| Encore Baby yes I can see why Japanese people wouldn't want her to represent them but that's because it stems from a racist attitude. She is half Japanese, so yes she has a right to the culture; she's not some foreigner who's trying t to change or steal the culture. We're in the 21st century, and this type of ATTITUDE is no different from white supremacists who believe that one race race is superior from another simply based on how they look. Again; my point is the fact that she IS Japanese, a very large part of her is Japanese, that makes her no different from any other Japanese person apart from the fact that she has a mixed heritage. | Race, Racist | Ethnicity - General | 2/120 | 1.667 |

| | | | | |
|--|----------------------|---|-------|-------|
| +zapp utopia”apart from the fact that she has a mixed heritage.”Exactly. Her heritage is not only Japanese, but also Black American. She represents less than 1 of the Japanese population, doesn’t look very Japanese, and advocates American values of diversity. Why do the Japanese have to accept that as a good representative of Japan?That’s not racism . If she doesn’t look very much like the Japanese people, then she doesn’t. If she doesn’t represent Japanese values of diversity, then she doesn’t. Again, the Japanese people can rightfully point out anyone who they think isn’t a good representation of Japan, whether they look Japanese or not.No one is saying this woman is a bad person or inferior. They’re saying she isn’t a good representative of Japan. That’s not racism . | Black, Racism, Woman | Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General, Gender - General | 4/131 | 3.053 |
| Encore Baby ”she represents less than 1 of the Japanese population” that doesn’t make a difference to what I said. It is a racist attitude that those, for a lack of a better word ’haters’ have against her. It is very much a racist attitude. That’s why she was bullied all through her schooling life. She earned her position. Oh yeah; and treating people like outcasts (opposite of diversity); just because she is mixed is indecent. She’s a human being. I’m just calling for those people to act like decent human beings. Your culture doesn’t give you the right to be an asshole PERIOD. | Racist | Ethnicity - General | 2/104 | 1.923 |

| | | | | |
|---|------------------------------|--|-------|--------|
| +zapp utopiaI agree that hafu shouldn't be bullied, but that's a different issue from her representing the entire country. Again, it's not racism to think she isn't a good representative of Japan. The Japanese are saying she's not a good representative of Japan because she doesn't look very Japanese and she promotes American values of diversity, which is the truth. Remember that she grew up in America for parts of her childhood.It's not the case that the Japanese have to except everyone in the world as a good representative of the nation of Japan.It seems like you're only seeing things from one side, that of diversity. I'm sure many people think this woman and the people supporting her are being the "asshole" because they're trying to impose a different representation and belief on the whole of Japan. It's like I said earlier, "I know I'd feel like a jerk if I went to Japan and represented the country as a person who didn't look very Japanese while at the same time telling them they should look less Japanese and be more diverse like America." From the Washington Post article, "Japan's half- black Miss Universe says discrimination gives her 'extra motivation'"But Miyamoto told AFP that she was keenly aware of the lack of substantive black media personalities in her home country. She said she wanted to help transform Japan into a place where people won't worry anymore about their own racial backgrounds."I want to start a revolution,' she told AFP. 'I can't change things overnight but in 100-200 years there will be very few pure Japanese left, so we have to start changing the way we think.'This woman wants to start a revolution and transform Japan to her liking, according her her own biased perspective, which isn't the perspective of the typical Japanese person. No wonder many Japanese are against her. In the article is seems she looks up to American supermodel Naomi Campbell for inspiration, not to any Japanese person. I'm sure if you ask the Japanese people if being half Black American and promoting American values of diversity in an effort to make Japan less Japanese is the representative imagine of the Japanese woman , they'd say "no, it isn't."From hindustantimes article "Half-Japanese, half- black : Why new Miss Japan isn't 'Japanese enough'" "many of the highest-rated comments" about Miyamoto on the Japanese site GirlsChannel "said that they wanted a more Japanese contestant to represent Japan." | Black, Nation, Racism, Woman | Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General, Gender - General, Nationality - General | 7/410 | 1.707 |

This poor woman can't even live her life in peace because she's half black . Seriously? I have never understood someone not liking a person or trashing a person because of their skin color. As if someone's skin color has anything to do with their personality. It just goes to show how annoyingly surface people are. | Biracial people can market cross culturally but as a black woman I can understand how some Japanese feel. It's nauseating everytime I see a biracial woman or very light skinned woman marketed to black women or representing black women in movies commercials. When that happens you feel invisible because it is now the MAJORITY of our representation. Beyonce and Rihanna would not be the two top black women in Pop culture without their skin lighter and now every other r and b singer and actress is neglected and passed on because they aren't "exotic" enough. It's about accepting ALL people who contribute to a society and be honest about the heritage. She probably is more Japanese because she grew up with her mother in Japan. | Don't judge and measure all peoples from the perspective of an American. Blacks, Latinos and Japanese Koreans Chinese are also discriminated in the US, their motherland which their forefathers had help built. Don't force a people to change their culture. A Japanese is not a nationality but a member of an ethnic group. Chinese and Koreans can assimilate into the Japanese race just like those Chinese who have successfully assimilated into the Thai and Filipino people, respectively. A black or white Thai or Filipino national would never be elected to be the prime minister like the Chinese who are Thais and Filipinos. The first woman president of the Philippines, Corazon Aquino Cojuangco, was a Chinese descent but the Filipinos saw her a true blue Filipino. China people have always perceived Singapore as a Chinese country and it is the Chinese Singaporeans who have repeatedly emphasised they are not but a multi-racial nation and they don't identify themselves with the Chinese in China as kin and kith but loyal to Singapore as their fatherland and their fellow Singaporeans who are also Malays, Indians, Eurasians, Sikhs and Pakistanis, who also harbour no loyalty to their ancestral lands. | AirScholar I'm not sure if you've ever been to south Korea, but it is a pretty violent country. Men get into physical fights regulary and it is accepted culturasily. Also, high IQ is not something someone is born with, you can learn how to understand "patterns" by studying it. Especially if you have a school system that is geared towards always rigidly finding a pattern (which can create a blind spot, since there isn't always a pattern and the real success is found outside of the conventional pattern). The IQ test is only one test and that's all. But look at the economic stagnation in South Korea and Japan. High unemployment, low innovation and they're utterly stuck without any idea of how to renew their economy. They're stuck in a pattern and don't know how to renew and move forward. Also, very high hopelessness and suicide rate amongst young people. Obviously 18 hour school days isn't resulting in them coming up with the new Google or Space X. Majority of the population, In addition, China and India are dirt poor, and the sample of the students who take the IQ test is already the top students who have been vigorously educated. Why would all these countries not beat Europe and the US in innovation and economy if high IQ was so important?Btw, there is a lot of crime in South Korea, but crime looks different over there. Most drugs aren't criminalized. Prostitution is a huge problem, more than 1 million women participate and it generates about $13 billion a year. Lot's of crimes related to that goes unreported. It also has a relatively high government corruption ranking for a developed country, especially with cartels swindling people out of money. Most of the schemes are slow and a long con. | N Bina Harry Potter is a book series. "Diversity" is tearing Europe and America apart. Anyone can see this. The problem isn't so much the presence of other ethnic groups, but the lack of cultural integration, and the problem of social incompatibility of certain populations. Japan and Korea being homogeneous is largely the reason for their success as societies. A society that is too diverse is one in which its ideas, principles, morals, ways of life, etc. are also too diverse, which means it cannot function realistically as a united civilization due to no one being able to agree with anyone else on anything, nor can it produce well since everyone's behavior (informed each by their unique cultural differences) is significantly different from everyone else's. This is the worst case scenario, obviously, but hypothetically, if my culture tells me, a woman, to speak my mind but someone else thinks women shouldn't have opinions over men due to their religion...I'm sorry, we won't be able to work together and we can't possibly benefit the community in which we both live. There is also the inherent collective personality characteristics of a culture, which, can work with compatible cultures, but with cultures that are too far apart, can't function. That's why for Japan, for example, Korean and Chinese or other East Asian immigrants likely wouldn't affect their society that much, since all these cultures were from a common root and share similarities already. A society is much like a business, if you get hired into the company, you better display the same qualities and attributes that made that company great in the first place. Otherwise, the business will be negatively affected. | Common, Ethnic, Woman | Ethnicity - General, Gender - General, Social Class - Working class | 3/278 | 1.079 |
| I know your name is a book, I've read all the books :), I'm guessing you didn't understand what I meant in my last post. I think there are pros and cons to every country. I'm not going to say diversity contributes a failing country though. An example, Korean Dramas are a huge hit internationally because they get the support of fans from outside of Korea too. People of color, faiths, ethnicity have made Korean entertainment into a community that shares the same interest. Korean music is influenced by western music. This is all $$, reputation, growth for a country. North Korea is one of the most homogeneous countries in the world, where has it gotten compared to the South? We all may not speak the same language, have different cultures but at least some people are open minded enough to understand, this is what matters most. | Ethnicity | Ethnicity - General | 1/147 | 0.68 |

| Harry Potter Kpop culture cannot be destroyed, in fact, kpop culture borrows a lot from different countries, from music to even fashion, so they are already influenced from outside of Korea, even plagiarizing happens. I'm not saying immigration should be happening at a fast rate either, it depends on the country and their conditions, bottom line is, those who have immigrated are most likely finding a new home that is better than their first home. If we think they are immigrating in a way take over our country by flaunting their culture, not learning about ours, committing crimes against us, easiest thing to do is to educate them, teach them culture. Again, people just have to be open minded, they aren't the only race in the world. | Race | Ethnicity - General | 1/127 | 0.787 |
| N Bina "Kpop culture cannot be destroyed, in fact, kpop culture borrows a lot from different countries, from music to even fashion, so they are already influenced from outside of Korea, even plagiarizing happens. "Which is exactly my point: cross cultural influence is best done from across borders. " If we think they are immigrating in a way take over our country by flaunting their culture, not learning about ours, committing crimes against us, easiest thing to do is to educate them, teach them culture"That is under the assumption they want to learn or that it would be feasible to implement this education or even ethical to do so. If a devout Muslim believes speaking with the opposite sex is sin, no volume of educating will change that person's mind. That alone isn't a problem, but when 1 million of such people are allowed entry into your own country per year, that's a problem. " Again, people just have to be open minded, they aren't the only race in the world."Not saying they are. I'm saying diversity has its benefits, but it has its costs. Knowing the fact that there are other races in the world does not translate to a must of cohabitation with other races."I'm sorry but being a leader and a hard worker doesn't cut it now a days in any job market even if the most basic qualifications apply."You missed my point. The analogy is to illustrate that only cultures that are compatible with the host culture of a country would benefit that country. | Race, Sex | Ethnicity - General, Gender - General | 2/263 | 0.76 |

The point is to live and enjoy the gift of life. Why put down on a very exceptional woman who didn't even have choice to be here or anybody for the fact of color. | Hafu does exist over here, it's called "mutt". We don't use it much, but it does exist. Being a black person, she does look like an Asian mix. I think the reason, why her Asian features aren't more pronounced is because Blacks and Asians share similar features, like white noses and full lips. So when ever we see those features we think, negroid instead of other races of people who share the same features. Not if she were Japanese and white, here wider nose and fuller lips would make since. A lot of white and Asian mixes look Latino, especially the females, because of the fuller lips, nose and skin tone. So I'm just giving people to something to think about next time when they say she doesn't look Asian. | Black | Ethnicity - Black | 1/130 | 0.769 |

| Alexei Aleksandr Clearly then you realize that " race " is just a socio-political term invented by the white supremacists (aka Western European enslavers) to rationalize their crimes against humanity (that is the continual enslavement of Africans and theft of indigenous people's lands). | Fuma Fu the ones making comments that she's half-black and taking this out of proportion are the "western" posters here on YT more than anything else. I don't say Japan has no racism, but the "problem" if anything is more that she is half "non-Japanese". So called "fully-Japanese" people will discriminate against any "haafu" as being "other" and not Japanese enough. Whether half black, white, Arab, etc don't really make that much difference (well, if you're half "other Asian" you might not be discriminated much because of your looks until they FIND OUT you're half something else) I myself being "haafu" growing up I in Japan living now in US see a LOT more racism against blacks (based on color) here than ever in Japan. Tho I'm not part black, I've been discriminated in US just for looking Hispanic, and have heard enough racial "color" comments rampant in US, compared to in Japan, comments are about "foreigners" as a whole (it's not really about "color"). There should be an university level education requirement in order to receive 'mixed' children over such a funnel in general & one should not make light of such a topic. I'm serious about this. | +Efalonda I think you're missing something. No one has problem with just mixed people. The problem arises when one has an African mix. It's why mixed people with a black parent are considered black . No one really cares if you're mixed, it's only when it's an African mix. Why? Africans are considered on the bottom with almost every bad stereotype. Miss Japan should be someone who represents Japan, both appearance and culture. I don't understand why America is always trying to change the world to be like America which is all screwed up. Anyone can marry anyone and anything, anyone can take hormones and plastic surgeries to be a woman , a man, a panda etc etc. I won't be surprised one day to see the average American has one side of the body looking like a man and dressing like a man and then another side looking like a woman and dressing like a woman . I won't be surprised to see one day Americans will have a human body on the top half and then a horse's body on the bottom. America is pushing the whole world to erase differences. Yet, roses are still called roses, and apples are still called apples. Why don't they just call apples and roses as one name and call them "plants". Why do they have to label them differently? Better yet, why don't supermarkets just give the customers marijuana when people are buying lettuce. After all, they are all plants. When a man can't get a job, feels like a defeated loser, and feels that everyone around him is looking down on him as a man, he will be more likely to leave the situation if just not to commit suicide. Now we can be here all day talking about why so many black men are stuck in this poverty situation, or what they need to do to get out of it. You're mixing up completely different issues. (They are genetically as distant to her as you would be to say Australians) So what are you even getting at? What do you want from her? And do you have ANY point whatsoever? You're forgetting that you can hold the development of whites against Asians, Africans, native Americans and native Australians. You cannot however hold it against mixed people because they weren't around until recently and you don't know how things would have played out if they had existed then. The only thing we do know is that mixed (black -white) people have a grater number of over-achievers in sports, music and the arts per hundered people than whites, Asians and blacks. They also have a proportionally grater number of nobel price winners and presidents than whites, Asians and especially blacks. The gap is tremendous. This is not up for discussion either, it's a fact. You can confirm it by taking a calculator, researching the number of high-achievers in the given area and putting it into relation to the population size of directly mixed people vs. any other ethnicity . If you ever do this you will also notice that the golden child, ie mixed (Asian-white) people, have an extremely low number of high-achievers in relation to their population size (there are far more of them than black &white mixed people). So much for the alleged negative black influence. | Black, Ethnicity | Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General | 2/266 | 0.752 |

| +Jazir Kamal The second largest land empire in the world was the Mongolian, which included parts of white Europe. They were also responsible for possibly the greatest atrocity of the Late Middle Ages in the Siege of Baghdad.The most prolific and longest running slave trade in history was the Arab Slave Trade, which again included white Europeans from the Mediterranean and even in one instance as far north as Iceland. Along with, obviously, Africans, Asians, and people from all over the world. The Arab Slave Trade also started 800 years before the European-run Atlantic Slave Trade and lasted an additional 100 years after it had ended.Umayyad caliphate conquered the Iberian Peninsula and they and subsequent Muslim civilizations colonized and ruled white European land for 500 years, 700 until they were fully expelled (this is twice as long as the entire extent of the British Empire). The Ottomans did the same thing to the Balkan Peninsula for almost 400 years.Not only are white people by no stretch of the imagination responsible for the "majority" of racist acts or interracial atrocities, but there has also been a disturbing amount of atrocities committed by the Arab world against the rest of the world, in particular whites, that nobody seems too concerned about. Why are white people the only ones expected to feel racial guilt? Where are the demands that the Muslim world apologize for the conquest of white Iberia? Where are the apologies for the Arab Slave Trade? Why is the nation of Turkey not wracked with guilt over slaughtering the Byzantines in 1453? When will Mongolia apologize for destroying 1000 years of knowledge in the libraries of Baghdad and murdering half a million civilians? Because, here you have to either lose your cultural identity and become white-washed, or if you even have a drop of African blood in you, you are forced by one group to identify yourself as " black ", " African-American " (and deny your white ancestry all together, even if that side of family was not "slave owners"), or they will think you are a sell-out, an "Oreo", etc. Why can't people identify themselves as being "mixed" and be proud? | African, Black | Ethnicity - Black | 2/141 | 1.418 |

That's why her remark about racism in Japan shocked and made me sad. Whether we like it or not, Japan is in a transitional period from highly homogenous society to more multiracial and multicultural nation . Judging from what's going on in Europe, Japan should not accept huge number of immigrants right now, but we should be more generous to people with foreign origin as far as they respect our culture, language and Japanese society as a whole. ObamaLoaf What are the advantages of multiculturalism, what is too little diversity and what is too much diversity? If there is even such a thing. Concrete facts as to why a society MUST be multi cultural? What are the negative effects of a homogeneous society? Countries have always had immigration, but what we are seeing today is more of an invasion. Tell me why you support millions upon millions of muslims entering Europe? And why is a native who is nervous at the prospect considered a racist for voicing his fucking opinion on this issue? You liberals have no answers for these questions, multiculturalism is an absolute truth which you cannot reasonably defend and which cannot be opposed by reasonable people. This is why you stifle ALL conversation, and this is why, we, who were silenced are voting for the only party willing to speak about the issue. And what do you do? You call us all bigoted racists. Good job alienating the population you fucking idiots. The main reason why there is this insane amount of immigration in Europe is simply because of our social benefits, benefits that my parents will work their entire lives to provide. There is no way these people will get into the workforce anytime soon, they can't speak the language and their average skills compared to a native of the same age group are tragically low. Some of them can't read for fuck sake. These people will end up on welfare being housed in a ghetto project where they will be among other men in a similar situation and guess what? Crime WILL SURGE. Does bringing up rational social issues and consequences make me a racist? Am I supposed to ignore the societal impact of mass immigration on my country and social system???? What about how our democracy will drastically change if there is a foreign population taking more and more votes?? I will basically lose my fucking country to democracy because of mass immigration, what is happening in the US. A president must have the Mexican and Black vote to get any chance in the primaries. The Democrats have the upperhand because they always promise benefits and lean immigration policies. Its a self perpetuating cycle, the Republicans are being immigrated out of power. The whole democracy has been destroyed by a complete change in demography. If I import Sunni Muslims into my country and we are given a vote on how to punish infidelity, they will vote according to their Sharia law! I will vote according to my liberal western philosophy, there will be a war of two completely un-unifiable ideologies. There will be tension! And all this mess for what exactly? Just so we can look at our country's diversity statistics and see as many brown people as white people? Just to satisfy the globalist scum who is destroying heritage, identity and democracy!? I don't want globalism, I want to go to Japan and see Japanese people, I want to go to Stockholm and see a majority of white Swedes. I want to go to China and see the Chinese! If this makes me a fascist I will proudly wear that badge, and if the left doesn't soften up to differing opinions they will be creating an environment where physical conflict will be the ONLY option. Believe me if it comes to that you'll wish you never started this thing.

Undeserving people get the prize pure and simple. Or just because you are black president you should get a Nobel Peace Prize for doing nothing for world peace but continuing wars on your watch. Or a chick that is only half Japanese and does not even look Japanese at all should get in front of the line of all the other thousands of Japanese girls that worked hard to be in this pageant. Some cultures simply ARE less developed and those cultures spreading is not something to be celebrated.Also ALL cultures are being ruined if every nation is the same due to globalization. What do you think why we create reservation for indigenous populations all around the world? Precisely because their culture WOULD BE destroyed due to heavy mixing.Borders are also not in our minds but more often than not a natural result of differing ethnic groups with different cultures finding it more easy to live seperated since they have totally opposite expectations of how a society should function.I don't want to offend you either but I genuinely think that you're prioritizng feel-good rhetoric over actually looking at how the world works. | Ethnic, Nation | Ethnicity - General, Nationality - General | 2/127 | 1.575 |
| plexdo Ok, here you took another way, but here I go. The European Immigrant "crisis", it's not a phenomena on its own, it's not like people want to go there, in uncomfortable and risky trips. There's also a long story of the struggle for power there (Middle East), and the immigration is the consequence, not the cause. That's the real crisis, people are dying, of course they have to escape to the nearest safe country (those that sell the war weapons, ironically -.). Your point is that you want to protect what you think it's your identity, which I clarify you, it's not. The identity is an ilusion , because everything you thing, criticize, believe in, etc. It's something the culture you were born in, taught you. Is not something you understood by your own, we're always influenced by something/somebody else.I don't expect nothing . I don't expect people automatically believe me or follow what I say. I just share my opinion, you maybe agree or maybe not, it's up to you. | +klautaku I agree that a fair chunk of my moral understanding is a result of my upbringing but I've also read a fair bit of philosophy and while I don't believe in ultimate morality I do believe that you can make fairly objective judgements on what beliefs will result in the most liberties for individuals and what beliefs will result in a decreased freedom. You can also look at how well one set of values works versus another set of values.Your entire standpoint is based on cultural relativism which I find to be highly flawed. I also didn't mean to derail the conversation, I just thought the migrant crisis was a fairly good example for the topic at hand. | +SingDea Black culture is exactly the reason why so many run off. 68 is NOT an isolated number. That is extremely high. Look it up. I can't speak on Europe but that is the case for America. Black Americans make up only 13 of the U.S. population. I HEAR and SEE many Blacks say there is no need to get married and it does not matter whether or not a father is in the home. Black males in America, not all but obviously the majority will verbally tell you "that baby ain't mine!" knowing good and well it is. They do not like taking on responsibility and many punish their own seed because they don't want to deal with monogamy. That's not a cultural issue? A culture for ANY race is what shapes a community's morale, their structure, their rules, etc. Basically if this is something that is continuing from one generation to the other to the other, then yes...that is a cultural thing. Yes, within a country there are different cultures. You are adding on to my very point. I stated BLACK culture. There are Whites, Asians, Hispanics, and Arabs in America. | Amelia Meraux My original post was in regards to you using race and culture synonymously in terms of Black Americans and other Black people aka Obama's Kenyan father. Culture in general has to do with a lot of things people do; however, there is not just one culture. A Black American in Queens will have a different meaning to Black culture than a Black American in Texas. There may be some overlap, but culture is an extensive term. So unless you're performing ethnographic research, then you can't say it's Black American culture. | +SingDea Did you miss reading the full definition of culture? " Ethnic " or ethnicity was not the only thing listed there. It's even in my quote. I did not mean to group in Kenyans with Black Americans. I just pointed out a trend with Black men period. Black Americans, Afro-Latinos, Afro-Asiatic people, and Africans do not have the same culture as even Ethiopians within the same country do not have the same culture, e.g. Amhar and Oromo people. I stated that Kenyans don't share a culture with Nigerians let alone Black Americans. I know about culture, you don't. I don't need to lie I'm not the one talking about Black American, mentioning a Kenyan, and then stating you're talking about Black men in general. You didn't even know what ethnographic research was just like most of general society, so there's no need for me to lie about something so unknown. If I were going to lie, it would be about something way better than ethnography. I proved my point, so I'm done here. Good to see you're putting the internet to good use now by actually educating yourself on the various cultures of the world. | Black | Ethnicity - Black | 3/149 | 2.013 |
| +karsten HDo you know how many Women Have children by White Soldiers Overseas? So Many that the Military refuses to recognize ANY CHILD BORN OUT OF WED LOCK TO A SOLDIER... This Isn't an African American Thing... It's an American Soldier Thing...By your statement? IT'S QUITE CLEAR You've never been in Any Branch of The Military... Because American Soldiers have (What we call) War Babies, ALL OVER THE WORLD... SO GROW UP NUMB NUTS... | African | Ethnicity - Black | 1/76 | 1.316 |
| +karsten H I've seen a lot of single Asian mothers raising their kids after they've been with a foreigner. White or black . Especially if the guy was stationed there. It's sad. | Black | Ethnicity - Black | 1/31 | 3.226 |
| +karsten H How about just "DAD FROM ANOTHER COUNTRY RAN OFF"? Like...idk fathers that do that EVERYWHERE even when they're not from another country. Race has nothing to do with leaving a child. | Nothing, Race | Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - General | 2/33 | 6.061 |

| Amelia I would say more the cultural differences are the reason why black men don't stick with their non- black partner. Many societies don't accept "interracial" couples so I can imagine a lot of these relationships are kept secret without real commitments. I wouldn't say it's their culture. If their culture was so important to them they would have looked for somebody with the same background. This applies to everyone who romanticises the idea of dating someone from a different background because it's "exotic&exciting". You can make it work but people should really think about the consequences for their children etc. | Black | Ethnicity - Black | 1/100 | 1.0 |
| +Addy Liz That sounds great, but more than 52 (this is in statistics in various sources and the real number) of Black males abandoned their children period. It has nothing to do with the race of the partner because most people date within their own race in each race . That is definitely a cultural thing. I listened to rap music for a project and it's infiltrated all in hip hop and rap music. Thug life is also a part of Black culture. Many people don't want to hear the truth, but this is what it is. I have personally been told by two Black guys before that there is no need to stay in the home, that marriage is "wack" and it is not their responsibility but the mothers responsibility. I swear to god I was told this by two different guys who didn't know each other. If you just stand around a bunch of Black guys who are talking about this, you will hear it too.You can hear very similar attitudes from the average Black woman also. I've been told by many that marriage and committment is not important and that they don't need a man in the home, that they can do it all on their own. It's Black culture, not a racial thing. | Black, Nothing, Race, Woman | Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General, Gender - General | 11/216 | 5.093 |
| +Amelia Meraux THIS IS NOT BLACK CULTURE. YOU ARE SO MISS INFORMED RAP MUSIC THUG LIFE. IS NOT BLACK CULTURE . PLEASE GET A LIFE . | Black | Ethnicity - Black | 2/26 | 7.692 |
| +Diana Weir How is rap music and "thug life" not Black culture? The very definition of culture is the quality in a person or society that arises from a concern for what is regarded as excellent in arts, letters, manners, scholarly pursuits, etc. It's a particular » form or stage of civilization «, as that of a certain nation or period. Most importantly in regarding to Black Americans, it is THE BEHAVIORS AND BELIEFS CHARACTERISTIC OF A PARTICULAR SOCIAL, ETHNIC , or age group, e.g. the drug culture. Music is a form of art and you can find each ethnic groups » culture within their MUSIC, food, language, and even dress wear «. Saggy pants is also Black American culture. Ummmm why do they call it hip hop culture? I will get a life once you get a clue. | Age, Black, Ethnic, Nation | Age - General, Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General, Nationality - General | 7/138 | 5.072 |

| +Diana WeirYet they won't put a belt around their waist to save their lives? Lol. It's Black culture and you know it. I gave you the definition of what culture means and you know that majority of Black Americans embrace saggy pants/homosexual culture and embrace anti-children culture. It's " black life". The real New Year is in September by the way, not January smh. | Black | Ethnicity - Black | 3/64 | 4.688 |
| +Amelia Meraux Wait, so what do you define as " Black American" because it seems like your grouping a large group of people in America by skin color. There are many African descended people in America who grow up with completely different "culture" as you like to put it. My parents have been together for 20+ years, have my four other siblings and I and take care of us well. We don't listen to rap music, or value thug life. We are actually taught morals and are expected to live up to them. So again what do you define as a" Black American"? | African, Black | Ethnicity - Black | 3/101 | 2.97 |
| +karsten H men for every race run off , don't be ignorant | Race | Ethnicity - General | 1/12 | 8.333 |
| Rayutomoto President Obama's father is African and he ran off too. Many African fathers also run off. Africa is not a country located inside of North America. Africa is its own separate continent far far away from the Americas. | African | Ethnicity - Black | 2/39 | 5.128 |

| Sr DeSilva Yup more and more stories are emerging. Since no one will go after American Soldiers, maybe the Governments where Americans serve, should warn the Women.This is sad. I've seen too many Stories of American Soldiers, not just Black . Kids who grow up ONLY knowing their non American side. | Black | Ethnicity - Black | 1/51 | 1.961 |
| Well the Japanese or Asian women want the black man to satisfy their curiosity! So don't freaking say America solders ran off. Asian women want the black and white Dk. So deal with the children you get!! | Black | Ethnicity - Black | 2/37 | 5.405 |

| karsten H your prejudice is showing..White soldiers in the army do it too and more than black dudes.. These soldiers might be given other assignments elsewhere before the lady even knows she is pregnant. | Karsten you spoke the truth 2 years ago and it's still true today....the comments you received are from folks who are intolerant to truth and fail to realize cultural dysfunctions of the American Negro are uniquely our own and the added cultural "laziness" and mediocrity of American mores doesn't help either. | Negro | Ethnicity - Black | 1/51 | 1.961 |
