Ask and Confront any Asians about their white worshiping. That's a stereotype they don't seem to know, because they don't know how stupid they look praising white people all the time, when many white people continue to take advantage of them and it feeds into that racist mentality that white are the superior race . I live in the west and majority of white people here are absolutely trash as far as education goes and professional know-how, together with a 9-to-5 mentality and poor work ethics. Also it is very well known that white people after the age of 25 and 30, especially the women, they go and appear to look like they are 45 or something, their skin quality turn real bad fast, it is also known that white people have bad odor problems, asians genetically have lesser sweat glands producing less body smell. so the stereotype that white people possesses all the good qualities are all false. Also in Japan there was or still is a trend of women going for a sun tan darker skin, so the stereotype that all asian women want fairer white toned skin is false aswell. Asian Boss is pathetically steering the conversation into a racial thing for clickbaits and is building up stereotypes instead of breaking them down.... Bravo Alley hi bravo I'm Italian of Ghanaian descents. in Italy we don't talk a lot about dark skin or light skin if you're black you're balck. Colorism is mostly brought up by first generations immigrants like my parents. I grew up with an understanding the lighter the better. My dad is a dark skin man, but he's someone that will make remarks about darker skin, especially women. Me and my siblings we learnt the beauty of all skin tones and bleaching products are not allowed in my household, but I think our strength come from the fact that we live in the diaspora. Why Shanghai? Where are the older ones? I know this video doesn't represent all Chinese general opinion about white foreigners, but please, at least find better city and qualified people to state as general as you can for your next videos. Asian Boss. Skin colour is not a big problem among Pakistani in Pakistan, but when Blacks, Whites, Jews, Hispanics, and Oriental in America, Canada, and Europe see different colour of Pakistani easily mingle and get married then many of them get jealous and try to be united against Pakistani politically. Blacks and Indian try to get closer with Pakistani. Blacks, Bengali, and Indian men and women try to date, marry, and take advantage of Pakistani girls and boys plus they behave very dishonestly with Pakistani people. Pakistani are very open minded towards Indian , Bengali, Whites, Chinese, Arabs, Afghan, Irani, Jews, Blacks, and Hispanics, but Pakistani don't get the same treatment from them but Pakistani are treated very dishonestly from them. I personally find Indian , Bengali, Jews, Chinese, Whites, Blacks, and Hispanics very dishonest, stereo type, racially and religiously motivated, narrow minded and assholes. Their fashion, hair like silk, perfect skin I mean yeah I think its the opposite. Maybe its because I watch K and CDramas lol, All the dramas but yeah... was shocked to hear. Really wish Asians would stop with the skin lightening and those leg extending surgeries (ouch)... dark skin is beautiful. It stays younger looking much longer, has nice glow. Yeah its crazy that Asians dont see how beautiful they are, just as they are.As for all the other that was surprising too. I think Asians are better disciplined, persistent, determined, humble. Respectful...Im sorry but Americans are arrogant, rude, self righteous, callous to poor and racist . Im American...yes there some good things but sadly our culture been dumb down, greed run amok, self-degrading or the other extreme religion gone nuts and well The worst behaviors. You're close-minded about your own race. There are many white people who admire countries like China. I will soon teach English to Chinese children and I'm from the USA. It seems you have a close-minded world view. Many of us are appreciative of other cultures and want to do business. To benefit all- the whites and Chinese people! Stop giving us a bad image. Westerners are already "fat and rich" in the world's eyes. This is not true so we should stop perpetuating it. Why not show them a better example of white people? Telling them to hate me for the color of my skin just creates more division. I want to do good for the world, to benefit and to help Chinese children. Am I really bad because I am white? When you learn to love the qualities of your own race, then you can appreciate Asian people for their qualities. You have very negative thoughts about white people also. I live in Ireland and can only speak for inner city Waterford. I wouldn't go as far as to say 'foreigners', I'd prefer to call them immigrants. In my local area, my Spar has Russian and African staff. Kids don't see a difference between the staff and neither do the younger generation. However, I have seen some cases where the older generation would get agitated by slow service and blame it on the worker's race. I would generally step in and call it out. Typically speaking, having friends from different countries isn't a big deal. We don't see them differently or treat them differently, generally speaking. The only time when we would treat them differently is asking them questions about how life was in their country or just wanting to know more about their culture. Irish people generally respect immigrants and will call out racist people.	African, Race, Racist	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	3/146	2.055

I went to China with some friends (who of some were blond, ginger and had blue eyes) and we were treated horribly. We understood we might have been asked to take pictures but middle aged men filming us without permission all the time made us feel uncomfortable. We tried to ask people to stop in Chinese and with basic signs but no one would. I drew the line when my friend felt ill and started to cry and a woman tried to take a picture with her baby with us after being told to stop-that's just cruel. I know this might not be for the whole of China but we went to Shanghai and felt very unwelcome. Very handsome and beautiful Chinese Men and Women in this video, many in Europe also think you are attractive, with smooth skin and healthy long black hair, looking 20 years younger than your real age . Opposites attract and difference is exciting. Nothing wrong with that. When it comes down to it, attraction is not something you can control by political correctness. That's for you Asian Boss, you are seem unhappy with the fact that real Chinese are not affected by US style radical identitarian viewpoints. They are honest with themselves, we can learn from that. Its a weird thing to talk about, racial preferences and how foreigners are treated in their respective countries. For example, in Canada asians broadly are treated very well in reference to getting jobs. Its interesting to see that the reverse might be true in China, as for the racial partner preference its also weird , because alot of White guys (from the perspective of a white guy) prefer asian girls, where as Asian guys prefer asian girls mostly. At the higher echelons of every race there are undoubtable beauties. Also regarding the academic question, in Canada asians are pretty well known to to better at math and science, where white people tend to lean on philosophy, psychology, and history. I think in general asian people are more reserved, passive and quiet, and white people are more outspoken and brash, but in the end these are just stereotypes mixed with anecdotal evidence of my own, so take it for what its worth. The reason why Asian girls think fair skin tone looks better is because in the old times, fair skin tone usually indicates that the girl is from a higher class, likely well educated instead of being involved in hard labor jobs. Even old french culture has similar perceptions. It's not about just looking "white", but more like fair-tone, subtle looking skin. Well, nowadays it's the opposite. A tanned and fit looking skin usually means one has the time to actually enjoy the sun instead of working indoor all the time.	Old	Age - Over 65s	2/90	2.222

Let's be honest here, culture doesn't matter that much. It is nice, but it is like a cherry on a sundae. It is nice, but it would be fine without it too. Culture is going to change drastically, and we are going to live in a "post-race" world in some aspects. Of course some places will stay homogenous, and there is nothing wrong with that. If you aren't attracted to people of other races, you aren't attracted to people of other races, not really a problem.	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/86	1.163

The problem is how things are presented to students. For example its one thing to expose them to Western culture so that they may have some understanding of the outside world since Chinese society tends to be homogeneous (most people do not encounter other races or ethnic minorities on a daily basis), but its another thing to present these things in a way that paints other cultures as being better or something to aspire to. For example the girl who said having a white person represent a company is accepted by many as improving a company’s image because this is a traditional mindset. What? Lol a traditional mindset would be something like respect for the family ancestral line or the honoring of ancestors through food offerings and prayer. She even used the word to describe it. How can worshipping white people be traditional when white people barely got on the scene? Either that girl has no idea what means or she doesnt know traditions because the traditional culture has been lost. If you interviewed real Chinese people meaning ones that know the actual culture and dont just look Chinese on the outside, this video would be a LOT different. Also Chinese can have skin lighter than white people and darker than white people. The preference for light skin stems from farm workers being outside traditionally and thus tanning and having darker skin, whereas lighter skinned people did not do manual labor and could be inside. It has nothing to do with so-called white people such as Europeans but many of them like to think that way to make themselves feel better. Another way in which white people bend the truth to make themselves feel superior. I guess they have to do that because fantasy is all they have. But whats new	Ethnic, Nothing	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - General	2/303	0.66

The origin of the 'white skin is better' idea, is very very old .It comes from the comparison between rich and powerful people whose work was indoors, or in administration being paler than the people in the fields, or doing manual outside work, for little money.Thus, being pale is associated with wealth, intelligence, power, and such like attributes that go with that.In all coloured countries, being pale is associated with wealth, power and sophistication, and the idea was arrived at independently in every group.Whites, on the other hand, want to be darker, as it looks healthier to us. We like the features of Asian people, better than our own. Many of the Asians I have known were darker tan others, and I don't think almost anyone here in the US notices. As it was explained to me by a Chinese woman , it comes from the idea that people who have darker skin are from the country and might be farm labors. Dumbledore The Red Iq in Africa is lower due to the lack of educational resources. In Europe, being submitted to better education, will have a much higher iq. Currently, the african population in Europe is at 2.5. But by your logic, this lowers the overall iq from 103 down to 99. Bear in mind, there are also a sizeable population of east asians residing in Europe (iq between 105 - 108) which would be increasing the iq. A good example of a European country which is predominantly 'caucasian' is Iceland, which has an average iq of 101, still considerably less than East asian countries. As for the inventions, well done. I take my hat off, but that doesn't take away the fact that caucasians are still about 5+ iq points lower east asians. The desire to be white or to have fair color of face happens not only in China but in all Asian countries. This is a serious identity problem throughout Asia. I hardly see any dark skinned actors or actress on TV in India, the Philippines or Malaysia where most people have dark skin. Thailand too. Korea is the leader in cosmetic surgery operations and skin whitening products. It is too bad, people are brainwashed by the white-trash mentality. That is the reason Asians still cannot form its own alliance or free trade agreement among Asian countries like the North America's Free trade or the organization like NATO. Asians are not working together but they often working against each other among themselves for the West leading by the US to take advantage of. Asians rather have the control by the control freak US than work together with China for common goals to make Asia a more peaceful, more stable, and more prosper place for all Asians to enjoy. Rising China has made positive contribution to all of Asia. But other Asian countries see that as threat to them. How come they never complain about the control over them by the US who is the most powerful and control freak in the world? How can China control them more than the US? How much the US has benefited Asian countries economically and politically? You don't have to look further,. Just look countries that are allies to the US, have their countries do better or worse? The Philippines is a good example that it has been the ally of US for long time, but it is still one of the poorest and most corrupted country in Asia if not in the world. By the way, Philippine has been doing well for a country after having good term with China. Singapore is a good example of country that don't listen or controlled by the US blindly and doing exceptionally well. In fact, Singapore is the best in Asia in many aspect. I'm sorry but, I'll have to disagree with most of the comments on here. Yes everybody's entitled to their own opinion, including myself. But, even though the history says that, pale equals rich and dark equals poor. Asian people still have a color complex and superiority complex. This doesn't count for the entire race but, most of them do feel this way. People can say what they want, if I and my family went to China right now, my husband who is white and my kids because they have fair skin and white hair, would automatically be considered as Superior. But me, because I'm black with dark beige skin or tan , whatever you want to call it. I would be considered unattractive, dangerous and, possibly poor because I'm darker than my family. Asian people have worshipped and put white people on a pedal stool for decades and centuries now. Like I said before, not the entire race feels this way, but most of them have and still do. And the reason why they do this is because, most of them learn what they see on television and a base people off what they see on mainstream and not to mention, most jobs and companies are owned and ran by white people. So, they'll assume that "white is right" and they don't even like themselves so which means, they don't like anybody else. I think most of these people have a mental issue and self-hate for themselves and others and, it needs to be corrected with communication, education and self-help. Because, it will never get better and it will never change, if they don't. To look at yourself and others and feel that, you're inferior and someone else is Superior; is a mental problem. I think Asian people and anyone else including black people, can be beautiful and good and, I don't think you have to be white to be polite and kind. You can just be yourself and be all those things, no matter what color you are. As a white guy who often goes to the PRC (with a really weird situation, I am an ROC, ie Taiwan passport holder but not of Chinese origin) I would say a few things. 1) This was done in Shanghai. Probably the most open city and most receptive to foreigners in mainland China (only HK or ShenZhen can compare). 2) I found a strange situation that even though I am a Taiwan passport holder and lived here longer than anywhere else, I found as a white guy in Taiwan I face some idiotic ideas (you can't survive in your "own country"...). In PRC I found the workers and customers were more OK with respecting the knowledge I had about technical aspects of work than in Taiwan. The Chinese Taiwanese I met there were really friendly to me as soon as they heard me talk, because they noticed my accent etc and straight away knew from my talking what accent that was but if you are a non-Chinese immigrant (some of who were already here several generations because of those who came in 1949 from mainland China but were not Han Chinese...) or Aboriginal Taiwan citizen here in Taiwan you will face some bad attitudes here in Taiwan. On the other hand it is really frustrating in PRC when we (the 5 or so of ROC, ie Taiwan people) who are not ethnically Chinese people can't believe we exist, say some BS like "this can't be real, you are not Chinese and all Taiwanese are Chinese". I often went to ShenZhen and DongGuan. For me one thing great about there is so many people are not from there so they easily understand what it is like to be an outsider. Most Asian people don't have the inferior or self hate complexes like some have suggested here , but it it's obvious that a lot of attractive Asian women seem to have an affinity for white males only. It's rare to see a handsome ,educated Asian man with a white woman .i try to have an open mind and keep this simple before it turns into another race issue . To anyone who knows anything about east asian culture known they have been a very segregated society for very long. Either it was a monarchy or dictator ship but all of them had their nobles, and nobles don't work. Since work was majority done in the farms and fields people would get tanner from doing such works. So nobles had a fair skin compared to the ones who worked. Since humans are incredibly driven by aesthetics and looks this became a norm, to the point the nobles would paint themselves with rice powder.This skin distinction wasn't so pronounced in Europe because the sun doesn't shine so bright in those latitudes and the place is cold, so even under the sun you'll be wearing clothes to protect your skin. In fact, rich people nowadays are inverted in such sense in American and European cultures. They have a lot of time to travel so they are constantly tanned and people that work a lot have lighter skin because they spend their time working inside buildings who don't happen to tan their skin! How about evaluating societies by taking into consideration the entire historical and geopolitical context, such as unequal competitive advantages such as rich oil deposits or a legacy of reaping the benefits of colonialism for centuries? Not to mention climate (Europe enjoys a temperate climate of mild temperatures, low humidity, reliable but not overbearing rainfall, no monsoons/tsunamis, no hurricanes, limited earthquake-prone fault lines, few wildfires due to drought, etc.), while Asians have historically faced much harsher climactic conditions (extreme heat and cold, high humidity, torrential downpours, monsoons and tsunamis, hurricanes, massive earthquakes due to being situated on the Ring of Fire). When putting different races in the same conditions, Asians in Western countries typically outperform white people, while white people in Asia aren't necessarily more successful than the local Asians. Modern-day Japan and Korea are far less violent than the West, with far less aggressive sexists than the man-hating "feminazis" and woman-hating "MGTOW" hermits. Also, " racism " in East Asia tends to be inspired by mild dislike and manifest privately without any violence involved, while racism in the West tends to be inspired by passionate hatred and manifest publicly with rallies and violent assaults. Even China, for all its governmental infringement on the rights of its citizens, is a much more socially peaceful country than, for instance, Eastern Europe, despite similar wealth levels. The long lasting effects of western colonization and imperialism. This influence is everywhere in the world now, Whoevers on the top runs the system and sets the beauty standard whether its in or outside the US. Theres an experiment called the doll test, POC kids at only 3 year old would pick a white doll over their own or other colors, that shows how young one starts to get brainwashed at.The affect reaches far after the colonizations and presence of white power especially generations that grew up into it without questioning. So if we ask a few young people in Shanghai's shopping district (the most cosmopolitan city in China) what they think of whites then we can understand how a diverse country of 1.4 billion people really thinks??? And add to that the translation problems... I've studied in China before, and the feelings towards whites ranges from positive to downright hateful. I found their responses honest and fair. And I can understand mandarin. I don't think they said white people are "superior", I think they are just describing how much of the society thinks. Most Chinese people in China do not think much of " race issues" like those who live in Western countries.	Race	Ethnicity - General	1/52	1.923
There are many wrong perceptions about Chinese people, especially in some Westernised countries, where I live. I use to live in Foshan, and I never felt so comfortable, safe and welcomed. To me, it does not really matter if Chinese look whiter or darker, their skin does not determine the traits of their character. There are many ugly shrubs, which produce much fruit , while there also lovely looking trees that lack a produce in the time of harvest. It is the inside that counts. Many of the products that these ladies use to whiten their skin can also cause cancer, a risk not worth taking. Be yourself, what you are and natural, not what other people think you should be.	Fruit	Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality	1/120	0.833
On the skin brightening thing, I really need to comment on it. China's admiration of whiter skin color is not at all coming from white people per se, but rather it's because in the old times, if you work on a outdoor job, like farming, you are much more likely to be exposed under the sun extensively resulting in darker skin,whereas if you come from a more well off family, you mostly work indoor and less likely to have darker skin. People usually perceive each other through the darkness of the skin to determine their social class. There's tons of ancient literature to prove this, nothing to do with the white guys. Chinese people like to have white complexion in ancient times. They describe beautiful women with white and beautiful skin. White people have nothing to do with. It is accurate to say that the appearance of most white people does not conform to the aesthetic concept of Chinese people . We like to use white people because European and American economies are more developed than those in other regions. Product quality is generally better than other regions. White people are yellow people. Black people are only used in European and American countries to distinguish racial differences. Actually racial discrimination. Although many people in Europe and the United States have higher levels of education than Asians, it is a matter of the past. Nowadays, Asians are not inferior to Europeans and Americans. Europe and the United States also have low-quality and racial discrimination, especially racial discrimination. This is very serious in Europe and America. These people have not been to Europe and the United States. They only understand that some people are not all. There is also the name of this channel Asian boss? We Chinese people never think that we are the biggest boss in Asia. This channel is South Korea. It's not our Chinese. We don't have the idea of being the boss. but isnt this the true philosophical debate? you always want the thing that is most different from you, or find it attractive. Now for me, im an average looking white guy, I always thought asian women, like japanese were soo much more beautiful compared to alot of the american women ive dated. But now I live in Japan, I find the opposite is true. Alot of the japanese women, tell me, it is very exciting for them to be with a foreign guy, and that, that is the ideal vision of beauty. Its interesting for me, because I have always felt completely the opposite. Them, oh foreigners, are more beautiful. Me, oh yea Japanese are more beautiful. So then goes the fact that whichever is farthest away from you, or opposite of you, would be obviously very attractive. Personally Ive always like asian women, cuz I think they look very exotic, compared to average americans, which is this huge mixing pot. So it goes to show you just love what is not you. Asians will love blue eyes, cuz all them have black /brown. Asians will love blonde hair, cuz they all have black /brown hair. I have mixed, colored eyes, but also kind of brownish, Ive always loved if a girl has blue eyes of course. If a girl has black eyes and is asian, its fine too. What most matters to me is a cute face, because, that is what i have to talk to everyday, kiss, etc. One that does not wear too much makeup, a little sometimes ok however. She has a nice smile, etc. This seems to be the most important. The point is, people from one continent, lets say the asia area, will obviously be very attracted to the complete opposite looking person, say america, and alot of americans the same. but I think it matters how much you have dated.. etc.	Black, Colored	Ethnicity - Black	2/316	0.633

Not one bit surprised. North East Asians are obsessed with being ghostly pale and looking Caucasian(always praising anyone with a taller nose or rounder eyes). There's some serious racial self hate (and they don't even realize it). If you were proud of your race , you wouldn't actively avoid the sun like it's the devil & get plastic surgery to change the natural shape of your eyes and nose to look like those of white celebrities. As a Chinese I have to say that our preference of white ceramic skins has nothing to do with races. It's just a traditional aesthetic sense with a history of more than 1000 years, way before we came across with europeans. You probably would not think this way if you understood Chinese and heard what they actually said. The cc was okay but it failed to convey some subtle idea. They spent a good deal of time talking about pale skin and everything, not Caucasians or racial superiority or anything. Here's some background story. People in China generally believe that having dark complexion means you are a peasant because only peasants working in the field would get sun tan. This belief remains unchanged for centuries. Interestingly, the European aristocracy shared the same belief long time ago. The entire French court in the 17th century, and later the Brits, was so obsessed with "white" face that all aristocratic women and men painted their face white, even though the makeup contained lead and caused a lot of damage to their facial skin. Additionally, many African cultures prefer pale skin over dark one, and for that reason, skin bleaching has been a common practice for centuries in many tribes or regions in Africa, despite the fact that it can cause healthy concerns and some countries, including South African, have even banned it. So it has nothing to do with SELF-HATE. I live in the west, and majority of white people here are absolutely trash as far as education and professional know-how, together with a 9-to-5 mentality and poor work ethics. Also it is very well known that white people after the age of 25, especially the women, they go and appear to look like they are 45 or something, their skin quality turn real bad fast, it is also known that white people have bad odor problems, asians genetically have lesser sweat glands producing less body smell. so the stereotype that white people possesses all the good qualities are all false. Also in Japan there was or still is a trend of women going for a sun tan darker skin, so the stereotype that all asian women want fairer white toned skin is false aswell. Asian Boss is pathetically steering the conversation into a racial thing for clickbaits and is building up stereotypes instead of breaking them down....	Age, Tan	Age - General, Nationality - British	2/158	1.266

It's a narrow definition of beauty that Americans don't really understand I think. I also think it's important to realize they are not trying to look white to attract white people or because they think white people are better but they have certain very specific beauty standards. As close as I got to that was growing up in California and even though I was a tall blue-eyed blonde with an x-shaped body I didn't tan well, which in California is a must. So instead of being confident in myself I'd cover up my body in long pants and shirts even in 98 degree weather because I was embarrassed about my white skin. My point is, I should have embraced who I was and showed off my nice body confidently even if it wasn't tan. I should have loved myself more. I wish I could go tell my teen self to just enjoy the beach and not hide. I would finally get tan at the end of the summer and be happy the last two weeks of summer , how stupid! edit: I'm surprised that this comment has gotten so much attention, let me reiterate for those who are not familiar with the situation in Asian countries (for those who have or are living in Asian countries, you know what I'm saying). The definition of a trash foreigner is someone who 1). doesn't have the ability or credential but gets much higher pays (sometimes through lying) when compared to locals with more work experiences or higher educational background 2). (Most importantly) abuses the culture and its people, use their nationality or ethnicity to get laid, talk trash about the country and its people while enjoying all the undeserved love (sometimes the symptoms can be not able to speak a word in the local language even after years of living there) . I've seen and heard of so many cases where foreigners find at least a dozen girls over the span of weeks; there are always cases of rape, obnoxious behaviors (e.g: Logan Paul and Ricegum) etc. You cannot compare immigrants to the US to these kinds of foreigners in China, immigrants are hardworking people trying to fit in and trying to make a decent living. Those trash foreigners only want to get sex and easy money and GTFO of the country they are taking advantage of. The foreigner scene in China is polarizing, divided between extremely openminded and or well-educated individuals and absolute trash. Original comment: Honestly, I think if they understand the "foreigner scene" in China more, the more disappointed they will be. Many foreigners in China (especially whites from more developed nations) are so-called trash foreigners, basically meaning they are the people that cannot find jobs in their home country so decided to move to China to seek opportunities (by taking advantage of their white looks). It's sad to see how people believe those people to be more knowledgeable and capable than hard-working young locals.	Ethnicity, Nationality, Sex	Ethnicity - General, Gender - General, Nationality - General	3/316	0.949
People who get offended by this comment have obviously not lived in asia for a long time. A lot of foreigners are also aware of this phenomenon and have used their race as an advantage in getting easy jobs like English teacher or models. In my experience a lot of foreigners will deny this fact, but the reality is many still have it way easier than African Americans or simply hardworking south Asians.	African, Race	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	2/73	2.74

Let me explain you: when a Chinese goes to your country to work it's about the individual. If you go to China to work, the point is "what does China need?". This is why the law states that if same conditions, the Chinese must be hired first, and why workers withouth great background will not be accepted, as they are not useful for the country.Yet you will see a citizen from a country thas has that mentality (which is legit, of course, the have the right to manage their own country as they wish) call you loser or trash when in fact you will only work there if you're very good at your field. Forget about the "honest and willing workers" because that doesn't apply to China, it's not about honesty, it's about filling the needs of the country in a way a Chinese would not be able to (that's what the law says, obviously there are many Chinese workers who are just excellent, my working place, just to set an example, has many of them). It's legit, of course, but that doesn't deny the fact that it's hypocritical to say this when you're exporting low-background workers to other countries and only welcoming those who are highly qualified.So what's with the "taking advantadge thing"? Actually it's part of the Chinese racism, parents want a foreign face to claim how good his kid is at English, it's also about face, reputation, call it the way you want. A black teacher with a Princeton degree may be the best option you will ever have, but if you hire him the parents won't be able to tell his friends and relatives that his kid is in a western sophisticated environment, because his teacher his black, who knows if he may come from Africa? So, who creates the topic? The black/white teacher, or the costumers that are behind that? But here you see the final result by reading the comments: the Chinese being racist it's your fault, so you should be ashamed because they have the right to be racist. Don't get me wrong about that, to me it's very disgusting to see parents cheated in such a terrible way, paying a lot of money that they earned by working hard just to have an unqualified teacher. Anyway, academies cannot hire foreigners, so this is why they look at their skin and not at their background.	Black, Racism, Racist	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	5/404	1.238
We have the same issue in Canada but minorities move here and get good jobs they are hired because they are not white not for their skills then the govt says they are skilled. .They have to be losers back in their nation if they relocate here and they make much more money here.	Nation	Nationality - General	1/54	1.852

A k mono eyelid for women is probably the only thing you named that make little sense here. People want fair skin, but they don't want White people's skin. they don't want flat nose, but they don't want White people's nose either. No one really have issue with black hair in China, some Korean did have this problem in early 2000. It is a super old fashion now. In a Chinese movie, if you see a Chinese man with blonde hair, it means one of these two1. uneducated teenager migrant worker making minimal wage in the city. In all cultures light skin and fair features are preferred. There isn't only one reason for this. Yes, it's true that in times past, light skin meant high class due to indoor working conditions. But it's also true that there is a correlation between light skin and high IQ ants dark skin and low IQ, so the high class people were light skinned both because of working conditions and genetics. It's also true that western beauty is the standard, not because of racism or propaganda, but because western features are more objectively beautiful, so over the centuries prominent, wealthy, and royal people (these were mainly competent and intelligent men) chose beautiful women with western features creating a eugenics situation and a class of beautiful, intelligent, ambitious people who were naturally the high/prestigious class in any given nation . If beauty standards only came about due to the perceptions of high class, then fat and physically weak men (and women for that matter) would be preferable to thin and physically strong because wealthy people had better access to food and didn't have to preform manual labor making them less physically fit compared to the working class. JJ East Firstly wan say that there is big variations of whites in Europe with each different culture and even with pales of skin, if you going to look at more northern white they going to be more pale then Greek, Italian or Iberian. now what about pinky peaches, yes we get them but only in winter or if we are very cold, this is because of our blood, from personal experience when it gets cold my hands get reddish purple , thesis not because im not healthy or i have some kind of diseases this is because my body wants too keep my organs in good temperate which means that it sacrifices in some parts warm blood circulations which makes it that colour. a same for Asians but there are different kind of Asians like i have chines and napale friend Chinese Asian is more white then napale, napale Asian is more tanned brownny orange looking like. but in summer i am talking about northern European, we are pale without red marks, not counting sun burns. this is my perspective how i see it not saying i am Right, but showing you how i see it. There is a difference from just wanting fair skin to wanting fair skin double eyelids, a smaller face and a higher nose. You left that out because plastic surgery to get all of those things are extremely popular in Asia. I think the farmers excuse is really played out doesn't really make any sense, genetics deal with how fair or how tan you are going to be. It would be completely insane to say all the rich people in Asia back then were pale, so thats saying NO tan people had money, thats a lie. The sad thing about the plastic surgery and pale skin is that they want "westerner" features but still look Asian after getting the surgeries (Asian people love who you are) not all but majority. There is nothing wrong with doing any of that because its YOUR body and if you can change you should. But there is an issue when you wont admit to why you want to change it. Plus people in Asian countries need to learn that not all westerners are white, we come in all colors of the rainbow. GUYS!!!!The translation and her questions made this misunderstanding even bigger. Chinese' pursuit of brighter whiter skin has nothing to do with race ! It's a beauty standard comes from ancient time when we didn't even know the existence or white people. Not sure why ancient chinese like jade-like skin. But for modern chinese girls, we know we have flatter face. Being a little brighter makes complements the gentleness of our smaller nose and eyes, being fair makes us feels not that flat and gives us more confidence. Fair skin makes us feels ourselves more girly, I guess due to ancient culture somehow as well. It's definately NOT about race . If chinese girls have more dimensional face that looks good with any skintone, nobody would cares about being brighter or not. Jordan Davis It's not an excuse, mate. Anyone with a rudimentary knowledge of Chinese culture knows that Chinese society has always been obsessed with women having extremely fair skin. I agree totally, I am Chinese myself and only a 12 year old . But I still know that back then, it was just considered like how Xuan Zh said. (I only know this because I am totally obsessed with ancient China and everything about it.) China has a know history of 5000 years, and that is just when China became a country. And the being fair tradition thing came along maybe 4000 years ago, it doesn't specifically say, but that is just what I infer. I am almost definite that back then, 99 of the Chinese people never saw somebody with a western white complexion. Just a correction for Xuan Zh, did you mean that in the ancient times Chinese people, especially girls liked to wear jade? Because nobody that I am aware of in human history has had natural green skin. Or perhaps you meant that the skin was really like soft and shimmery(Even though skin can't shimmer), I just can't translate it to English, and Google Translate says that it means crystal clear, but that is wrong too. Hi, sorry to make you feel this way. I think the translation caused a lot of misunderstanding. Our pursuit of brighter skin like jade has nothing to do with race . It's a standard comes from ancient time, even before we knew the existance of white people. I don't know how ancient asian thinks, but now Its just that we east asian have flatter face, being brighter can make our features doesn't look that flat, and compliments the gentleness of our smaller eyes and nose, makes us feels we are cuter somehow. Its hard to describe. Its definately not about race . A lot of us think darker skin races are beautiful and sexy, if we have more dimensional face, we wouldn't care about being whiter or not.	Nothing, Race	Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - General	3/126	2.381
To the people referring to skin, where in this comment you read the word skin? I invite you all to read the comment again. Secondly they are praising white facd features, they assume they are nice and polite, something that Africans find themselves doing many times. Thirdly yes we have pride, but I tell you it's more people from the diaspora, example African Americans, than actually people from Africa taking pride. I'm part of the diaspora, so many times I had to teach my parents, friends, strangers about pride in their heritage for example when it comes to dark skin and natural hair. Gage Cabani that's what they are saying about themselves and you also believe that. I'm Asian American and we have A LOT to learn from Malcolm and the African American community concerning our self-image, self-racism, white influence, and white worshipping (which I admire that the black community readily recognizes it and calls it out). The Asian and Asian American communities aren't as woke as they should be, often looking down on our own brothers and sisters. Too many uncle Chans and auntie Chans. Those influences from colonization still live on today. We learn about all the great things white men did in history, watch movies, shows, and commercials that star them. Sadly, these influences are deep rooted within a lot of us... To be honest, I don't care if you're black, Latin, or white. Call Asians out when they white worship - some of us in the community are too slept.	African, Black	Ethnicity - Black	3/137	2.19
It is called reverse racism. For one because we have slanty eyes so we like bigger eyes. Another reason is economic status. European countries are more developed in the past century. In Chinese culture, I think deep down people only worship power and money. That's the reason many Chinese feel white folks are superior. But as Chinese economy has been growing, even though individually our living standard still has a lot to catch up with the West, the nation itself has become a huge power that cannot be ignored. So more and more Chinese stopped looking up to white folks and the West and start having a false sense that Chinese are the best. Still, not so many people understand the concept of equality and individuality.	Nation, Racism	Ethnicity - General, Nationality - General	2/126	1.587
Guts Likes It In The Ass. That's funny, all I see in America are black men chasing white women. Is that not "white worship"? Black people, Try to be logically consistent. Don't call us Asian women "white worshipping" for mixing but not call black men the same term. Most relationships are initiated by men not women. Men are the pursuer 90 of the time. So if you see a black man and a white woman... That is "WHITE WORSHIP". He pursued her. If you see Asian women and white men, that's the result of white men being "Asian worshippers". They Pursue us. 99 of the time. But isn't that what diversity is all about? Mixing? Me personally, the only men I tend to gravitate to are Japanese men and Ashkenazi men (the only white demographic that shares the Asian obsession with school. College degree worshippers) .	Black, Woman	Ethnicity - Black, Gender - General	5/146	3.425

Windelesk OK. You made my high IQ tingle and giggle. Black people are ”much better in that regard”?You are addressing a black woman donning WHITE STYLIZED HAIR. Black American women straighten their hair to make it look more white. Or they wear hairpieces, wigs and extensions made of white women’s hair. Or synthetic white woman hair. The majority of wigs are made in China from Asian woman hair. That’s right folks. 1000s of black women in America are commenting in social media about the Asian fixation on having fair skin WHILE WEARING OUR HAIR ON THEIR HEADS in order to compete sexually for the WHITE WORSHIPPING black men who have money.My point? Benedicta D. I think in terms of there being Black pride, there’s a lot of it in Africa, but it’s the Africans in the diaspora that have made it more public. Just like at the same time there’s self hate in Africa but if anything, there’s more of it in the diaspora, look at Afro-Latinos (especially in Brazil) and Afro-Carribeans. Now however, Black pride has increased and is slowly on the rise even further. I know a lot of Ghanaians in Italy who bleach, more than the Ghanaians actually in Ghana. You grew up in one country in Africa... That does not give you magical insight into a whole race. It reminds me of how I lived in South Africa and had relatively peaceful days interacting with different races, then I moved away and apparently, people in South Africa are killing each other over race. Then again, this is anecdotal. Also, I feel to weirdly prove your point, you've also somehow vouched for the other side. Especially with your drivel about men pursuing women. Honestly, it has done nothing to prove that Asians don't worship white men (I personally don't care if they do, that is not my problem as a Kenyan, I am solely interested in "decolonizing the mind" a la Ngugi Wa Thiong'o). Also, there are plenty of white countries and Asian countries with higher homicide rates than a good portion of Africa. Also, it is Indian Americans that push the earning gap for Asians. Not sure why that goes unnoticed, but other Asian groups aren't out earning anyone. Furthermore, to come at the black race when countries like Korea have the highest per capita plastic surgery rate is just something. On that note, not sure how we went down this path when white supremacy and the Western world have affected both continents negatively. I notice Churches in Asia are filling up slowly and in Africa they have been full for a long time. I notice that music in Asia is largely becoming rap and bubble gummy pop. At least Africa has seen a rise of Afro pop but folk music is to my discontent, dying. I have no intentions of getting married but honestly, finding a good partner in life is difficult so if you are married outside of your race and it makes you happy, so be it. I am also one of those black women who wears their naturally curly hair and quite frankly, there is a massive hair movement in the black community right now which is great! I will say, I see more of these type of moments in the black community than Asian community which is probably why there is the assumption that Africans have more pride. I might not necessarily agree with aspects of that. ricenoodle HammerLiking fair skin is a female phenomenon thats more for themselves than men. Women want to be seen as the smaller and "fairer" sex biologically regardless of any socially imposed feminist ideology. Guys also want to be seen as more bigger, masculine and stronger than women, and since having darker skin to females plays to all of those "male" attributes, guys also prefer women with a lighter skin tone to themselves. Of course it depends on the general skin tone of that group of people.I'm a Latin guy with light brown (type 3/4 skin), and I also prefer women with a skin tone at the very least a little lighter than my own and I don't really think of it any differently compared to preferring a woman shorter in height than myself. However, unlike height, skin colour is not a deal breaker for me all at all. Height, body shape and personality are far more important to me in a woman than skin tone. My experience with women here in the UK by the way is that they prefer the same when it comes to men. That is probably why tanning is so popular here among both men and women. It was so easy for my parents make chinese friends. And for me , i had fellow chinese students wanting to be friends with me. Now chinese people are becoming a joke. The biggest self hating white worshipping east asians. Going to get worse, more half white kids especially from wmaf having white privilege. White husbands thinking they can speak on asian issues simply because their partner is asian. What a joke of a race this has become. I'm born and raised in the Uk as well. I actually haven't met any asains that worship whites. Yes , they and myself do prefer fair skin but isn't it the same how people here prefer taned skin? Though I live where a country contains 84 whites , I actually try to avoid them (like a lot of chinese people I know) if i don't know them. From past experience, there is quite a few that are racist . Not all whites are racist ,of course, but I've only ever been discriminated from them. I used to feel sad from those comments but i don't care about them anymore- it's more to avoid feeling embarrassed for their parents now .Edit: I've also only ever seen Asian and Asian couples(Chinese and/or other Asians)and not so much with other races.P.s A chinese guy friend of mine just started dating another chinese girl. Hello Asian boss What's the point of this social experiment? We all knows racial issue's are controversial and sensitive by nature, With just a little mistakes you make, it could hurt the sentiment of thousands. Honestly, It's more like you're promoting to embraced the white race . Think about the young Asians, by watching this you want them to feel/brainwashed that the whites/caucacioid races are superior than the Asian race ? I looked up to this channel, But never expect you would stoop this low? If you do this same experiment to those whites/Caucasian they will never say anything positives about Asian race , except for those few male, who will say Asian woman are submissive, that will be the most positive feedback you'll get from them, I've seen it in other channel. I'm a proud Asian and for me personally i never feel Whites are superior than me, never.Have some self esteem, Oh God I'm too ashamed to be an Asian after this. Onyeka Onyebuchukwu There's a reason why I'm saying that. I know exactly what this channel is all about, Western media's, flim industrie's etc., were never been genuine and honest while talking about Asian race (especially towards Asian man). While their media's are all about lies, biasness and prejudices towards us, why should we feed them all those praise and positivity?Instead of being humble down themselves for our simplicity and boldness they would rather took advantage over it as our weaknesses and in return it ends up pulling us down to the lowest pit..! Gage Cabani Ah man... I'm so sleepy right now, well whatever first of all ,if you know history well as you claimed than you should know paper making and gunpowder were high techs in ancient time , and we all know how gunpowder change the human history, and without paper making how do westerners spread their knowledge so efficiently during Renaissance and Reformation? Without success of those, I don't think the British can open the modern world that soon, talk about Capitalist and Industrial Revolution? No way, at least not that early. Not to say China is the first country invented modern political system and civil service system and things like paper money, don't think using paper money is a easy thing back in 1000 yrs ago, it requires anti-counterfeiting techniques, bank and high credibility of government. And more inventions but I can't think of right awayAnd Chinese and Asians innovated and invented a lot of things based on modern industry , it just not so revolutionary like car and plane, just small inventions like LED and OLED, VCD, and some parts of smart phone and car etc, and there are a lot of Chinese American scientist in USA, Nobel Prize winner Chen Ning Yang is Chinese, but to be honest it's a fact that most of modern inventions were invented by whites, but China has started to modernized only few decades ago , we got a lot of catch up to do, and learn(some say it's copy) from the west, and I believe that as soon as China reach the same develop level as the West, we will starting to invent and innovate morePS the reason I said 'that's not my job to inform you' not bcoz I got nothing to say, first I'm tired, and also due to my terrible english witch I learn from the TV shows, so it's super annoying and exhausting to write a long comment and still got a lot of things don't know how to express in english, that's why	Nothing, Witch	Age - Youngsters, Gender - Female age and physical appearance	2/336	0.595

Gage Cabani ”nothing seriously important or useful compares to white men’s math, physic, chemistry, biology, geology, car, plane, steamed ship, computer, internet, phones...”Math: Just so you know, ALL of the algebra you ever learned in high school (assuming you made it that far) originated in China before the West had any concept of algebra (not even kidding). To list a few of China’s most precocious innovations in the field: 1) A functionally complete calculus of fractional operations (not to mention symbolic positional decimal notation) by -300, echoes of which can be seen in a recently recovered coordinate multiplication table from Qin. 2) A binomial expansion algorithm for root extraction with a Ruffini-Horner optimisation, first applied to square and cube roots in the -1st century Nine Chapters , and eventually to polynomials in the Middle Ages. 3) Also in the Nine Chapters, the world’s first general solution for systems of linear equations, expressed as a square matrix of coefficients, via an algorithm known to the West as Gaussian elimination (absent in the West before Isaac Newton). 4) As a distillation of operations with systems of linear equations, the world’s first functionally complete calculus of negative numbers, including multiplication (sign inversion), by 3rd-century commentator on Nine Chapters Liu Hui. 5) This one not strictly algebraic, but well-worth considering: the Cartesian coordinate system, plotting dependent variable (virtue) against independent variable (time), this one casually invented by none other than the most educated woman in ancient history, Ban Zhao, in her contribution to the Hanshu .If this tiny list of Chinese contributions alone doesn’t strike you as ”seriously important,” then you are welcome to shun them for what they are and go back to counting livestock with your fingers...Physics: While it makes little sense to speak of physics before Isaac Newton, the classical Micians, 2000 years before Newton, did have an accurate concept of the properties of gravity and its relation to directional force and motion (see Mojing B 26, 27), which is farther than Aristotle got around that time. They were also the first in recorded history to describe the optics of concave and convex mirrors.Chemistry: this field didn’t even exist until about 200 years ago when atomic theory was developed (or 240 if you start with Antoine Lavoisier’s stoichiometry). Before that, virtually all of Western knowledge about matter was based on alchemy of the Four Elements which basically involved trying to burn everything to see if it turns to gold. At least the Chinese made good of something with their experiments in the form of gunpowder... so that ol’ whitey can ”discover” a new continent by heroically stealing it behind a matchlock from the least fortified peoples on Earth, then go on to call it ”insignificant!” SMHBiology: fair enough, the Chinese really did nothing for this field. ”TCM” is an abomination that needs to be wiped out. But believe it or not, the late Warring States Chinese were the world’s first ecological conservationists in their rationale for regulating seasonal hunting and forestry.Geology: Um... the world’s first seismoscope? Actually, the scientific fact is that preferring white or whiter skin is something that is ingrained in our sexual psychology throughout human evolution. In every race of humans, even from the darkest black people to the whitest white people, there has always been preference for those who are whiter within a population. The reason is that fair or whiter skin indicates youth and fertility, as skin naturally darkens through ageing and after menopause when women become infertile. Dark skin is also an indicator of skin damage through formation of freckles, age spots and other discolorations. And since East Asians have always had a preference for more youthful looks compared to other races and ethnicities, it is natural that we prefer whiter skin as it relates to the attributes that humans naturally find youthful.	Age, Ageing, Black, Race, Sexual	Age - General, Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General, Gender - General	5/133	3.759
And another thing I want to point out, East Asians sometimes wear cosmetic colored lenses and in our manhwa, manhwa and manga, the characters have colored hair and eyes because they want to be identifiable and distinct personalities for the reader to relate to. As in comics, characters look very much alike due to the cartoonish artstyle, so coloring of hair and eyes are used to differentiate between characters who would otherwise look alike due to the ambiguity of the design of comic characters if coloring were not used (which in black and white comics, would mean differentiation of characters happening through fashion and hairstyles instead of colored hair or eyes). And this same reason applies to real life when girls wear colored lenses, to show off their individuality as naturally, East Asians all have black hair and dark brown eyes, so wearing colored lenses allows girls to stand out from other girls to draw attention to themselves as girls love attention and being the center of it. So colored lenses are entirely about wanting to be unique, individualistic, receiving attention and standing out from the crowd, NOT because we want to "be Caucasian". Western people need to get over their arrogance and stop thinking they are the center of everything.	Black, Colored	Ethnicity - Black	8/211	3.791

Brandon Reekin well the straight nose straight hair is known in east Africa and they r black skinned original. That was the foundation first before white and brown had it. There is nothing wrong with having light skin, however we can agree the light skin movement was pushed by whites because before that the black planet was about tribalism never about colourism. How did it come across, well let's use the a book called anthropology genetical fantasy author Charles Darwin in his own words said that history of the whites is that they were in refrigerator box meaning the ice cave and developed a unempathic hatred towards natural things even towards themselves and see a deficiency in themselves outwardly and inwardly and as genetically recessive, and project the worst of themselves on other people. Due to their environment and lack of civilisation knowledge they would sleep with their dead one's and not but u them, drink blood of each other, steal from each other and lie to each other when a little of bit of food would grow so not a lot of them would eat all of it out. Then when the Africans recused them from their inhabitant abode and taught them how to be civilise. They the whites started having kids with the Africans and slowly adopted their custom and took over their culture, and used their kids as a tool to oppress their African side. Eventually conquered , and used that as an ideology of survival of the fitness, in terms if what the animals do howvebr in his book mentions that whites Don't really believe that in fact they use ancient African knowledge to control world e.g sepiroth knowledge= tree knowledge which they got from ancient Egypt, and nilo valley. That been said developed an alter ego called the other which allows them to justify their evil ways of projecting victim mentality in the act of oppressing blacks. Why because black people r genetically dominant, they age slower, their organs r built different which is why whites steal them, the black man and woman can repopulate themselves in any other non-black men or women non-blacks can only repopulate themselves in themselves. Blacks r envied also for their historical achievements, remedies maths science physics, architectures, fashion, beauty, style which started with blacks first, prymids how we built as multi stone computer system activate by sound and also a heath care place. Also blacks r envied and hated for their intellectual potential in sports and how over 100 of the invention all nations use that descended from black people was invented by black people and some they did before slavery and some in slavery and after slavery while been oppressed and without going to the same schools as white kids. This is the reason why whites changed and blow off the noses all around the blacks lands why because whites know they r recessive and know that their whole history starts with africans	African, Age, Black, Nothing, Woman	Age - General, Age - Youngsters, Ethnicity - Black, Gender - General	11/495	2.222

I'm black and lived in a 2nd tier city (Harbin) for 4 months (also visited Shanghai and Beijing and a rural area in Northern China outside Dandong during my time there).Chinese people stare/take pictures regardless of whether you're white or black . However, unless you're white with hair that stands out (incredibly long, incredibly wavy/curly, incredibly bright such as platinum blond/red, etc.) a black person will attract WAY more attention for their hair (I have stories for DAYS about random Chinese people coming up and grabbing my hair).White is right, most definitely. Anyone who tells you differently is lying. Just go to any super market and look at how almost all the beauty products have "meibai" or whitening in them. Look at all the people wearing long sleeves or carrying an umbrella on a sunny cloudless day. Ask most black English teachers about their job hunt vs. a white English teacher (some ads even explicitly say no black people). Ask a Chinese person about their stereotypes of white people vs. black people. If they're being honest, the ones about black people are way more negative (we're lazy, drug dealers/users, dirty, violent, etc.).Through all of it, they'll say they aren't racist though (because in China there aren't people from other races, so how can they be racist ? <- This was said to me, a black person, living in China, I obviously didn't exist. lol)I will say though, the origin of preference for white skin is because it used to be that the only pale people were rich, as everyone else had to work in agriculture under the hot sun. It started out as more of a status/wealth origin than preference for one race over another. HOWEVER, it has now moved into a preference for Eurocentric things and the media has played a big part in that.	Black, Race, Racist	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	11/308	3.571
Hey! I am living in China and European (pale skin and hair), and yes, people stare at me a lot. Especially in rural areas or places where foreigners (white or black) aren't common . Kids will point at me saying, "laowai!" and men will do the same (because I'm a foreign woman). Not because I'm anything special or "beautiful, if anything its more like a shock or surprise because I look different. It can be annoying but what can you do? In the large cities its not much of a big deal, especially if your in the "foreign" zones where foreigners tend to visit, live, or go to. Its pretty common in most countries to be honest, let them look and then eventually they get used to it and whatever. There's a natural standard of beauty. Clean, symmetrical features, clean looking hair and hair color and especially eye colors etc. The issue is, we tend to relate colors and textures with other stuff. Brown or black skin is usually likened to dirt, feces or decay/rot. It's horrible to think that way but humans have a relational imagery to something. As a tall white guy with brown hair and bright blue eyes who's been called very attractive in both the States and my time in China, SKorea, Japan and even Guam, when I was in Suzhou, I was fawned over by the Women there. The attention was ridiculous at times.The odd thing is, it wasn't just Asia, the attention was also in various parts of Africa when I was doing Humanitarian Aid when I PCA'd on heavies for two years (USAF). being as polite and personable didn't help as I was a magnet for guys and girls which is something I don't have to contend with as much in the US. This is very true. I have been living in China for quite some time, specifically Suzhou which is about 30 mins from Shanghai by fast train, if I am not mistaken its the 10th largest city in China. There is a large expat community here, majority of the expats are white which is why as a woman of color I get more stares and pictures taken of me than my white counterparts. But the level of privilege that you have as a white person in China is well known (job prospects/opportunities), white people here acknowledge as well because it is so blatant. I've seen it within my own place of employment, because Chinese parents prefer their kids to be taught by white teachers, because they feel it their child would be more cultured and poised. Its disheartening but you cant let it hold you back from the strength and positivity that manifests within you. There are always going to be disadvantages wherever you go, but its how you respond to them. Liban We have many poetry and novel from ancient times which described the whiteness of the skin of women. You have NO idea. Caucasians are the very people who stereotyped every Asians as YELLOW, when clearly we had more wide range of skin colours than Caucasians. Asian can go from pale, very light, light beige, darker beige, light with hint of pink, or hint of orange, and tanned. Then South Asia brown, dark brown, but some very pale depending on the region. But Caucasians just call us Yellow and never knew that historically there were always certain class of people, namely upper class people who had very light complexions. Sneffe I am glad that you can understand what I want to express and that's why you can guide me about similar English words. I could educate you if you don't mind. Just another window for your understanding of the world. No racism in China, Almost 100 Chinese are the same race. No concept of racial discrimination inter-China. Somebody believe nationalism and populism, just like Westerners, but government oppress any kind of nationalism prevent China into countries like Nazi-Germany and former Soviet Union. You shouldnot just want to listen words what you willing to listen, the objective fact is not transferred to the will of human beings. You just want to listen ppl praise that you Caucasians are with good skin and deny the fact East Asian are those who have better skin. I can applogise for my misusing adjective to describe what Caucasian's skin looks like. For better understanding, I suppose you take the Chinese sentences as standard, ignore the English version. And you must realize that Chinese have its own rule define fair skin and almost social science. You have any doubts and thoughts even angers towards this issue means I finally achieve my goal, help ppl understand different concept about Chinese fair skin and Caucasian one. You realize Blacks are better at athletics while Asians have a higher IQ? How do you even process that with your "all races are equal" narrative? If you think all races are equally attractive, that is your unique opinion, but when you quantify attractiveness in terms of facial symmetry, jaw structure, eye shape, et cetera, Whites are, on average, objectively more attractive than other races. It is actually because Asians weren't brainwashed into thinking that all races are exactly the same as you were that they acknowledge this. Here, consider this, Whites have more attractive faces, but Blacks definitely have more attractive bodies on average, the men have larger penises and higher amounts of skeletal muscle mass, while the females have larger buttocks, though Whites do tend to have larger breasts. I'd say the majority is more tanned than white tbh. People are usually born light skinned or way lighter than the colour they are when they're older because they've been in the womb for so long! When I was a baby I was practically white but I am tan now because my mum and dad are. No one is actually as fair as they were when they were a baby naturally unless their parents are that colour. Also for OP, Italians and Greeks are still considered white. The thing is 'White' is more about race than the skin color itself in this context. I am Asian, born with pale white skin, but as I got older my complexion has gotten slightly darker. I'm still very pale, but I do not consider myself 'White' at all. Many 'White' people are so tanned that they are more orange than 'white,' but that doesn't change their race . 'White' isn't exactly a race , but it refers to Caucasian people with European descent. Many Black people aren't ' black ' either. They range from light to dark brown. You see? UGH - can we please stop being so thick-headed and pedestrian? These comments are annoying and when people speak about color like this they sound uneducated. YOU ALL KNOW GOOD AND WELL that when someone says you are black, white, yellow, red, or brown that they are NOT talking exclusively about skin color. Who would have thought that anyone would have to clarify that? It boggles the mind that people think in such literal terms, when LITERALLY - you have seen crayons and you know that no one's skin (or very few people) is actually WHITE, BLACK, YELLOW, or RED. Give me a freakin break. THOSE ARE POLITICAL (not LITERAL) TERMS designed create general, cultural, social blocks to put people in. Who needs to be told that we are ALL shades of BROWN? Like, really?! And these are probably terms more accepted, understood, and propagted in the west - specifically in America - where our history and ethos and culture and society and institutions and laws and families and economies have been founded on these types of divisions. It is understood that WHITE people, around the globe are Europeans - period. It is understood that BLACK people around the globe are of African descent - period. It is understood that YELLOW people around the globe are East Asians - period. It is understood that RED people around the globe are Native/Indigenous. It is understood that BROWN people around the globe are South Asians, I guess.... although brown identification is also a catchall/mutt identification as mixed race blacks, latinos, and Middle Eastern people all fall into that category, too. So now we can be clear that the actual color is a representation of a group of people and does not, necessarily, mean the color of the person. White people are known colloquially as RED NECKS - their skin is more pinkish/redish/orangey but we still call them "white." Black people range VASTLY in color from high yellow to dark brown, but we still call ourselves "black" - and it's because these are convenient and easy ways to identify groups/regions/races/nations of people. People act like it it is such a bad thing Asian's want to have lighter skin or tall noses etc and it must be white peoples fault. People look past the fact white people often want to be more tanned and would go to solariums or get spray tans. I was self conscious of my pale skin growing up and would try and get some sun so I could tan . This can cause skin cancer and ages skin. Should I blame this on darker skinned people or is just because it's something we ourselves as a culture came to think is more attractive for our own reasons. Why can it not be the same for asians. Just as the original commenter said people value different things and there are a lot of things I would value in the appearance of a white person that are commonly found in Asian peoples appearance and I find attractive. The same goes for Asian people. There are attributes asians appreciate amongst themselves that just so happen to be commonly found in other races. What I mean about agile bodies was with regard to other comments discussing white Arnold Schwarzenegger's body type as ideal body type. . Personally, I find thin 'agile' body types more appealing than big bulky muscular body types, across all races. I know Asian guys that get insecure about not being this big type and I'm just saying that not all women prefer that type. But I'm sure if I met a very muscular guy that was considerate smart and funny I would find him appealing too. I'm sorry I don't know all the ways to describe eye shapes. I have Asian friends who obsess about their eyelids and I'm just saying from a Western perspective which doesn't have a narrow definition of beauty, all shapes are attractive. By saying that we (white people) are fetishizing makes it sound like there are not other reason to find Asians attractive. When people find white , brown or black people attractive because of long lashes or smooth skin etc, no one accuses of fetishizing.	Black, Thin	Ethnicity - Black, Physical Identity - Physical Features	2/191	1.047
I Ko First of all you're the one sexualizing this, not me. I'm a heterosexual female so when I'm taking about agile I mean a guy that is quick on his feet like a soccer player rather than an American football defensemen. When I say body hair I mean like arm hair and leg hair. Secondly everyone knows the Asian definition of beauty is very narrow, down to a certain face size and shape, eye shape nose shape etc. And lastly there is nothing wrong with me realizing other cultures than my own are attractive. You're the one belittling Asians by acting as if any attraction is fetishy, not me. I hear that about Asians all the time and if I were Asian I wouldn't join in on this stereotype. I realize Asian women are often fetishized by men and I wouldn't like that either but blame the Asian porn industry for that, not well-meaning people who happen to find beauty in all cultures. LordDark102 why don't you just admit that you wish you were Black , since Whites are halfway in-between Asians and Blacks on the masculinity- femininity spectrum, but closer to Asians when it comes to testosterone levels and aggression and only closer to Blacks in height? Also, Asian women prefer feminine, nerdy White guys and average Asians over White guys who look like Arnold Schwarzenegger. Arnold Schwarzenegger is a joke in Asia. I can tell you that they think he looks like a caveman, judging by how perplexed they are that some Westerners find Channing Tatum and Jason Statham attractive. Jared Kushner is the most potent foreign sex symbol in China, after Korean pop groups.	Black, Sex	Ethnicity - Black, Gender - General	2/113	1.77

You are correct in some ways, but you're also perpetuating stereotypes."Thin agile body"? subjective. "Smooth Asian skin"? subjective, "less body hair"? subjective, amongst but amongst East Asians, it's the Japanese who have the hairiest bodies.The "Pink" skin is a side-effect from being under the sun too much. There are many Europeans who are pale as eff and could be mistaken for being Albino.It's true that Asians in general are quite religious about skin care and such (my mother is an example), whereas many Westerners are into destructive habits like tanning. I'm Chinese and I can vouch for my statements.	Thin	Physical Identity - Physical Features	1/102	0.98
Tobias Thesecond yes I do see your point and some of what I was saying here was refuting some comments on this video that Asian men are not considered attractive because 'women want Arnold Schwarzenegger-type of body' I was just trying to say that many women (including me) do not prefer that type of body, and that many Asian men often have bodies that are not huge like Arnold's but still athletic fit and attractive. You're right though, it's difficult not to speak in generalizations in instances like this. I've seen some huge body builders that are Asian and also extremely thin or chubby Asians, but it does seem to me, that there are quite a lot of 'fit'Asian men. Even if the are not tall and slender they are often still very fit and healthy because being healthy just seems to be more a part of the daily culture in Asia even compared to the gym-culture of American cities. Is that more stereotypes? I think so. Sorry if I gave offense.	Chubby, Thin	Physical Identity - Physical Features	2/173	1.156

Gage Cabani if they truly admit that their government does not allow them to learn more about the other world, they could just travel out of China to gain it. But people in this video are proven be very close off to the world(not saying all of China are) and secondly what you just said for your why are 'Caucasian superior one' is utterly pathetic. True the first few modern countries are of course Caucasian however that is all in the past, In this generation your will not work any more, it's about which has the most economic power or potential with that being the center of the world market(in the last century, Caucasian country were the ideal country to live while other are still fishing villages or in war). You said it yourself ' every race has it stereotypical advantages and disadvantages but with you only stating that Caucasian were the first to achieve the ideal society does not prove that they are superior. Lbr, Chinese like the European type of white too as we can see in the video. The preference for light skin might not have had a racial origin but it certainly translates into race now. In our globalized world, the current beauty std affects how we see black, white and brown people and ourselves in comparison to them.I agree with your second paragraph though. The high regard for whites is partly a result of their economic status. It's not because of their race. White ppl's economic status is the result of centuries of European colonization which has created a global structure with them at the top. This is called white privilege and it's why they're treated better wherever they go. Origami VC But if it's not based on race , then why even make that distinction? Generally Asians are smart or really good at something (like an instrument, dance, cooking) because culturally education/enhancing their skill is a big part of their society. But peoples intelligence isn't based on their race .	Race	Ethnicity - General	2/49	4.082
They watch too much America medias, shies, movies, music, propaganda news, English teaching class n books n go to Disney land, Superman, stat wars, cowboy etc.. so they think all white people are superheroes, fantasy land from erc.. dumb as hell. They either don't speak English nor Chinese so how they know real true each other even asians in west, just mingles themselves or just base their perception about whites on white friends, not bad strangers, racist ones as just bad luck or bad whites. Then medias keep enforcing how good whites are n how bad inferior orhers. That's why asians have highly good perception about whites or Americans, just delution, not reality at all, lot worse than asians. yes they do! Any white person who thinks this mentality is ok is racist .	Racist	Ethnicity - General	1/14	7.143
same with every race ! there really is no way to generalize a whole race ! there are always nice white black asian... people and shitty ones!	Black, Race	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	3/25	12.0
Sugar Candy , I am pretty sure its the same with everyone else. You'll find lots of nice people and lots of bad people if you look for them in any race .	Race	Ethnicity - General	1/32	3.125
Most white Americans are outta shape, toothless, racist , dirty and uneducated. But Asians love kissing ass	Racist	Ethnicity - General	1/16	6.25

Mengyang Zhao oh well, the "white trash" are usually the leftist cultural Marxist SJWs that think they are the saviours of the planet and pander to black African-Americans or other people of colour that "feel" oppressed by "white supremacist" white Christian conservative Republicans. it's just a mind game played by leftist SJWs that live in California or New York. the rest of America is normal. Travis L ya sure it's not a very nice term to use. the point is that in every race or country or whatever there's got to be some rotten eggs that would leave a bad impression for the race .	Race	Ethnicity - General	2/39	5.128

Mengyang Zhao If you hate this video because Chinese people are attracted to (beautiful) white people, then you're simple-minded. White-skinned people are beautiful, dark-skinned people are beautiful and Asian features are beautiful. That being said, all races have unattractive, or "ugly", people because no race is perfect. Grow up racists.	Race	Ethnicity - General	1/50	2.0
first off: Black people did not come up with the term: 'white trash', white people used this term to discriminate against each other.second: Black people in African tribes began slavery as a means by which to war against neighboring Black African tribes in the Western seaboard of Africa.Africans initiated slavery, Western Europeans and Americans exploited these Tribal acts of warfare. Know Black history before speaking. Thank you.	African, Black	Ethnicity - Black	6/69	8.696
It looks like I'm the only White person in my City of Sydney, The rest are Chinese and Indian , We are highly multicultural, Most of the old white people have moved on elsewhere, Mandarin being the second most spoken language in Australia, I bet when I visit China I will have a hard time finding Australian foods and products. We even let the Chinese have their own shop writing with no English	Indian, Old	Age - Over 65s, Ethnicity - Native-American	2/72	2.778

I can confidently tell you that we are not into the skin of coarse , pink, hairy, blotchy, unsupple, loose premature aging Caucasian skin. Very unappetising. In the ancient times people with less education had to work outside. So their skin were tanned. And because those people were poor, and were relatively uneducated, Chinese related tanned skin to poor and uneducated class of people within OUR society. I think any sensible and educated Chinese will not regard common White men or Women handsome or pretty. We understand fully that likes of George Cloony and Rooney Mara can be found only in Hollywood but outside of it? We look so much better than them. Lol. We are not envious of whiteness with that of Caucasian, that is for sure. It is not gonna happen. Caucasians thinks too highly of themselves. Lol. Asian Boss ... You hear a complaint about it only being about white people. Then you send them a link of a video about black people. You know there are more than two race .	Black, Race	Ethnicity - Black, Ethnicity - General	2/34	5.882
if you go through the titles of the videos in their channel, you'd know that white people don't come up as much as other people cos it's ASIAN boss. it's the fact that whiteness is seen as the default that when whiteness is foregrounded, it seems like it's excessive. when you think about the concept of race , you think of every group of people first before you think about whiteness as a race . that's ideology. but you are right, it's much cooler to see how asian cultures themselves interact with each other. the days of the west-east binary is dissolving with the west imploding so it's a good time to figure out how asian cultures can relate and collaborate and move into the future.
