crap, you all really want to make us victims just like all millenials want to look? gen z is more than that, we dont act like victims even though we have been victims of the negative generation perspective since we were born, we grew up listening everyone saying that we are internet addicts with no convictions, having a total broke global economy, what the wars have left, polution at its greatest, we are the generation with most probabilities of mental health issues such as depression or suicidal thoughts and we still look like a big ass strong new era, we dont go crying over all but actually laughing of it and trying to see the reallity, and guess what, gen z seniors since the last 2 years became adults and its the turn to this world starts seeing the new change, hope we all can set an actual different control over the global things and shut up everyone who said we were the mediocre gen, oof to them	Mental	Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	1/168	0.595
I'm trying to do a bit of research because I'm writting a paper on what it was like to grow up on the post 9/11 world and this seems like a complete millennial video. It is true that Instagram and Snapchat stories make us depressed but I find that it glosses over how we can be an independently thinking generation because we came of age during the time where there was very little keeping us from any information we wanted to know showing us that our planet is dying and we have until we're 25-35 to stop it yet the generations older than us just completely ignore the problem and think technology is making us crazy , I knew this video was bullshit when she said she was excited about the future	Age, Crazy	Age - General, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	2/131	1.527

The internet , social media was one of the generation defining things that happened this ya gen z have been able to absorb so much information that we know how messed up the world is at a young age . That's why we're probably more worried and serious. Millennials used the internet for fun but gen z used it for information. We see how much the past generations have messed up the world. We don't give a shit bout social media and we are the most diverse people out here. Most of us don't care about what people say on social media and if they say we look dumb in our out fit we will say some shit like 'ye' and continue on wearing whatever we want and being whoever we want	Dumb	Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	1/59	1.695

Why does anyone have to be described as 'right' or 'left' I mean I'm right handed, does that count? Why separate things into neat little boxes when everyone has a slightly different view. I'm a gen z (2006), and honestly, I get why people say we are more conservative, but today, what does that even mean? What does it mean to be conservative, or liberal? I'm lgbt, so are many if my friends, and one on my friends from my old school was very much a traditional Christian kid, we still got along and respected each other perfectly well and talked about our reasonings for our beliefs. Even when we were polar opposites, he was a white Christian teen male, who thought that unless you are a teen who is totally unprepared, or the baby has a terminal genetic disease, everyone should at least do their best to make having a baby the most viable option, whereas I am a Bisexual Trans Boy who was very much raised in a liberal agnostic household. But despite our religious and political differences we agreed to disagree and still were able to mostly get along and respect each other. Not what would you label each of us as? How about instead of candidates for president being separated into parties, and then people whose beliefs align with that party choose that candidate, how about instead all candidates are equal, third party candidates aren't erased, and everyone just plain tells the people what their beliefs are and what they think is the best course of action, and then you choose based in that. Say if Bob Shmoe is a Buddhist gay man who believes that people should all start planning for their future from a young age, and Jill Hill is a straight Christian woman who believes that children should have less time in school and explore more topics outside of the school environment to allow for individual growth in fields of interest. Not what party would you say those candidates are? Does it matter? They both have varied beliefs, same with everyone, so why isn't this how the system works? I'm open to criticism, but please no hate language I'm only thirteen with a very limited knowledge of these topics, I have only studied politics formally for one year, and google is hardly a reputable source, but this just makes more sense to me personally.	Age, Gay, LGBT, Old, Woman	Age - General, Age - Over 65s, Gender - General, Sexual Identity - General, Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality, Sexual Identity - Transexuality	8/401	1.995

Generation Z is fucked because as a teen, Iv realized that other teens my age are too fucking obsessed with tech. I asked someone, "When was the last time you read a book outside of class?" Exactly. No one really is motivated for school because information is squashed in your brain for no fucking reason and you forget it over break anyways.	Age	Age - General	1/62	1.613

So if I were to make a movie in which gen z is described (I was born in late 1998) I would be prone to do it differently. We grew up with a or two caring but worried parents. Our parents taught us to be careful with money and to be kind to people. We were taught that we have to work in order to make a living but we were also raised in the regret of our parents not having their dream job and encouraging us to do the job we feel will not bore us even after 40 years or more at work. Or maybe our parents had their dream job and encouraged us to do the same. We grew up with an incredible love for family, even though the love we give sometimes doesn't pay of. We also know that in order to support our parents and maybe, maybe not the family we want to have, needs financial support because they deserve it.We had our first job probably around age 16 because we just couldn't stand the feeling of using our parents money all the time. We grew up with the awareness that saving is mandatory because economy won't grow forever. And we grew up with more diversity then many generations before us, that's why we are so liberal, because at heart we know, people are just people and there will always be a small percentage of people who do wrong things, who are immoral, misguided and manipulated, sick and Ill. But we are aware that this is always a minority and we know that if we were in their situation we wouldn't act differently. We might have grown up with electronics, but we remember walkmans and cassette players and DVD players and old indestructable Nokia's. But we aren't experts on the internet. We face problems that we couldn't even influence. The war in the near East, presidents and dictators with no sense for diplomatic discussions. We have to live with Brexit because the elders were against the EU. We partially weren't even allowed to vote yet. We have to face conspiracy theorists, fake news and alternative facts, we have to deal with people who won't vaccinate their children. We love progress but we're afraid it's to late for all of us. And we realise that we have to live for ourselves and what fullfils us. We are supportive of the LGBTQ+ community because we understand that two consenting humans are just humans and that they should have the same rights. Yet we find comfort in religion because it give us a sense of peace.	Age, Brexit, Old	Age - General, Age - Over 65s, Nationality - European or anti-Europeans	3/439	0.683
I BET THIS WAS MADE BY A FLAT EARTHER, CUZ THE VIDEO IT SELF DESCRIBES THIS GENERATION FROM A FLAT PRESPECTIVE!!I am from GenZ and yes we where born and the internet existed but God dammit I can tell u that just judging an entire group of people for "USING" technology cuz it exists and based them on their age is just FLAT MINDED, jeez the oldest of us is only 23 and everyone starts claiming that they know all shit about us, plus; no gen z uses face book so I bet this was made by millenials.	Age	Age - General	1/99	1.01

This is just a small group of post millennials and gen z. Infact gen z is more open and welcoming, anyone can be anything and nobody can be influenced so easily by media. This I've learned as a genZ. Apparently we gonna grow up wearing what we want to and more conscious about real issues like climate change, president Trump etc etc.And there is no such thing as post millennials. We know we identify with genZ stop calling us post millennials. Idiots	Nobody	Age - Youngsters	1/83	1.205
Sometimes I think a better name for us would be the fixers, those that fix the mistakes of the current culture. These are just stuff I can imagine us saying about these topics:Us on racism- what is that? Never heard of such a stupid thing.Us on sexuality- Why isn't gay marriage legal everywhere? Like four of my best friends are sexually fluid and I'm not even sure who I like. And what does homo/heterosexual mean. We are not to be put in boxes, I'm whatever I want to be.Us on the environment- Well, my parents screwed up with that. Let me get my recycling bags and electric cars and fix the mess that they created.Us on the economy- I'm going to create my own business. Watching other people wait too long or be lazy taught me to take initiative.Side note, people call us lazy, but I believe we are more hardworking than most generations, and we will be further along in life than any other generation when we reach adulthood because we start preparing for our futures young.Us on politics- Teenagers actually CARE. This is a new concept. Teen: "Mom, when I grow up I'll vote for x because of their y policies and their z ideologies." Mom: faints because her child knows more than her about politics.My point is, we are realistic, independent, fixers, and we are accepting. I think my favorite part about my generation is our acceptance, and that is something this video, obviously completely false, failed to highlight. And while we are fixers, we don't whine about having to fix the screwy culture left behind for us. We WANT to change it because it's in our DNA to help.	Gay	Sexual Identity - General, Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality	2/290	0.69

I still feel like there should be a generation between gen y and gen z that goes from 1995-2007 (when iPhones came out and got popular) because if you grew up before then you didnt have smartphones or apple , you probably went outside, watched Saturday cartoons, and yeah your family might have had a computer but siblings share and it wasnt fast or small. Gen z are supposed to be the people who only know tech but if you grew up before it was around or your family didnt have any of it then you remember a time before and after it. It's one of those things that I think should be smaller or more like a decade or so since if you grab 20 years worth of people and say they share similarities you're going to be wrong cause it's too broad of a group, you can't contain that many people in a box. 1997Social media pressure isn't much different then pressure from non-media sources, if anything 24 media as it is today makes is difficult to keep a tradition/cliche going. Many people with different styles coming in at all directions, its common to hear one use social media as what is holding them back but on the contrary it has propelled the whole world forward and continues to evolve. If you don't like the way you feel, thats not on anyone els, you got to resolve your insecurities on your own, you are the one who holds yourself to it. Why dont you put down the social media accounts if it only brings sadness? Because you dont want to be alone, so you walk with a crook in your neck perhaps for the rest of your life on account of "i want friends". To not be afraid to be alone is to be honest with yourself and others.Shit + Video = Shideo	Common	Social Class - Working class	1/161	0.621
what is this? a series of still-like digitally created pictures (which is nothing but light) changing frames at an unimaginable rate which creates an illusion into our brain that we call movement. The light which is produced by a miniscule metal device is "absorbed" and detected by our pupils which are stimulated by them causing a series of "action-potential" chemical system of communication which ultimately ends up sending these "messages" to the back of our brains. The Brain then interprets each image and "flips it" around to one that we can comprehend fully. And thanks to this wonderful system which is innate in each one of us (sorry blind people), it has gave me the wisdom and ability to see through this video's utter bullsh*t. This generation has lived with the internet almost all their lives. We get bored of being there all the time. For example, I, now that I am in college, I actually LOVE going out on walks by myself and simply enjoy nature. And I am currently very motivated in doing something great with my life. So let's hope that, due to our generation's freedom of thought, we have more flexibility in government and such. Being a right winger or left winger is just kinda on the racks for me. Situations can all be dealt with differently and I'd rather have a middle ground. Maybe a neutral third party will win an election during our voting years :)(Honestly I just wish that we had a sole party of logic which takes every situation they are given and deduces a logical response to it. It's hard to even make a joke or a pun and not get bashed for being insensitive against those groups.-I support medicare for all-I support free college tuitions-I support a more isolationist and neutralist policy with the rest of the world -I support the raise of minimum wage-I strongly support the banning of assault weapons off the country.And of course i support a more integrated use of technology into our lives, even after the Cambridge Analytica fiasco, technology is our future and those who do not support it are just scared of it and will stay behind.I am a realist but that doesn't mean i don't hope for good stuff to happen. I was born in late '98 and I've seen both the worst of millennials and the best of gen Z in me. Growing up, I always leaned towards those older than me so I could learn from them, but I realized their world isn't mine at all: I'm a self-imposed vegetarian since 14 for feeling dumb about eating dead animals, but not a vegan since it feels too extreme and I honestly enjoy dairy. Digging avocado toast before it was even a thing, even though it's just like any another meal and I don't feel the urge to take pictures of it and post 'em everywhere. I'm all about equality and justice really, but the whole SJW thing and antifa lunatics are nothing but pathetic. Politically, I'm center-right and almost all millennials think we're crazy nazis when they hear the word "right". Obviously though, 1993-1996 is Late Gen Y and 1997-2000 is Early Gen Z, meaning they'll have more in common with each other (especially those born 1995-1998) than they would with those in Early Gen Y (1981-1984) or Late Gen Z (2009-2012), so using a cusp range for those born in 1993-2000 seems fair to me.	Common, Transition	Sexual Identity - Transexuality, Social Class - Working class	2/187	1.07

Generation Z is just going to be another failure. Not one generation has been as hardworking as the baby boomers and their elders. You all think that you can "change the world". It's not going to, so stop acting like you can miraculously change it. Yes millennials did not have that much drive but you are in a worse situation. One that your whole life is driven by technology, millennials and now generation z have felt the wrath of mental disorders including depression and bipolar, more than any past generations. Did you think that just sprung up by itself. Well it didn't. Next time don't be so foolish to think that the world will change to your liking just becuae you said so. Dzé Francis success is developed through hard work. I'm not claiming anything just pulling your legs. Obviously you don't take the hint. So get the stick out of your ass and stop assuming and smother your pompous opinion. Losers are the only ones that complain. You gotta be pretty unhappy with yourself to be so negative in general. I work my ass off. I put the energy out there with my work and positive out look, I, in return receive the fruits of my labor, thus is called the law of attraction. God is real to Christians, god isn't real to atheist. You are neither stupid for believing either. Anyone who thinks that are themselves stupid. So pushing your views on people and calling them stupid or need mental help is ignorant. People who do that are the type of people that love to hear themselves talk instead of hearing other talk. The 'I'm right because I read an article. Because my friends say so. Because it's never happend to me' people. Bruh I know sitting down watching tv for the rest of my life thinking Ima get something isn't going to get me shit. That's not how the law of attraction works. If you actually had the will power to understand the different meanings of the law of attraction then you may understand. Side note law of attraction is just like law of gravity. It's a physical law. You can say gravity isn't real that the earths flat what ever, but that comes down to perspective. You may have so called facts, but I'm sure there are facts for the opposite opinion as well. For instance god isn't real. Some have facts or evidence they've talked to him, some say they never seen or ever talked to him. Either way it's a fact to you and your self truth. I do not need mental health. You can believe what you want. And if I'm saying the opposite of my original post it's because I don't take negative people in a serious light. For instance the comments above. I'm trolling him. Idc what he thinks of me. The guys a chump. Just because I say I believe in god I'm apparently an idiot. Thats just an opinion. But he wanted to force his opinion on me because if I don't believ what he believes then I must be lower then he is. If you disagree with someone doesn't mean they are idiots. We will see what happens in the after life. If your an atheist then good don't waste your time on religion. Lol don't be push your ideals on others like a chump. And also just because you are motivated and are doing something in life doesn't mean you are more successful then a poor fat man who loves what he does and if that's watching tv then so be it. There is no where in life. The only success in the world is happiness. If making money is your happiness then so be it. If relaxing all day is your happiness then so be it. The successful person is the person who lives a life without regret. A happy life. You can have millions and be unhappy. You can have nothing and be happy. Lell Mi: As a member of Gen Z, I really appreciate people who call us all stupid. I don't care what generation you are, by calling us techno zombies (keep in mind you're using technology right now), you are in a way admitting that Gen Z is more educated than yourself. Also, if you're referring to true war, Gen Z probably wouldn't participate voluntarily. Nuclear tensions in North Korea have deescalated considerably since you posted this hate comment against a whole generation. And while there are many extremely stupid members of my generation (of that I am well aware) the same goes for any generation. And the fact that you're judging a whole generation based off of their TEENAGE years is worrying. Surely you could understand the importance of analyzing things in a fair light. It's like if I judged Gen X based off of their teenage years. I could then call all of them smokers and rebels, which now is far from the truth. Quit being a douche. I don't understand how this makes a millennial or a gen z different from generations before? Actually, it'd be more 1994-1999, because that age group would've grown up in both the Web 1.0 (90s-2004) and Web 2.0 (2005+) eras. The Web 1.0 era ended in Late 2004 when Motorola released the Razr and when broadband outsold dial up. www.websiteoptimization.com/bw/1008/Childhood is described as being from ages 3-12, albeit 3 & 4 are more nursery rhyme & Sesame Street aged, while 11 & 12 are preteens starting puberty and getting into teen culture, so 5-10 are the core kid years. Those born in 1994-1999 all turned 5 in 1999-2004 (Web 1.0), but didn't turn 11 and become a preteen until 2005-2010 (Web 2.0). Isabella Sevilla I think millenials and gen z have so much in common , I know conservative pundits try to make a big deal out of gen z. However, Gen Z knows the reality of how broken our society is in the same way millenials do, both generations have the ability to be colorful individuals, be into economic and social equality, play the game (aka get a job) and participate in the same system we know is unethical, and be optimistic and realistic at the same time. We are spiritual in different ways than previous generations, while both of our generations know that science is the future. People try to act like Gen Z is very regressive, but based on my observations of both Millenials and Gen Z growing up there are the same amount of progressives and regressives in each, I used to resent my peers and compare them to to older genrrations, but as I've grown up I've realized that both are the same really. I'm not sure if I'm gen z or a millenial, but I am who I am regardless.	Common	Social Class - Working class	1/183	0.546

J E ss E Y For my school, most people wear t-shirts and hoodies, and people that wear the brands are actually using them (track, sports, etc). And before you say I come from a poor school, I actually live in a rich school district. We dress up sometimes, normally Friday's, but God forbid we are not allowed to wear nice clothes every once in a while like any other generation. Plus, nobody really cares what you wear anymore. Look up the biggest boy band in the world, BTS and check out their clothes and hair colors. They show how fashion really doesn't have a distinct look anymore because we don't just look to our own country, we look to others as well. We are unique, casual, fancy, trashy, classy. Yes, we are on our phones all the time but so what. We get things done on it and learn more about the real world at an early age . I know more about politics than my parents do sometimes because of my phone. And we suffer from an extreme amount of pressure simply because we are the next gen and are supposed to be BETTER. This happened to the gen before us and while happen to the one after us. It's just normal, but we don't crack under it. We work, care about our educations, start networking online at early ages, learn new things everyday via the Internet. And if nothing changes your mind about my generation, just remember we are 25 of the worlds population. No matter how much you hate us, or think us to be self entitled brats, we are still here. We will be a primary part of the work force, we dominate social efforts (sexuality and race's don't matter anymore; we are open and care more about personalities than skin color or who you like. I'm genuinely disgusted by homophobic and racist people), we dominate social media, we are starting to be able to vote. We are becoming part of you. We (Generation Z) were born around 9/11 and we all grew up knowing nothing but a terror-stricken world. Yet we're constantly drilled into our heads that tolerance can solve it, and that we should solve other people's problems?I'm sorry, but I've noticed a trend among much of my other generation Z friends (male ones to be exact) — we couldn't give a shit about some craphole countries. Our economy is slowly crumbling. Our prospects for getting jobs are shrinking day by day amidst globalisation and automation. We have no chance of ever being able to buy a house and no chance of ever being able to retire. Yet the Millennials want to tell us that the billion fucking non-existent genders are more important than the future.Do you know why we won't be able to retire? Well, it's because of a simple thing you can't solve via immigration — Aging population. Do you think immigrants come here to pay for your retirement? Of course not. The entire pension system was able to function on the fact that there'd be more people in the next generation than the previous. Where the fuck does that leave us who live in times where people in the West would rather bask in their own selfishness than ever have kids.Our Generation is fucked in so many ways and I don't even care which way you politically lean, because you're probably just as fucked as anyone else. The millennials constant cry about their problems instead of working to solve them, and as a knock-on effect they're just passing the buck down to our generation of already over-burdened system-slaves.Does it even matter that we're better educated? We work all our childhood up to the end of University (or just secondary Education) and then, unlike our parents told us, we'll be working from then on for the rest of our lives. We have no choice. Neomaster Nelson It is you who started speaking about the left-right, conservatives and Neo-Nazis(what the hell Nazis got to do with this discussion). While its true that the left narrative was the leading one, and most of the social and economic disasters you inherited are due to their ideas. But the right have played along many times, and added damage of his own. For instance, It was the Republican Nixon, who debased the US currency from gold to nothing , thus enabling super-deficient spending. I encourage you to watch the movie GENERATION ZERO , it explains the subject greatly. You see, one of the major Philosophies that ruled and ruined the western world, is statiesm, the transition from relying on the individual, the family and the community, to letting the state(specially what is called - the establishment) solving all the problems, and be the ultimate moral arbitror - and this was mainly done by the left who was main dictating force in culture and society. I3fyr the Otaku a "free" world is not idea, unless you wanna go back to the stone age or to the age of trading and bartering, which I very much do not. I enjoy making money and buying stuff and I enjoy getting paid. Money is not the problem, it's people, but what are you gonna do? The government should keep it's nose where it belongs. At the same time things like health care should not be privatised.	Age	Age - General	2/78	2.564

I'm going to be honest, I was born in 1997 and I can't relate to gen z. I relate more to gen y only because I never grew up with social media or a smart phone. I didn't even have a smart phone until I was in 10th grade and facebook was 9th grade. I'm seeing kids at age 5 with a smart phone and when I was 5 I was out playing outside or watching cartoons. I'm going with gen y on my part only because it doesn't make since to cut half of a decade out that had a big influence in the 2016 election when gen Z had no say in it yet everyone was talking about how all the millennials get a say in politics now ranging from 18-early 30s and I was 19 when I voted.	Age	Age - General	1/141	0.709
The most common start date for Gen Z is 1995.1994 is the best year to cut off Gen Y, because they were born in the first half of the 1990s, were 5 years old and out of the child mortality age bracket (0-4) by Y2K, were in double digits in 2004 when Web 2.0 took over, started high school during the Bush Administration, and were old enough to vote for Barack Obama. There are some 1996-1998 borns who remember 9/11, as well as some 1993-1995 borns who don't. Memory is a subjective criteria. Plus, just because you remember it, doesn't mean you were impacted by it the same way as someone who was a teen or twenty-something at the time. Those born after 1990/1991 will only remember 9/11 the same way they would remember a tornado or a flood, no way in hell were they old enough to comprehend the political change after 9/11.	Old	Age - Over 65s	1/82	1.22
its age 4 when memory startsNot true. It's been scientifically proven that some people can remember things from as early as 1, while others can't remember anything until they are 6. Memory depends on the person. If you're talking average, about 3 years 6 months would be about the average for when people start remembering stuff.Plus, those born in 1993-1995, although old enough to remember Y2K, were too young to comprehend the significance of it being a new millennium or to understand the Y2K bug thing. The Commie Scum, 19 and under? Bullshit. There's nothing cut off worthy about 1997. Those born in 1994 were the last to be out of the child mortality age bracket (0-4) by Y2K and the last to be able to vote for Obama. Those born in 1995 were the last to be out of the child mortality age bracket (0-4) when the 21st Century began on Jan 1, 2001. Those born in 1996 were the last to be out of the child mortality age bracket (0-4) by 9/11 and the last to be adults when the Ukraine and ISIS crisis started. Those born in 1998 were the last to be able to vote in the Trump/Hillary election. (keep in mind the child mortality age bracket is a figure used by the UN and therefore used globally) What does 1997 have that's cut off worthy? Nothing . Gen Z is still practically babies right now, you can't even rent a fucking car.....and for damn sure don't have student loans, of which, I hope for the sake of humanities future, you all learn that college is a scam and never invest into the bullshit unless your job requires licensing. Doctor, PHD's, Medical Field, Certification type fields etc. Going to college for any other reason is COMPLETE BULLSHIT! A message to Gen Z, College is a scam, the music industry is dead so do whatever the fuck you want with music because its fun (if you saturate anything it dies) TV is dead so remind your older friends to get rid of that dead ass device in the house or give it a use besides being there for white noise. As far as war goes, our generation will be generals and chiefs etc, DON'T LET OUR GENERATION/GEN Y CHANGE OUR MILITARY STANDARDS! I don't give a shit what they say they feel. Try to keep your families together, our parents were too hopped up on cocain and dumb shit in the 80s and 90s to keep their heads straight so do us all a favor and be better parents for your kids so no one needs to write another angsty bullshit song about how mommy or daddy didn't love them. Go with your gut and be creative, don't let some feggit tell you how to run your own shit. You only live once.....even though I hate that that saying became a meme. Oh and one more thing, Gen Y will soon be in charge of any deep state affairs, hidden projects or global agendas, DO NOT LET THEM GENETICALLY MODIFY, MANIPULATE, PANDER, OR SPEW ANY PROPAGANDA PROMOTING DEGENERACY TO YOU! I mean shit, when we babysat you guys you saw enough disney channel to know whats up, and I assure you, your favorite disney stars from back then aren't going wacko by random chance, we know why dirty old men like harvey weinstein and dirty old disney execs "enjoy" working with little kids so much, try to see past the manipulation that Gen Y had to deal with with our mainstream media etc. Food for thought, the mainstream media fucked up our generation so bad half the mother fuckers left don't have a single thought of their own nor can they function without whining when challenged. Don't censor yourself, and be yourself. Now here's to hoping that you guys can make it through the time space continuum all in once piece in the next few years. You have to....cause your youngest brother/sister/cousin who's like 6 right now is counting on your ass. Oh and 9/11 happened back in 2001 btw, never forget. No matter how tall you build your ego, it can always be torn down.Oh and one more thing, stop dying your hair purple blue green and whatever the fuck, its been a shitty looking fad since the 90s and will continue to make you looke like a low self esteem cock mongler. I would have said autist but..... autistst are usually pretty smart.....	Dumb, Old	Age - Over 65s, Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments	3/517	0.58

Result analysis:

- Taking into account the words that were detected, we can reach the conclusion these comments are associated with : : Physical Identity - Physical (and Mental) Impairments;Age - General;Age - Youngsters;Gender - General;Age - Over 65s;Gender - Female age and physical appearance;Sexual Identity - General;Sexual Identity - Male homosexuality;Sexual Identity - Transexuality;Nationality - European or anti-Europeans;Social Class - Working class;Nationality - Chinese;Ethnicity - Native-American;Physical Identity - Physical Features;Ethnicity - Black;Ethnicity - General; Ideological and Political Identity - General;Nationality - General;Gender - Female sexuality;Religious Identity - Muslim;Religious Identity - Protestant;Nationality - German;Social Class - Destitute;Nationality - Southern European;
- The percentage of hate speech related words is 0.7766.
- Considering that the variable Age - General has the most occurrences in the post, we can interpret that this is the predominant hate speech.
- Overall there were 331/1405 occurrences of hate speech related comments.
