This kind of people mostly have a few things in common . One is they are poor, deeply in debt, and have sh!tty jobs. They are frustrated with their daily lives. So they are blaming their problems on foreigners/immigrants, whom make more money than they are. And they most likely can't even identify a lot of countries on the map. They probably don't even know where China is. LOL	Common	Social Class - Working class	1/68	1.471

IMHO, US is historically and up to now is the most racist country in the world. You will never find any other nation around the world who is proud with his skin color, no matter black or white. That is pure American thing. Italians are proud to be Italians, French are proud French, and Germans are proud Germans, Japanese are proud with Japan, All other countries are proud by their country or language. Everybody stays silent when racist turns to asian "like we doesn't matter because we are asians" But everybody being loud af when it turns to american, african and middle east. So i'm Burmese (I'm from Southeast Asia) And there is this one guy that is from Kenya who said "Just admit it, you have eaten dog right? Is it true that you chinese people eat dogs and cats?" I said "It's disgusting, i've never eat it before and never would and i am not Chinese i'm burmese." He then replied "Yeah Burmese is chinese" And it's not.He then said many thinks that made me sad/angry. Then he said "You guys eat with chopsticks right?, We East africans eat with our hands" And little did he know that people from burma/thailand eats with hands too. But yes, we argued and he said many racist things about me being asian and stuff he even did the "chinese eye thing" And that time we had class and no one stood up for me, Like no one cared, like i said when racist turns towards us asians everybody stays silent. Himanshu Not EVERYONE is like this. There are also immigrants who are racist towards non immigrants while in America, you know. Trust me, I learned it the hard way.	Racist	Ethnicity - General	1/29	3.448
Audrey I am talking about LEGAL Indian immigrants. America is extremely indophobic. They don't like Indians. It's okay that you don't like us but what attracts us there is your education institutions. We sometimes needs a high level degree and it's better for us to receive that there as your education institutions are well established than ours. But again it become problem for us due to hostility towards Indians. And I don't think I know any Indian who tried to condescend in any way to offend indigenous or white people there. If you know, please let me know. But one thing I saw a similarity, it's not the indigenous people that berate us, it's mostly the white people who did that to us.....	Indian	Ethnicity - Native-American	2/123	1.626
Himanshu Also what I meant when I said that some immigrants are racist towards US citizens while in the US, I was talking about Mexicans. I don't dislike Mexicans but when I was the only while kid in an American middle school, I got teased big time because of my color. Which led me to be self conscious of the country that I was born in. But I've never met an Indian who was unfriendly to me. Actually I've met many Indians in the US, and they've all been quite nice. Racism has gotten really bad in my school, discrimination against me just for being Korean? It's gotten to point where I am thinking about the noose, it has gotten better, don't worry, I won't kms but I dread going to school, I hate hearing racist jokes and whenever I'm with my friends, and I'm better than them at anything, they're excuse is always 'your Asian so it doesn't count' sigh I hate my school. I think most racist episodes are caused by middle aged women out of frustration and anger. Society has wrongly attached a woman's value to their age and looks. Never mind the fact that many come from broken relationships and feel lonely and unsupported as well. A middle aged man can still procreate and build up a family with a young woman but for older woman the panorama is grim. It's a sad reality and it is like as well. The truth is that women are beautiful regardless their age and looks. We have to change not only the way we look at people of other races but the way we look at women as well and give both the value and respect they deserve. You should give this to the police and have her arrested for harassment, road rage, racial profiling and other charges. Obviously you were clearly not breaking any traffic laws. Then you should get a civil lawyer and sue her for whatever the lawyer tells you, you can. You need to let your children know, who were in the car with you, how to stand up to racism and it is wrong. It was wise you did not fight back so I would take it to the police station. Also she doesn't know she can go back to her country, probably somewhere in Europe, but then she's too ignorant not to know where she came from and where her roots are or if she BELIEVES she is from this country then she needs to go back to the Reservations (Native Americans - WHO WERE HERE FIRST and no this is not a racial remark to Native Americans.. It wasn't their land. They had small parcels of land that they could make a claim to because that's where they spent most of their time and where they had their ancestors buried. But that was not the entire continent. There were never more than 10 million native North Americans even at the absolute height of their population, and that includes Canada and Alaska as well. They were a stone age people without roads, the wheel, literacy, and only a handful of permanent settlements. By and large, the vast majority of the continent was not 'theirs.' Even the idea that they could control that much land was a foreign concept to them. Obviously, some whites did some very bad things, and Native Americans suffered for it, but its not as if this violence was entirely one sided. Americas first school massacre was the Enoch Brown massacre when a group of Delaware Native Americans slaughtered a school full of children, and enslaved some of the survivors. A week before hand they killed a white pregnant women and cut out her unborn child. There was a reason why some called the natives 'savages.' And the idea of anyone from East or South East Asia looking down on Americans for conquering stuff is laughable. All humans conquered other humans in the days before the Industrial Revolution. The only thing that sets white people apart from the rest of the world is that we questioned these ideas and have made an effort not to repeat the mistakes of the past. I love watching these kind of videos because they're funnier than anything else in youtube. This is a typical video I'll watch over and over for many years. This one is downloaded and saved in my hard drive. These people are an illustration that some of us haven't evolve into the 21st century yet. Most of them are oversized, less educated, from less fortunate homes and with mental disorder and often don't speak fluent English. All they have is a white skin due to melamine deficiency and a dysfunction called albinism. So this disease is basically a skin disease. When someone with white skin, fat and ugly this disease shoots out. This is more prevalent in women than in men. Men have the same inferiority complex tend to get into a confrontation. As a Latino,I am not saying all Latinos are as racist or obnoxious as this lady.. It is very troubling to see Huffpost and other media outlets (CNN, etc) posting this and similar stories on YouTube. The intent of course is to inflame divisions in the USA. The hope is that minorities will side with the DNC rather than the American Culture which has created so much opportunity for all people (despite all our flaws). The truth is that no society is free of bigotry. Ask the untouchables in India, or the victims of the genocide in Rwanda, etc, What saved me from being a SJW was visiting family in Central America during the reign of a Dictator. I had first hand experience with the alternatives to life in the USA. The truth is the USA has created more opportunities for all its people than any other country.. Europa Man You showed up to live in British royalty country as a beggar 'top o da morning to ya' drunkard, then later dressed up like the Natives and threw tea cartons out of ships that belong to the royals. Then when the British upper class fought the royals to gain land and money (aka steal from British royals) you peasants fought along side so you'd keep eating them potatoes. You should note that you are not British royalty. They originally owned the land. Then British aristocrats stole the land. Nonetheless YOU ARE STILL A PEASANT and European mutt, not pure bred British royal blood nor aristocrat with some royal blood. You're a German Irish immigrant at best, mutt boy. Count Khalid Al Assad You're too hurt for an online analysis, you act as if you're the smartest person alive on this topic. Never once did I mention that slavery is the only racism . I said that you yourself in your third comment did not experience every single one of those acts that you listed. Not that you haven't experience racism , but it's funny how you're grouping your whole race into points that took place in history vs what is taking place now. Most of those racism tactics are illegal now to do to ANYONE. Do some people get pardoned easy? Yes. Do most? No. Is your experience of racism the worst form of racism that you yourself can say is worse than any Asians facing racism ? No. Some people have it worse than you, so stop generalizing; like telling Asians to 'join the club.' This is a video on a current event, not a historical one, this is why there's racism to this day when people start generalizing their own victimized racism and project it on their whole race . Racism isn't a who has it worse or who's going to be next. Sorry that you can't see that and you have to just offend so many people that also experience racism as well. (And honestly, racism between all races is better, not just white people; every race has different opinions on one another, and not every white person is a piece of shit that is going to attack your race)	Race, Racism	Ethnicity - General	15/251	5.976

And does this sound white? In the waning years of the 20th century, ten million people were murdered in various remote parts of Central Africa. It is not a single genocide but a collection of ethnic wars which raged from Sudan, the Congo, through to Uganda and Rwanda.Details[edit]In the southern region of the Sudan, two million people belonging to various Nilotic peoples including Dinka, Nuer and Shilluk were killed by Sudanese Arabs from the North.[1]Roughly five and a half million died in the Congo, mainly during the Second Congo War [2] but also in relatively smaller holocausts such as the Ituri conflict and the mass murder of Pygmies known as "Effacer le tableau".In Uganda, 300 thousand people were murdered during the regime of Idi Amin[3] and 500 thousand during the rule of his successor, Milton Obote.[4] Amin's genocides targeted the Acholi and Lango peoples; these two groups went on to murder other groups (mainly the Baganda) under Obote's regime.[5]In the early 1970s, over 150 thousand Hutu people were killed by Tutsi people in Burundi by order of General Michel Micombero.[6] Twenty years later, one million Tutsi people were murdered by Hutu people during the 1994 Rwandan genocide.[7]In the Rwandan genocide, the people who had been the victims in Burundi (the Hutu) murdered the ethnic group that had killed them (the Tutsi), and these new victims later played a role in the Congo genocide.[8]In all of these deaths, the victims were killed by people from a different ethnic group, people who hated the victims' ethnic group. Ten million deaths in close proximity have left a zone of devastation in Central Africa. And this is talking only of central Africa in the 20 century.	Ethnic	Ethnicity - General	4/289	1.384
Free speech I agree with you on a whole but the way you suck off europeans shows the enormous bias you have for them, the only thing europeans had over any other people at the time was a reason to leave their continent, europe was at the brink of destruction before their conquest and they needed to do it in order to survive, their technology wasn't even considered the most advanced at the time. Not to take away all the other major accomplishments that europeans have made though. kchididdy The reality is that this argument of "Whites should go back to Europe" is just a racist anti white argument to justify the end of the USA, which after all (like Australia and Canada) was overwhelmingly White countries until recently. They are starting to say the same thing about European countries too. "France used to have Blacks and Arabs over 1000 years ago, the Gauls were not there first", same with Germany, Holland, Sweden, etc. At the end of the day, the hard fact is simply that its White countries getting pumped full of immigration and quickly getting replaced. The Native Americans are just accessory in all this in America. Just a reminder, blacks and Hispanics (mostly spanish/portuguese descent with SOME native blood) are native to Americas? What none of you mouth breathing morons are considering is that Native Americans never claimed the entire North American continent. They couldn't. There weren't enough of them for that, nor did they have the technology for it. They didn't have the wheel, they didn't have roads, or writing, they couldn't make a massive land claim like that, nor did they try. Hunter gatherer tribes can lay claim to a fairly large territory, but North America is huge, far too big for 10 million Native Americans to be omnipresent. South America is a completely different story, but when the first white settlers came to North America, there was more than enough room for everyone without people stepping on each other. Most interactions with natives were benign. The thing with Europeans though, they tended to lay down roots. They would build their farm on land that seemed unoccupied and they would stay there all year round. Most Natives weren't like that, most Natives were nomadic, and they moved from one camp site to another. A European may have built a farm in an area where a Native tribe passed through maybe once a year. The Native tribe wouldn't even make camp there, they would just move through the area. They didn't consider the area 'theirs' but they might still get angry at the sight of a European farmstead that hadn't been there before. Even in 1776 when the US was formed, the idea of controlling the whole continent was not something they considered feasible. Jefferson himself said it would take a hundred generations to fill the continent because he didn't foresee the industrial revolution and the advent of mechanized farming and modern medicine which would eventually lead to the human population exploding all over the Earth. Also understand that at this point, many white Americans had never been to Europe, nor had their parents, or grand parents. I've never been to Europe, and I have to go up several generations before I even come to the first immigrant in my family tree. I'm a white American and my ancestors helped build it into what it is today, and I'm not going anywhere. Did the US do a lot of mean and unfair things to the Native Americans? Yes, yes we did, and there still needs to be some reconciling there. Do most of the tribes have most of what they considered 'their land,' yes, many of them do, they're called the reservations. No, Native American's didn't get all the land back that they once claimed, many of them were forcibly removed and placed on reservations. That wasn't right and something should be done about it. Did Native Americans do some awful things to white people? They sure did. Raping, killing, slavery, scalping, torture, sure, Native Americans did that, and they did it enough to earn them the title of 'savage.'My people came here mostly as settlers, and not conquerors, because from the European mindset, North America was a mostly empty land with a few tribes moving around the wilderness... because that's exactly what it was.	Immigrant	Nationality - General	1/514	0.195

Also, the toilets in India are known as the Asian squat toilets, which they are much better than the European ones as they don't leave the rest of the facial matter in the colon; this is one of the reasons why the West has high colon cancer rates. Also, the average Indian household in India has more gold way, way more than the average Westsrner. Indians are the largest consumers of gold, which makes the average Indian households have somewhere between 23,000 to 24,000 tons of gold, which comes out to be $800,000. Thank you for the sentiments, friends, but let me take a moment to clarify some facts. For "the first casualty in war is the truth", Pindar.The Chinese (my ancestry by the way, in case anyone wants to call the PC police) did eat dogs, and so did most cultures around the world. As a historian, I've noticed that diets among people change, and the chief driving factor is usually scarcity. This might explain why southern europeans eat mollusks, Southeast Asians eat bugs, Coastal people ate crabs and lobsters(bugs of the sea), etc. Communism has nothing to do with why the Chinese eat(not "ate") dogs. The driving factor more likely came from poverty from harsh historic times. Granted, Marx was Jewish, and arguably he had good ideas; however there are two things to keep in mind. Marx' understanding of world history was limited. He was more of a contemporary activist who observed the plight of the poor working class people in comparison to the rich who only collected the profits off the backs of the workers. He overlooked the fact that wealth gaps between the poor and rich have been a multi-millenia long problem. You can say communism was a narcissistically naive European attempt to explain the world based on its limited understanding of world history, very much like how many thought World War I was the "war to end all wars". On the other hand, Mao, seeing an opportunity for power, decided to utilize socialist ideology to muster support among the poor, uneducated downtrodden Chinese farming class during a period of economic strife and war. Mao merely adopted the ideology for his own ambitions. Notice he subsequently eliminated his successor chairmen to reinstate himself to power. By doing so, he also abandoned socialism. Instead, writing his little red book which was all about loyalty to him, and not about economic equality. The "yank" culture, originally British culture actually has a rich long, albeit messy history. British culture incorporates Celtic, Greco-Romano, and Germanic backgrounds, and English is one of the most bastardized languages on the planet. It incorporates elements form all of the above. Yes, the educated classes in post-Renassiance Europe did study ideologies from as far as China. For example, Napoleon was believed to have studies Sunzi's Art of War. But keep in mind, the majority of Europe's Renaissance came from a rekindled interest in the Greco-Romano classics. Vedic mythology was known to educated Europeans, but I can't recall and instance when they were applied/used. "DNA testing degenerate"? I'm a little lost here. i have never understood the analogy of saying go back to your country. if someone is an american citizen or was born here, then they are Americans. Being american is not by blood right, its by calling it your home. Being american is not something we pass off like a throne or something. America has no single ethnicity , its not founded by single ethnic groups but by many. If chinese said it then i can understand or if an indian said its fair, but america has no single ethnicity that founded it. I think that like anyone else it comes down to upbringing. I was raised to deplore bigotry and judge people by conduct, not background (social, racial, religions, whatever). I'm also the grandson of an Irish immigrant . Tell me how any scene of racism like this is ANY different than the slurs tossed out at my grandfather for being Irish. I've even had to deal with it when people find out I'm 1/4 Irish being called drunk, violent, stupid, greenie and other insults....And those are the light ones!! D31 5M . What kind of racism to white people experience ? A non white person condemning racism from whites towards non whites doesn't qualify as racism against whites . The reason whites don't experience racism is because races such as mestizos Hispanics or East Asians feel inferiority complex towards white people ! For instance in my family , several women consider that marrying a white man " improves " our race .. Now white people tend to be very proud about their race , they certainly don't feel inferior to non whites .. that's why whites are capable of being racist .
