For my experience I am a black medium Carmel skin complexion tone short soft looking black guy and I am 35 year old I am over looked or seen as object I don't know where I fit in at I am look too young or I am too old and as a gay black I am tired of being the scapegoat of the world.. Honestly I lie about my age on apps, once you hit thirty people act like you're a shriveled old man. I dont even look thirty, but just the fact that the number is on my profile disqualifies me in the minds of so many damn guys. Its ridiculous how damn picky the gay community is, while at the same time always complaining they cant find a life partner when all they go for is stud muffins with nothing to offer besides looks. In the gay community, if you are young and beautiful and physically fit, you can get away with literal murder among gays. I'm 52 and the issue for me about getting older is not about the younger guys, it is about the guys my age or older not wanting to be with men close to their age . I prefer to be with men around my age but a lot of them want younger guys!	Age	Age - General	3/52	5.769

Hi Danny, very interesting video - I myself am a 48 years old out Irish gay male, originally from a little village about 20 miles from Dublin (and I also lived in Dublin for 3 years), currently living in Manchester here in the UK since 2002 but I too have been discriminated against from other gay men, including on the Dublin gay scene, even at gay pride events, where I have found that other gay men have been my worst bullies to date - I simply gave up trying to interact with any male (gay or straight) more than 5 years younger than myself, because of the judgemental attitudes that I encountered from other gay men, even here in Manchester and yet, on my frequent visits home to Ireland, I do not have the same kind of non-acceptance from my family and friends back home that I do from other gay men, despite the fact that I am also a devout Mass-going Catholic, where my being gay is fully accepted in my Catholic parish and faith community, both back home in Ireland and here in the UK - in fact, when I go home to Ireland, I visit a group of enclosed Poor Clare Sisters in their Convent in Dublin and in speaking to the Sisters through the grille, they are fully accepting of my being gay, where they were my late father's former employers, as my extended family and friends have a lot of personal connections to Catholic religious orders and congregations of Priests, Brothers, Monks, Friars and Nuns - when I was growing up, I was always taught about Catholic 'faith and morals' including in relation to my being gay, but this thing about discrimination and prejudice within the LGBT community is in itself an issue of morality in terms of how we treat other people - how can we possibly champion the rights and equality of and for LGBT people globally when we treat each other so badly, making ourselves look like hypocrites	Gay, LGBT, Old	Age - Over 65s, Sexual Identity - General, Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality, Sexual Identity - Transexuality	29/336	8.631
ive been treated worse by other gay men than any other group because my age. i like being 50. we are cool people and we dont have to be accepted. i learned as i got older to not worry about what other gay men think. irrational behavior is not good for both straight and gays. expecting someone to like you is irrational. should,could, must are irrational words. i dont have any friends, am a black sheep of the family, so i make up my own way of fun and entertainment. dont need others approval. that is the problem for us gay men. we want society to accept us. most of society dont. i dont let it bother me. i only fight if someone gets in my space and like to cause trouble. i quit being pacifist in that respect because hate is hate and i will not put up with it.	Age, Black, Gay	Age - General, Ethnicity - Black, Sexual Identity - General, Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality	8/151	5.298
It is nice to know that Filipinos are not so Age Prejudiced or in other ways like the so-called "more civilized" West.	Age	Age - General	1/22	4.545

Ageism, among other things, is DEFINITELY an issue amongst gay men. Yet, in many ways, we only have OURSELVES to blame. We put so much value on being young that we don't embrace the reality that we will grow older, and embrace that reality with respect. For many gay men, aging has an element of karma. They know how they treated older men in the past, and now they see that they are getting older and realizing that their time in the sun is coming to an end. I, myself, am 38, and I would totally prefer to date or be in relationship with someone my age . However, there are many men who are my age that are dealing with a great deal of emotional damage and fear because of their experiences as being gay . I fear that we are seeing a vicious cycle with gay men and aging, among other things. I pray that we find a way to collectively make changes. I'm 30 but look a fair bit younger (many people assume I'm about college- age , 22 or so). I'm primarily attracted to younger guys around 18-22 or so and always have been (when I was younger and they were older than me, those were also the ages I liked), but I've begun misrepresenting my age on dating sites lately because people have used my age as a reason not to talk to me. I don't always use such apps for dating either, I'm also looking for friends, and I like to talk about my various interests such as writing, languages, electronic music, and learning about other cultures and perspectives. I also think it's vitally important that younger people have older friends and vice versa, especially in the gay community, where we sometimes still face a lot of prejudice depending on where you live or what your situation is. We ALL need that kind of support and to come together as equals, regardless of petty little differences like age . We can't afford to exclude one another, in the same way society over the years has excluded us and other people who were different or didn't fit into their box. That doesn't mean you can't have standards or be attracted to the kind of people you are. But at least keep an open mind about friendships and realize that not everyone is out to creep on you or hurt you, and many just want to protect you. As another side of this too however, I just want to point out that some younger gay men are attracted to older and vice versa as well, and neither party should be ashamed of that. If both parties are consenting and within the boundaries of the law, there's nothing wrong with it and fuck what anyone says. thank you Danny. I watch a lot of "coming out" videos, primarily because a young gay guy I knew very well, killed himself after being rejected by his family. I don't ever want to see or hear of that happening again and I pledged after coming home from his funeral that I would do anything in my power to prevent it from happening again. Yes I do get the usual brainless comments now and the from those I'd hope would know better. But the end goal is all that concerns me. if I can help in any small way to stop even one person from taking their life, I'll happily take all the abuse in the world. Ageism certainly is real among some that can't imagine themselves one day being in that same demographic. If some of your young viewers comment here about their feelings in what sounds discriminatory towards us it might be helpful for them to not just understand that if they're lucky they too will become members of an aged population but that it would be measurably beneficial for our society as a whole if they were to visit a senior care facility and take note of what really happens as one ages. It's a sad truth that as you live your life having a large social circle in your teens and through to what some may refer to as middle life, that change is in the wind. As each decade there after passes you eventually lose contact with so many that once you knew and even considered to be your "friends" through natural attrition which obviously includes the fate of mortality. Thanks for understanding how one such as myself that has one maybe two and on a stretch three friends at this stage of my life (I'm 59) that at times when I'm alone and search for what is currently happening I find this medium of YouTube to be quite inspirational. Comments made such as this one by myself are for me a way of having a chance to speak freely and hopefully have a virtual connection with others even if I never receive a "Like" ...it, YouTube is an outlet, a way of connecting of understanding and of revisiting our own youthful past. Best wishes to all....	Ageism, Senior	Age - General, Age - Over 65s	2/265	0.755
Danny I came across this video about Ageism in the LGBT community while doing research for a college paper. Jhad True. LGBT people of color are invisible for the simple reason that a certain segment of the 'gay community' doesn't want to see anyone who is considered undesirable and, you guessed correctly, anyone who happens to be over 40, non- white and doesn't fit the stereotype of 'male attractiveness', which although subjective still tends to be 'young and male ', although youth is the main factor.... regardless of race or ethnicity . I'm one of the "older gays" I watch video by younger gays mostly out of admiration and a bit of jealousy. Younger gays have no idea of the intensity of the discrimination and hate we had to go through with no way to talk to anyone about it. I was born in 1942, and I came out at a time when doing that was even riskier than now. So, I could not start forming friendships, either gay OR straight, when my personal development needed to do that. Today, I am blessed with a same-sex partner within throwing distance of my age . Youtube is my only way of following the GLBT community, even a little. Of course, there is TowleRoad, thankfully. I totally agree that there's ageism in the gay community. That being said, honestly, what could SO many men twice and three times your age possibly have in common with someone your age ? Personally, I think that, in and of itself is fueling and perpetuating exactly the ageism they're complaining about. If everyone focused their attention on their own age range (no age gaps comparable to father and son) there wouldn't be issues. jetsetfool You also have to consider that times were different for older gays when they were young men as opposed to how things are now. It's a lot of missed time and opportunities for older men. I completely agree with what you're saying but at the same time it's easier said than done. Plus you can't police who older gay men want to associate with. What a wonderful video, as an older gay male I have seen more than my fair share of ageism in the gay community and I think it's wonderful you are bringing it to everyones attention.I would like to say however I see ageism in western society as a whole. Many kids today treat their elders like a burden or a nuisance, there's definitely a lack of respect. It seems when their parents get old they can't wait to get them put in a home, it really saddens me. I am 19 and get discriminated against by gay peers my age already so I can only imagine what it would be like when I was older... It's time for us gays to grow up and realize that we are all people with feelings and to treat others the way we would like to treat ourselves. Maybe gays are so used to being hated on that we can easily hate as well but I will always treat others the only way: The polite way. Well speaking as an older gay man, has it ever occurred to some of the younger gay guys that we have had more fun in our time than you have had hot dinners? This older gay man is happy being in his forties (the secret is to broaden your horizons in real life and move away from an exclusive gay social life - which gets a bit boring after a few years anyways) ... (3of3) Age may have its advantages of knowledge but that goes both ways, us older people can learn from you the younger generations as well. (1of3) Well done on the video. I have come across possible " Ageism " 2 times that I am aware of, both at my cities only gay nightclub. To be honest I 100 agree with what you're saying & I'm just 16 myself. I believe there is no point in blackballing older Gay men & putting them all in one stereotype & categorising them as pervs, paedo's etc. It's stupid because at the end of the day we are ALL going to be old one day.. You are far more mature in your outlook than many other ppl your age . You have great insight. I've been going to clubs since I was in my 20's in the 1970's. I turn 60 this year. Years ago I gave up caring what anyone else there thinks. I don't allow my actions to be shaped by the stupidity of others – no matter what their age ! Now I live in Las Vegas. Google "Krave Las Vegas" to take a look at a club I now often visit. It's always a good time. :-)	Age	Age - General	2/94	2.128

My partner and I made the mistake of visiting a gay club a while back...I was 55 and he's 64. It was like a scene in an old Western movie, when the bad-guy walks into the saloon...it got very, very quiet, and we could feel every eye on us. We sat at the bar for a bit, but, there were just too many almost-whispered comments ("old man sex ...ew," was one of the kindest), so, we left. How quickly 'society' forgets that until recently all homosexuals were 'diagnosed' disordered. The historical norm of adult male attraction for adolescent males has only in recent times become 'creepy' do to the success of Femo-Fascist Liberation. Big Mommy/Sister mind-control hypnosis fueled by psychological tearoism is only the latest tactic to undermine self-control in society. As a medical diagnosis, pedophilia, or paedophilia, is defined as a psychiatric disorder in persons who are 16 years of age or older typically characterized by a primary or exclusive sexual interest in PREPUBESCENT CHILDREN (generally those under the age of 14, though onset of puberty varies). The PREPUBESCENT CHILD must be at least five years younger than the adolescent before the attraction can be diagnosed as pedophilia.	Age, Sexual	Age - General, Gender - General	3/68	4.412
On a serious note; being "creepy" and being a molester of children isn't the same, I am sure we all agree. If a 17 year old "boy" has a sexual affair with a 28 year old woman , she will not be called a paedophile rapist (maybe in America, who knows). Turn it around and we suddenly have a problem. Make it a homosexual couple and all hell breaks loose. All I ask for in this world is a little consistency. Very well put and a thoughtful video. I'm not sure I concur with the concept that if I watch an 18 year old video it makes me a pedophile. Beauty whether gay or straight is to be admired and unfortunately no one can escape the aging process. The term pedophile would be appropriate if one lusted for a prepubescent person. Age has replaced race or other factors as being the acceptable means of being prejudiced against people. Prejudice means pre-judging. It's not acceptable to presume someone in a certain way because of their race , but it's socially accepted to do so based on age . People are more separated based on age than ever. Kids are kept to their own age group and discouraged from interacting with anyone more than a couple years older or younger, so they're not good at dealing with younger/older people.	Age, Race	Age - General, Ethnicity - General	6/84	7.143
I agree. I'm 26 and still look 20, yet an 18 year-old at the club I used to go to seemed interested in me until I told him my age , at which point he made a disgusted face and walked away. Mind you, this was when I was 22. I often shudder at what's happening in the world these days, especially for those like me who have enjoyed mentoring youth. But as stupid as society can be, it's refreshing and gives me hope that more younger people are realizing that not all older guys are creeps.	Age	Age - General	1/96	1.042
I'm 45yo and I feel discriminated against more by younger straight people than younger gay people. In fact you see lot's of inter-generational relationships in the gay community than with straight couples. I think that the young gay guys who are repelled by older gay guys are pretty self centered to think that the older guy is a predator out to get them. I think it is along the same lines as being a straight guy who is afraid of gay men because they think they are going to try to hit on them.	Gay	Sexual Identity - General, Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality	10/94	10.638
You're well-informed and make for interesting viewing here, proving that not all youngsters are dumb and misguided. I'm 28, gay and the majority of videos I watch on YouTube are of people under 21. I look younger than my age and it's annoying and pathetic that the instant a younger gay guy find out your age that you're either blocked/ignored or suffer childish, ageist abuse and "pervert" accusations. I also have some fantastic young friends that are intelligent enough to understand this. There are many younger guys who actually find older guys to be quite attractive aesthetically and based on their experience, resulting maturity and hence reliability. And these symbiotic and quite healthy relationships are as old as mankind. People learn their attitudes toward these issues and the derisive social dynamic was carefully designed to weaken societies of all kinds. Due to weak people... it works every time. I agree that there is no " gay community."The word "community" connotes something that is warm, accepting, friendly to its members, and vibrant. What exists is an elitist " gay hierarchy", which is cold, rejecting, and unfriendly to those who are considered unattractive, and which is moribund, because everyone who is at the top of the hierarchy now will be at the bottom of it in a decade or two. It's cruelty undermines support for " gay rights," since only those currently at the top benefit.	Gay	Sexual Identity - General, Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality	6/83	7.229
Wow, this was very great. I am 34, and being the in between age I definitely agree with how these ill perceptions of older gay men are being personified. I think it is great that this kind of dialogue undoes the taboo around the different age groups socializing and learning from each other. For goodness sake, this a form of social media isn't it?! A platform for people to talk , to be seen and heard. It IS ridiculous to assume everyone is a sexual predator, and only furthers the stereotype! Danny, I was so impressed by your thoughtful and insightful video. I am now in my 60th year. I was 16 at time of Stonewall in NYC. Back then, being gay was thought to be some kind of mental disease. I have seen fantastic progress – even though much slower than I would have preferred. I continue to make gay and straight friends of ALL ages. Diversity is beautiful and we should all learn to embrace it in all its dimensions. We are all human – we have so VERY much in common due to that!	Common, Gay, Mental	Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments, Sexual Identity - General, Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality, Social Class - Working class	6/96	6.25
Hi Danny, I'm kind of new to you tube. I'm 46 gay man & am disabled. I've found most users to be much smarter & younger then me. A few I have felt discriminated against. For the majority of users & the gay collaborative channels , I have found great friendships. Thank's for addressing this issue , us mid to older age people are glad to have young men like you , to be here to help us & in return I'm trying to help anyone I can. Thank's : Steve :-D	Age, Disabled, Gay	Age - General, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments, Sexual Identity - General, Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality	6/92	6.522
Very thoughtful. You are right, there generally are not older males on You Tube or Twitter, so you gravitate toward who is here I have noticed that older men are writing on blog sites, rather than contributing vlogs. I have a blog on Word Press so I look around there too and notice older contributors, for the most part. It might be because we did not grow up in the video and social media age and we feel more comfortable with writing. My channel here is just concert vids and fave music	Age	Age - General	1/92	1.087

Jessolor "us younger gays"? Bitch, please. With the ageist attitude of the gay community, your practically ancient compared to me. In all seriousness though, because the majority of people that make videos are of the younger generation, one would assume that most of the viewers would be young, too. But in fact there are more of the older viewers which is surprising, but I do enjoy their comments and observations regardless :-)	Ageist, Gay	Age - General, Sexual Identity - General, Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality	3/72	4.167
Even Rupert Everett says this is true. I always thought, the reason there's no gay 'big brother' program, is because the younger brother could never trust the older one's motives, haha.I don't think it's 'discrimination,' it's just that most men (gay and straight), are superficial and prize youth (i.e. looking young) above everything. Chances are, if you were grotesque to look at, your viewership would decrease. But again, i don't think that's a gay thing, it's just a guy thing. Thanks Danny for speaking up in support for older gay men. We are not all perverts even though there are some out there. I subscribe to all gay guys young or older if I like what they have to say. I try to offer support and let them know that they are not alone. I can relate to the younger guys, because when I was younger, I had the same feelings towards older gay men. Now that I'm older and a little wiser, I realize we all need to be accepted and valued for who we are. Thanks again, Danny! <3.. Excellent video. I am an older male. I've never hit on a young gay man. Many people in my generation died of AIDS. There are few older gay men who can help gay youth who may need support -eg those who have been kicked out of their homes for being gay . Many activists died of AIDS, so there are not many people my age making You Tube videos. I watch gay You Tubers of all ages, in hopes to be of encouragement and support. Yes, women in general are more susceptible to being discriminated against because of age , although not quite in the same way gay males are. Gay males can be seen as creepy, weird or perverts, whereas women are often just seen as less attractive... par exemple, TV presenters: you never see female TV presenters over the age of like... 45 (bar a few) whereas some male TV presenters are in their 60s, 70s and even 80s (Bruce Forsyth)! Dan, Your vids do appeal to younger guys, it's also that there may be more older guys here. And you should try and ignore the tacky comments. I'm way older than you, and my reason for being here is to help out younger gays who are having serious problems. I'm subbed to you because of your old "Coming to terms with being gay' video. Very brave and very well said. There will be bad seeds in any category, age group, or cut of any group and older gays are no exception. But most of us are genuine and good, and we honestly have been through so much, in a different era. Many of just want to help, be a mentor, or help provide a safe place online for people of all ages to turn to as they face difficult points in their growth. Roughly 60 of my subscribers are above the age of 45. At first I was a bit creeped out, in the same way a wussy teenage girl would be if she had 45+ year old men watching her on youtube, but then I realized that they're some cool cats! They might not get my sarcasm and jokes some of the time, but these are the people that helped pave the way for us younger gays to live more accepting lives. Mad props. Youth is beauty; age is wisdom. Age is the wisdom to know just how good you had it when you were young and beautiful. The ignorance of youth is to NOT know how good it is to be young and beautiful; or at least to not fully appreciate it. Because of age discrimination, the only contact older people have with youth culture is through the Internet. So, that is where they go. Would you prefer that old men came up to you in the streets? I'm 54 and gay . And I have had younger gay men say very insulting things to me in social situations and all I do is tell them that one day they too will be my age and so they are looking into their own future when they look at me. That being said, I love your vids and what you have to say. I know tons of younger people, most of whom are in bands and play in the local music scene here. I follow a lot of those bands and photo them and then post those photos to their FB pages. No gay involved. I had to watch this video again, I think it is so true and full of good sense. My direct experience is that paedophilia or the suspect of it is not really the issue. The real issue for an older gay male who still has a lot to give is finding a sex partner. The appeal of youth is unique and irreplaceable and an olderer man has irrecoverably lost it, no matter how interesting, experienced and cultured he may be. You are an awesome and quite mature young man Danny, thank you for this video. Ciao.	Gay, Sex	Gender - General, Sexual Identity - General, Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality	3/96	3.125

Thank you for such a great video on an excellent topic. I am in my 40's and only found YT in the last year. I participated in a YT contest to be an online boyfriend and was called creepy because of my age . It did hurt because I was only doing it for fun and people began attacking me like I was a peedo. The person holding the contest is in his 20's and had no problem with my age . People need to stop judging based on appearance or other unimportant factor.	Age	Age - General	2/92	2.174
i am a bit insulted not by u at all but by the person tht wrote tht comment yes i am gay and in my early 40's and yes ur cute but to me thats it , u have an interesting vlog and its good to be as I am eclectic weather the videosr from young or older guys , i think tht person has issues , i mean this is utube every body watches everybodys vids its the nature & premis of the utube beast , in short tht person was talking total nonsense putting it in a polite way and an annoying generalisation x	Gay	Sexual Identity - General, Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality	2/106	1.887

You hit the nail on the head and yes it does hurt as the comments make you feel devalued, used and no longer desirable. But one truth holds true, you may be beautiful today but you too will grow old and die just like the rest of us and there isn't a damn thing you can do about it. I am an older gay man and I have many much younger friends. They are open minded and appreciate me for who I am and as I am. We tend to reject what we don't understand or do not want to understand. Or what we do not want to see or become. Many younger people think that they know everything and do not want to be reminded that they don't. Seeing someone who has had more life experiences and may actually know more than them is rejected. Good vid Danny and well said. Thanks, Danny, for another great and thoughtful video. I am one of your older fans, yes, and I have long had a problem with this ageist attitude. For one, pedophiles prey on pre-teens, so men who find younger men attractive are not pedophiles. I personally find younger guys so much more interesting and yes, more often than not, cute, too. I personally am not all that interested in guys my age , but that doesn't make me a "creeper." One is kept young by keeping up with what young generations think	Age, Ageist	Age - General	2/90	2.222
I once commented on a video of Ronan Parkes (runner up to Britians got talent) and my exact comment was "Wow, you sing awesome". Someone who was 18 years old then commented "Move along chicken Hawk, nothing for you here." I was pissed! I had said nothing of a sexual nature or inappropriate. He is an awesome singer. Just because of my age , I got a comment like that and it has happend a few times. I know people who do that are trolls, but it hurts and truthfully, everyone will get old someday. This gives us a chance to grow and experience the things we missed. I have so much to say about this I am going to do something I've never done since I've been on YT, and that is make a video response!
