On the airport of Bahrain. On my way to somewhere. I was eating at the cafeteria then there was an Indian/brown boy moping the floor. And that random Arab guy with his thobe started screaming him and called Miskeen or something because he was on his way. That's all I could remember when I was 11 years old . I've gotta admit that my parents are so racist too! And I can't really blame them cause it's integrated in the culture like you said.. They are 100 convinced that all other human beings aren't as loved by Allah as they are, for example they say Asians are dirty and disgusting cause they eat dogs and Indians are disgusting cause they worship cows... etc and each time I start arguing with them about such things they bash me off and start treating me as if I was a Kafira that I'm trying to be open-minded and it's against Allah's rules. I'm sick of trying to the point where I don't even want to argue anymore, I'll let them think the way they think and I feel blessed to not be ignorant about this.The bigger problem is the fact that the majority of Arabs are like this that's why we aren't developed and we still have wars and conflicts, I'm not optimistic about this cause the society is so messed up they don't teach love but rather hatred and division. What's worse is that some arab cultures are racist on other arabs. For example, as a half Lebanese, half European, I had many Lebanese friends that had racist comments on other arab countries, let alone countries like India, china, Paki, african etc... and I know that most of them don't even realize it is. I am not going to talk about into the racism from my other half because I guess everyone knows how racism fares in Europe. In our Noble Qur'an, Allah [s.w.t] had already addressed the issue of 'racial superiority' in which THE CONTEXT is in the following verse:'Say, O you who are Jews [applicable to any race], if you [verily] claim that you are favoured chosen by Allah with the exclusion of the rest of mankind, then [why don't you] desire death if you are indeed truthful.' [Qur'an Surah Al-Jumu'ah: 62:6]For anyone who needs further explanation on why Allah [s.w.t] explicitly said '... then [why don't you] desire death if you are indeed truthful' is because, in the minds of the 'Chosen People of Superiority,' they believe that just for being 'Chosen and Superior,' Allah [s.w.t] have already reserved Jannah [i.e. paradise heaven] for them. Well, if they are indeed truthful, shouldn't they have the sincere desire to go straight to Jannah [rather than stay in this world] ?? They are the 'Chosen People of Superiority' after all. But nope! Never will they admit to this because they know they are arrogantly living in their own delusion of superiority which they themselves claimed. Even Allah [s.w.t] NEVER claimed anybody to be superior.LASTLY, FOR THE DELUDED 'CHOSEN PEOPLE OF SUPERIORITY,' ALL OF THE THINGS I'VE SAID ABOVE, ALL OF THE INFORMATION IS THERE IN THE NOBLE QUR'AN, HENCE ALL OF THIS ARE FROM ALLAH'S [S.W.T] WORD. Okay i relate to this soooooo much Subhi !!! i'm a tunisian girl living in France, i'm exposed to other cultures and other arabic friends aaaand that other day i was debating with my mom on the fact that possibly later, if i wanna marry a man coming from a village that is not my tunisian village, will they accept and she firmly said "NO"actually i understand her because her brother married a woman from another village and she's just a problem in our family but it's not a generality !! like not every person from other villages are badthen i told her "can i marry a man that is not from my village, or from tunisia but who is muslim, like a moroccan, a filippino or a malaysian man ?"she literally said "NO !" She told me "you won't eat the same food, you won't speak the same dialect or language, you won't have the same perspective of the world, your kids will be lost with their identity..."but i think if the man is a very devout man, who loves Allah, who is a good muslim, has a good family and has a good heart and above everything who loves me, then why should my parents reject him because he's not a tunisian man coming from my village ?????	Woman	Gender - General	1/224	0.446

I agree with this! Thank you for promoting this mentality. Cultural superiority and this kind of "tribal identity" thing has been the cause of so much conflict. There's nothing wrong with being proud of your culture but you shouldn't let it make you look at others as below you. Also, not to offend anyone, but at the time before Islam, the ignorance was rampant among Arab tribes. The Quran literally calls it Jahiliyyah, or the Period of Ignorance/Paganism. Worshiping idols, burying their daughters alive, etc. The Prophet (s.a.w.) and the Quran were sent to correct them and "perfect their character (akhlaq)". So I think it's inaccurate for Arabs to feel superior for having Islam revealed to their people. It's a beautiful language and a beautiful culture, but again, not inherently better than everyone else.	Nothing, Quran	Age - Youngsters, Religious Identity - Muslim	3/134	2.239

Pride turned lucifer into satan it's the first sin committed in heaven. It's major trouble, it blinds us and offends others. All races struggle with it. Among blacks I grew up with for a time, they would attack the darker skinned among them. I had some trouble for being fair skinned. Among hispanics they idolize fair skin and talk among themselves about who's white in the family. It's everywhere. But I always thought it's might just be a preference most people have of what they admire. Well I have an Indian friend in uni, in the U.K, who lived in Saudi for most of her life before doing 2 years medical boarding school in India after and moving here. She said Saudi is the best and when she lived in India she loved it too but she didn't feel fully equal to her Indian friends because they view Islam and Arab culture as backwards, ugly and non-progressive or non-beneficial to the world compared to Indian culture. She had no Muslim friends, she truly didn't fit in anywhere, her own ethnic place or her own religions place. Her dad was a doctor and some of his lazy untalented colleagues (yes Arab) would ask them to do some of their shifts time to time with no pay, he would be depressed but can't say anything because human rights and equality exists less there. She said the people there seem to lack intelligence, more lazy, apparently their king or something doesn't even have his personal doctor as Saudi/Arab, he is south asian, which is crazy , as it shows he doesn't really believe in his people's capabilities. At least we work hard for our successes and stay humble, and not rely on natural resources or faking our way through. It's embarrassing. Like without it, I feel like everyone knows the country would still be the squalid undeveloped, medieval-minded place it was before. It saved them man it really did and those arabs (I know not all of them are like that) are undeserving of it in my honest opinion, it's a waste. Imagine all the good other countries that need help would've done with it. I hope they realise that and get off their high horse and come back down to reality, because outside the UAE etc they are nothing . It's pathetic and cringey. I've only met like two in my life, both good people and not fit the horrible descriptions people give them. Here's a place you might start in defeating your "arab superiority", realizing you're probably not "arab". Arabia is a place. If you weren't born there, which you weren't, then you're not an Arab. In your case, your ancestors weren't even Arab's. Palestinians are largely SEMITES, descended from biblical SHEM. They were invaded by Arabs and so there is some Arabic heritage there in Palestine. But just because you were born in Palestine doesn't mean you're descended from arabs. It's a big mix now of Arab offspring plus Semitic offspring that people's Palestine and I wouldn't doubt even that there's bunches of more people types in Palestine than just semites and arabs. If you want to do some research on it you might google this term: "Haplo-types of Palestine", then take each haplogroup you find listed and do additional research on each of those haplotypes and figure out what their migratory route was and what cultures each of those haplotypes were part and then you'll have a real good idea of where the people of Palestine are from.It's weird that Palestine is largely peopled by Semitic Muslims, ay? But it's true.Provisionally, I did the search and came up with these people types as all being part of the population of Palestine: Persians, Turkish, Macedonians (Hitites), Egyptians, Italians, East Africans, South Africans, Greeks, Spaniards, Portugese, French, Moroccans, Berbers... None of which are from The Arabian Peninsula. So the odds are greatest that you're no part Arab, even if you're born in Palestine, where for years the lame media has been pushing the narrative that there's a split between Arabs and Jews. It's just hokey nonsense being sold by the billionaires who like to create division to use in conquering people for the purpose of THIEVERY, stealing their property and the minerals that are buried in it.If you want to REALLY KNOW your heritage, get a DNA test, I recommend Family Tree DNA as they'll test for your genetic haplotype. Other "genetic testing facilities" make claims to know where you're from, which they can not possibly. So avoid any genetic test that is making claims about the region or place of your ancestry. You can know it if you know where your family is from, but they can't know it by testing your genes. So don't believe the fraud. But get your genes tested by a genetic testing facility that reports your HAPLOTYPE and then do the research on your own as to what MIGRATIONS your GENETIC HAPLOTYPE has endured. You should recognize in those common migrations someplace where you've been told your family is from.	Common, Lame, Weird	Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments, Social Class - Working class	3/436	0.688

You are quite obviously a fool, I don't care whether or not you share my belief, that doesn't mean you should go out and bash about it although. The West are becoming humane? When is disregarding the lives of fellow human for some political influence and oil considered humane? Who were the one's whom lied to us during the Arab revolt, dividing us into a dozen states, left the Hashemites when the Sauds invaded, is allowing Saudi Arabia to commit their crimes in Yemen, bombing Syria, invaded Iraq without any thought of what the fall of a government would mean; same thing with Libya! We are inhumane? But you are glad that Arabs are dying, and for what? When did we force the Indonesians or Malaysians to follow this belief? You think expanse comes without conflict, without violence? Any wrong we've did is nothing compared to that of the Europeans, for we weren't the one's that brewed two world wars. After oil, the Khalijees will not suffer, you are ignorant to the economic precautions they've taken to combat when the oil rates begins falling. By the way, a Jihadist is one that struggles, Jihad means to struggle or rise up against struggle. Your definition of Jihad is incorrect. Turks are Muslims just as us, you are ignorant and oblivious to what they have done in Europe for the past 800 years.	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/231	0.433

Syrians, Iraqis, Sudanese and Afghans are not a people group. Syria and Iraq are created by the French and British, Syrians and Iraqi are Arab. Arabs roamed Al-Sham even before the age of the Khalifa. Assyrians are not Arab, they also live in these areas and are still around. Sudan is an Arabic word for land of the blacks, you are calling Arabs the bad guys by referring to people of an Arabic name? Hmm... that doesn't make sense. Afghani is a nationality that in fact could refer to an Arab inhabiting the country (listen to the anthem) According to the anthem, Afgans include: Balochs, Uzbeks, Pashtuns, Hazaras, Turkmen, Tajik, Arabs, Gujjars, Nuristani, Brahuis, Qizilbash, Aimaqs, Pashais. North Africans include Amazigh and Copts. Amazigh are around, their culture is still vibrant, and they've adopted Islam. Copts are Christian Egyptians, they are around, and we live in harmony with them. Anyone who disturbs that peace is an extremist. East Africans are Sub-Saharan, we haven't engulfed any of their cultures, they are around, and in vast numbers. Somali do not call themselves Arabs, they practice Somali culture, they are proud Somali. Iranians are Iranians, Albanians are Albanians, Malays are Malay, Bosnians are Bosnians, Turkics are Turkics, and Indians are Indians. The fact that these countries and people speak their own language, wear their own clothes, have their own cuisines and even arts prove these people have their own culture. Death cult? Suicide is haram, hope you know that. Saudi Arabians are fat? That stereotype is reserved for another people. Slaves were around before we came into power, we did not create any of these disgusting things. Arabs never had any harem, this is the Turks, not us. The Atlantic Slave trade was the largest in history, not any Arab one.	Age, Fat, Nationality	Age - General, Nationality - General, Physical Identity - Physical Features	3/298	1.007

Was Christianity spread without war? No, you can't have an expanding empire without war, that's not logical. ISIS actually does many haram things, suicide is haram, they don't follow the ten rules of war, rape is haram. Islam affects peoples cultures, even the Arabs cultures. Look at Arab culture before and after Islam, very different. It doesn't destroy them though, that's wrong. Europeans trying to solve problems in the Middle East? Many Europeans are angry at the refugee crisis, not because children are suffering or people are dying, but because it's flooding their countries. It's what happens when you lie to a people group, divide them into unnecessary nations, ignore other ethnicities (Kurds), implement weak puppet monarchs, and all for some oil. Look at what the French, British and Italy did in their colonies! Now they complain because those same people are coming back to bite them. Look at how the west messed up Afghanistan, you supported the Mujahadeen, and they then become Al-Qaeda. You know what happened from there. Yes... and according to you, only Khalijee are Arab, but all Khalijee are rich and can thank their oil for that. I completely agree with you when you say they depend on the west. Sauds are US puppets, and look at what they do to poor people in Yemen. Also, Jordan, Lebanon, Algeria, Tunisia and Morocco are all succeeding and good countries. Arabs actually weren't strict before Islam, they were barbaric tribal people who would steal from each other. But that was over a thousand years ago, we can't compare the people then to the people now. Yet look at what Sauds are doing in Yemen. Also, there is a difference between Salafism and Islam. Salafism is a strict interpretation of Islam, amd not Islam itself. Don't mistaken it for Islam. There are Arabs who still call blacks by this name, just as there are whites whom my refer to them as things that are even worse. I'm not sure where you get anything that Egyptians were slaves of the Arabs. Please go look at why Arabs were so easily able to take Egypt.

No brother, you are wrong. Europeans have always been looking to us, there is a reason Britain left us with monarchs in Egypt and Iraq. They wanted to implement a government that leans in their favor, so while they don't directly administer these countries, we are still under their heavy influence. You are right, some of this stuff is self-imposed. It wasn't a Brit who poisoned Gamel Abdel Nasser, it was an Egyptian, our own people, betraying our beloved Gamel Abdel Nasser, just like that. But in fact, it is somewhat to blame of our colonizers, they were the one's who left us with these weak forms of government. Look what it cost us in the long run, if Britian would just mind their own business, none of this would have probably happened. ISIL had nothing to do with Europeans? Weren't European countries (UK and Poland) the ones whom aided in the Iraq invasion of 2003, the same invasion that took down it's government, and put ISIL in power. There are many prosperous Muslim nations. Tunisia, Algeria, Morocco, Saudi Arabia, the Emirates, Oman, Bahrain, Malaysia, Kuwait, Brunei, Qatar, Jordan, Lebanon, Turkey, Turkmenistan, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Uzbekistan, Albania, Bosnia and Tajikistan. These countries are doing pretty well. Even countries like Iran are well developed, they just aren't doing too well politically and diplomatically. The Lebanese along with any other Arabs are well liked, whether we are Muslim or not. Syria is not in this state because of Islam. ISIL and Al-Qaeda are groups don't aren't part of the original reason for the war. It began because of conflict between the people and the government, initiated by the Arab spring. An utter failure in Egypt. The Assad regime is secular, not a theocracy.	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/290	0.345

Also, when you speak of Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him, you it seem as if he is of pedophile nature or was one to be which is completely incorrect. I don't know where you get this from, but it's wrong. Also, Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was indeed a war leader, there's nothing wrong with that. He was simply a general, there is nothing wrong with any general. Under him, they conquered almost all of Arabia, not even Al-Sham, Anatolia, Persia, Maghreb, Egypt, Indus River, Central Asia, Caucasus or Spain. These expeditions were made after his by the Khalifa that came after him. There were supremacist leaders like the oppressive Umayyad's, but that doesn't mean all of Islam is bad, simply because some Muslim leaders were bad. It should be noted that the Muslim community themselves were very angry at Umayyad's, hence the Abbasid revolution and why they killed any Umayyad leader that they could find or get a hold of. It was the medieval ages, of course things like this happened. Things like this happen even in the modern age . I would also like to say, that even before the Khalifa, there were Arabs in Al-Sham and the lands of Iraq (which is considered Al-Sham sometimes?) Sorry if reply in two comments, I'm using my phone and I can't see the entire comment at once. Being secular and Islamic doesn't mean anything, these countries are Muslim nonetheless and they embrace that. Brother, wjat you say about Khalijee is true, I don't disagree with you on this. Indeed they do depend on the west, but they are also diversifying their economies to brace for the price fall when oil begins becoming rare. Women are oppressed, although if your taking about Hijab I think you should know that majority Saudi men wear Kufiya a lot. I didn't know that they stopped cutting people's hands off, it's disgusting that they ever thought of doing so, something so barbaric, so uncivilized. I didn't beg anyone for help, no one is helping out the Egyptians, no one has helped out the Egyptians. I'm not putting the entire blame on the Brits, French or Italians, even the Spanish took some of the Arab world (ahem ahem western Sahara) but it wasn't us who implemented these weak monarchs. We were also lied to and left alone when the Sauds invaded Hejaz, allowing them to spread their strict interpretation of Islam. We couldn't stop them, what could we do? We can't fix our countries when they are run by foolish and horrible leader's. Name one good thing that Hosni Mubarak has ever done. Eastern Europe is better than us because they were able to successfully able to implement a good government system. We can't do that because we are confused and divided, we just keep starting conflicts, when will they stop? How do we even stop them? I mean, look at Iraq. In a couple years, probably a decade or so, it'll probably be better than it's ever been. Why? A good and stable government. But what do you expect us to do in Egypt? We've lost our chance to do anything, protesting won't help. I'm sure what really we could do here. Communism and dictatorship in both South and North Yemen have have severely damaged the two countries, the dictatorship still went on even into the newly unified Yemeni state. But then the Arab spring came along and just triggered a civil war, now what do they do? Europe is doing great because even before the two wars they were great major powers, those conflicts and wars have passed on. But we are still dealing with conflict, war, and bad government. Arab countries like Tunisia, Algeria and Morocco are okay because they managed to go on without conflict, but look at Libya, they are in a civil war, how do you expect them to develop in this situation. Syria, Libya, and Yemen are in civil war. Iraq and Lebanon just recently came out of a civil war. Lebanon and Jordan are dealing with a refugee crisis, they are not rich countries like Britian or Germany, they cannot as easily combat this.Egypt is dealing with a horrible military dictatorship. On top of this, Khalijee aren't even bothering even try to host any refugees.	Refugee	Nationality - General	1/510	0.196

with the reason of ISIL requirements. There are many reasons why people join ISIL, instead of guessing as to why, you should instead do some actual research. Islam is not a male-dominated belief, it just seems like this because we are much more apparent. Enslave women? In what way? I don't know anyone who has married their cousins, but while it may be seen as taboo in the west, it's not in other places. I'm really not sure about here, because I don't know anyone who's married their cousin. Although a lot of what your saying is not factual information but simply assumptions, trying to make out of this and for some reason not bothering to do any proper research. Islam says nothing of joining ISIL, almost everything ISIL is doing is haram. Suicide is haram, rape is also haram. Slavery I don't believe is specifically haram, but Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him tried hard to abolish slavery. In fact, he married women to release them of their bonds. Please also do look up the 10 rules of warfare in Islam.	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/183	0.546
Turkey is not European, by shifting towards European values they are denying the traditions they have held for many years. And Arabs are the one's engulfing other's cultures? That's not why their prospering, astughfirallah they should completely remove of any form of prostitution, it's extremely disgusting. Whether you are Muslim or not, this should be common sense. Good on Tajikistan, there is no where saying women have to cover their heads, wear burqa's or hijabs. But they've done more then simply ban burqa's for cultural preservation, the president has done some things to restrict Muslim belief, and for a country that is over 90 muslim. Iran is still a Islamic theocracy where 99.99 of the population is Muslim, some Iranians teens becoming lax or atheists doesn't mean anything. Actually, incest is very haram, tons of hadith (sunnah) is highly incorrect, and the prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him never married his cousin, actually, it was his cousin which married his daughter. That's not incest, and his cousin was much younger then him. ISIL should know what their doing is haram, just because some hooligans running around in guns, spreading violence, claiming their doing good in the Islam, does not automatically mean that these people are following the rules and teachings of Islam. Like I said, tons of things their doing is haram. And do some research if you'd like to know as to why ISIL is a thing. ISIL was founded by a salafist in 1999, I'm pretty sure it had no actual significance or relevance at this point, but what put them in power was the fall of Saddam Hussein which basically collapsed the entire government making it easy for them to come to power. Like the Taliban and Al-Qaeda, they want to get rid of foreigners like the west but they are also trying to conquer as much as they can and impose their strict salafist beliefs. And no, it doesn't sexually repress anyone, its just says to keep from doing disgusting haram things.	Common	Social Class - Working class	1/338	0.296

Why should Turks stick to what? Ever since Turks have converted to Islam, they have kept their own traditions! Speak their own language! Did they not wave that one of those Turkic pole things during Ottoman times? Those stuff are not Arab! Prostitution is a disgusting thing... can't believe you would even think of ever legalizing anywhere. Tajikistan government, not the people. Tajiks mostly got Islam from Persians not Arabs, same thing with Turks, actually, same thing with a lot of people. Albanians and Bosnians never got Islam from Arabs, but from Turks. Islam is not Arab culture, it's an Abrahamic religion like Judaism or Christianity. In Ramadan, Bangladesh does not feast on Arab food, they do so on Bengali food, same thing with Indonesia, Kazkhstan, Somalia, and literally every other non-Arab muslim country. No... Zaynab was no his cousin, never was. Also, where do you get that we marry later? I understand that we might marry in our mid-20s, but this isn't late not for us. Even so, this is mostly likely a modern thing. I do think I've been told that at the time of my great grandparents that people would marry around the age of 16 or 18. We do not care about sex, we are not sex-hungry, it is only necessary to have kids, nothing more, nothing less. Islam is not going to force anyone to cover their head, that’s an option. And by thinking that the Islamic influence is simply Arabic culture, your not making any sense. Stop assuming stuff, look at history! Even Arabs were changed by Islam, yes, their vocabulary may have some Arabic words or they may use the Arabic alphabet, but the English, Spanish, Dutch, French and Portuguese have forced many people to follow their religions, speak their languages and follow their traditions. Many natives were assimilated into the language of the Spaniards, and many Africans, American Natives and even some places in Asia were forced to convert to Christianity! French and English are highly spoken in Africa, much more then Arabic! Same thing with the Americas, but with Spanish instead of French. Vietnamese uses Latin alphabet, not Arabic, not their own, same thing with many African languages, and other East Asian countries. Lots of Central Asia was highly influenced by the Secularist Communist Rooskies, its not a surprise that the government in Tajikistan is how it is right now. Even today, they are heavily influenced by Rooskies. They use the Cyrillic alphabet, not Arabic. It’s not Islam that plays fear, it’s the Muslims. You are mistaking Salafist terriosts for Islam. So what if it’s in Arabic? Most of our prophets are not Arabic, in fact, only two of our prophets were even Arab. Majority of them are Jews. It’s in Arabic for fear of lost of meaning through translation or mistranslation, why are some Christian studies in Hebrew or Latin? Why are some Jewish studies in Hebrew? Arabic norms? I already said, it has nothing to do with Arabs, you think it does because Arabs instead follow these norms, and you mistaken that for Arabs following their own norms instead. How is prostitution disgusting? You don’t find that a women is making a show of herself simply for money at all even somewhat disgusting? Or that someone would pay a women for her to show herself at all disgusting? Yes, to a degree it is disgusting. Were not afraid of it, you just shouldn’t do it before your married, that’s all. If you want to view it as a disease go ahead. But to add a few things:1. If your going to speak of the actions of the Muslims themselves or even ”Muslims” blaming their doings on Islam, refer to the Ummah, not the Deen. 2. ISIL does not fulfil anything to do with Islam, they instead are attempting to grew an empire with themselves at its head. They are using Islam as a cover, and they are also trying to us force people into it, using it. It’s not Islam, it’s just hooligan terriosts. How can these people be considered Muslims if they don’t even truly follow Islam? Think about it.3. Salafism or Wahabism is a extreme interpretation of Islam. Not Islam itself. Even Muslims themselves think sharia is a flawed system, laws made by people from centuries ago.	African, Communist, Nothing	Ideological and Political Identity - General, Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - Black	3/500	0.6

Also, please show proof, no where does it say that he was married to his cousin. Apparently it's now being a pervert to marry women who are a different race , religion and age to you. There are tons of women who marry men around even 20 years older than them, to this day. Same thing with race , and especially race , what's wrong with marrying someone that of a race different to you? Same thing with religion, although I don't remember him ever marrying someone of a different belief. Probably another fake hadith or something of such, and where does Islam allow sex war captives? M A but i don't agree with people who lighten their skin, because it's their features and face structure which defines your ethnicity . Most of Arabs to me look more natural in their own skin shade, when they lighten it up, they don't look natural and it's a fake look. Facial features are very important in that, not only colors. No, the Quran itself is the result of this just like in Jews. I find that the Jews and Muslim Arabs hate each other for the same reason. Because they think they deserve everything since they are the chosen one. The Quran gives these verses where it's seen as it's not racist or anything but it gives that idea deep down in the head as an example in a verse where it's said that god wrote made Quran Arabic so we can understand and be smart. Iblis thought he was better so he didn't prostrate to Adam. At the end he harmed himself and turned into a shaitan. I think these people are really turning many people away from Islam because of how they treat others. Please try to correct yourselves and follow the prophet (s) accordingly. 'There is no difference between an Arab and a non Arabs except piety' Why Arabs in particular are imitating the Jewish. In order to be Jewish you need to have Jewish blood. Because God 'chose' them. Unfortunately, they understood the meaning wrong. God chose them at the time because of their faith. I feel bad when for the muslims when they keep on complaining about the racism in the West. I would recommend to resolve the issue of racism in Middle East then we can have the privilege to talk and correct other nations.	Racism	Ethnicity - General	3/182	1.648
As one who became a Muslim in 1999 at age 39, I didn't run into that problem in my community. However, I have seen it. In a few cases, I saw converts/reverts leave as a result. Totally subscribed, love the video, You are absolutely right and very wise! I'm American but my ex husband is Saudi, And my children are half Saudi. Not all saudis are bad or horrible but from my personal experience I've had more of the bad hand. At first things were lovely and picture perfect, and I've had a lot of Saudi friends and no offense but I've noticed the ones from the eastern providence such as Safwa and especially Al qatif come off as if they are better, richer, and more important, arrogant. They flash their expensive items and belongings, money, designer wear, and act as if you are beneath them. It's disgusting and wrong! And the way men treat woman is as if they are meat. A lot of saudis I've witnessed have wives back home or fiancés and they come here have sex with multiple girls and have babies leaving them behind after promising their mothers the world, false hope, and partying, drinking, drugs, and it goes on and on. It breaks my heart that the mothers and women wives back in Saudi have no clue. Again I'm not racist , I mean come on my children are Saudi, and I love the Arab Saudi culture and everything about it, but I can't stand others who are arrogant, liars, and come off as if you are nothing but trash beneath them. There is good and bad people all over. Just be wise and take care of yourself, And of course trust your instincts. I love arabs and the cultures. And I will always defend arabs and Muslims. Inshallah the world will wake up one day and become a better uniting place. Much love.	Nothing, Racist, Sex, Woman	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - General, Gender - General	4/284	1.408

Thank you! I am half Jordanian half Danish and I grew up in a Somali Arabic community. I remember that there was this huge Eid party and me and my siblings were playing on the bouncy castles when other children (Much older than us, they were like 14) would threaten us. They'd say things like "You're not real Muslims, you're Danes! You can't be here! I bet you brought your pig meat as well!" (This was in the Arabic Eid party, our mosques were based on ethnicity which is just horrible) This made me very sad, and soon enough i began throwing away aspects of my Danish culture. I didn't grow up with Arabic as my second language like all of the other kids, so i started to say things wrong, Grammarly incorrect, just so they'd see me as one of their own. My friend also talked very bad about Somalis and Danes, and she'd very often talk down to me.	Ethnicity	Ethnicity - General	1/162	0.617

Nadine Zacki never heard anything like that... some say north Africans are arabized with some Arabs living there, but not the Levant, they probably say that about the Lebanese because there annoying af with al that "we wuz Phoenicians an shiiet".most of the time it's the Christian Levantines that say we are not Arabs, and were not dying for them to be one of us... we honestly don't care :/but Syria, Jordan, southern Palestine have been territories where the most prominent pre Islamic arab kingdoms rose up.(Qedar, Tanukh, Nabatea, Iturea, Emesa, Araba, Osroene, Palmyra, Ghassan, Lakhm)Not to even mention the 4th largest empire and the 1st largest arab/Muslims empire in history, the Umayyads, witch were mostly made up of levantine Arabs, also the largest pre Islamic arab empire, the Palmyran empire.we have a history in the Levant and every arab knows that. Nadine Zackuhm... i meant "some" Arabs believe that north Africans are arabized and not Arabs.but most of us don't care.and i agree that most north Africans are arabized, i never said i didn't, but it's not the same case in the Levant.the majority of the Levant are of arab origins and the Arabs of the Levant belong to tribes.there are non Arabs living in the Levant like some Maronites (as there are also ethnic arab tribes like Shemor who are part of the Maronite community and many other), arameans, Assyrians, Armenians, kurds, Turks etc.but they are a minority :).and Phoenicians inhabited coastal cities in western Lebanon, and the Tartus Governorate region in Syria.and that's it!, they are Lebanese and Lebanese only.and they weren't any "Phoenicians" when the Arabs conquered the Levant, they only saw Arabs, Greeks, Romans, and latinized Semites like the arameans and a minority of Assyrians.and both Palestinians and Jordanians are of Nabatean arab origins :). Most "Arabs" aren't even "Arabs" anyway. Unless you're from the Arabian Peninsula, you aren't Arab. People speak Arabic now and have parts of the culture, because they too were conquered by Arabs centuries ago, yet they seem to forget that fact. Palestinians are a mixture of the original Semitic peoples of the Levant who were living there long before Arab conquest, and non-Mideast ancestry from Europe, Asia, and sometimes Africa. Most of the people in my family look like nothing like Arabs anyway, and the ones that do, well it's because they simply look Semitic like their Semitic ancestors of the Levant did thousands of years ago. It's not that Arabs have " racism " in the Western sense (I.e segregation, lack of opportunity for those of colour), it's that many parts of the Arab World are ethnically homogenous, so they have the "We're used to what we see complex". Also, there is zero Political Correctness in the Arab World. So many times there'll be remarks that would be considered racist in the West. Because I have a much darker skin tone than my whole extended family, my Grandma once joked about me being "Abed al Aswad" which literally means the Black Slave. My Grandma isn't a racist (hell, she's of mixed race herself) but when you're raised with statements like this being normal, it grows on you and eventually passes on generation to generation. As the new generation, we, the youth of the Arab World must put an end to this. However, it's not like people of colour are mistreated and not given a role to play in society, it's just that we grow up with these shitty thoughts that are very wrong. Sheikh-ul-Islam, Ibn Taymiyyah (ra) was of the opinion that Arabs ARE SUPERIOR (Afdal) than Non-Arabs and he claimed that this was the view that was held by the MAJORITY of the scholars – ‘Al-Jamhoor’- .He wrote: ‘And the MAJORITY of scholars are of the opinion that the Arab species is better (Afdal) than the Non-Arab (species) just as the nation of Quraish is better (Afdal) than the Non-Quraishite nations and (just as) the nation of Bani Haashim is better (Afdal) than the Non-Bani Haashim (nations).’ Majm’u Al-Fataawa 19/29He also wrote: ‘...This was the position of Imam Ahmed (ra) and the MAJORITY of Ahlul ‘Ilm.’ Iqtidaa As-Siraatil-Mustaqeem 2/421Also, refer to what he said in Majmu’ Fataawa 27/472.Unfortunately, when discussing the issue of the ‘Afdaliyyah’ or superiority of the Arabs over the ‘Ajamees’ (Non-Arabs), many people fail to do justice to this hotly debated topic.Sheikh-ul-Islam, Ibn Taymiyyah (ra) wrote:‘Verily, what Ahlul Sunnah is upon: Is the BELIEF (I’tiqaad) that the Arab race is better (Afdal) then the Non-Arab race. Whether (the Non-Arabs) are Hebrews, Aramaic, Romans, Persians and other than them...’. Iqtidaa As-Siraatil-Mustaqeem 2/419Abu Muhammad, Harb ibn Ismail ibn Khalaf Al-Kirmaany (died 280 – ra) who was one of the students and companions of Imaam Ahmed (ra) also mentioned this point when he wrote about the descriptions and BELIEFS of the PEOPLE OF THE SUNNAH.He began his treatise by saying:‘This is the Madhab of the Imams of ‘Ilm and the ‘Ashaab-ul-Athar’ and (the people of) Ahlus Sunnah – who are the ones who are followed – (and they) are well known by these (issues).And I met those who I met from the Ulemah of Iraqand the Hijaz and As-Sham and other than them and they were upon these (issues).And this was the madhab of AHMED, ISHAQ IBN IBRAHIM IBN MAKHLAD (RAAHUWIYAH), and ABDULLAH IBN AZ-ZUBAIR AL-HUMAYDEE and SA’EED IBN MANSUR and other than them from those who I sat with and took knowledge from.They used to say Emaan (faith) consists of (making) statements, (doing) actions and (having) the Niyyah...’Imam Harb ibn Ismail (ra) then proceeded to mention many of the well known issues of the Aqeedah of Ahlul-Hadith and then he said:‘...And we know the rights of the Arabs and (we know) their VIRTUE and their PRECEDENCE (in the Deen) and we love them because of the Hadith of the Messenger of Allah (peace be upon him): ‘Loving the Arabs is from Emaan and hating them is hypocrisy’.And we do not say as the ‘Shu’oobiyah’ (those who hate the Arabs) and (as) the lowly ones from the ex-slaves (say) who do not love the Arabs and they don’t recognize their virtues, for verily their statement is a BIDA’H’ and (it’s) in contradiction’.It should be noted that the Hadith that was used by Imam Harb ibn Ismail ibn Khalaf Al-Kirmaany (ra): ‘Loving the Arabs is from Emaan and hating them is hypocrisy’ is not an authentic Hadith! I have conversations with my Pakistani family members, and friends of all ethnicities about colourism and how the ideology that a lighter skin tone is better than others is so flawed and makes no sense- biologically those with darker skin are more resilient to things like sun damage so its very ironic to think light skin or certain physical features makes a person more worthy, just because of one persons' idea of 'beauty' which is subjective. Yet, its so deep rooted into all cultures that explaining makes no difference to some people- but I will never give up. We need to remember that our African , Afro-Caribbean, African American and dark skin brothers and sisters are treated most unjustly by other Muslims. We have to be conscious of their struggles in order to make a change.	African	Ethnicity - Black	2/135	1.481

i really struggled w this when i went to an islamic school. my family is from Sudan, and although i do speak arabic, i always felt like i never belonged. I had it better than most of the kids there though. Some of the arabic and quran teachers would be so rude and degrading towards the kids who had trouble reading or just weren't the best students. unfortunately, its been happening since forever, but i just wish it would stop and people could just be nice. Wallahi sometimes I cry because of how hard it is for me to memorise the Quran . I've been learning it for more then 10 years constantly and haven't even finished it yet. I feel bad when my fellow mates talk about how easy it was for them to memorise it at ages 10,11,12 while I'm still here barely passing half way. So when would it be the right time to talk about such pressing issues? We wait until the hate dies down?? Erm the hate hasn't died down since the gulf wars. This is the very reason why so many people don't talk about problems like this because they're too concerned about what other people will think or say. I mean if you really truly acknowledge how dangerous and detrimental racism is within the Muslim communities you'll want to bring a change this instance and not wait until the 'hate dies down'. It's exhausting, we have millions of religions/moral guides in the world but people still can't figure out how to treat others right such ashame. I was talking to someone specifically talking about the U.S. and immigrants who come here from Latin/Central America, Africa, Asia etc.. "How can you come to a country and not relate to the people of "color" there and their struggle?" Basically, do not pretend you are better than people with darker skin (black americans, africans etc). In the Western world white beauty is still the standard representation of beauty (although there've been some changes in advertisment/social media) so it does nothing more but create more tension when Indians, Egyptians, Chinese etcc,, think they are better than " black " americans or those of darker skin. Peace be to those in each of the worlds who struggle with these social situations. My folks have a proverb that says "trouble don't last always." And they said that when the struggle was thick and deep. There is a Quran , a deep Quran , written in creation that tells your soul what to say when you're in between a rock, a hardplace and there are many people looking down on you. Trouble don't last always means "With every difficulty comes relief." Listen, this racism thing is all time based and has no covenant of perpetuity. Whether you hide the truth or publish it, the truth is that it is a sin and those who practice it among any race will be held to account. Allah knows best. This is so, so important. I've been talking to people about it for so long, especially since I come from a country or region where people, for some reason, think they're superior? I'm a Bahraini who lives in Emirates and despite how diverse Emirates is with people from every part of the world, if you're not Arab or sometimes even from the gulf, then you're looked down upon. I like having friends from all parts of the world and somehow I found myself getting along with Pakistanis and Indians really well, and the other day we had a group project in my biology class where my Indian friend and I were put into a group with two other local girls. They were literally talking to us in such a mean way until they asked me if I were Arab and when I told them where I'm from, their tone with me changed COMPLETELY, but they were still treating my friend like shit. And Allah is All-Knower, All-Wise.” Allah also mentions that amongst these Arabs, there are those who believe in Allah (good Arabs). The poster is right. There is a reason why Allah sent the Qu’ran to the Arabs, at that time they were the worst of people and amongst other things like the beauty in the Arabic language. Now to correct your arrogance, brother. Arabs are not the teachers of Islam. Every Muslim is a teacher of Islam. We teach others literally or by our actions. What you’re saying as is against the teachings of Muhammad (SAW). You are propagating superiority, do not do that brother. Arabs, Indians, Somalis, Europeans, and what have you are all equal except in good deeds. I repeat Arabs are not the teachers of Islam as Islam belongs to Allah only. Don’t forget that Islam existed before Muhammad (SAW). It existed through Abraham, Musa (who was black), and Isa ibn Maryam. Islam was perfected in Arabia, but it started with Abraham. Don’t forget your place brother, we are all on equal footing in learning the deen. If you were born Arab say Alhamdullilah that Allah has given you an easier time in learning his words. But do not think you are superior to those who weren’t born Arab as they will earn rewards when reading the Qu’ran. I live in an Arabic community, the reason why they feel superior isn't because of the Quran or Islam as there are a lot of non Muslim arabs that still feel superior... I believe it's the history that our countries hold and just traits they pick up from their parents.. for example parents that feel superior over other nationalities will show it in front of their kids because they were raised not knowing it's bad so their children pick up from it as well.. that and the lack of education without being up any examples because I do not wish to insult any race . In the end I believe that Quran and Islam play a minor role in this. If anything Islam teaches us to be more humble and we all know that some Arabs (not all) neglect most of the good traits Islam teach us	Quran, Race	Ethnicity - General, Religious Identity - Muslim	3/146	2.055

I'm Algerian and since I mostly grew up in Canada I never really studied Arabic (fos'ha). Besides the Saturday Arabic school I used to go to when I was younger, I never really got to learn how to read and write and speak (proper) Arabic. I'm fluent in the Algerian dialect though. But I was once told that since I didn't know how to speak "real" Arabic, I wasn't Arab. According to the person who told me that, being Arab is defined by your ability to speak Arabic and I was excluded from being one because Algerian Arabic is far from its classical roots. That encounter sort of made me self conscious about my identity. So I started identifying myself as Algerian period. See how us Arabs even discriminate within our own " race ". Well, to be fair, Algerians are ethnically amazigh mixed with either south european, sub-saharan or middle-eastern dna. Ethnic Arabs are found in the Golf, but you may be an arab speaker though. Algerian dialect (derja) is arab heavily mixed with tamazight, french, spanish and turkish, it may be a language on it's own at this point just like Maltese is. To be understood by other arabs, Algerians have to speak the Lebanese and Egyptian dialects...why change who we are, why make all these efforts if they don't even make an effort to learn our dialect? For them, Algerians will never be arab enough, so why bother? We have two amazing languages and an amazing culture, let's celebrate us as Algerians and North Africans.	Ethnic	Ethnicity - General	1/123	0.813
I stopped bothering a long time ago and to be honest even before I still considered myself Algerian first because of how different we are from the Middle Eastern Arabs. And I completely agree with you, we do have an amazing culture and languages. I'm an Arab (derja) speaker in the sense that I do not speak Amazigh. Ethnically I do have some Berber blood (like all Algerians whether they acknowledge it or not) and some Turkish ancestry as well. But it's hard to pin point my ethnicity . Us Algerians have known centuries of colonialism and migration that I can't really trace back my ancestry (believe me I tried and it's frustrating not knowing). As far as I know I'm just Algerian and on a broader scale North African .	African, Ethnicity	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	2/129	1.55

I don't blame arabs entirely for their superiority, growing up in the Bengali community we also held Arabs on a pedestal. Growing up I used to think they were the better muslims, we asians were some how lower class. Its only now years on do I see the problem with that. I mean it still exists in both communities. I went to a Muslim majority high school and I was looked down upon for brown skinned. Racist rhetoric was just seen as the norm.The worst was when I went hajj though. To go into the area with the prophet's grave they split everyone by country, my mum and my sister was with me and we're all brown girls so despite being Australian they pushed us in with all the Pakistani/Bengali/Indian people. I have no issue with being put with that group but my issue was that the people in charge decide that it was appropriate to split everyone by country, then to have all the people of Arab decent go through first because some how their prayers are much more important than mine. In the end we waited for hours and we didn't even get to go in, we ended up having to go back another day and had to have the Arab members of the hajj group we went with help us get in. Being an Arab in the Muslim world is a privilege. Yes, in western society muslims are now being frowned upon, but WITHIN the Muslim society we do have that privilege. Also, I am really disappointed in the Arabs calling our Black Muslims 'Abd' instead of 'Sowd', and using religion to justify that. You cannot call someone 'Abd' and justify it using religion without adding 'Allah' (Like, we are all Abed Allah but when you remove the God part you're literally just calling someone a slave- and that's racist). The same issue applies in South Africa but with Indian Muslims being the "Arabs" in this scenario. Majority, unfortunately look down upon black Muslims and will only engage with black Muslims if they are mixed, Somali, or an imam or sheikh. It gets becomes such an issue that some will not eat with black people from the same dish. As well as they think that one cannot be a South African Zulu Muslim and not be 'beautiful' or have a 'nice sharp nose' but rather immediately think that you are Somali, or Sudanese or whatever. This is such a sad thing to see and experience especially considering the fact that the Prophet Muhammad (saw) and Allah (SWT) clearly said that it is wrong to think that you are above anyone. I am Arab, living in an Arab country and obviously, I spend most of my time with other Arabs. I often witness the indirect racist remarks us Arabs make unintentionally, especially of the desi community. The desi community in the Middle East are ridiculed and bashed, Arabs make their beliefs a mockery, and some Arab Muslims feel superior because they speak and read Arabic, so they don't have to invest so much time in trying to read Qur'an because it's their native language. But majority of Arabs own internalised hate for their own selves, you can kind of see it when they immediately want to befriend someone of Cacaussian descent or someone with an "ajnabi" passport. The biggest shame of all is that most Muslims have not actually read the Quran cover to cover, or even bother to really learn about Sunnah, the Quran, and the Hadith or to implement real islamic teachings in their lives. If they actually did this, the problem you mentioned as well as many other problems in Muslim countries would not exist! Being just, fair, not racist and treating others equally and with respect and dignity are the underpinnings of our religion. There is a reason we are mandated to complete Hajj. At Hajj every color, race, and social class stands in the same clothes next to each other, because no one is better then anyone else and we are all servants of Allah (swt). Tazzy never makes fun of arabs. That’s mostly when she invites her friends in her videos to spoof certain stereotypes for instance her arab friends spoofs arab men, and tazzy herself spoof south asians. Anyways sometimes as a muslim it can get hard to not get angry at the racism in the community, but I think in the end you can’t really change what people say or if they think you’ll never be a good muslim just because you aren’t arab. As much as it hurts in the end you just move on, and you do things you love, and leave the rest to Allah. And for me being the control freak I am, that is hard to do because my first (not best) reaction is to immediately trash talk people who are racist or be racist back, to take control of the situation and make them feel equally as hurt. But that’s probably not even going to change their minds tbh. And my time is worth so much more than trying to prove to people who don’t like me for something I can’t help that I’m good enough. I don’t do it for white racists or arab racists or any type of racists. I think putting your mental health over what the haters say is very important, and just block if you have too. Spot on. I have conversations with my Pakistani family members about colourism and how the ideology that a lighter skin tone is better than others is so flawed and makes no sense- biologically those with darker skin are more resilient to things like sun damage so how could light skin be more worthy just because of one persons' idea of 'beauty'? Yet, its so deep rooted into all cultures that explaining makes no difference to some people. We need to remember that our African , Afro-Caribbean and African American brothers and sisters are treated most unjustly by other Muslims. We have to be conscious of this in order to make a change. Absolutely. This is exactly what white privilege is. The whiter or 'closer to white' you are, the more normal you seem and the more 'easy' it is for one to integrate and be accepted in society. The notion of Arab superiority predates oil and is deeply rooted in ancient history. Surprisingly, color was not the main driver as Arabs came in different shades. It was the fact that they followed a strict code of "ethics" that valued genealogy and the ability to trace ancestors back to hundreds of years which they believed reflected back on one's personal conduct. It didn't only target non-Arabs as this superiority complex manifested itself in inner-Arab tribal rivalries. Islam came and introduced laws that improved race relations, especially among the first generation of Muslims in Arabia .. it strongly encouraged the freeing of slaves generally and as an atonement for certain crimes. Sadly, it didn't ban it altogether. Muslim Arabs went from having the first black secretary of treasury (Bilal bin Rabah) in Medina in the early days of the Muslim state to enslaving people of all colors in later generations, including white Europeans (Saqalibah). That is not to say it was only practiced by Arabs .. most cultures did it. The only difference is that as Muslims, Arabs struggled to reconcile their pre-Islamic traditions with a new religion that emphasized the equality of all races. This feeling of superiority is a remanent of days past and is mainly discussed behind closed doors since it is frowned upon religiously and morally.	Black, Race	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	2/220	0.909

I don't know about others, but at least the Pakistanis that I know...especially my very own family. ..they constantly put Pakistanis down and say oh look arab Muslims, turks, Indonesians etc are so good and better Muslims and look at us. ..and then my family forces my brother to wear a thobe and instead of his regular shalwar kameez (traditional outfit)..i mean be proud of your culture and don't do the wrong things practiced! It's not our fault that just because we have similar heritage as of Hindus, that we have to adopt evrything of theirs. Indonesian is a group of ethnicities and races like javanese, bugis, balinese, malay, papuans, arab, chinese or indian descents. Indonesia is not the same like Turkey or most of middle eastern countries that is homogeneous. We are heterogeneous and multicultural society but we have identity and our own uniqueness. I know it's not really important but just FYIAnd about the video, I think what he said is not to underestimate his own ethnicity (arab) but just to emphasize that everyone is same just like what Allah says in Quran . Of course I'm sure he's proud of his culture but he aimed it to racists that are still exist in arab society who look down people who are not arab. Ana Sawitri id like to inform you that The republic of Turkey is a mix of all ethnicities. People tend to either cluster Turkey in the middle east or say Turkey is very Western. Turkey is the remnants of a very indigeneous empire. It consisted of all kinds of people. for eg in the black sea region of Turkey there are the Laz people they have the laz language. There are the spanish jews, italians, kavkaz, chepni, turkmen, Rum. In Turkey they would ask which part you are from and ask your ancestry because we are not all Turks. Turkic people are spread out across asia and Eurasia. Turkey is different. People dont realise that.	Black	Ethnicity - Black	1/115	0.87

I believe the issue of superiority or colorism is due to western colonialism and the spread of nationalism into the east by the west if you look at Islamic history you would find that this issue did not really exist, Muslim empires often embraced other cultures and intermarried. The issue of colorism is not limited to the east neither but also exist in Africa and Asia. It's sad Islam was suppose to remove this disease of superiority. The prophet warned us against this in his final speech. And It's definitely created division in the Muslim ummah, i see it as one of the diseases that holding us back from succeeding as an ummah. No. Arab racism existed long before colonialism and long after Islam. Ibn Taymiyyah is a good example of this mentality, a well respected scholar who believed Arabs are superior. Oh you're very ignorant about history. It changed a little bit in the late abbasi times almost when the Turks started taking over. In the Emevi empire there was a strong movement along non Arabs called shuubiyya and they were all non Arabs who are against the racism and slavery that is done. Search it. It's sad and even till now Arabs say that the movement was wrong when it wasn't. Also a lot of the non Arab Muslim scientists and authors in abbasi times were arabnised and even shamed and discriminated and called infidels for having different knowledge or religion (that is not told to anyone who doesn't dig in the history those people we know now as big were people who were wanted for their heads) and for having a mixed blood or for being completely from another race or writing about things that is not common to Arabs knowledge which Persians and Turks mastered. And even now they still make all the non Arab authors back in the "Islamic history" as Arabs with really smart way like adding "al" in the beginning of surnames as an example instead of well known khavarizmi they add alkavarzimi. Elyahu Akbar So I take it you have studied this person's personal DNA results? Ethnic and national identities are not as simple as you seem to wish they were. Yes, Egypt has an ancient non Arab cultural heritage, no-one denied that. However, Arab culture has been a huge influence on Egypt for well over a thousand years, in addition to the many people that migrated to Egypt from the Levant and the Arab peninsula. In the modern political sense most Egyptians consider themselves Arab and are considered Arab in a broad sense on the world stage due to their close linguistic, geographical and cultural ties with the rest of the Arab world. This in no way means that Egyptians have given up, or were asked to give up their unique cultural identity as Egyptians. I am hoping that millennials and future generations of Muslims living in the West will be able to eradicate this fitnah in sha' Allah. This problem doesn't seem like it is repairable in Muslim countries in the near future.... As a Pakistani I can read the quran due to same alphabets as Arabi but... how I wish to learn the language of Quran is beyond explainable, and that my children may speak it as their mother tongue in sha' Allah.And the Prophet (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) said:'The likeness of the believers in their mutual love, mercy and compassion is that of the body; when one part of it is in pain, the rest of the body joins it in restlessness and fever.' Wow I cannot express how relatable and how much I felt every word said in this video.I work as a medical intern here in Riyadh, KSA and as the only half Indian , half Filipino intern amongst Arabs, it feels like I am probably the only one who notices these things. Every Arab patient is referred to by their name but if it was a non-Arab then they are known as "that Hindi guy" or "hada filibeeni", etc and I can go so far as to say that they do not receive the same attention and care as the other Arab patients do. I could actually go on forever about this haha but I truly appreciate the fact that you shed some light on this, and there is actually someone out there other than me who wants to change this You go Subhi! Oh I can totally relate to this. I'm an Indian and I've been living in Saudi Arabia for almost 10 years now. For the most part, saudis are actually really nice and friendly. But then there are some who just never think of us Indians as equals. Like you said, people come up to me to ask something and then they realize that I'm not Saudi and go "ohh anta hindi" and then just walk away. Not everyone is like that but there are some who just think we are not one of them (as in we're Muslims too). I also face something similar in India because of my religion (a religion I'm grateful to be able to follow). But it's basically like we belong no where Wait, I think I know where we belong! 100 this but as a Muslim brother of Gujarati ethnicity . My family and I left KSA over a decade ago to Canada for my career and it's a little embarrassing to admit that I've been treated better by the hostile non-Muslims here than by some of the Saudi natives back home. To be fair though, I've hardly acquainted myself with European Canadians in my time here since I live in Toronto, but on the off-chance that I have it's almost always a negative experience because I'm outwardly Muslim. Despite all this, I do miss life in Jeddah, the friends I made, the vibrant masjids, the overall friendly people, and the feeling of truly living under Islam. I cannot stress the final point enough, since living in the west inevitably corrupts your imaan. As evidence for this, the general Muslim population where I live are deep into riba and their brains have been hardwired to accept secular liberalism. If it were up to me, I would have never left KSA, even if it meant working a menial job. And if any of you are thinking of leaving your Islamic environment just because of a few bad encounters with non-practicing Muslims, by Allah, it's not worth it. Islam comes first. Turks look down upon Arabs for one of the other reasons. Which is around WW1, where the Arab tribes were set up against the Turks, by the English. We actually fought some Arabs, and to this day, a lot of Turks have not forgotten that. My father for example always brings that up. Funny thing is, my whole friend group is Arab (like 95 Moroccan) haha. They love Turks and the Ottoman Empire, they stand by it. So yeah it is kind of a weird relationship. Thank you for sharing this! Just wanted to share my experience too. In my country, Singapore, we're (alhamdulillah) quuuute united in terms of race , culture, religion etc. However, that doesn't mean racism doesn't exist. It is VERY MUCH alive, just that majority of the people here normalise this, which is so so sad because they think that racism is only exclusive to the US. SEE FOLKS THIS IS THE PROBLEM RIGHT HERE. I've personally received remarks from random strangers eg. "wow you're in a university? You're smart for a Malay girl" and "you speak well for a Malay". I've even heard things on the street (and whoa, the things people say are so upsetting). I try my best to politely call people out on this, but they take it as a joke like "man, don't be so serious", "it's true right?" and "he/she also said this". I disagree with you wearing an abayah isn't imitation of Arabs it's called the dress code for Islam and wearing a thobe is part of sunnah as the prophet muhammed used to wear it . Arabic isn't only for Arabs it's the language of the Quran so anyone can speak it . Get off your high horse and educate yourself . You clearly cannot differentiate the difference between culture & islam.	Quran	Religious Identity - Muslim	1/71	1.408

Sabz Ismail I also see wearing an abaya as an Islamic dress code and the dress of the Prophet Muhammad (saw). That's why I'm proud to wear it as a separation of the other religion of my race , to show I represent Islam. Sorry to go against your view Kay Bell But see it as more Islamic than Arab. Islam does not belong to the Arabs any more than it belongs to the Turks, Africans, Malaysians, Tartars, Pakistanis, Indonesians, Iranians etc.	Race	Ethnicity - General	1/82	1.22

Kay Bell Christians do, they also have a race problem. The non white Christians blindly look up to white Christians for who knows what possible reason. Jesus gets depicted as a white man, not an Arab. In some African churches, the head priest is a white man and below him are the black priests. We should be glad Hazrath Bilal and Sayyidah Hajra were given such high status in Islam, both being African . No matter what any Arab says, the first Muazzin was and always will be an African man. you are probably the most stupid person i've ever met. other races (non-arab) know how to appreciate other cultures, and not translate the appreciation as a signal of inferiority. If an indian likes italian foods or language, italians dont translate this as 'we are superior.' it seems that you arabs have a problem understanding that.stop translating the unfortunate minority who like your cultureless stuff, as them 'worshipping you.' appreciating other peoples customs and cultures is a global trend.	Indian	Ethnicity - Native-American	1/79	1.266
no one is misunderstanding what you wrote - so stop talking shit. you clearly said that arabs and non-arabs play a part in feeding the arab superiority complex. i love how other cultures (who are civilised), can appreciate other cultures, and not translate this into 'being superior.' as a south asian, i can eat chinese food or go to a caribbean carnival - but these races wont think that i am 'worshipping them/trying to imitate them + be them.' but me wearing an abaya or thobe is trying to 'be arab.' - non arabs learn arabic and wear thobes/abayas? guess the quran should be in a different language then, and what other loose /unfitted piece of black cloth should we wear when we pray?you guys really need to get over yourselves. if it wasnt for your oil you discovered a few years ago, y'all would all be more trash and stuck in civil wars. Kay Bell Ma'am you're extremely rude and did you say Pakistanis think of themselves as superior? How many years have you lived in Pakistan and for how long? My father went to Dubai a few years back and the first thing he told me was how rude and inconsiderate most native arabs were not just to him but to all foreigners even on the damn airport. He said he never experienced that in any of travels to the US because no matter what they treat you politely. My sister lived in Saudi Arabia and she narrated the arrogance with which Saudis treat South Asian workers and it's beyond anything you can imagine. Pakistanis don't have a superiority complex that does not mean that every Pakistani will be inclusive of everyone but they don't treat you like shit the way some Arabs do. Your own comment proves that you lack basic manners on how to deal with criticism. There is colorism prevalent in most societies including Pakistan but people don't treat foreigners living in their communities as lesser humans as a norm. It actually was an Indian incident in which black Nigerians were attacked and beaten horribly in a mall this year not in Pakistan. The silliness and narrow-mindedness of some individuals should not dictate the way you live your life. Arabic is not "their language" it's commonly spoken (with some differences/dialects) even by non arabs and it's most importantly the Quran's language. Moreover what you highlight is pretty common no matter the language: native speakers tend to laugh at others accents/makes fun of them which is childish. If your status in society and quality of life depends on your ethnic background for 700 years, then of course people will carry on the idea of "the whiter the better." Basically the more creole blood one had, the more of a chance to have a better life, while the native "aetas", who had dark complexions, lived in designated areas away from towns. Actually, Arabs prefer skin tones that are within a certain range. Too dark or too pale indicates that the person is not actually pure Arab. Not sure where this idea that we prefer pale skin and blue eyes is coming from. It is often questionable and referred to as mixed blood. The root of it comes from the fact that during the glory days of Arabs, slaves and concubines were brought in from Africa, Eastern Europe and Caucasian mountains. It is associated with most Arab's minds that way. That's why very dark and very light complexions are not favoured. Some Arab tribes are known to have gingers and in the greater Syria region (Syria, Lebanon, Palestinian, Jordan and north western Iraq) we know what towns and villages have red hair and pale skin gene mutations. The obsession with pale skin and blue eyes comes from the same mentality of idolizing your colonizer. For Arabs that refers toThe ottomans. True Arabs genuinely dislike very pale skin and blue eyes because it is either associated with slavery and concubines or colonization. Dark skin is just like the rest of the world association with slavery. Avoiding the sun is mainly because when an Arab tans, most often it gets blotchy and uneven after few weeks. I personally grew up hearing ' too pale .. has no colour.. looks skinned.. has Asian features.. kinky haired.. big lips' as characters to dislike. All back to the same point, just like everyone, Arabs prefer what resembles them. Supreme? Not really.. it is simply not same values or look of who we are. Arabs are the kindest and most genuinely accepting of others. Just because we appreciate who and what we are does not mean we have supremacy complex. I believe that as Arabs we have always been defending who we are because other Muslims and neighboring nations resent us for a few hundred glory years that are long gone now. I'm half arab and african, im egptian and sudani and I have skin and a lot of people mistake me for being Indian. I hate how Arabs think light skin= beauty and dark skin is ugly because its just not fair and right. My mom is light skin but I always hear her talking bad about people with dark skin and she completely forgets about me her son. My dad is also light skin even though he is sudani, but he doesn't talk bad about people with dark skin because he was born in an African country. I just wish people in general could stop judging beauty by skin color.Edit: You know actually Sudan is an Arab country because we speak Arabic as our first langue and we practice the Arab culture, of course we have our differences like every Arab country. Not all Arab countries are the same, but I still consider my self African mainly because people won't acknowledge the fact that im Arabic even though I speak the langue!	African, Indian	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - Native-American	4/173	2.312
nina a you want to be European so bad . You are pitiful and sad. Clearly you're brainwashed. Real Arabs as you say from the jet herb Middle East as you are those mixed race people you are bashing. Like the Syrians and the levant people. Those people are mixed with European from the days the ottomans enslaved Europeans and raped and mixed with the European women slaves. That's why they look like that. Also 'real' arabs as you say look nothing like what you describe them as. Imam Ahmed Hanbal had dark skin so they say and he was an Arab. It seems that you're deluded and want to apply a fixed narrow perspective on what real Arabs look like. It's probably only your tribe and a few other Arab tribes with fair skin, but many other Arabs tribes have dark skin. And yes, their DNA test is 100 percent arab!	Nothing, Race	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - General	2/152	1.316
nina a that's a lie. How can Yemeni Saudi not be real arabs when arabs ORIGINATED from Yemen and spread to Saudi? Are you ok? Are you high on ignorance? You're taking mixed Arabs aka levant Arabs who are extremely mixed just like the North African Arabs and calling the Levantine Arabs, real Arabs. Even though they are not. Those people are mixed with the indigenous Phoenicians, southern and Eastern Europeans and north East African. You need to do your research. When Yemenis saudis Emiratis get DNA they have one of the highest amounts of arab blood. And they are brown skin.	African	Ethnicity - Black	2/102	1.961

Unfortunatley,even if I don't live in a diverse country as the U.S,this is something I noticed too....just by watching egyptian tv...Personally I don't think it has anything to do with islam and the fact that we speak arabic because we don't have the same degrading attitude towards other non-speaking arabic cultures like the western one (europeans and americans) bel3aks, we respect them and lately we're even trying to be more and more like them...so I think this is more about "the victim syndrome" (-> when victims of bullying become bullies themselves)we've experienced racism and been looked upon bu the west "men fo2 le ta7t" so we try to feel better/feel superior again by treating other ethnicites (especially asians and blacks) in a really horrible way...Either way this is a disgusting behavior that really needs to stop :(Thanks for addressing the issue	Racism	Ethnicity - General	1/144	0.694
For someone who's brought up in an Arab country as an Indian , I can totally relate to it. It's so overwhelming to see that they express their superiority even in the masjids. Even if you try speaking in Arabic to them, you're laughed at. It's really sad to see this happening in the land where once our Prophet (saws) spoke of equality among all races. But nevertheless, there are Arabs who are generous and kind. May Allah swt bless us all with hidayah and hikmah.	Indian	Ethnicity - Native-American	1/85	1.176

Majeedah KhanI have seen the Prophet PBH 17 times in my life ,most Arabs I have seen do not look like the Prophet PBH. Yes I know that there are many Arabs who have this type of behavior but I have also seen this with some of the Pakistanis so racism and arrogance exists in all races . Can you imagine the Prophet PBH he was majestic and people would tremble in front him yet there was 100 no pride and arrogance in him so people should feel ashamed of themselves if they say "I am"I have seen Prophet Abraham ,Isa,Musa,and Nabi Khidr PBT one time how I saw Nabi Ibrahim PBH was the following: I saw Sayyidina Ibrahim PBH with a face that was not completely round but slightly oval, upside v eye brows, v hairline and hair was a raven black and wavy and he had a aquiline nose bridge which was one flowing curve not a bump then a curve and not hooked neither jagged neither too big or too small . The curve started at root of nose and was straight across at the nasal base and he was fair in color and i saw him without a mustache just like how you see some muslim grow their beard everything about him was not too much and not too little. The Prophet PBH said he resembled his forefather the most and he is truthful in his speech	Black, Racism	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	2/244	0.82

Subhi! Thank you for this video! I've been always trying to fix or fight this mentality but I'm usually told that I'm just too sensitive or it's not that big of a deal or I should just shut up about it. The superiority thing has always made me very angry and I was never afraid or shy to tell the people or my family and relatives that what they're saying is indeed very racist and is very wrong. As an Asian at age 11 that hadn't been exposed to Arabs before umrah, I was to say the least shocked how they treated us. Nobody really looked at us like equals and i wasn't sure why. I heard my parents discussing how they judged us through our colour and inability to speak Arabic. The way even shopkeepers treated us was appalling. I've never understood it since we have been taught that we are all equal but coming from a part Arab I'm glad to know that I wasn't just hallucinating about the discrimination we faced. It's probably your features not your colour because some arabs are quiet dark and that's a shame. Especially in saudi when it's supposed to be the holiest and one of the most religious lands. I suppose racism exists in every culture though south-east asians are usually very racist towards black people but they look up to arabs a lot. I just think racism is a display of ignorance and miseducation or no education. I can definitely tell this is how the muslim community feels as a whole though	Black, Racism, Racist	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	4/88	4.545
