I don't condone putting parents in elderly home, but people don't understand. In a city like New York where taking care of yourself is a full time job, the pressure gets to you. If you're an only child and you have to take care of two parents how can you do so? It's a horrible situation all around.	Elderly	Age - Over 65s	1/58	1.724

My Mother was put into 5 STAR NURSING HOME (I didn't have anything to say). She had dementia. She should have died a natural death in a couple of years but was deliberately forced to remain barely alive with adrenalin shots and other forced things. Normally this racket would have let her die when the money ran out, but a Hospice doctor came to this luxury place and happened to see her tied up. He examined her and said she should have passed away 2 or 3 years before. He had her placed i Hospice where she passed away.This medical kidnapping is common when there is an estate. My father left his entire fortune to her with my brother as power of attorney. My Dad thought money could secure her with good care...please, if you read this....money can't guarantee much in this world accept the friendship of those you help with it...Jesus said that. No institution can be trusted. If you have anyone you love in a home, a school, or anyplace....show up often in person...be a nuisance. Thank the Lord for that Hospice doctor. Everybody get scare to be old , but it hit you the day of your 68 birthday or little later, is important to manage that NOW, any one need to have a strategy how your old age time will be, please do it, to have kids warranty NOTHING .They are thankful, BUT THEY HAVE NO TIME OR MONEY FOR YOU. PLEASE LEARNDo something now, do something every day, for that day when you will need, if you are old but you can be in your own home, pay someone to take PERSONAL CARE OF YOU, have a cat or a dog or both, choose your food, little garden, wifi, MAKE A PLAN. Don't be selfish, be smart, don't give your money or possessions away, don't be ashamed to ask kids and family for money, is important, MONEY IS THE ONLY SOLUTION, nobody cares about anything BUT MONEY BUY, TIME, CARE, COMFORT, ATTENTION, EVEN FROM FAMILY, MAKE A WILL AND DON'T DISCLOSE IT, EVEN IF YOU ARE YOUNG NOW, PREPARE YOURSELF, NOBODY WILL HELP YOU, UNLESS YOU PAY THEM.For those who already are in a difficult time, may God have mercy on them. I have decided to become an aid worker in my semi-retirement years to love and help the abandoned elderly . My eldest son has abandoned me (thankfully i have two other children who still speak to me though they aren't able to be around much because of life) so I know what a horrible nightmare and devastating feeling it is. I can cook, clean a little and most of all love, listen and understand.	Elderly	Age - Over 65s	1/73	1.37

I worked as a Personal Carer in the community as well as in an aged care facility an began my Masters in Ageing . The saddest clients were the ones that either never had family visit them or rarely visited. But when their family did visit, the light and joy that shone from their faces was worth all the sadness I felt for them. Sure you are told not to get attached to your clients, but I wouldn't have wanted to do a job caring for old people if I didn't feel it in me to care and that they matter. They were less concerned about their ailments than not having family around.	Ageing, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s	2/112	1.786

I took care of my ill elderly parent for 16.5 years. Glad i did it. I helped them live out their lives as comfortably as possible. The experience helped me grow/mature...etc as a human being. Back in the 70s i saw on the news, horror stories from these types of places and vowed to myself if i was able, never to have my parent endure such places...Another huge factor that aided me was Jesus. Jesus got me through the very difficult episodes that arose...If anybody is interested in learning about Jesus, the bible teaching site...teachingfaith com has a very good beginners series titled, 'change of mind', that is more than able to help you understand salvation in Jesus. My mom just passed last week but she did so at home with my father and I holding her hands till her last breaths when she died peacefully in her deep sleep with her loved ones by her side as it should be. Six years ago she was given only months to live but she defied the doctors and defied the odds and stuck around and mainly because she was loved and cared for by our family. My father and I took care of her and had to learn to deal with an amputee with dementia .We had a care giver come over during the week but not round the clock care . After 6 years we were tired and my mom had started getting worse with congestive heart failure and her diabetes was getting bad along with her kidneys failing finally after having to deal with a UTI and a C-diff infection . Her body just couldn't fight back anymore . After her last trip to the hospital they gave her only 24 hours to live and we wanted her to pass at home but the hospital fought us .They said provided she makes it through the night maybe they'll release her to us . She managed to hold out another three days without food or water or anything else at all,which gave us precious time to get her back home to die with dignity and respect with her family by her side . A social worker who only worked one Saturday a month just happened to be working that day after she was given one day to live and got her released for us .We lucked out in that way and my mom fought to give us this time . Putting her in a nursing home was never an option for us .She had been in one for a while while recovering from major surgery following an amputation 6 years prior and was always getting ill or infections and hated being there .As soon as we were able to get her out we did so . Things have to change with our society and we should honor our parents wishes as they did for their children . I realize not all situations are the same and some just don't have the option to do this as we did . It's because of love for her we fought so hard and sacrificed so much and made this happen because she would have done the same for any of us . Love can be an amazing power . I'm convinced that love alone kept her going when all others gave up on her . She passed a day prior to Mr. Stephen Hawking a great physics professor and another fighter who defied the odds and persisted . We picked up her ashes today and brought her back home where she belongs which was her wish .Perhaps it's just me but I truly believe love is what matters the most in this world of ours and that everything else is negotiable but not all that important in the grand scheme of things . We get too hung up on trivial nonsense and forget why we're all here . Fortunately I was raised to see what matters the most and to cherish what life can be. My mother pounded that into my head ! Lol May she rest in peace 12/21/41 to 3/12/18	doctors	Nationality - General	1/574	0.174

I took care of my mother for the last six years of her life. She was blind and on oxygen 24 hours a day. It was difficult as I was a single father with two young children who I had sole custody of. In my mothers last days when she had to be in hospital she took hold of my hand and told me she hoped that when I was as old as her that my children took as good care of me as I, and my children, had cared for her. When I think of it I still cry. I am old now but the world has become a complicated place for our young and I try not to burden them with my problems. I know I am loved by them and they worry about my health, diet and that I am alone. This video was sad to watch but it brings the realization that our experience as we age is a common one shared by many different cultures and peoples. Same all over the west i guess. Youngsters are driven by the states to migrate and go study (study state lies of course), etc.Many ppl died alone last decades and it only gets worse.Lots of youngsters are told they are not responsible and thus given a moral justification to leave their parents. And now the money is getting low, bc of immigration, so things only get worse.The number of self chosen deaths rises as states quarrel over legislation on this. Few see that ppl wish their deaths when they have no function anymore and that this is a slippery slope .The age at which this happens is going down gradually.When ppl are forced to be anti-social, this is what happens.”social”, always pertains to your group, but in a time where groups are denied, bc everything has to be equal, this is the result.Things are never equal.Treating everyone equal is anti-social and leads to the destruction of humanity. I can’t fathom people actually doing this...It’s cruelty. Their parents took care of their children and this is how their grown kids repay them...By dumping them in an old folks home with other older strangers for them to wait till they die. They deserve better than this.Unfortunately this is how my grandpa died. He spent his last days in an old folks home because my aunts and uncles want little to do with him. My mum and I tried to make his stay there better by visiting him frequently, but all he ever wanted is to move back to his old house where my uncle is staying.	Old	Age - Over 65s	3/108	2.778

We can all blame the modern society, greed and feminism for the situation. A family must have two incomes nowadays, and when the parents work full time and have children, it's impossible to take care of a frail elderly family member who might have some serious health issues. If one of the parents could be home running the household, it would be very different.	Elderly	Age - Over 65s	1/64	1.562

I feel sorry for those who are in these circumstances!Being with one’s family is the best solution; but thatisn’t always possible For many reasons. This sort of thing occurs in all countries where the young have to move away from their hometown orvillage to acquire an education or a job/career.People who live in urban areas and in industrializedsocieties face different challenges than people wholive in rural area far from development/modernization.Do the residents have access to a library? Only a small minority of the elderly end up in care homes,in the UK at least,and the growth of social care means that only those with dementia are likely to in future. My experience as a nurse told me that very few are abandoned by their families,this is a myth. What is a problem is when older people leave urban and suburban areas where their relatives are to retire to the countryside where they are not,in pursuit of a seemingly better lifestyle. In the present system people are lured by the state, and i'm sure a lot of people think "the state takes care of it" instead of taking care for their elderly parents personally. People need self-responsibility and be less dependent of the state. This is especially a problem in countries with a big socialist welfare state and delusional ego-humanist politicians (Sweden, elderly living in containers).	Elderly	Age - Over 65s	2/65	3.077

TEE-nuh ...It happens in ALL industrialized countries.(I responded because the op made a political statement ... That said ...)The longer a country is industrialized, ORthe more rapidly a country industrializes;the worse the situation becomesPeople who live in urban areas have fewer children than those who live in today's un-modernized/semi-modernized rural areas (Where children are valuable for labor)"One mouth/two hands" is the old saying.Most older people; although they love theirand often miss their kids and grandchildren; would prefer to stay in their "hometown"where their life-long friends and (maybe) theirextended family, live and where they are long-time members of a church, clubs, etc.. But, the kids can't give up their jobs to move there.However, once the older person becomesunable to be independent; other arrange-ments have to be made. This can be very stressful for the children and parents.In addition; the lower the income for theparent(s) and/or the child(ren) the more difficult it is to make changes withoutthe parents/children already living closeby each other.Also, some older people live in rapidly-changing villages, towns, cities which canbe very stressful for them. They can nolonger do their own shopping, etc. becausethey can't get around; or the stores havemoved to the suburbs; where a bus linemight go; but where hiring a taxi to bringone home with one's groceries is VERYexpensive. (And, some live in areas with soaring crime rates; which adds anotherlayer of stress to the parent and children)With modern medicine and agriculture; mostare spared an early death; but living a longtime can be a different kind of challenge. Don't spare that rod, beat your children into respecting you and fearing you, then indoctrinate them quick into the jesus myth before they reach the age of reason, so your children can never tell what is going on.They will hate you, but later in life they will thank you, if they make it very far in life. Everyone is talking shit but taking care of some elderly is a full time job that some can't afford to do.	Elderly	Age - Over 65s	1/21	4.762
nitdiver5 yes you are right. Parents should be nice to their children cause one day they will become like this and need their family around them. Whatever you believe in, it's your own mindset, religion or morals. Not everyone on this planet share same. This whole world is nothing more then a lie, there's nothing to hate till your death. Let's get along with our friends, our colleagues and maybe our parents too even if they weren't as nice as we wanted them to be.. afterall we will do mistakes too with our kids. Noone is perfect, everyone makes mistakes. But if only we set an example of caring even those who didn't deserved that.. we gonna be treated with much more care. :)	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	2/124	1.613
Amazing example and justification, we all need to realize that parents are loving towards us regardless of how they mistreat you, the only situation where a parent is not loving and should be taken caution around is parents who are mentally unstable to the point where they need to be locked up in a mental institution, if they are " crazy " then they need help towards getting reintegrated back into society, otherwise if they are simply harsh or very disciplinary then theres no reason for us to hate our parents.
