California is a Communist shit hole. Brown didn't fix anything but he broke a lot of shit.	Communist	Ideological and Political Identity - General	1/17	5.882
Praising Jerry brown Eye	Jerry	Nationality - German	1/4	25.0
Ageism is wrong. We can agree. Shit, I hate Mahr but he's finally right.	Ageism	Age - General	1/14	7.143
Didn't he make fun of John McCain's age when he was running ??	Age	Age - General	1/13	7.692
Jerry created the Silicon Valley boom. Lol. at some point to silicon valley people are going to get sick of paying huge taxes.	Jerry	Nationality - German	1/23	4.348
No. We need a young, vigorous president more than ever. Get these old fossils out of the White House. Trump is an old timer too.	Old	Age - Over 65s	2/25	8.0
Two years before Cheetos in Chief - 73 years old now - managed to prove on a daily basis that there's no limit to human stupidity and pettiness.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/28	3.571
I've been saying this for years. In the pre-Trump world of pretend equality, ageism in the job market was and still is pervasive. Believe me, older women get it worse.	Ageism	Age - General	1/30	3.333
when someone says "Asian Driving" everyone gets it! and it is not one bit racist . as a matter of fact Asians are incoherent and not spatially aware in general. Bill Mahr, thanks for being Real!	Racist	Ethnicity - General	1/36	2.778
MARVELOUS comparisons of older famous people with younger famous people. And marvelous commentary on ageism .	Ageism	Age - General	1/15	6.667

Oh God, do I love you Bill Maher - thanks for giving laughs to this elderly 73 yr. old me....	Elderly, Old	Age - Over 65s	2/20	10.0
Ageism is not the last acceptable prejudice. Fat people are the last acceptable prejudice and if you're old and fat , you're really in trouble.	Ageism, Fat, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s, Physical Identity - Physical Features	4/24	16.667
Here we are in 2019 and every city in California has a huge homeless problem over 165,000 people sleeping, shooting heroin, shitting & pissing in the streets, illegal immigrants everywhere and a communist policy on guns and ammo. Ya. Bill. Jerry's doing great. People are leaving in droves.	Communist	Ideological and Political Identity - General	1/48	2.083
Bill Maher is a pussy . A stanky pussy .	pussy	Nationality - Chinese	2/8	25.0
As much as I love Bill, he shits in his own mouth quite a lot. You just can't criticise ageism by being ageist against young people. Wisdom is just bullshit, there are brilliant kids and stupid adults.	Ageism, Ageist	Age - General	2/37	5.405
Who's the bint to your left. Just caught a glimpse but that was enough to make an old man cum. She's gorgeous.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/23	4.348
One of the most important things Indian kids are taught by default since early years is to respect elders..	Indian	Ethnicity - Native-American	1/19	5.263
Umm the old bastards rule over everything and fuck all the young. So you can stick that up your ass.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/20	5.0
Yeah I didn't hear Bill Maher opening his fat mouth when John McCain was running for president and Democrats skewered him about his age but you're willing to put a guy on in the White House who's going to be 80 after his 1st term	Age, Fat	Age - General, Physical Identity - Physical Features	2/45	4.444
Bill Maher is right except for one statement - that ageism is the only thing people can be judged on. Gays, fat people, people with disabilities, and many other groups are subject to judgement based on what should not matter in most cases.	Ageism, Fat	Age - General, Physical Identity - Physical Features	2/43	4.651
That's why abortion is acceptable. Ageism ...	Ageism	Age - General	1/6	16.667

Asian and European cultures respect the elderly and prefer them to be leaders. Jerry Brown would be an excellent president. Joe Biden in 2020 is on that horse where all the gates open except his. Gordon	Elderly, Jerry	Age - Over 65s, Nationality - German	2/36	5.556
Cognitive ability declines linearly with age once you reach what we consider middle-aged. 90 year olds should not legally be eligible to be president. Fuck they shouldn't even get to drive, we all agree that 14 is too young.	Age	Age - General	1/39	2.564
Jerry Brown.....fixed..... California.....	Jerry	Nationality - German	1/3	33.333
Age brings wisdom, however the office of presidency tends to age people. Look at Clinton in 92 and again in 96. The stress that comes with the job ages presidents horribly.	Age	Age - General	2/31	6.452
The optimal age range for a president is 50-60 years old .	Age, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s	2/11	18.182
It's not pre judging. It's science: As people age in this world, their mind gets more polluted, leading to many brain problems (ie trump). We should do without this risk. To run for pres, there is a lower limit of 35, but no upper limit. This shows a LACK of old-ageism in the US. The real last prejudice is being able to trash men.PS, I'm not a young biased person. I'm 51	Age	Age - General	1/73	1.37
Ironically, this segment didn't age well. tRump is president, in his 70's, and is not wise or competent. If someone is a good leader, then they shouldn't be judged by age or anything else, period (well, unless they're a murderer or predator). But, I do agree, ageism is real. Especially in the work force. My father got laid off from his job in his early 60's and had a real difficult time finding a new one. Thank god he did.	Age, Ageism	Age - General	3/80	3.75
Prejudice against atheists is rampant, and also acceptable. And if you're an old atheist, you're screwed.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/16	6.25
Ironic being that the Dems elected AOC...an idiot 29yr old bartender to Congress.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/14	7.143
How old was Ronald Reagan when he served as President?	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/10	10.0
Funny how Maher never knocked ageism until he reached his sixties. It's legitimate to question the age of candidates who are even older than Reagan was when he first ran for president. I don't recall Democrats or liberal comedians complaining about ageism back then.	Age, Ageism	Age - General	3/44	6.818
Trump will be old when re=elected, thanks billMaher	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/8	12.5
It's funny cause he is always talking down to younger people who dont want to fuck him cause he is old ...	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/21	4.762

it's not AGEISM to Want To Get The GRANSPAS OUT OF THE GOVERNMENT. They've made a HUGE MESS and are not willing to do anything to clean it up. Time For THEM to GO!!! you have a bunch of Olde White Guys with 19th Century values regarding non-whites and women, IT'S TIME TO GET THE GRANDPAS OUT OF THE GOVERNMENT VOTE2020	Ageism	Age - General	1/61	1.639
People call me about enlisting their job finding service. About six times they ask me questions. When we get to what year I finished high school I say 1971 they respond with they can't help me or I'm uneligible even though I'm looking for online work. Ageism truly does exist.	Ageism	Age - General	1/50	2.0
We're sexual adolescents because the bible banging ignorant jesu freaks want us all to hide from our sexuality. Murder is OK to the bible fuckers, but sex is a sin. Hypochristians all.	Sex, Sexual	Gender - General	2/32	6.25
I'm guessing that's because it's one thing every single human being on the planet has in common ..we will all age and be aged..not everyone will be white or female or gender fluid or Muslim or etc etc etc.....but we will all be aged one day	Age, Common, Gender	Age - General, Gender - General, Social Class - Working class	3/45	6.667
I wonder how many of the trained seals clapping in his audience did the same when they threw out the " age " fish for McCain in 2008.	Age	Age - General	1/26	3.846
Ageism is the last acceptable prejudice in America. Now let me tell you how worthless millennials are!	Ageism	Age - General	1/17	5.882
actually I speak this from experience, in many Chinese industries, agism is rampant. Some recruiters brazenly demand candidates to be below the age of 35. Why not? easy to deceive, demand less money and more impressionable.	Age	Age - General	1/36	2.778
Jerry Brown chased a multi billion dollar, worthless train; was 'fine' with businesses leaving California for Texas and taking tens of thousands of jobs with them. He wasn't that great of a governor.	Jerry	Nationality - German	1/33	3.03
Fuck Jerry brown	Jerry	Nationality - German	1/3	33.333

Now California has the worst school systems in the country or close to it and the state is insolvent because of your bullshit social welfare programs and free handouts that's why all of the taxpayers and many of the businesses are moving out of the state. Yeah and liberals bashed John McCain saying he was too old to be president when he was way more qualified than Hillary Clinton and he's a decorated veteran. Hillary on the other hand is in her late sixties or early seventies and she can't walk a hundred yards without falling on her face or passing out so your right age is relative and it's a good thing Hillary wasn't elected	Age, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s	2/116	1.724

Wise when your old ? Strongly disagree with him there	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/9	11.111
This video title is bullshit, the last excepted prejudice is racism against white people.	Racism	Ethnicity - General	1/14	7.143
No, it's not. Sexism and racism are still acceptable by many. Speciesism is still the norm, too. Also, there's a lot of ageism against young people too. Attend university as a 30-year-old and see what I mean: you go from being treated like a competent adult to a stupid, incompetent, untrustworthy, inexperienced baby and profs and admin talk to you condescendingly in almost every interaction. Not to mention all those entitled parents I see treating their children like property or extensions of their egos instead of autonomous individuals.	Ageism, Racism, Sexism	Age - General, Ethnicity - General, Gender - General	3/88	3.409
LOL Bill talks about young people like they are satan, but he wants to talk about ageism ? K.	Ageism	Age - General	1/18	5.556
Double edged sword. Old people become demented. You never know past a certain age when the decline will begin.	Age, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s	2/19	10.526
No.... Liberals openly hate on farmers and assume they are stupid, redneck hillbillies. Liberals will do this until the end of time. I say this as a Liberal.	Redneck	Ethnicity - White, Social Class - Working class	2/28	7.143
Ageism? How old is Bernie Sanders? Trump? come on.	Ageism, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s	2/9	22.222
This speech comes from an old man wo is fucking young girls. And he wanted an old president? He got Trump... what an asshole	Old	Age - Over 65s	2/24	8.333
2019 , my god is it broken now. More homeless people then entire country combined. AGEism IS BAAAAAAAAAADDDBDDDDDDDD, but when republicans have a old guy running.....HAHAHAHA HE OLD HAHAHAHA....maybe it isn't ageism after all	Ageism, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s	4/34	11.765

Most wise people are old , but not all old people are wise.Also, ageism goes both ways. You can be ageist against young people too.	Ageism, Ageist, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s	4/25	16.0
Well when you're a hormonal teen age kind of comes to mind easily	Age	Age - General	1/13	7.692
Disagree. I don't want a old , grumpy, foul tempered white man controlling the fate of the free world.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/18	5.556
Racism against white people is acceptable in America too, if not praised.	Racism	Ethnicity - General	1/12	8.333
It's ok to laugh at old people, it's socially acceptable and nobody defend the old people.It's not generation ass, it's generation FAT ASS !	Fat, Nobody, Old	Age - Over 65s, Age - Youngsters, Physical Identity - Physical Features	4/25	16.0
I have no idea which planet Maher is living on. Ageism ? The last 2 presidential candidates were like 100. Half of the Senate is over 60. All the Democratic and Republican leaders are in their 60s and 70s. What the hell is he talking about?	Ageism	Age - General	1/45	2.222
The only problem with Bill's words is that he'd be the first to say old fossils like Chuck Grassley should be forced into retirement.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/24	4.167

how many times did Bill say that Bernie was too old ? fuck off Bill.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/14	7.143

I don't know. He just made a prejudice comment about Arnold with English as a second language to lots of laughter.Of course, I doubt that same joke would've been made on a Spanish speaker :pNot that I disagree. Age shouldn't be a factor in "Can they do it." It's not like being President is a physical job.	Age	Age - General	1/59	1.695

I googled 'bill maher best jokes'..... Nothing came up	Nothing	Age - Youngsters	1/9	11.111
Yeah he fixed nothing , fuck he made California worse. Arnold would have done way more for California if it wasn't for the liberal Democrats fucking things up. Yeah Jerry Brown was a genius, high homeless rate, large income inequality, you all understand that, the fifth largest economy in the world has income inequality and high homelessness, outstanding.	Jerry, Nothing	Age - Youngsters, Nationality - German	2/57	3.509
Isn't it rational to consider age ? If Bernie Sanders is elected in 2020 he would be 80+ when taking office. Considering average life expectancy and the stress of the job, there is a good chance he wouldn't survive 8 years. Prejudiced, yes. Irrational, no.	Age	Age - General	1/44	2.273
You can say what you want about Maher. Is he an asshole? Sure. But he also often makes surprisingly profound points as here in this example. Unfortunately the party that is suppose to be against prejudices and racism doesn't want you if you're an " old white guy". Irony isn't it.	Old, Racism	Age - Over 65s, Ethnicity - General	2/50	4.0
Bill I hate to tell ya this man but California is STILL BROKE and UNGOVERNABLE. SORRY CALIFORNIANS but you're state officials have turned a once gorgeous state into a overflowing septic tank with LIBERALISM.RIP CALI. UNFILTERED UNAPOLOGETIC TRUTH	Septic	Nationality - American	1/41	2.439
No one should be respected more just because they're old . You know what young idiots turn into? Old idiots. Respect smart people. They're always getting better with age . When you say old people can't or shouldn't drive, guess what, they always sucked at driving, because they've always been stupid.	Age, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s	4/49	8.163

the part about not respecting the elderly , it is such a big problem through out the world	Elderly	Age - Over 65s	1/17	5.882
Yeah, Bill. And what was our cry in the 60s? "You can't trust anyone over 30." Or are you so old and decrepit now you've forgotten?	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/26	3.846
Bill is full of shit. Jerry Brown is great at 76. That's great but Trump is 72 and although he never should've been President at any age , twenty years ago I doubt he needed help finding his car when he was standing right in front of it. By the way, I've seen a few of the women he's dated. For a guy not interested in butts, it strikes me as odd most of his girlfriends can't go through a doorway without hitting both sides.	Age, Jerry	Age - General, Nationality - German	2/84	2.381
Yay for job creation if you're a liberal but if you're conservative you're still a bigoted racist devil.. liberal logic	Racist	Ethnicity - General	1/20	5.0
Trump is old . That does not make him wise.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/9	11.111
I usually agree with Bill, but I don't agree with the concept of wisdom=age. Look at the majority of people who voted Trump: by and large fearful old white people. Then there are the unfortunate consequences of Alzheimer's which can almost literally change an individual's personality. And personally, I don't see baby boomers as having the wisdom of seniors of the past, especially when compared to the WW2/Great Depression generation. That generation made the world a generally better place for their children. The baby boomers have done that with technology; leadership I'm not so sure.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/95	1.053
I love how he says the best one for the job is Jerry Brown while he is sitting next to Bernie Sanders.	Jerry	Nationality - German	1/22	4.545

Regan was 69 when he first took office. By the time he left office he was deep into dementia. My mother got her drivers license renewed at the age of 90. She did not have to have her vision checked again for 8 years. (By that time she was blind , but she still had a drivers license)There is a point where the human body starts to break down. We can't ignore that. Not everybody ages at the same rate, and there is no magic number, but pretending it doesn't happen won't make it go away. I hope I have the awareness to realize when it happens, but sometimes it doesn't happen that way. Yes, we need to respect the elderly . In doing so we must also realize that a 75 year old man is not able to do things the same way he did when he was twenty.	Age, Blind, Elderly, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	4/149	2.685
if a president is 78 at the start of his term, he is 82 by the end. no, grandpa, that is too old . there are reasons why most people retire in their 60s. 80 year olds are ALL past their prime as a matter of biological fact. america has a problem of electing presidents (and other officials) that are TOO OLD , not TOO YOUNG. even donald trump would not have been as bad a president before his dementia.	Old	Age - Over 65s	2/78	2.564
Define "fix," SF is covered in shit and needles and almost every street in LA is homeless camp. On top of that everything is taxed out control and overly regulated. Jerry Brown is a jackass.	Jerry	Nationality - German	1/35	2.857
RBG!!! she was truly a beautiful young woman	Woman	Gender - General	1/8	12.5
"Were wise when were old " is proof the 21st century culturalism has mythology. Some old people are stupid and Bill Mahers favorite stupidity prop is an old man.	Old	Age - Over 65s	3/28	10.714
Add ism to anything and it is bad. Fatism. I'm a fatist, I have a prejudice against excessively fat people. I don't trust 'em.	Fat	Physical Identity - Physical Features	1/24	4.167
Point to be noted: In India, if you're young , you're probably not good enough to govern the country/state,... All our leaders are old , decrepit and corrupt.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/27	3.704
Not exactly the last. It's ok to disrespect short people too. The complete and utter disrespect they get on a daily basis would have most people drinking Drano.. If you're short and fat , for Christ's sake, you're openly begging for ridicule. Kevin Hart is a successful young man, but in almost every every single interview, he's ridiculed because of his height. Fair or unfair?	Fat	Physical Identity - Physical Features	1/64	1.562
Sounds wrong now that the old Trump is in office. Man has dementia.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/13	7.692
Actually, I lived in China for several years. A lot of the people DON'T respect the elderly , and it's getting worse as they adopt the Western lifestyle.	Elderly	Age - Over 65s	1/27	3.704

Jerry Brown ruined California! Their economy is tanking, crime is through the roof, they have homeless people galore, shit/piss/needles flowing through the streets, and it's no longer a crime to intentionally infect someone with AIDS..... what are you talking about, Bill???	Jerry	Nationality - German	1/41	2.439
There's a very practical reason for not nominating an old person: they are at a high risk of dying before finishing two terms, and if their VP isn't stellar, then that's a big deal. That was a big reason I didn't vote for McCain in 08. I think he would have done great, but his lifespan was questionable, and there was a very real chance that Sarah Palin could have succeeded him.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/72	1.389
I agree but what happens when your old and look young naturally ?Jill walker	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/15	6.667
The legitimacy of ageism is that a 76-year-old for president raises the concern of whether he'll live long enough to see a second term.	Ageism	Age - General	1/24	4.167

Jerry Brown broke Califórnia even worse, fool	Jerry	Nationality - German	1/7	14.286
I agree with Bill to some extent, but here I believe he falls into the same fallacy that many do. America is not ruled by the young. The millennial generation is only just beginning to assert generational dominance, the political, judicial, military, and industrial leadership of this country is still dominated by the Baby Boomer generation. It's why our country refuses to move forward, because so many of those in power think that progress is a bad thing, that things were perfect when they were young and the key to American success rests in recreating the circumstances of that supposed lost golden age . And this is a cross party problem, our leaders are blinded by nostalgia and ideological entrenchment. Experience is important, but more so is the ability to look forward rather than backward.	Age	Age - General	1/134	0.746
He says ageism is a problem but then says young American voters don't know anything. Ageism applies for both the old and the young.	Ageism, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s	3/24	12.5

America is a teenager where Europe is the old guy. Europe has burned itself on the ground on more than one occasion and has finally learned the lesson. Only this America's 'coming to age' story is quite frightening. Just don't burn down Europe along with you.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/46	2.174

Wisdom: Youth is fleeting. Don't make fun of others age or generalize older people otherwise you will end up being treated badly when you are older and you will not like it. There are wise young people and wise old people just as there are young assholes and old assholes.	Age, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s	3/50	6.0

Welp.... This didn't age well.	Age	Age - General	1/5	20.0
Yes! ageism definitely exists. I swear, a woman is taught that after she turns 40 her life is over. I know men experience ageism as well. I love this video and I love the honesty. And the ass comment.... Everyone should watch milk milk Lemonade by Amy Schumer. Considering the fact that s comes out of her ass would make you think that people would not glorify it. It's a butt, who cares.	Ageism, Woman	Age - General, Gender - General	3/73	4.11
Let's see him make the same argument about Trump. Trumps just 8 years younger than Brown. Is he as intelligent, or wise? I doubt he'd argue that. Age is relative. As in it's not all that important in regards to intelligence and wisdom. David Duke is 68. How intelligent is he? Or wise? How about the countless of old idiots walking around? Let me guess, they're intelligent too, right? As George Carlin said "Kids are like any other group, a few winners, a whooooole lot of losers" And the same concept can be applied to old people. Intelligence and wisdom can be found across a wide spectrum of people regarding age , the characteristics themselves can be found within people few and far in between. He makes some good points but I think he's strawmanning a bit here. First of all, Jerry Brown never even put his hat in the ring for president and secondly, the most popular candidates in the 2016 election were all in their late 60s or 70s. When it comes to politics I think there's a more ageism against younger candidates than older ones, but even then I don't think it's that strong. As a foreigner, I watched a lot of American cartoons and I was alarmed to see how many times " old senile people doing ordinary things old senile people do" was used as a joke. Not only was it a cheap gag and seldom had any wit put into it, but I was alarmed because you never do that where we come from. It's not even unconditional worship and respect for the elderly . Over here it's considered like fatshaming in America: a social taboo. Actually it's worse than fatshaming, because some mean people still do that. Because unlike age , some people do avoid becoming fat and feel no guilt for pointing others' obesity out. Everyone knows they will grow old someday, and you just don't make fun of it.I know age can be a double-edged sword, but at least it shouldn't be a RESTRICTION to governing. Ageism can be directed towards younger people too. Young people are often underrated and underrepresented. My generation can be pretty stupid, but there hasn't been a generation that hasn't been seen as stupid by the previous generations. Obviously there are challenges the elderly face in this country, but young people face challenges too. Millennials have gotten a bad rap, but we aren't so bad. While Maher definitely makes good points, this certainly goes both ways. Yes, some people might think that at 78 you become too old to be in government, but the same is true for young people too. Many different people assume that just because a person is young they are immature, inexperienced, and ill-fit to do any job of value. This may be true for some, but we shouldn't generalize it.Instead of worrying about whether or not someone is too young or too old , we should start worrying about how qualified they are. Because no matter how old someone is, they can still be stupid, but they can also still be relevant and experienced, and no matter how young someone is, they can still be intelligent, but they can also still be inexperienced and unprepared. We honestly should stop generalizing in a lot of different aspects...	Old	Age - Over 65s	3/146	2.055

Ah, Yes. Another double edged sword to be added to the arsenal of intolerance. Ageism . Unfortunately when this works against the younger generations it isn't taken very seriously or heard of much. Florida quite likely has the largest population of people who are retired or are at least of retirement age . Because many of them are retired and have no need to work a consistent job. They have more time than most to allocate toward influencing county and state legislature naturally biased in their favor. This consistently includes cuts to school board and foster care funding, amongst other county and state resources particularly geared toward the welfare of children. They also frequent town hall meetings to advocate against allowing certain businesses that would attract young people to establish themselves in their city. They have also saturated the local real-estate economy, not only forcing young adult tax paying citizens and families into unsustainable and unlivable situations, but also working In cahoots with property management to set up communities specifically for themselves, hoarding property and retaining rights to a home that they only live at for 3 to 4 months out of a year. So yeah ageism is a bitch especially when it doesn't go your way.	Age, Ageism	Age - General	3/204	1.471

All these old people are agreeing with him	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/8	12.5
Yes, agreed. But I guess we can agree that our present bias is towards us young people. It is also no surprise as it is the demographic sector theoretically more productive, creative, emotional and with it more likely to consume, in the sense of buying but also of destroying, which following Schumpeter is the source of growth. In short, most billionaires are old but their businesses invest and focus in the young because their marketing departments know the larger gains are there.We may also say that we don't pay enough attention to the adolescents and kids. I am not saying immediate equal vote, but perhaps new forae for participation and feedback.But again, you in the States don't participate much in politics even as young adults.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/127	0.787
So let them get a physical and if they're healthy, drop the ageism . And at the same time, test the young to see if they have a fifth-grade knowledge of history, literature, and how to use their own language beyond 140 characters' worth of truncated words.	Ageism	Age - General	1/46	2.174
You make a valid point, but only for an argument that doesn't exist.My understanding of Bill's argument is that America is driven by pop culture, and pop culture currently reveres the young and condemns the old in most things, especially in areas where it shouldn't.When it comes to progress, wisdom does not cause stagnation. On the contrary, wisdom prevents the world from revisiting old mistakes.Our mistaken belief that "new things" can only come from "new people" is the very reason why we were always on the brink of another world war.It wasn't the "new things" that prevented another war, but the wisdom of a small group of " old people" that knew societies on Earth will always be too immature to understand the consequences of their actions, because they (the "new people") will always think that their ideas are new, simply because they are ignorant of the past, and/or unable to apply past knowledge in a philosophical way.	Old	Age - Over 65s	3/161	1.863

Being older means you've had to actually change things several times. Nothing beats experience - especially when it seems like knowing economics is the things people value most in a leader. The young guns are exactly that - young guns. They come in with a fresh view on things, but they have no sense of perspective. Whether [whatever] is genuinely revolutionary thinking, or if it's just a rehash of something that's been tried before. Old doesn't necessarily mean sedentary and conservative - even people like Sanders (regardless of views) is a perfect example of that. It's not about shutting out young people, there just can't be two presidents, so it's about picking the right one. It's a point on what age actually mean. People seem to be put in boxes as either " old " or "young" - and to young people, that first box comes creeping veeery fast. Is 40 years " old "? Well, compared to what most 20 year-olds do, it's very old . They "no longer know whats cool". But in terms of looking at a lifetime of politics - 40 is barely getting started. It's like "young" is considered like 10-15 of adults. But just because someone at 20 can't tell the difference between a 50 and a 60 year- old , doesn't mean there isn't one.The point made in the video is that we've shifted initiative from middle age to young age . Likely because the middle age live so comfortably, they don't really care to riot that much anymore. Which is how they getcha'. Objectively speaking, everyone has a voice - but why does the 85 have to live by what the 15 feels? There needs to be a vetting system in place - and that's experience. Not google. Its not a politicians age , its whether he is Progressive or Conservative. Bobby Kennedy explained the difference succinctly when he was asked to explain why he supported Progressive Democratic policies in general over Conservative Republican ones. "Some men look at the world the way it is and asks "Why?" I dream of the way the world COULD be, and ask "Why Not?" But I get your point, also. There is an old Chinese proverb that goes A man who is 20 and isn't idealistic has no heart, And a man who is still idealistic at 40 has no head." Young people shouod always be holding the older generations feet to the fire when they see them selling out. But believe me, getting married starting a family and having a mortgage and maintaining a career, with 3,4 5 other peoples lives depending on you maintaining a job and being responsible and dependable to your family....trust me, keeping all that going will wear down the best of us.. An older adults world, compared to 20/30 year olds, the commitments and responsibilities make a individuals ability to rebel look irresponsible, if not insane. Young people are not in any position of power, and the old people want to keep deciding the future of this country, yet they are the ones on their way out. Nah, that makes zero sense at all. Young people need to have a say too, and there are plenty of wise young people and a lot of stupid old people. Where do you think most of the bigotry and racism in this country comes from? Young people?? No, it's old fuckers who are still living in the 1950s. RyZombie619 first of so many civil rights activists are not affiliated and even against BLM. The BLM are protesting that too many African men are being killed by as in their view as the cops for being racist . It's not really about race at all but because of the stereotypes that the African American gang culture have produce. Although still morally wrong and some cases the fault of cops, the majority of blacks being reported killed by cops were warranted in defense of their own lives and or in the event that they were committing a crime of an extreme circumstance. Chicago has the most black on black crime in the country and yet people expect cops not to be as a result a little prejudice. So civil rights were fought for the color of one's skin not to be a subject for being excluded from ones right by their constitution. BLM people think they are the same but in reality they are fighting for the right not to be stereotyped. I'm latino and I know when I'm pulled over and the cops think I have drugs, I know it's not because of me or them to blame but towards the people of my race that is tied to criminals. I love it when he brings up bad Asian drivers. It is so true. I have lived in Asia, Borneo to be specific, and it is so true: here, there and looks live everywhere. What is it? Even pulling a shopping cart is dangerous in their hands. I blame age . To be a good driver, and now it looks like a shopping cart puller or pusher, one has to learn early. More and more non-Asians, home spun people, are bad drivers. Single focused drivers eyes planted straight ahead, never checking mirrors, (there are three of them in most cars), no awareness of those around them. And sorry, girls, but few of you seem conscious of road share; but don't feel bad, late learners of any persuasion ain't got the 'awareness' of what is not directly in front of 'em. But I must point out, young Asian drivers, who have their experience and licences in their earlier teens are excellent drivers. Maybe a bit too fast, but that is youth. 91 of the African Americans that are over 65 and voted in the primary voted for Hillary because they "know her" compared to Berine who was fighting for Civil Rights in the 50s, while Hillary was still deciding if she wanted to be a Republican or not. If you know Hillary then you should know about how Bill during his term as president in 94 signed a bill (heh) that made mass incarceration worse, and he admits it.Which makes you wonder, if the elderly are "wiser" than younger people in most respects, then why don't they read up about the different candidates and then make their judgement after. Problem is though Bill, for every Bernie Saunders there are are one hundred Strom Thurmonds waiting in the wings.....of course age in itself shouldn't be a block to political office, but as a rule once people pass retirement age they are pretty set in their ways and not open to compromise, and generally fairly right-wing.You don't want kids as politicians, and equally you don't want geriatrics either.....	Age	Age - General	2/68	2.941
I like Real Time... I don't always agree with Bill, but I enjoyed this rant. One thing he says that's false is that ageism is the last acceptable prejudice. Fat people are one of the most open targets, as he proved with the Chris Christie joke. Smokers are also a massive target. I get that they shouldn't smoke in an inclosed location, but restricting people from smoking in their own cars, or giving them an outdoor space is unreasonable. I think Trump is proving that even open racism is still pretty accepted in this country. There will always be prejudice, but all we can do is try to inform people without pissing them off in the process. I'm certainly no millennial. I'm almost 40. But I seem to remember the human buttocks always being sexualized, even when we were watching MTV back when they actually showed music videos. Checking out people's asses is not something kids today invented. Sir Mix-a-Lot released "Baby Got Back" in 1992, before any "millennial" was even out of diapers. Furthermore, I'm sorry Bill, I love you, but a candidate's age IS an issue. John McCain was 72 on election day in 2008, just six years shy of the life expectancy for Americans. And he chose as his successor SARAH PALIN. I don't care how much you like John McCain, you think the fact that a 72-year-old man chooses... Actually, the young don't rule anything in America. In fact 80 of them don't even vote. And when that happens, the old people you want us to venerate end up being the main voters, and since they are overwhelmingly right-wing, we get republican politicians, who are the old , white men who actually rule everything and make terrible decisions. This is exactly what happened during the November 2014 elections. If young people, who are mostly progressive, actually had more of say, then Donald Trump wouldn't even be a fucking option. It would be Bernie's win guaranteed. Look into it. Young people love Bernie and support him far more than any other candidate. So as you can see, there has been a meeting of the minds between Bernie, the oldest presidential candidate, and young voters. This happened based on ideas, and based on young people recognizing good ideas. We currently live in a country ruled by old republicans who are put in power by old people voting. Again, what about this is hard to grasp... I don't even know.And you still are not getting it. Plants that make products run on fossil fuels because their equipment does, because WE DON'T HAVE CLEAN SOLUTIONS YET!!! That is what people are working for... when clean energy solutions to machinery and equipment are produced, they can be swapped out, but most focus is going towards reducing car pollution and pollution from factories. And you ignored my question as to why you are attacking people for wanting clean energy... Why is reducing pollution bad? lol... so ridiculous.And again, you are adopting a "It's too hard to change, so lets not and watch the world die..." attitude. Nothing gets done by people like you. The big reasons clean energy solutions have been so slow going is BECAUSE of fossil fuel industries working hard to stop it, and that is not a conspiracy theory, they really do that by buying politicians. BawnawgwaJesus, you lose WAY too much sleep over this shit. I don't buy conspiracy theories about the rich and not paying taxes. And that's exactly what it is. You can't bitch about the Koch Brothers forcing people to pay taxes for Solar Energy (or whatever the fuck it is you're ranting about), and then turn around and support King Sanders....who's entire campaign revolves around taxing ALL citizens unnecessarily for shit that nobody wants. It doesn't work that way. You can't complain about taxes and then support Sanders. I don't think so. That makes you a hypocrite."And again, you are adopting a "It's too hard to change, so lets not and watch the world die..."No I fucking didn't you stupid cow. I've repeatedly said that I believe Global Warming exists. My stance on it is simply "let's work at our own pace, or a pace which is best for humanity in terms of job growth, industry, and environmental status." And what I mean by that is that we're doing FINE at the pace in which we're phasing out old, outdated means of energy (such as coal and oil). If you do this shit too quickly, you won't have the technology in place to make it work, and you'll lose jobs because those industries (oil, coal, etc) will lay off jobs and put people out of work.In the next 10 years, if we reduce the number of Coal factories and Oil rigs/companies by, say 20, that will be a huge step towards building a Clean Energy Industry. That gives time for technology to improve/catch up, as well as knowledge, education, and training for those fields which are required to have sustainable job growth in the Clean Energy Industry.If, for example, we'd shut down 20 of that industry in the next 2 or 3 years, that would put a LOT of people out of work, because this country isn't ready for it. And what are you going to say to them? "Sorry you can't put food on the table for your families anymore....we need Clean Energy NOW."You see, the difference between a dumbass like you, and someone like me, is that I don't lose sleep over this. I acknowledge that there is NO such thing as a free ride in this country, or on this planet. Every single industry, which gives us the ability to have electricity, gas, or even an iPhone, all adds to Global Warming. Every single one. And it's beyond ridiculous to expect these things to just go away in the name of Environmental Change. Not gonna happen. We are too tied into these objects. Take away Oil, and this country would go back to the dark ages; I promise you. And there's NO other source of energy for cars that we can afford, produce on a mass scale, or sustain at this time.Hydrogen? WAY too expensive, and incredibly difficult to produce ON A MASS SCALE.So until we find CHEAP, reliable, abundant energy that works ALL the time, then we're stuck with Oil.If we build Nuclear Plants, people like you will still bitch about it.If we build Clean Coal (I know it's an oxymoron) factories, people like you will still bitch about it.If we build Solar plants and install panels over wide areas of a city, people like you will still bitch about the cost of housing (which will inevitably go up with such installations) and the impact to the environment due to cutting down trees or threatening protected wildlife areas.You CANNOT have both in this world. You cannot bitch about this shit....then demand iPhones from factories that pollute. You cannot bitch about the price of

BawnawgwaMore pointless rambling about Conspiracies and nonsense about the wealthy. Why should I take you seriously about that? Because BERNIE told me so? Give me a fucking break.”Bernie Sanders is taxing people for things they don’t want? Yep, no one wants affordable health care with better coverage than most have.”I’ll remember that when I hear about small businesses and couples losing their healthcare coverage, doctors, and being forced to accept plans that don’t cover preexisting conditions, or forcing them into a coverage plan that doesn’t work for them and that they don’t want. Yeah, I’ll remember this when I read of numerous small businesses losing their healthcare coverage plans because of higher taxes that don’t conform to some idiotic liberal nonsense.Tax Havens....you mean, countries with less restrictive tax laws than the US? OOOHHH BOOO HOOOO! Oh NOES! Don’t wanna give EARNED MONEY to BIG GOVERNMENT. OHHH BOO HOO! CRY CRY!Your stupid ass doesn’t even realize that ANYONE can go to one of these countries and put money away. You don’t have to be ”Rich”, you just have to be SMART.You wouldn’t know trickle down economics if it smacked you in the face. This is a made-up term to play on gullible people’s emotions. You’re truly stupid if you think the CEO of a multi-national corporation should be making the same kind of money as a substitute teacher or burger flippers. It’s the same kind of stupidity as saying that there are ”Gun Show Loopholes”, which there AREN’T.Are you REALLY so stupid that you think business in this country should be FAIR? That money should be FAIR? Are you THAT fucking stupid? Do you have any idea how much in poverty this country would be if we played by the rules of what’s ”Fair”?Wanna get ahead? Wanna make more money? EARN IT. I know the idea of people having the FREEDOM to make as much money as possible just chaps your Socialist ass, but....well, that’s the REAL WORLD. Deal with it.”And... What the hell is your argument? You are talking about changing stuff today, but how all these jobs and money will be lost because we don’t have the technology yata yata. Are you this stupid? Are you... this stupid? The answer is clearly yes.”So, insults without answering the question or addressing the problem. Got it.”What happens when we move from fossil fuels to clean energy? Oh, they lose money”Bullshit. They aren’t going to lose a dime because, as you pointed out, they’re buying the rights to this technology and these patents. Are you so stupid as to believe that they’re buying these rights/patents so that they can keep the country dependent on fossil fuels? Humanity is constantly evolving (unless you live in a 3rd world shithole); they aren’t ”sitting on these bills to halt the advancement of clean energy”. What a bunch of crap. The reason these companies are buying out these patents and rights is to MAKE MONEY when it happens, because THEY are the ones who are going to be making it and, thus, making PROFITS from it. They’re not buying something for nothing! What a bunch of stupid bullshit, lmao!You don’t GET this? There is no conspiracy here! It’s common sense! Vladpyrde Dumb ass.... The Koch's are in the oil business. You can't not buy their crap... And no one will lose healthcare coverage you simpleton. Do you understand what single payer is? Apparently not. It is when EVERYONE gets healthcare paid through taxes, and under Bernie's plan, that involves a 2.2 raise in income taxes for the vast majority of Americans. This actually takes away the burden of employers needing to cover their employees healthcare. Honestly, everything you say sounds like a troll. It is soooooooooo stupid that I can't believe you are serious and are trolling... Ah well, your idiocy means nothing , because I hate to break it to you, but Trump or Cruz will never win the presidency. I know... it must be heart breaking for you. And Hillary is on the rapid decline. Then let's not forget that those of us with a brain (this doesn't include you) will be voting the do nothing republicans out of congress the earliest they can be kicked out. We'll have a liberal president and liberal congress. The country will FINALLY begin catching up to the European countries that are vastly ahead of us on almost all fronts except military... and the middle class will boom again. I'd vote for Bernie Sanders in a heartbeat; having said that, I would be a little nervous electing someone over the age of 70. I don't think it's being " ageist " because I have no doubt that many people 70 and up would do just fine—I just think it's being realistic. Realistically, that person could die in office. Realistically, their health is probably waning. Realistically, they may be sharp as a tack at 75 but then could begin developing dementia at 76. They could also be just fine for 8 years and do an excellent job, but it just seems like such a gamble with a person north of 70.	Age, Ageist	Age - General	2/109	1.835

Wow, an honest to God civil answer. Good for you, I commend thee. I'm glad you asked because "better career choices" in your end means really means "better paying choices". Now unlike you I actually grew up rich. Not über rich, but absolutely in the top 20. But I teach school children. This is not a lack of trying nor a poor career choice, this is something I genuinely find exciting and it makes me happy. And because I live in a social democracy, I too am Danish, I can actually make a decent living off of it. I am comfortable with the idea that I will never become a rich man. I will never be a millionaire, but I'm very, very happy. Now I want to make it very clear that nobody is paying for me, because I too pay tax, and I still pay more than any American. Also because so much tax goes into education, the level of education in public universities is no lower than the private universities, so we have no equavelant to your IVY league universities. We do have expensive private universities, but they're worth no more on a resumé than a public education. So most of Denmark's top 1, including our royal family, went to public university, and so they too have used the system. Now if your tax went up and you had to pay more, you would, from a certain perspective, be supporting others. But is the happiness and security of your fellow countrymen not worth it? I mean looking from the outside it seems like you genuinely despise each other. The problem is that not all people are inheirently bright enough to make ambitious choices so you can A. Leave behind or B. Allow them to live a decent life with a profession they can be productive in.I mean for fuck sake, you have people calling universal healthcare the work of satan and communism while coughing up blood!!! The only conclusion I can come to is that nobody in America sees themselves as poor, but rather, because of this "American dream" idea , see themselves as temporarily inconvenienced billionaires. Is this true? That was a real question btw, I genuinely want to know.	Nobody	Age - Youngsters	2/374	0.535

Kristian Brandt Shit posting never gets anything done, if you want to have a civil conversation then I don't care what your political affiliation is. Let me start off by saying that I'm going into petroleum engineering which will net me around $100,000-$150,000 a year. At the current tax rate that means I'm going to have to pay between 20,000-30,000 a year in income taxes alone. So right off the bat you can see why raising taxes would elicit such an angry response from me and others like me. I'm not sure how things are in Denmark but in America the lowest class is looked down upon as leeches and not without reason. The average cost of keeping one person on welfare in the states is $25,000 a year. That's disgusting. So no I have no desire to help those people in the least. As for healthcare I can afford my own and I don't want to be forced to pay for benefits I'll never use. Why should I, a healthy 22 year old male, pay the same rate as a pregnant 40 year old woman?	Old, Woman	Age - Over 65s, Gender - General	3/186	1.613
Well you're not paying for the 40 year old pregnant woman's healthcare, you're paying tax and a portion of that is spent on healthcare. The government won't hand you the bill for Donna's labour. I can't see how your tax situation would affect you emotionally, cause like I wrote I, a 27 year old working class, pay much, much more than that. As for the poorest, who we weren't discussing, you'd imagine welfare leeches would be a problem with our system, but we have an effective solution. This is the problem with American politics, the slightest suggestion that you could learn from other nations, and the republicans and southern liberals cut your hand off, politically speaking, for even hinting that the US might not be the best at everything. Well the solution is called "activation", and what it does is that if you've been on welfare for more than 3 months, the government will find you a place to work, and your pay will be your welfare check, which is less than what the job would actually make you, thus encouraging you to get a real job. This ensures only those who genuinely need welfare get it, because the alternative to a real pay check takes just as much work, but pays less. Also you're 22 mate, it's a little early for the victory tour. Humility truly is a charm long lost on you Yankees XD	Old	Age - Over 65s	2/236	0.847
Kristian Brandt That's certainly a better solution then the American welfare system and I have no problem admitting that there are some things other country do better then us. As for my healthcare what I'm saying is that I shouldn't have to pay for something I'll never use, I used the example of the pregnant woman because I'm never going to get pregnant thus I shouldn't have to pay for a plan that covers labor expenses. I'm not sure what you mean by the victory tour comment.	Woman	Gender - General	1/87	1.149

Well what of those of your countrymen who oppose nuclear warfare? They're still paying the maintenance of your warheads. What of those 2nd amendment nuts who believe the police is obsolete and that all you need to solve crime is a bible, a semi automatic rifle and a can do attitude? They're still paying the police. If every American, or every Dane for that matter, was allowed to tailor their tax to their needs, society would collapse because every country is, ultimately, nations of I. Someone needs to force our wallets for the betterment of the nations. Nobody likes paying tax, but it's the price we pay for security and high standards of living. And like I wrote, your tax is not paying healthcare, it's paying everything. And the idea that you should pay more the more you make, is not a punishment for "smart career choices", it should be so because that way your tax will have the same impact on you, as it will on the "failures" working the nightshift in walmart.The sad truth is that some people just aren't that bright, and punishing them by making them pay more than the top(i.e. leaving them behind) is not fair. Especially not in a country like the US where people don't have equal access to social services. The victory tour comment was to underline that you are in fact 22 and still at uni, yet you're talking like you've practically bought the penthouse. Life is cruel mate, and an arrogant attitude like that leaves you open for a knock out. I know you Yanks love your sports references, so let me say this. Don't go southpaw till the last round, or you'll end up punchdrunk.	Nobody	Age - Youngsters	1/287	0.348
---	--------	---------------------	-------	-------

Sorry this is a bit long : But like I said with the social services we're provided, services that working class Americans pay a lot of money to have, we're realistically walking away with more disposable income than your average American. We also have a much narrower wealth gap than you, and we have no absolute poverty, and you do. In case you're wondering there are two pillars of lower class poverty. The most common in western nations is relative poverty. Relative poverty means you're poor relative to your nation's standard of living. You can feed yourself, but you won't spend a romantic summer in Paris. Absolute poverty means you're actually having serious problems taking care of yourself, and you're one payment away from eviction. This is what you sometimes refer to as "trailer trash". Sadly this also means you have the highest percentage of child poverty of any western nation . If you still think privatised medicine is a good idea, then consider this. Not only do you have the lowest life expectancy of any western nation , you also have the heighest infant mortality rate. Which is heartbreaking. This is why I say that looking from the outside, it seems that you genuinely despise each other. The top 30 must know this, and yet they're not willing to have their tax raised. Look, if you cut your defense spending, which is way too high, raise working class tax 15, and tax the 1 as much as the working class, those numbers would improve dramatically. You have inner city schools that spend more on metal detectors and security than books which is just mad. And introducing advanced pedagogy to education would also help at risk students. It's hard to say how much people here pay, because tax is adjusted. People in my field usually pay around 40, although I pay 50 because my master's degree gives me a slight pay raise, as does my Ph.D(wasn't going to mention that because it seems like boasting, but in this instance it's relevant). A slight tax raise would also enable you to look into the enviroment. I know many conservatives don't give two shits about this, but if you've ever been to Los Angeles, you'd know what I'm on about. As for my hypothetical life in America, I'm not sure you're right. My epilepsy didn't "wake up" till I was 14, however I was born with eczema. It went away after a few years, but it's still a pre-existing condition. I'm sorry if seem a bit zealous, but I just don't see how you can put a price on being healthy. Kristian Brandt Don't worry about it, we both have busy lives. I can't agree with your first point. $100,000 a year with 20 tax and less then $10,000 for for all of the same benefits is more then $40,000 with 50 + tax if not more, you don't need to be an engineer to see that. As for the wealth gap that argument is extremely weak when you start to analyze what it really means. Does it really matter that people like Bill Gates makes billions of dollars a year and I'll make maybe $250,000 annually by the end of my career? No. I want to do well for myself and I couldn't care less if I makes an outrageous amount of money. Yes Denmark has a small wealth gap but at the same time the average person is much poorer then the average American for it.Raising the taxes by 75 is completely unacceptable. Yes the infant mortality rate is high in America but the lives if 1.6 of children born is not an adequate reason for such an unreasonable hike in taxes. The defense budget is too expensive, I'll give you that. Personally I don't think we should spend a dime protecting nations that don't want us in the first place.The reasons the inner city's spend so much on security equipment is because the gang culture breeds violence, they really are necessary to keep the schools safe.Boast all you want, a PH.D is something to be proud of.I don't really have an opinion on the environment. I don't live near Los Angeles but all of the other cities I've been to a remarkably clean with the exception of Pittsburgh.I don't put a price on my personal health, but I'm not going to pay someone else's hospital bill.As for your final point let me put it like this: Denmark has a population of smaller then that of New York City. Do you really expect us to take the option of such a if relatively small country seriously?	Hike	Nationality - Italian	1/343	0.292

Yeah I've always found that hilarious, you could fit our entire population in New York and still have room for 3 million more XD I didn't understand that last bit. I'm thinking what you ment to write was "do you expect to take the opinions of such a small country seriously?". If this is true, then I have to ask you to slow down, because you can't rule a nation irrelevant because of its size. The Vatican, which is actually a country, has the world's smallest population... Yet they house the richest and most influential corporation in the world, the Catholic church. Also we're actually quite a large country, because Greenland is Danish territory, and we haven't granted them independance yet. Although to be fair their total population is 50.000. I will absolutely agree that Americans have higher income than us, but our standard of living is still higher than yours because our tax is spent on shit which makes our lives better. Feel free to look it up. Apparently we're also happier. And Copenhagen is the cleanest capital in the world, and trust me mate, you can tell. I'm a bit curious, have you ever left the States? Clearly Bill and company forgot what they did and what they thought about the world when they were young. They were the rebellious generation that defied their parents, with hippie style and socialist utopic ideas (that they quickly abandon as soon as they had to live on their own salary and not their parent’s allowance), then quickly turned into Yuppies.They were the first generation of spoiled kids who could afford to buy a new car at the age of 19. A house by the age of 25, let alone the money they blew away in coke (the white powder drug not the drink).By the way, the old generation under 70 loves facebook (I know a few old ladies hooked on it)About ass... lets see: who invented playboy? and micro-skirts? the millennials certainly weren’t! it was cool when they did that nudity thing, but is not cool now that the not-so-young millenials do it!Basically in their own way, when they were young, they did the same stupid shit some of the millenials are doing now.Does anyone remember how New York was like in the 1980’s? it was the world capital of dope and crime, courtesy of the young baby boomers.As we grow up we become wiser, the same thing is happening with the not-so-young millennialsI’m a ‘Millennial’ and I feel old and tired!!! I will never have the same live prospects that the baby boomer’s had, not even a glimpse: education is now expensive and a college degree does not give anyone a certainty of a well-paid job;There are no stable jobs anymore and the paychecks are smaller; Houses are 4000 more expensive now than in the 1970’s (and is not just because of the normal inflation);We will have to pay more taxes to support the growing number of retired elderly baby boomers that complaint about the world THEY created; For my generation retirement (if ever) will come at the age of 75, not 62 or 65;We are going to have to deal with global warming and other natural hazards we inhered;There will be a shortage of resources (overused during the last 3 generations);Wars in the middle east, the prospect or a real WWII and its consequences; My life expectancy is shorter than the baby boomer’s.We are not the rebellious ones, we barely protest and mostly accept the establishment (except small groups).Should I go on????Baby boomers: can you really complaint about us or about yourselves? Afraid I can't go along with Bill on this one on the lack of concern over old age when electing a president. A president who is intending to run for a second term has a lot less leeway in their first term, and sadly an American white male at age 78 only has about a 79 chance of surviving their first term and 55 chance of surviving the second, with a substantially lower chance of surviving to that age healthy enough to keep working one of the most stressful jobs on the planet. If they can keep going at that age , that's fantastic, and their experience may be a real asset, but I just can't accept those odds for a position like POTUS.I'm perfectly happy with an elderly supreme court justice, senator, or cabinet member. Ok so here's my thought. Age has a factor especially when it comes to governing. I mean one of the reasons why the Middle East has failed is because a lot of the leaders are in the 60-85 age group. Yes wisdom has a key in this but in my opinion elderly should play roles such as counseling or advisers rather than Presidents. Someone who can be a part of something but from the "Small Council". Having a young leader is not a sign of disrespect but you need someone who can think like the generation that is currently active and who hold the key to the future rather than a leader who is thinking it's still 1950. If a candidate has what it takes and he's old then by all means. But if he's going to bring the " old tricks" which would've worked back in the 70's then I'd rather have another one. Yes Millennials suck big times. We had the spoils of our hard working parents. The 80's and 90's were a lot of fun. We sucked at school and we had boy bands (yes I know The Beatles could be considered as boy bands but I'm talking about...will you know what I'm talking about). So no wonder we stare at asses. But that doesn't mean that's it. Any way. Feel free to agree or disagree.	Age, Elderly, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s	5/228	2.193
Right Bill but you can't have it both ways. The reason our nation is unable to value wisdom in governing is because in other sectors, like education, entertainment and ideology, they have already been convinced that wisdom=traditional and traditional=oppression and regression. You cited China's respect for the elderly , which is quite right, but look at other things China does not allow. Ageism is a thing because at a point, it's no longer their future. A president at 65 who has another 10 years left in them shouldn't be making policies that will effect America for another 50 years. They don't have to deal with their consequences. Also, many of their views are primitive and their policies based on nostalgia and not on current events, like the men in their 50s who want the Reagan era back. We need the young. We need to condition them."The young rule everything." Pop music? Beauty standards? What, because in the 70s every 80 year old on the block was hitting up the disco and dressing in that dumb ass shit they wear. We like ass. We like new music. I will give you that video games strengthen hand-eye coordination for a great career in Drone-flying no doubt. Actually, I do not care what people think of me in the slightest at the bar; and i do have some serious moves lol ...I practice serious Kung fu on a daily basis for the past twenty years ...before that i boxed; so nobody touches me. Now, I also meditate and practice Qi gong daily. I am in wicked shape ...have all my hair and a nice 6-pack still. I go to rave parties that last for days at least once a year and am always the last man standing (unless i am getting laid). Even when the twenty somethings are dropping like flies. I don't hang out in top 40 bars... never have, even when i was young; because a straight male dancing in that environment, is still to this day, liable to get in a fight over it. I am a free spirit... no one can touch me. But it is a shame what rolls society places on a person, just because of ones age. Yes... I do know that I am not the typical 40-something divorcee... overweight and balding with responsibilities like children and a family, child maintenance, alimony, a huge mortgage and shit; like 95 of most guys my age ...It will happen to you too if you are not careful8-(...I figured it out though, how I can work as a bouncer in that environment so I can still participate, meet girls and work at the same time :-)	Age, Nobody	Age - General, Age - Youngsters	3/344	0.872

I am a 15 year old guy, and I have to say I don't understand my generation at all. I was born in one of the last years of the millennials and most people my age baffle the shit out of me. We as a generation are too self-centered, egotistical, narcissistic and centered on material goods and wealth than anything else. We care little for politics, economics and news and instead are interested in what celebrity is doing what and the newest and best products to buy. I don't hate my generation, but saying I am disappointed with us would be an understatement. We are straying into an individualistic mindset and that is distressing, but I ask older generations and people of my generation to not make assumptions and generalize us because in that 'we' is included many different people. Most of the people that are seen on tv and the internet today that are of our generation doesn't reflect many of us and what we value. The normal everyday Generation Y's are not the ones you see in the media, because today 'news' is not about facts and relevant stories it is about what is 'interesting' and what will get someones attention to make them stay on the channel. Normal people just aren't interesting enough for us anymore.	Age, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s	2/219	0.913

SquirrlyburtDon't give me that. I have been the victim of this prejudice too often to give you any credence. And even though there are a minority of atheist trolls, that is no more a reason to judge the group than it is to decide that all evangelicals are closet homosexuals, because a few have been outed like Ted Haggard.I had been promised an equity stake in my company if I achieved certain goals, which I greatly exceeded. The Company was owned by devout Christians. But before the year was done, and the final results were in, I happened to be at a bar one night with the President of the company who kept badgering me to come and join his church. I finally broke down and told him that I was an atheist - something I had carefully hidden for 4 years. After that, I was no longer invited to board meetings unless my expertise was absolutely required, I never got another raise (I had been getting them about every 6 months) and my division of the company was moved to a holding company and out from under the company I had been working with. The result was that at year's end, they were legally able to honor their contract with me by giving me 2 of the nearly worthless holding company. When the company I actually did the work for was sold a couple of years later with a net profit of 5 million dollars I should have gotten $100,000, but I got almost nothing . At the same time, they liquidated the holding company and I got 2 of it's $10,000 valuation - about $200.I never spoke about religion except one time, when, after a few beers, I wanted to stop my boss from pestering me to come to his church.A group of conservative Christians at my club/marina tried to have me kicked out when they found out through a 3rd party that I am an atheist. I don't even associate with them - i never insulted, badgered or bothered them.These are just two incidents that happened to me personally. There have been more, and several of my friends have had such experiences too. So please don't tell me about how it's our fault, or it's not really a prejudice. I wouldn't say that's prejudice. When you're old , people think you can't do certain things and you can prove them wrong. When you're atheist, people think you dont believe in God and that's enough for them to not want you. And you can't prove that wrong.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/46	2.174

Mike WilliamsPrejudice - to prejudge. To judge an individual or group without knowing the facts. So, if I sit through a 3 month trial of a person, and good evidence is presented of their guilt, and I sentence them to prison, that is neither prejudice, nor discrimination. But if a black person is convicted and jailed because they are black , that is. They were prejudged based on skin and not on the facts.	Black	Ethnicity - Black	2/74	2.703
Pat Doyle If a black person is convicted just for being black , that's not prejudice, that's a law that needs to change. Like immediately lol. If a person won't vote vote for an atheist, just because they are atheist, that's not prejudice, that's just a dumb way to vote. If you refuse to vote for an atheist because you make the connection atheism=baby killer then THATs prejudice.	Black, Dumb	Ethnicity - Black, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	3/67	4.478
Mike WilliamsNo, it's prejudice, because the law does not allow that person to be convicted for that reason already. But if the jurors JUDGE him BEFORE (thus the "pre" in prejudge) they know the facts because his skin is black , that is the very definition of prejudice.And if you don't vote for an atheist just because they are an atheist, the means that you judged them to be unworthy regardless of the evidence. You had a pre-existing (there's that "pre" again) idea that atheists should not be trusted to hold office, and the facts do not matter. That is prejudice.	Black	Ethnicity - Black	1/102	0.98

Pat Doyle no, if you try to convict someone ONLY for being black , that is not prejudice unless you show that there was a PRE-judgment. See, there's that PRE again. You'd have to show that. They're not assuming the person's black . They can see it. To call it prejudice, they're would have to be a connection made between black and an PRE-assumed quality that the person assumes "goes with" being black . This may not meet the legal definition of prejudice but I'm talking about the general definition.And for the voter who doesn't vote for atheists, they also are not being prejudice unless they are PRE judging. See, there's the PRE again. They would have to make a connection between atheism and some other PRE-assumed quality in order to call this prejudice. And that's why you threw in the quality of "they are not trusted in office" i.e. Bad policy maker. In that case it WOULD be prejudice. In other words if you are making the connection atheism=bad policy maker then yep, that's prejudice. But many people DONT. there are many people who are this type of voter but if asked do you think the atheist will make for bad policy, they will say no, I just don't want to see an atheist in that office. You see, no PRE judgment. Just a dick voter. The only thing they claim to know about the candidate is that they're atheist and that is TRUE. They are atheist. No bad assumptions involved. Just a person who votes very stupidly.	Black	Ethnicity - Black	4/257	1.556

Pat Doyle no, you don't know that they are assuming the person's guilty just because they want a conviction. They could simply want black people in jail, innocent or guilty. If they assumed guilt, then sure, that's prejudice.Does this surprise you? There are cops that plant evidence in order to get black people in jail for no other reason other than they're black . No guilt assumed, obviously. You don't think jurors can possess that same sentiment, the same evil desire? Many many do.	Black	Ethnicity - Black	3/84	3.571

I was little, but even remember the tense cold war near the end of it.. The rich got very rich in my generation. The good music is all gone, there is nothing more technologically that is changing the world.. we're living in a stagnant era. Obama is not the hope or the change we expected, the appearance of our country is packaged to look neat and not so shabby, but in reality is a piece of crap that you can't lend any money to because it has such bad credit. Bill, it's ironic that this is your first closing monologue after an election when octogenerians practically decided the election. Young people don't turn out during midterm elections and the establishment in both parties knew that. That's why the candidates spent much of the time talking about perpetuating war in the middle east, denying climate change and dragging their feet on social issues. Hardly any of the candidates made any effort to relate to issues that matter to people in their 20s and 30s. And they were right; young people stayed home, and the older electorate sent more science-denying bigots to the senate and gave the party of "no" control of both houses of congress. This country is already completely run by the elderly , and that needs to change.	Elderly	Age - Over 65s	1/128	0.781

John McCain is 78 but Democrats see his age as " Old and out of touch". I have no argument either way to make here but I find it supremely ironic the point Bill Maher is trying to make here.Didn't Bill Maher rail against John McCain for two years as he was running for president specifically because of how old he was?Also the truth people like Bill tend to ignore on this issue is an economic one.Two points here just for thought not academic. 1) The people that make products and media geared for younger audiences and profit off that product are Bill's age . (I.e. record labels promoting songs about the female posterior are not run by young people. )2) The people in Bill's generation didnt believe in saving like their depression era parents did. They believed in spending and having a good time, borrowing money, and living larger than their means which in turn wrecked the economy twice very severely. As a result of this, Bill's generation doesn't have alot to retire on so instead of stepping aside from the workforce they have to stay in, preventing young people from getting career oriented, middle class jobs.So blame young people if you want but look at the whole picture first. Don't listen to bill. Even though his personality is magnetic to the zombie viewers and I do watch him along with other late-night news hosts such as Colbert and Jon, I happen to disagree with him the most. Sure, he is hilarious and has a very similar personality to mine, which is why I find him so appealing and entertaining to watch and play around with his (biased) opinions, but that doesn't mean he is a perfect human being. Turn your Maher-Blinders off and actually LISTEN to the ideas he is saying- in this case, he's talking down on our generation, Gen X and Y. Yes, I am disgusted by the things that we happen to worship, such as the human buttocks and Miley Cirus, and I do happen to love Larry King, but the progressive perspective of our generation are THE most relevant ideas for the world and how it is shaped, we are the future and it is now our turn to shine. WE created Facebook, Google and letting technology and letting far-left liberal policies slowly take over the country. Old people like Bill are in our way, but our views are only getting more powerful by day.What I'm saying is, the younger generation right now is the future and we are as relevant as anything, no matter what anyone says. Prometheus Spanky I do need to say that I agree with you on some stuff you said. I hate the public radio. I don't understand how certain groups of people (let's not say black or white cuz we know it exists in all races in america), enjoy songs that promote shit. Like shooting people doing drugs fucking blowing being a thug etc. And then they turn around to blame EVERYONE else that they don't have jobs education equality opportunity etc. It's just too funny to watch their parents ignore the type of things they see and read yet tell the government the teachers are not doing their job. Gen Y is not the only generation that deserves a harsh reprimand. It could be shared, across the board, except Gen Z because they are too young yet and they are watching our actions, collectively, and learning from us. Generation X and the boomers have a part of blame, in where we are today, as well. After WW2, when industry picked up in America and the activism of the 60's, took off, we were a nation of ideals, fresh ideas and innovation (we still are, of course), but we got careless. Now we have that activism, turned political correctness, dictating what is acceptable and what is not. We all share a part of the blame for that. Millennials we're dealt a bad hand, inherited many pitfalls, like an inflated economy, rampant politically correct enforced thought, that dictates what individuality is and what is cannot be, and a very uncertain future. Ultimately, maybe everyone is in that boat, now. If the millennials are guilty of anything, it is not caring enough about where society, is going. Many of them are working part time jobs (multiple jobs), just to work to attain a future they have no real assurance, even will exist. Carelessness and uncertainty are everywhere. What I see much of the problem, as being, is people who follow this societal trend of political correctness, without questioning where it is leading our collective futures and people who have a "generational" mindset and want to play the blame game, without assuming any themselves. We already have too much of that. Collectively, we are a living society of responsibility shirkers (generally speaking here). Maybe this is going to be our demise, as a society, one can only hope not.	Nation	Nationality - General	1/286	0.35

Azure Hughes Lauding past generations is typical ageism. This notion that younger generations, "owe it" (excuse the pseudo intellectualism, personally I find it more of an emphasis on cynicism), to the last generation to respect everything they did or didn't do, carry on the mantra, without question, and be responsible, regardless of the bullshit they were left with, is just more failure to assume responsibility, by the prior generation.It was the boomers who watched a surplus economy, a booming western GDP industrial economy (not an economy that relied, completely, on consumerism to stay afloat, like we have now), a gold-backed dollar, slip away. While they promoted "free love" (excuse me again) and peace, sitting passively by, watching, as bureaucratic assholes slowly, but surely, undermined everything that gave America real prominence in the world. And they didn't have to rack up 100k in debt, in the false hope that opportunity and prosperity was on the other side of higher education. All the while selling Generation Y and Z's future, down the river, on a ship called Free Trade. And now, we are decrying carbon emissions, telling this generation they need to "Be responsible", while the baby boomers wasted, like there was no tomorrow. And maybe now there really is, "no tomorrow". You can't help that kind of ignorance.Generation X, Y and Z now get to engage a daily struggle to hold onto jobs, they aren't guaranteed to have, in 5 or 10 years. While the baby boomers will get the full circle return of not championing the benefits, they were given, when the pension fund runs out in a few years because more boomers will be retiring, while fewer will be paying back into the fund. That is, unless the global economy goes, belly up, when the dollar (the world reserve currency), finally is declared worthless because it is being over printed.All this bullshit because of a failure to take responsibility. We should stop beating the dead horse, of telling the youth to be more responsible and get their priorities straight, and face the facts for what they are.Fuck it, I haven't even touched on wars and international disasters, but this rant has been long-winded enough.	Ageism	Age - General	1/369	0.271

Bman Chu What are you basing that on? There are many criticisms that can be made of my generation, but I would not say a lacking in a sense of social justice and environmental awareness is one of them.I don't know the statistics, but I'd bet that compared to past generations millenials generally accept the reality of global warming on a wider scale. I know for a fact less of us are dumb enough to believe in a god, so we're already more inclined to be convinced by scientific data, something that often prevents older generations (in my experience) from believing in things like climate change. I ask this of you and everyone so quick to judge my generation; Think your criticisms through at least. I understand some level of disappointment towards people my age , we certainly aren' perfect, but we have greater potential, in my opinion, than any of you do at this point. Also, the more bitter you people sound the less inclined your criticisms are to actually make any change, as we young folk tend to rebel against any form of authority because we're young and think we know everything. ;PFor the most part, all I'm saying is you could give us more credit and express your expectations in a more constructive way considering the advantages we have in terms of both development and information distribution. exclerater Yeah, that's what we need; some young conservative idiot to further run our already reeling country into the ground. Conservatism as a political belief is, in itself, a defeatist way of thinking. The only way a person or nation grows is by learning and applying that knowledge. It's great to learn from history but conservatives want to repeat history and that NEVER works. In the U.S. there is ONLY conservatism. Neither party is interested in learning from our mistakes. The Republicans want to go back to them, (hence the fixation on making the rich richer - even though the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries told us that making the rich richer only makes the poor poorer and SLOWS DOWN THE ECONOMY), while the Democrats want a law for every part of our daily lives. (How did that work in the U.S.S.R., or the P.R.C. or the P.R.K., to site an ongoing totalitarian regime?) Face it, our present political system; an oligarchy in all but name, is broken badly and quickly destroying the country. Both political parties are really run by a few very wealthy, very self interested business entities. In a few years, unless these entities are curtailed, we the people will be nothing but wage slaves (as many already are) working long hours to benefit those very few at the expense of our own desires and dreams. One possible answer is true Libertarianism, the way Robert Heinlein described it, before the conservatives latched onto it and made it much like the present oligarchical system. Heinlein described Libertarianism as a system where minimal constraint was put on the individual while the corporate structure was firmly regulated, (oversimplified but basically what he was saying, I think). What that means is: Let the individual be free to think and create and make sure that no one who is rich can stifle that freedom, by statute or by stealing. From the mind of the individual comes the greatest of ideas: The Declaration of Independence, the telephone, the computer, the airplane, the automobile. The list is endless. I believe that if this country is going to remain at the forefront of human freedom, the only way t o do it is to throw off the oncoming tyranny before it clamps down on us all. We do that by finding the independent thinkers and electing them DESPITE the constant bombardment of lies by a media, again, run by those few very rich and very self interested entities... ©Caelroigh Blunt 2014	Nation, Nothing	Age - Youngsters, Nationality - General	2/417	0.48

Bill Maher is not saying all elderly people are wise. Hell, earlier in the show he made a crack about Pat Robertson, who is himself a crotchety old fart that I doubt anyone sane would label as wise. No, what he's saying is that older people like Jerry Brown who are incredibly intelligent and have gained so much insight through experience aren't being given a chance because of their age . He's also pointing out that the millennial generation (which I admit I am a part, I am sorry to say) is incredibly shallow. And it's true. We idolize people like Beyoncé and Miley Cyrus because they throw their ass out there, not to mention that every damn generic rap song is about ass and pussy and chicks twerking or "gettin dirty on the floor." Hell, anyone remember that song where for the first minute, it's just a guy going "ass, ass, ass, ass, ass, ass?" His point is that we idolize the young because they're young and physical and we discard older people who could potentially save this country because we view them as old and practically knocking on death's door. He's not saying elect Brown for being old , he's saying don't write him off for being old . No I totally agree with you that every generation has had this type of music, which is to say catchy but pretty shallow in that it's really not saying anything. It's just fun to listen to. However, this generation more than ever has seen the rise of Pop stars who don't play instruments, don't write their own music and really have nothing to say or sell other than fame. Look at Rebecca Black , look at Justin Bieber and Miley Cyrus. Their music is so vapid and pointless and just BAD. Even most rap is like that, and the reason why artists like Eminem are so sacred is because they actually do have something to say and that's why they get so much love and attention. I love Eminem precisely because he communicates a point in his music. But Miley Cyrus, her entire point is "look at me, i'm twerking, I have street cred." Also during this time u have the rise of artist like Kanye West, Lupe, Wale, and early on u had people like Outcast, Mos Def, and Common . who have plenty to talk about. In this day in age music has changed so much that a lot of music is so personalized that what is seen on MTV and other music station does not accurately represent the wide variety of music that this generation listen to. Kanye West may have talent but I think his personality is pretty reprehensible. The guy has got an ego like nobody's business, which may be an act for all we know, but that's another point. It seems like anyone will do anything to achieve fame these days or to keep themselves in the spotlight. Sex tapes, skanky outfits, public meltdowns, and most of them get reality shows out of it. Sure, singers creating images for themselves is nothing new, but the purpose for it has changed. Look back at Marilyn Manson in the '90s. Whether you like his music or not, you know who he is because he got everybody's attention, but he was trying to get people to think and his music reflected what he was trying to get across: free speech, individuality, etc. there was a point to it other than attention and tabloid attention.	Nothing, Sex	Age - Youngsters, Gender - General	2/147	1.361
Today it's all about selling an image that earns money and fans, it doesn't even matter whether the music is of any quality. The industry runs on whether or not people are buying the music. Rebecca Black , I guarentee, would not have been able to release a studio single after Friday came out of it hadn't sold. Justin Bieber, Miley Cyrus, Kesha, Rihanna, Nicki Minaj, Katy Perry, One Direction, Carly Rae Jepson, those are the people who top record charts these days and their music is as shallow as it gets. Doesn't matter though, because they sell, and they're well known. The music is almost arbitrary at this point.	Black	Ethnicity - Black	1/109	0.917
Not all modern music is garbage, unfortunately it's usually not what sells. I'd like to see another Kurt Cobain-not literally-but someone who brings back a sense of purpose to music. That's what great music has always done: made a point. Our generation is rype for material, unfortunately the biggest message in music right now is " sex , twerking, dance, fuck and repeat." It's like what the '80s glam rock and hairband era was: loud and flashy but ultimately empty.	Sex	Gender - General	1/78	1.282

Age doesn't always mean wise. You can see a lot in this world over a lifespan but doesn't mean everything you say is golden. While ageism is real, sometimes we need some younger people to bring some new ideas to the table that are more open minded. Mahers is lying as usual. Here are the factsCalifornia's debt crisisThursday, January 9th, 2014Issue 02, Volume 18.Debt at the national, state and local levels has mushroomed in recent decades. Three California cities have sought bankruptcy protection and there are constant rumors that more may soon follow.Among the problems impacting California cities are the huge debt obligations owed to CalPERS, the state's public employees' retirement system. For example, Stockton, one of the bankrupt cities, is paying CalPERS roughly $29 million a year, in addition to payments being made to other creditors.Despite passage of a so-called "balanced" budget last June, a report by the California Taxpayers Association placed state and local debt at an astounding $443 billion, which amounts to $11,600 for every man, woman and child in the state.Mac Taylor, the legislature's budget analyst, recently reported that California's structural budget deficit has disappeared. While this is good news, the report is based on a shaky economic recovery and temporary taxes. It also ignores California's huge future debt obligations.As we enter 2014, we should remember that all state programs are based on tax revenues generated by private-sector economic activity. Future state and local spending must be reined in so that the debt burden we have accumulated over the last decades can be addressed along with massive unfunded mandates and liabilities that threaten future prosperity. Only then can we truly begin to celebrate California's return from the brink of fiscal insolvency.By Calif. State Assemblymember Marie Waldron (R-75th District	Woman	Gender - General	1/254	0.394

Nobody is saying that this particular instinct doesn´t have an evolutionary explanation. If it stuck with males, then it means it served a purpose at a certain evolutionary stage and spread. But it´s still just a basic instinct that serves no real purpose of survival anymore in a civilized modern society, and thusly doesn´t warrant making a national meme out of it.But anyway, Bill just used that meme as an example that our culture is becoming led by instinct-driven impetuous youngsters. It´s not that serious, I guess, as long the vital areas that keep the country running (government, academia, finances, etc.) are being run by wise people.	Nobody	Age - Youngsters	1/108	0.926

Tim Clarkson " Nobody is saying that this particular instinct doesn't have an evolutionary explanation" "it's way too early for me to listen to an idiot try to justify BS with his own brand of pseudoscience"Reading comprehension 101.Also who made you the arbiter of which facets of human sexuality (attraction to certain signs of fertility or sexual displays) are no longer necessary? So the fact that males are attracted to the traits females have is no longer necessary? (Yes I'm baiting you) Because attraction tends to help with reproduction and that is necessary.I also love in the comment's section of a speech about ageism , you're being ageist vs young people calling them impetuous and impulse-driven, because of course all people who are young are stupid and all who are old are wise. Antoine VelloThe "pseudo-science" comment wasn't from me.The original commenter argued that attraction to a larger butt for males was an evolutionary advantage because "the ass is the storage for fat and the bigger the ass the more likely the woman can survive food shortages". And that doesn't serve its purpose in a modern civilized society, as no one is dying of hunger in America.I didn't call young people stupid. I just said they were more instinct-driven and impetuous, which they are. The current ass-worshipping trend is more typical of the high-testosterone younger mind that is dominating culture than the older one. But as I said, I don't care much because I don't see those memes as a threat to civilization (yet), as long as the sensitive areas are being controlled by more pragmatic and wise people (who could very well be young, for that matter). Antoine VelloWell, they are, to varying degrees. And it's not their fault; it's biology's fault. Most of the activities that require high drive and impetus (loud parties, petty crime, hooliganism) are dominated by young males. Testosterone levels only begin to drop at age 30. Incidentally, so do crime rates. [LINK] [LINK] That said, one should also evaluate young people on an individual level, as some may be more self-possessed than others. Matthew Trujillo No I mean for the past 150,000 years human evolution has driven men to be attracted to certain physical traits women have that would be a benefit to the man himself and ti his offspring, such as foraging for food. The past 100 years of human evolution where we have grocery stores is irrelevant when we look at our most basic instincts.Let me also point out that most people on this thread are confusing attraction and sexual arousal. When a woman with a nice ass bends over in front of you that instinct is not the same as when she says she has a trust fund. Also for a women it's different power/money is often a sexual desire for them because their instincts are to be with the strong powerful male of the social group in order to pass on those genetics and to ensure her offspring and herself will be protected. Donald Dangelravis I actually debated if I should respond because you seem to be a mental midget . I never said anything was a fact, I was certain to say probably, can possibly serve as, and likely, this is not hard and fast, there is however evidence that backs up what I say.How does someone's ability to survive a food shortage make them attractive? Well seeing as our genetic imperative is produce offspring likely to survive and a body with stored fat is more likely to survive in a time period when food was not a given. It is pretty easy to see why such features would be selected for.Why do asses indicate youth and fertility? Well I said they suggest that. Also the fullness of someone's as0s tends to reduce with age . So that's a sign of youth and the young tend to be more fertile. It does not take the scientific method as a young male human to walk through your almost butt-ass-naked tribe and see the women with children and the women of your age having different asses and be compelled by instinct to gravitate towards the younger women. For answers to my own question, see below.Maybe the waist-to-hip ratio is more important for the sexual attractiveness, and the chubby woman depicted in art are more of a fertility symbol than attractiveness symbols. But there is also an indicator that the optimal waist-to-hip ratio changes through the time. It could be that people 10,000 years ago find more chubby woman more attractive than today."We suggest three possible roles for Venus figurines. Firstly, a minority of images may have been intended to represent young, sexually attractive and nulliparous adult females. These might truly be considered as 'Venuses' in the conventional sense. Secondly, a subset of figurines represented changes in body shape during pregnancy and might be symbols of fertility. Thirdly, the figurines, depicting corpulent and often middle-aged women, may not have been 'Venuses' in any modern or conventional sense. They may, instead, have symbolized the hope for survival and for the attainment of a well-nourished (and thus reproductively successful) maturity, during the harshest period of the major glaciation in Europe." [LINK] "In this study, we demonstrated that the WHR of women considered as symbols of beauty did not vary during the antiquity period (500 BCE—400 CE) and decreased since (at least) the 15th century in western societies. A closer analysis of Playboy models and Miss pageant winners' measurements from 1920 to 2014 revealed a reduction, or even a reversion, of this WHR decrease. The universality of one preferred WHR is thus challenged, and the evolution of men's preferences could be linked to demographic, economic, health or social changes in western societies, which are older than the mass media growth of the 20th century." Old age does not always bring wisdom.From my experience, old age usually brings fascism...or Alzheimer's.I love my Grandmother but damn, she says some awful racist bigoted things!If you're going to stay in the same place your whole life,you will not get much of the experiences required to attain the so-called "wisdom";there are exceptions however.What I find to be true Ageism is assuming that just because that person has a higher number of birthdays than you,she automatically knows a lot more than you about any subject or topic.And yes,that person has had more time to learn about different topics,but that does not necessarily mean they've used that time to do so. And 78 is wayy too old to be President.I'm not being an ageist but a realist.How are you going to determine if the President is in possession of his mental faculties during office,when at that age, most people deteriorate mentally and physically.Everything he does will be evaluated using that prism,and I assume the Veep or the opposition will have a greater incentive to prove that the President is not fit for duty,or put more plainly,senile.Besides,from what I've seen of the American Congress,I'm not sure old people (or at least old politicians)understand or are equipped to identify or handle the paradigm shifts that we are experiencing,along with the new realities and the new problems and difficulties that arise from all this,and pose a threat to younger generations.	Age, Ageism, Ageist, Mental, Old, Racist	Age - General, Age - Over 65s, Ethnicity - General, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	12/237	5.063

If we had a parliamentary system I would agree. The problem with electing 78yr olds is not that they are too old to govern. They may very well stay sharp for another couple of decades. The problem is that at that age (78-86, the age Jerry Brown would be during a two term presidency) a significantly high percentage of people start to decline mentally. In our presidential system it is very difficult to force our chief executive out. Many believe that Ronald Reagan had already begun to show symptoms of Alzheimer's by the time he left office. If he had, luckily it didn't cause any disasters, but what if he had started to decline a couple of years earlier? What if his decline had been more rapid? What mechanisms do we have to determine that the President is unable to execute his office? Maybe if Congress passed some laws governing these things more clearly it might be an entirely different issue. It is not so much ageism as fear of potential senile dementia. If anyone could weigh in with some statistics regarding the actual percentage of people developing Alzheimer's during this age period it would be great. Also, it would be interesting to know how many former Presidents have been afflicted with these types of conditions, how load they were at onset, and how long they had been out of office at the time. If it turns out that very few Presidents ever develop Alzheimer's or that they are diagnosed at a statistically higher age than the general population, I would be less concerned. Age should be relevant, but not automatic grounds for dismissal - e.g. Bill's example vs say John McCain who, let's face it, is pretty much senile at this point. If someone's old but still in good health with a sharp mind, then sure - they should be able to get elected. Consider for a moment the sheer multitude of people within the "How Dare You" Generation and you'll realize that saying, "They're all " is doomed to fail. common101sense If you don't understand feminism, then how would you be able to detect when something has truly been "feminized"? You wouldn't be able to. You seem to be confusing feminine for "sensitive," which is rarely the case. As most people can likely attest to, a man can be just as sensitive as a woman , and a woman can be just as uncaring or insensitive as a man. Gender roles are largely illusory categorizations which over-generalize trends but ignore the marginal cases that define the complexity of the matter. But anyway, feminism is a kind of misnomer for equality. It means reverse gender discrimination. So a true feminist wouldn't be any more sensitive than anyone else, unless they saw true discrimination at work. True discrimination doesn't mean, "let's treat the woman and the man the same in deciding who gets the job, despite their differences in qualifications." Discrimination has to be unfair differentiation. So, if their qualifications were identical, and the employer said, "I went with the man because he is a man," that's discrimination. Similarly, if a bus driver is hiring his replacement, and a blind man applies for the job but the employer says, "I'm not going to hire you because you're blind ," that's not discrimination, whereas if a black man applies and the employer says, "I'm not going to hire you because you're black ," that is. I tried to explain that the rule isn't widely agreed upon, even among people who closely study the topic. Either way, generational boundaries are almost always arbitrary. The group that's really shaping the image of Millennials, like your Wayne's World example of Gen X, were born in the 90s, in their mid-20s or younger. Unlike the first Millennials and the last Xers, 90s kids were too young to be my peers when I was growing up. And my interactions with that younger group, online and in person... has been absolutely oil and water. I usually get along with anyone from the 80s. I obviously don't know much about Zuckerberg personally, aside from his birthdate, but I'm guessing that "first Millennials" and Gen X influenced him more than people born in the 90s, who were in elementary/middle school when he was in Harvard. For example, you brought up Xers creating Napster- Zuckerberg was a close friend of one of the Napster co-founders, who was born in the 70s. As I said before - OP is right, and quite obviously so. He just didn't use the right words. There are 75yo people who are so healthy that there is no reason to assume that they will die within the next ten years. But most of them do not have to work anymore. And we are not talking about a 75yo who spends his days with fishing and hiking and visiting museums. We are talking about doing a very stressful 16-hours-a-day job. Chances are that a 75yo old will have much more difficulties doing such a job for 8 years. When McCain chose Palin to be his VP, people were shocked. Not because she is a moron; they didn't know that from the start, but because many thought: 'when (not if) McCain dies, we will be left with a president with little to no experience.' Do your research on this particular individual Gov Jerry Brown because he's the topic of the discussion. Feel free to make an ass(umption) and comment again BartJ583, just make sure you have facts not generalization (statistical data).	Age, Jerry, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s, Nationality - German	6/306	1.961
Think2 BI am rather angry now.Again - Jerry Brown didn't do any of those things in his 80s. He was in his 70s.And again, we are not talking just about traveling. We are talking about a 14-16-hour workday, every day, with very few vacations and very few weekends.If you cannot see how demanding that job is, then you do not know any 80yo people.	Jerry	Nationality - German	1/68	1.471

He just traveled 4 months ago dealing rigorously about NAFTA trade and immigration. I think that's pretty stressful don't you? Do you have a crystal ball that tells you how Gov. Jerry Brown will be in his 80's or are you relying on your ass(umption) or generalization of statistic. I certainly don't know but I'm willing to give the man a shot because of his track record, dedication, and discipline. What are you basing your rationality on? I know an 88 yr old who can dead lift 415lbs and works 14-16 hours actively and is successful. I've seen many more at the gym, they don't settle in life they keep pushing the boundaries. I've seen in YouTube an old boxer show up a young boxer. Do not presume what one can and can not do. Speak for yourself. Don't get angry, get factual knowledge and defend your points. You know the old saying, if you can't handle the heat in the kitchen, then get the.....if you don't like the channel change it. As for me I'm moving on, fun to see you get mad over something so minuscule and irrelevant. I mean come on its just a comment thread and we don't even know if he's running. I mean do you really know what's going to happen in the future. If so you would've beaten Warren Buffet and been a TRILLIONARE. Again he's one of the wisest, sharpest, workaholics, and richest who works and travels to China to cut deals and ohhh I forgot to mention he's 84 year old. Really? C'Mon smile and laugh LOL	Jerry, Old	Age - Over 65s, Nationality - German	5/266	1.88
Mike McTighe Not Reagan. He spent most of his time in office on vacation and/or asleep. Reagan was unusual in this respect as most elderly people find it difficult to sleep for long periods. Teens and twenty somethings are the champions at sleeping for long stretches.	Elderly	Age - Over 65s	1/46	2.174
Actually, it's gonna be middle age before you know it, and Ron Paul and Jerry Brown can run circles around my 30-something ass. Gee, I guess you really don't know everything, after all. FFS	Age, Jerry	Age - General, Nationality - German	2/34	5.882
The elderly are not the only "acceptable" group still being discriminated against in America, not at all. Handicapped for one. And sure its fine to elect an old president but usually old means old idea. And many old ideas suck, lets be real. Liberals all want new so I have no idea what Bill is talking about... Of course there are exceptions to the rule..	Elderly, Handicapped, Old	Age - Over 65s, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	6/65	9.231

Generally, I love Maher’s ability to critically analyse US culture. Yes, it is shallow and youth-obsessed (like any other culture I am familiar with). But having ”respect for the elderly ” has nothing to do with considering people unfit to govern at a certain age . Furthermore, age isn’t necessarily linked to wisdom. I know just as many wise and reflected people in their late-20s as I know ignorant, stupid and by no means ”wise” people over 50.Claiming there is a cultural bias against old people in politics is ... well, just look at your government. Agreed, not sure what the fuck Bill is talking about when he claims the U.S. is unfair to old people...our society give too much blind respect to old people. One of the reasons we are so religious...	Blind, Old	Age - Over 65s, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	3/37	8.108
Well... unfortunately the driving regulation/training system in mainland China isn’t very friendly.It’s always the old and conservative folk who haven’t adapted to the culture who cause the stereotypical accidents.But isn’t USA mainly run by older people? And doesn’t agism exist against young people as well? i.e. assuming that young people = less educated, less experienced, don’t know anything, etc.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/61	1.639
Yeah, I completely disagree with Bill on this issue. People give blind respect to the old in this country, while blaming the problems of society on the young.	Blind, Old	Age - Over 65s, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	2/28	7.143

Result analysis:

- Taking into account the words that were detected, we can reach the conclusion these comments are associated with : : Ideological and Political Identity - General;Nationality - German;Age - General;Age - Over 65s;Ethnicity - General;Physical Identity - Physical Features;Nationality - Chinese;Ethnicity - Native-American;Gender - General;Social Class - Working class;Ethnicity - White;Age - Youngsters;Sexual Identity - General;Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality;Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments;Nationality - American;Nationality - General;Ethnicity - Black;Nationality - European or anti-Europeans;Religious Identity - Jewish;Nationality - Italian;Ethnicity - Asian (East- China, Japan, Korea, Philippines, Vietnam);Ethnicity - Aboriginal;Gender - Female sexuality;Gender - Female age and physical appearance;Behavioural Addiction - Alcohol;Social Class - Destitute;
- The percentage of hate speech related words is 1.9972.
- Considering that the variable Age - Over 65s has the most occurrences in the post, we can interpret that this is the predominant hate speech.
- Overall there were 2038/2786 occurrences of hate speech related comments.
